SCORING MEN FOR NOT BUILDING GOOD ROADS

The Women Are After Us Now About Our Laziness and We Must Do Something About Our Bad Roads and Bridges in Chilton County.

An interview with a Mrs. Boatfield, who lives near Marbury Wednesday, revealed a somewhat irate disposition among the women tribe toward the men of the county regarding the road situation.

Mrs. Boatfield came into the Probate office and called for Judge Reynolds. The Judge was pointed out to her and she greeted him very cordially and went right into her subject. She told him she wanted him to build some bridges on the road between her home and Marbury.

She said that she could wade mud and water and that it did not hurt her, but her children and grandchildren were not strong like she is, and could not wade and swim the mud holes.

She was told by Judge Reynolds that the road apportioners and overseers would have to build the roads and bridges. And here is where her wrath was let loose in full force. She said that if she had to depend on them to build the bridges she would just prepare to continue to wade and swim.

Then from the overseers and apportioners she went on and indicted the whole man outfit for their slackness on the good road question. She said the men were no account and would not work the roads and if we ever have good roads she advanced the idea that the women would have to work them.

Mrs. Boatfield said she was going to organize a good roads club among the women of Beat 5 and work the roads.

Judge Reynolds agreed with the lady that the men have lost interest in good roads and told her to wade in with her proposition to get the women interested.

WALTER BROADHEAD IN THE ARMY OVER THERE

Another Chilton County Boy, Walter F. Broadhead, Tells of His Experiences With the Army Which Pushed the Huns Out of France.

Second Aviation Inst. Center, Tours, France, Nov. 24th, 1918.

Dear Father:

There doesn't necessarily have to be a day set apart in order to get me to write you, but, as today, Nov. 24th, has been designated as "Father's Day," I too must fall in line and tell you that your boy has not, by any means, forgotten you. We have been promised that these letters will be sent straight to our homes in America, and I would feel bad indeed if I were to fail to write you and get my letter off with the others so that you will have your letter to read along with the million other fathers who have sons in Europe.

One year ago today, we were some where out on the old Atlantic and we could not tell where we were going or when we would get there. All we know anything about was the past and I'll tell you frankly that many hours were spent, whie I was on that boat, thinking of days when I was at home with mother and you. We were seventeen days at sea—left New York Nov. 14th and landed in Liverpool, England, in the early part of the morning of Dec. 1st. So you see we had been out at sea for quite a while, and too the sea was not the safest place in the world at that particular time. We went straight to Winchester, England from Liverpool and there we stayed till Dec. 6th. We went to Southhampton, England, and after one day there we crossed the channel in an ordinary old cattle ship that was manned by Japanese sailors. Early the next morning we awoke to find that we were in the harbor at Le Havre, France. There the stay lasted three days—the most miserable days of my life—and from there we came to Tours, France, in the coldest kind of weather, traveling in a small type of a box car. That trip caused me to lose my voice, and it was for about six weeks that I could not speak a word. I began to think that my talking was finished for good but I was soon all right again.

We remained in the city of Tours in some old French barracks for three days and then we came out to this field about four miles from the city. Here we have been since the 14th or 15th of December, 1917. We have not been any ways near the front during our entire stay in France however it was not our fault. We would have gone and without a murmur if we had only been given the chance. Since we have been on this field it has been built up from a very small camp to one of the largest of its kind in France, and while it has been being built I have done a little of everything from work in ditches on up to the chief armorer's job in the gun school which I now hold and have held for quite a while. I have about twenty-five men in the department and yesterday I was notified that 30 more were to be assigned to this work. So I will have my hands full from now until we finish, and I do not know when that will be. I hope it will not be long. I am patiently waiting the glorious day when I can be back home with you.

All the boys seem to have the letter writing spirit today and when all these "Dad's Xmas Letters" reach home the mail carriers will think Dad has become very popular all at once.

CLARENCE BICE WRITES A LETTER FROM FRANCE

Chilton County Soldier on the Other Side Tells His Father About Different Places He Has Been Since Leaving New York City for France.

St. Menehould Ardennes, France, Nov. 24, 1918.

My Dear Father:

Today is set aside for Father's Letter Day, and I will try and tell you the different places I have been from the day we left New York, as the censorship is practically lifted on this one letter.

On May 19th we sailed from New York in a convoy of fourteen ships with our American battleship leading. A few days before we arrived at Liverpool, England, we were met by twenty or more submarine chasers, that acted as our guard through the danger zone. We arrived in Liverpool May 31st, after a very interesting and exciting trip.

We arrived in Winchester, England, June 2nd. From there we went to South Hampton and took a boat across the English Channel, arriving in LaHavre, France, June 4th. After a two-day and night ride on the train we arrived at LaCourtina, France, where we stayed for two months drilling and getting prepared to go to the front.

We left LaCourtins Aug. 9th, arriving in Toul at midnight Aug. 11th. The Huns didn't seem to like it as they paid us a visit the following night and gave us a very warm reception, and from that day until the day the armistice was signed, we were very warmly received by our enemy. He persisted in dropping bombs and shells day and night, and as we had never been outdone we would always reciprocate by doubling the dose and send them across the line.

We arrived in Millery, a town a few miles behind the lines the night of Aug. 20th. During our stay at Milling we were bombed most every night. On the night of Aug. 20th, they dropped between twenty and thirty bombs close to us, one bomb killing three women out right and another dying a few days afterwards. I have seen some awful sights but that was the most pitiful and most horrible sight I have ever seen.

After several days fighting in the St. Mihel sector, we hiked eighty miles in rain and mud to the Verdun front Oct. 7th, we arrived in Varrenas, a town that had been recaptured only a few days by our boys. From that day on until the armistice was signed we took part in one of the hardest fought battles of the war (Battle of the Argonne Forest).

I am proud and glad to say that I served with the 319th F. A., as we were one of the best artillery on the whole front, and our Regiment has been commanded for its excellent work.

We put in some hard days and nights, and at times we thought our time had come, but God was with us and brought us safely through. I saw Stoughton a few days before the armistice was signed—we passed each other, with our respective regiments following up the retreating Huns.

We have undergone a few hardships, but we are not sorry, instead are glad that we had the privilege to do our part in the world's greatest war.

I am glad and happy with you that all of us boys came through safely.

I want to thank you for your kindness to Lela Mae and Virgin. You have always been very good and kind to me and I will never forget it.

I don't know how soon I will be home, but I don't think it will be but a few more weeks.

I am well and doing fine. A merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Love to all.

Your son,

CLARENCE.

FRED L. HENLEY WRITES LETTER FROM FRANCE

St. Aignan, France, Dec. 3, 1918

Dear Father:

I will now write you a letter kindly explaining my trip from the U. S. We left Camp Devens, Mass., on the 10th of July by rail. We arrived at Montreal, Canada the 11th a. m. There we boarded the ship known as the Durham Castle, which is an English boat. We pulled out the evening of the 11th. Sailed up the St. Lawrence river and landed at Halifax, Novoscotia the 15th. We lay over there a few days waiting for more ships, then we sailed from there on the 20th. There were 22 ships in the convoy. Then we sailed nice enough until one evening about 3 o'clock—the whistles began to blow and the submarine chasers began to make big circles and drop a few depth bombs. Well, we got that one and after a few minutes the gunners who operated the big six-inch guns on the rear of the boat got the sight of a submarine seven miles away and he bursted her all to pieces. Gee, just think of being in the middle of the ocean and two or three subs. attacking you. Altho I wasn't afraid, because we had plenty of guns, and some of the best gunners in the world and you know what it takes to get the subs, Uncle Sam happens to have it.

Well, we sailed for a few more days and landed at Cardiff, Wales July 31st. We put our packs on and unloaded and marched about three miles and oh, Gee! the weather was hot, but we finally made it to the city hall where we pulled off our packs and had a nice lunch given to us by the people of that city, and had a few lectures by the Lord Mayor and other parties; then we boarded the train and landed in Camp Winnalldown, Winchester, England, Aug. 1, left there by rail the 4th and arrived at South Hampshire, England, the same day. There we boarded a boat and crossed the English Channel to LaHavre, France; there we boarded the train and traveled for 36 hours and unloaded at Hamond, France. Well, we stayed there five days and then hiked six miles out to a little town by the name of Charenton—there we established a hospital for the sick soldiers. We stayed there exactly three months, then we got orders to move camp, so we got ready, went to a classification camp at St. Amand, from there to another one at St. Aignan, from there to another one at Thaziece, and then back to St. Aignan, and we are still here, and I suppose we will remain here until we leave for the U. S.

Well, it is lots of fun to travel over France in box cars and I can say that I certainly have enjoyed this big trip, and there's not a chance of a fellow forgetting about it if he lives two hundred years.

Well, Dad, I have written all about the trip, and I hope that you receive this letter and enjoy reading it, and I would like for my friends to have the pleasure of reading it.

I will close for this time.

Your son,

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE COLLECTOR FOR DIST. OF ALA.

I am asking your help in giving to the public information about the reports that will have to be made under the Revenue laws. In view of the present large number of persons effected, this is considered as a news item.

You possibly know that Congress has not yet enacted the law that will govern the taxes for the year 1918. Until this is done, no reports of any kind can be made for the year just closed.

Therefore, please announce thru the columns of your paper, giving it as much prominence as possible, that report blanks will be mailed by this office to all those whose names appear on our records.

It will likely be the first of February before forms are ready. They will be mailed out as soon as printed, and the taxpayer should wait until then before applying for forms.

Respectfully,
JOHN D. McNEAL,
Collector.

DR. ARTHUR JOHNSON BACK FROM THE ARMY

The many friends of Dr. Arthur Johnson in Clanton and Chilton county, will be glad to learn that he has returned to Clanton to take up his practice again after a period of nine months service in the U. S. Army. The doctor is in vigorous health and says he enjoyed his service and is likewise pleased to get back home.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

During the prevalence of the "flu" we seem to have formed a desire for God's house. Two good congregations assembled last Sunday. Keep it up for the New Year.

* * *

Bro. Renfroe Mullins is the only flu patient in town so far as we know at present. He has been suffering pretty bad but is better now.

* * *

At the turning of the year, New Year's time, is a favorite and favorable time for making new resolutions and taking a fresh start.

* * *

We would commend to the men of the town a lecture to be given this week, Thursday night, at the Baptist Church, at 7:30. The speaker is Mr. A. B. Carlton, State Field Secretary of the Alabama Sunday School Association. His subject will be "How to make our town a better place to live in." His appeal is especially to men.

* * *

Next Sunday the pastor will preach in the morning on "A New Heavens and a New Earth," and at night the subject will be, "This Year Also."

* * *

Some half dozen of the young folks having been invited in a general way, spent New Year's Eve at time while the old year was passing and the new was coming in. They played games, played the piano and sang to their hearts' content and left for home under the fusilade in honor of the new born year.

* * *

We wish to all "A Happy New Year' to saint and sinner, to the obedient and disobedient alike. Now is the time to—

"Ring out the old, ring in the new;
Ring happy bells, a Merry chime
Proclaim to men a happier time,
Ring out the false, ring in the true.

Ring out false pride in place andblood
The civil slander and the spite;
Ring in the love of truth and right,
Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease,
Ring out the narrowing lust ofgold;
Ring out the thousand wars of old,
Ring in the thousand years ofpeace.

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger heart, the kindlier hand;
Ring out the darkness of the land,
Ring in the Christ that is to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Jones and baby, from Albany, spent the Christmas holidays with relatives in Clanton.

MONEY COMING HERE FOR COUNTRY PRODUCE

Clanton Firm Has Distributed $25,000 Among Farmers For Country Produce in the Past Year—This Shows What Hustling Can Produce.

The Clanton Produce Co., formerly known as Taylor Bros., has furnished The Union-Banner with some interesting vgures regarding their business dealings in produce with the people of the county during the past two years.

They began business in Clanton about two years ago at which time they paid out in cash to the people for produce an average of about $100 a week. A steady growth resulted from their business and their figures for the past year show that they have paid to the people of the county over $25,000 in cash for produce of all kinds. This is very interesting news when you stop to think just what it means. This one firm has paid the farmers of the county over twenty-five thousand dollars for their farm products during the year, and that practically at the farmers own door. They have paid the farmers the cash and then shipped the produce to consumers in other cities.

Such a business as this is a great advantage to the people and every farmer should show his appreciation of it by selling them his surplus produce. An advertisement of their business will be found in another column of this paper.

WILLIE G. CULP TO BE CHIEF DEPUTY SHERIFF

The people of Chilton county will be glad to learn of the announcement by our next Sheriff, Mr. J. L. Gore, that he has employed Mr. Willie G. Culp to be his Chief Deputy. Mr. Culp has accepted the appointment and will take charge of the place with the new Sheriff on January 20.

There is not a better man in the county than Mr. Culp and we feel sure that with the new Sheriff and his helper the Sheriff's office will be managed in a way creditable to the county and pleasing to the citizens generally.

WE GREET YOU AGAIN

This week the Editor of The Union-Banner again greets the readers of the paper after an absence of 5 months which time was spent in the United States Army. We are glad to be back at the old post, which of course goes without saying. There may be some people who would not care to get out of the army and have no special desire to get back home, but those kind are very few.

As we take up our post with the paper again it is our desire first to say a word in regard to the management and support of the business during our absence.

First we are thankful that the business has been able to continue uninterrupted in spite of the fact that both the owners were called into the military service. This could not have been possible but for two things, which are as stated above, the management and support of the business during our absence.

The management and conduct of the business has been very creditably done during this emergency period by Mr. E. C. Powell. The condition he has kept the business in is absolutely pleasing to the owners, and our thanks are hereby openly extended to him for the valuable service he has rendered in our behalf.

The patronage and support thathas continued with the paper from the people of the county is a sufficient measure of the value of his efforts. The owners of the paper are glad that the people of the county have been pleased to co-operate with the paper and thereby assist in keeping alive the ideals that we have stood for in the county for years past.

Now the Editor has again put his shoulder to the wheel and it is our hope that we may add strength to the already united efforts of our citizens to push Clanton and Chilton county to the front in the many ways in which we have splendid oportunities to advance.

We hope to continue the services of Mr. Powell with the paper and then upon the return of the other member of the firm, the brother of the Editor, from the army, we will have a force that can put out in Chilton county such a newspaper that has never before been presented to our people.

Let us thank you again for standing by The Union-Banner in the past. Help us right on in the future and we guarantee that your help will bring forth fruit many fold for the good of all the whole county.

Here we go, all together—one, two, three, Chilton County, the best in Alabama!

Mr. Kilby has promised his political enemies that he would remember them when he got in the office of Governor. So don't forget that when you go to the Capital Hill looking for the pie counter during the next four years.

When the women get to putting it up to the men about roads like the lady from Marbury has done, we think it is time for somebody to take the hint and hitch up the mules to the scrape and plow and start something.

Wouldn't the men feel cheap if the women get up a good roads club and go out with pick and shovel to work the public roads. If nothing else would make the men work the roads we feel sure that would move them to action.

Wagons were rather high in Clanton on New Year's morning. One was all the way to the top of a telephone pole in front of Mullins & Moore's Store. It seemed from the noise Tuesday night that worse things were happening than wagons climbing poles.

The Editor of The Union-Banner is glad to start off the year of 1919 back at the head of the paper. We solicit the support of the people of the county in the future and pledge our best efforts to give you a newspaper that you will be proud of. Help us make the paper a credit to our county.

There was a meeting of Clanton citizens held on Monday night in consultation with Chilton County's Reynolds, regarding some local legislation for Chilton county. Next week The Union-Banner will carry a complete digest of the propositions to be put before the Legislature and we hope to have the consideration of the people of the county in regard to it.

The Union-Banner congratulates Sheriff Gore on the selection of Mr. Willie G. Culp as his Chief Deputy. No better man could be found than Mr. Culp. He is well known over the county and his standing is unassailable. He will make a good man in the place and we feel sure everybody will be pleased with dealing with hin.

The Legislature of Alabama will meet in a few more days and then we will have some more exciting things to occupy the place in the head lines that is now left idle since thew ar stopped. There will be a lot of things done during the session, many of which are looked forward to with much interest. We don't know whether there will be another legislative investigating committee or not.

Just when it gets to where a lone Catholic in a town like Clanton goes about boasting that he gave the largest check to the support of the protestant ministers we think it is time for good Baptists and Methodists to wake up and see where they have got to. If they are to be so easily outclassed in a place like this, just think what a poor show we would make if we were in some places we think of. If a Catholic will give his money to help the protestants, what do you suppose he would not give to his own creed?

Business in Clanton for the past year has been very good. The people have had plenty of cash and the merchants have had a good trade. The business men of the town are thankful to their customers and they are willing to go to the expense of advertising their feeling toward the trade for the patronage received. Many of them are using space in the Union-Banner this week to tell the people how they appreciate the trade they have received. Read their ads and remember in future to give your business to the men who apreciate it enough to ask for it through the columns of their newspaper.

W. E. VINSON WRITES A LETTER FROM FRANCE

Bordeaux, France, Nov. 24, 1918.
Dear Mother and Sister:

How are you all by now? I am just fine. I wrote you all a few days ago and hope you got it o.k. You know, all our letters are read by our officer and we can't tell you much, not even where we are at; but today they gave us a chance to write a Christmas letter to the boys' fathers. They have to be addressed to their father and no one else, so this is why I am addressing it as I am. This letter is not read by any officer and we can tell anything in it. I had a fine trip coming over. We landed in Liverpool, England; took a train 200 miles to a rest camp in east England; stayed there a few days, then went on train to Hampton, England; then took ship and crossed the English Channel, and landed in Havre, France. Went to a rest camp out on the edge of town. Stayed there and rested up a few days.

We got into France the day war ended—one hour after we were in camp the peace celebrations turned loose and such a fuss you never heard. Bells, guns, whistles and everything turned loose at one time. We boys were some happy soldiers believe me. War over, no danger to us and getting to see the old world too. Some of our company are gone now up to Belgium with a train load of horses and I am expecting to go tomorrow. I sure want to take the trip. I want to see some of the country where the war raged so badly. It will take me 15 days to make the trip there and back. I may not get to write you all until I get back, so if you do not hear from me soon do not be uneasy. We are stationed here in a fine camp, and the climate is fine. Just cool, pleasant weather. We have a big fine house to live in and a fine kitchen. We do not have to work hard at all—just a litle light work. I know you want to know when I am coming home—that is hard to tell. Some of the soldiers have gone already and others are going in a few days. Some of our company think we will be home by the first of January, but I think it will be the first of February. We have 3,000 horses here to take to Belgium and over France wherever they are sold. Guess we will get to see all this country over here before we sail for the U. S. A..

When I start home from New York I will have a fine new uniform to wear home. I want to go home like a real good Q. M. C. soldier. I would like to send you all a present from over here but they won't let us, so I will bring it home with me when I come, and that won't be long I hope. In here is a letter for Minnie—please do not break it but get it to her at once. I am glad that you all can know now where I am at, and that I have a good easy job; that I am not away up north in bad cold weather.

Well, I must close now. I will write you again in a few days—that is if I have a chance. If I go off with the horses it may be two weeks before I can write you. Write me often. So, good bye.

Your son,
W. E. VINSON,

WADE'S WEEKLY LETTER

The Value of Thought

"It's a little thing to do,
Just to think!
Anyone, no matter who,
Ought to think.
Take a little time each day,
Rrom the minutes thrown away,
Spare it from your work or play,
Stop and think!

"You will find that men who fail,
Do not think.
Men who find themselves in jail,
Do not think.
Half the trouble that we see,
Trouble brewed for you and me,
Probably would never be,
If we would think!
"Shall we then consider this,
Shall we think?
Shall we journey, hit or miss,
Or shall we think?
Let's not go along by guess,
But rather to ourselves confess,
It would help us more or less,
If we would think!"

The above little poem was selected for the purpose of attracting the minds of the readers to the psychological fact that effect most people in their daily lives, and to illustrate its application to the business of farming and farm management, the success of which is entirely based on right thinking before acting. Thinking is inexpensive but action is execution of preconceived thought and costs time and money the success of which depends entirely on the correctness of the preceding thought. Then to be more successful with our time, labor and expenditures, we must first think more efficently.

How It Applies to Farming

The farmer who plans his crop on the basis of old habits, commonly called "old ruts," will not improve because he did not think. If he is influenced by the fads and drift of other people and plants the same things and cultivates the same way that everybody plants and cultivates, then everybody is his competitor and the time comes to cash in and take profits. If he finds the markets over supplied and the demands dull to the extent of little or no profits for his time, investment, and labor, it will be because he followed the example of the masses and did not think.

If a majority of the farmers plant all their crop in cotton with the present high price of food, feed, fertilizer, labor, implements and horse power with the expectation of harvesting and selling it all within three months, and if credit at high profits of interest is indulged in too freely with promise to pay at harvest time and the farmers find themselves at that time faced with cheap cotton, overdue debts, absence of a year's supply of corn, hay, meat, and a few surplus cows and hogs for sale with which to turn the trick, it would be plain evidence that each individual followed public drift and did not think. Such a condition would absolutely ruin any individual or country in the world. I pray you, Farmer Friend, stop and think.

If a farmer specializes on one-crop and plants excessively just because everybody is taking it and planting it, whether the crop be cotton, corn, peanuts, or what other, he certainly does not think for himself. Why fiddle away your opportunities with one string? If you want to make good financial harmony, see that your agricultural fiddle has five good strings, namely: corn, cotton, peanuts, hay, and livestock. The largest profits are never made by producing the same things that everybody produces. The largest profits are made by the thinkers who command good prices which the masses overlook.

Remember that the farmer plants his thoughts, after which he cannot change them for a whole year. The correctness of the thought when planted determines the year's income.

The Kaiser is whipped, the war is over and a new year is beginning. Let the new year be one in which you think. May I wish that the thoughts which you plant be correct toughts and bear you a harvest of prosperity?

J. A. WADE,
Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries.

Ugly, Unsightly Pimples Are Signals of Bad Blood

Give Heed to the Warning.

Pimples on the face and other parts of the body are warnings from Nature that your blood is sluggish and impoverished. Sometimes they foretell eczema, boils, blisters, scaly eruptions and other skin disorders that burn like flames of fire.

They mean that your blood needs S. S. S. to purify it and cleanse it of these impure accumulations that can cause unlimited trouble. This remedy is the greatest vegetable blood purifier known, and contains no minerals or chemicals to injure the most delicate skin.

Go to your drugstore, and get a bottle of S. S. S. today, and get rid of those unsightly and disfiguring pimples, and other skin irritations. And it will cleanse your blood thoroughly. If you wish special medical advice, you can obtain it without charge by writing to Medical Director, 29 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Georgia.

Back the Government to the Limit

The Government has asked American business to pursue a certain course for the duration of the war.

Keep quality up and prices reasonable,

—a strictly non-profiteering policy.

It is the only patriotic policy.

It is the policy this company has always adopted and the one we will continue to pursue.

We stand ready to undergo any sacrifice in order to cooperate with the Government.

We believe it is best for ourselves.

We know it is best for our country.

We appeal to all concerns—big and small—to adopt the same policy.

American business must rally as a unit to the support of the Government.

It is the surest and quickest way to win the war.

Outlook Of The Southern Farmer

CHARLES A. WHITTLE,

Soil Improvement Committee, Atlanta, Ga.

Prosperity glows on the horizon of the Southern farmer's future—if he will raise big crops.

And the cry of a needy world rises, urging the Southern farmer to grow big crops of cotton and food. His obligation is to respond. He must fight on, for peace brings no armistice for the farm.

Cotton is the hope of the ragged world. War-torn countries are looking to the fields of the South for help. It will not be in vain. The Southern farmer will meet his responsibility.

Prices at which cotton crop will be sold will be such as will pay the farmer well, for the fact will remain that the world must have the cotton.

The food most needed in Europe is fat. Cotton seed, peanuts and soy beans of the South will find ready market for the oil or fats that they contain. Cattle, hogs and dairy products will continue to bring good prices because of the heavy live stock losses of Europe.

The Southern farmer should plan with an expectation of improving his labor condition, with the return of troops and the shutting down of ammunition factories.

Immediate Preparation.

Preparation for spring planting should go rapidly ahead. Seed, fertilizers and other farm supplies should be bought without delay. Materials on which the government has fixed prices will continue to be stabelized until they are consumed, so that there are no prospects of lower prices before spring planting.

Delay means to face shipping difficulties. The railroads are going to be overburdened with traffic for some time to come. They should be given abundant time.

After Your Baby Is Born

Think Now About the Time to Come Afterwards.

When you hold in your arms your tiny new infant, be sure that you can feel that before its arrival you did all in your power to give to it a happy pre-natal influence.

Scientists say that the thoughts and feelings of the expectant mother greatly affect the health and disposition of the future infant.

For over half a century thousands of women who have used the time-honored remedy, Mother's Friend, say that they entirely escaped nausea, nervousness and that peculiar distressing feeling so usual where nature is unaided. They thus preserved a wonderfully bright and happy disposition, which reflects so markedly upon the unborn child.

By the regular use of Mother's Friend the muscles are made and kept soft and elastic to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion without the usual wrenching strain. The nerves are not drawn upon, and as a consequence the expectant mother is calm and serene and the nights are not disturbed with nervous twitchings, and the crisis is one of joy and happiness.

Write the Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. K, Lamar Building, Atlanta, Georgia, for their Motherhood Book, of value to every woman, and get a bottle of Mother's Friend from your druggist and begin a treatment that will bring real results.

FEED THE MILCH COW WELL DURING WINTER.

By W. H. Eaton, Assistant Dairy Husbandman.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

One of the most important questions presenting itself at this season of the year is how best to feed and handle the cow for maximum yields of milk during the winter months.

In most sections of the state Mother Nature is very kind to the cow in the spring and summer months in supplying nature's balanced ration—pasturage. With the close of the pasture season there usually comes a more or less constant dropping off in the milk flow of the average farm cow.

Taking cow owners in general they can be classified as follows: Those who underfeed, those who are extravagant feeders, and those who are economical feeders. Those of the first class are far too numerous, and many good cows fail to demonstrate their real ability because they are never sufficiently fed. Those of the second class are not so common, yet they can be found. They are usually men of means who want results regardless of cost, and they usually supply an abundance of feed regardless of composition, which results in expensive production. Those of the third class are people who wish to secure the best results in production at the minimum cost of feed. To do this they must study the composition of feeds and the cost and so balance the ration as to supply the nutrition in the proper proportions for heavy milk flow.

In feeding the farm cow and in figuring what feeds to use an effort should be made to get the most digestible nutrients for the least money, taking into consideration the essential requirements of the ration, such as variety, bulk, succulence, palatability, effect on system, and the proper balance of the ration. The cow is an animal that requires a large amount of feed, especially roughage; therefore, quantity is one of the first and most important principles of feeding.

Green, jucy feed will not only aid in producing large quantities of milk, but will also assist in keeping the cow's digestive system in good condition. The farmer with 10 or more cows should supply this succulent winter feed in the form of corn silage, with a smaller number of cows, patches of rye or oats will furnish considerable grazing. A dependable supply of succulent feed for the family cow can be obtained in turnips, rutabagas or carrots.

With an ample allowance of roughage and silage or root crops the cow will keep in good condition throughout the winter and produce a fair flow of milk, but she cannot consume enough of these bulky feeds to produce the maximum flow, consequently richer feeds must be supplied.

The average milk cow should be fed in two regular daily feeds. A daily feed of from three quarters to one pound of concentrates to each quart of milk produced will be found a sufficient amount.

The following grain mixtures will be found suitable for this section:

Ration No. 1—100 pounds cottonseed meal, 300 pounds velvet beans (whole or meal).

Ration No. 2—100 pounds cottonseed meal, 200 pounds velvet beans (whole or meal), 100 pounds corn and cob meal.

Ration No. 3—100 pounds cottonseed meal, 100 pounds wheat bran, 200 pounds velvet beans (whole or meal).

Ration No. 4—100 pounds cottonseed meal, 100 pounds peanut meal, 200 pounds velvet beans (whole or meal).

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ———about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

Mr. John W. Henley, of Maplesville, was in Clanton on Tuesday looking after some business matters. Mr. Henley says he is figuring on closing out his mill business at Maplesville and moving to Clanton. He did not state what business he intended taking up here, but one of his reasons for coming here is Clanton's educational advantages. While here he handed The Union-Banner a letter from his son, Fred, who is in France. The letter appears elsewhere in this issue.

Dr. Turner M. Dennis, a young graduate veterinarian, son of Tax Assessor J. N. Dennis, left Clanton Thursday for Abbeville, where he intends to locate for the practice of veterinary medicine. The Union-Banner bespeaks for him a career of success. He has ample preparation in the profession, and considerable experience both in civil life and the army makes him doubly sure of success.

GLAD TO SEE OUR FRIENDS

The Editor of The Union-Banner is glad that many of his friends have come around to see him since he returned from the Army. Quite a number have been around to the office to give us the glad hand and we certainly appreciate it. It makes a fellow feel good to be received so friendly by the folks after six months in the Army.

County Commissioner A. P. Vinson, of Route 6, was in The Union-Banner office Monday and handed us a letter from his son, Walter, who is in the Navy. The letter is printed in this issue of The Union-Banner.

HUNGER DRAWS THE MAP

A food map of Europe today shows not a single country in which the future does not hold threat of serious difficulties and only a small part which is not rapidly approaching the famine point. With the exception of the Ukraine only those countries which have maintained marine commerce have sufficient food supplies to meet actual needs until next harvest, and even in the Ukraine, with stores accumulated on the farms, there is famine in the large centers of population.

Belgium and northern France, as well as Serbia, appear on the hunger map distinct from the rest of Europe because they stand in a different relation from the other nations to the people of the United States. America has for four years maintained the small war rations of Belgium and northern France and is already making special efforts to care for their increased after-the-war needs, which, with those of Serbia, must be included in this plan, are urgent in the extreme and must have immediate relief.

The gratitude of the Belgian nation for the help America has extended to her during the war constitutes the strongest appeal for us to continue our work there. The moment the German armies withdrew from her soil and she was established once more in her own seat of government the little nation's first thought was to express her gratitude to the Commission for Relief in Belgium for preserving the lives of millions of her citizens.

Germany, on the other hand, need not figure in such a map for Americans because there is no present indication that we shall be called on at all to take thought for the food needs of Germany. Germany probably can care for her own food problem if she is given access to shipping and is enabled to distribute food to the cities with dense populations, which are the trouble centers.

England, France, the Netherlands and Portugal, all of which have been maintained from American supplies, have sufficient food to meet immediate needs, but their fututre presents serious difficulties. The same is true of Spain and the northern neutral countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark—whose ports have been open and who have been able to draw to some degree upon foreign supplies.

Most of Russia is already in the throes of famine, and 40,000,000 people there are beyond the possibility of help. Before another spring thousands of them inevitably must die. This applies as well to Poland and practically throughout the Baltic regions, with conditions most serious in Finland.

Bohemia, Serbia, Roumania and Montenegro have already reached the famine point and are suffering a heavy toll of death. The Armenian population is falling each week as hunger takes its toll, and in Greece, Albania and Roumania so serious are the food shortages that famine is near. Although starvation is not yet imminent, Italy, Switzerland, Bulgaria and Turkey are in the throes of serious stringencies.

In order to fulfill America's pledge in world relief we will have to export every ton of food which can be handled through our ports. This means at the very least a minimum of 20,000,000 tons compared with 6,000,000 tons prewar exports and 11,820,000 tons exported last year, when we were bound by the ties of war to the European allies.

If we fail to lighten the black spots on the hunger map or if we allow any portions to become darker the very peace for which we fought and bled will be threatened. Revolt and anarchy inevitably follow famine. Should this happen we will see in other parts of Europe a repetition of the Russian debacle and our fight for world peace will have been in vain.

We Truly Thank You

For your kind patronage in the past, and trust to receive your business in the future.

TOP DRESS WINTER GRAIN WITH MANURE.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agronomist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Experiments show that manure gives its largest returns when it is applied in its freshest condition. On general crops like winter oats and wheat it may be scattered as a top dressing throughout the winter as fast as it is made.

For the grain crop to get the largest benefit from a top dressing of manure it should be applied soon after planting, so that it may benefit the grain during its entire growing season. By applying early it makes the young plants stronger and more vigorous, and they are thereby better able to withstand winter weather.

Stable manure scattered broadcast in January or February over wheat and fall or winter planted oats will probably increase the yield 30 per cent. Good, well pulverized lot manure used in the same way at the rate of four to six tons per acre will benefit the grain considerably.

The manure may be scattered over the fields with an ordinary manure spreader. If a spreader is not available, it can be scattered from the wagon box with a manure fork or shovel. The manure should not be left in large lumps on the growing grain. If the manure is dry, it pulverizes and distributes more evenly. The distributing should be done when the land is dry so that the wheels and team will not damage the growing grain. Experiments show that manure benefits not only the growing grain crop, but that its benefits are distributeed over a number of years.

In case the season is warm and the grain makes too rapid growth from its early heavy fertilization, it may be grazed down to where there is no danger from frost killing. Grazing should not be continued after danger of winter killing has passed, and should be done judiciously.

ALABAMA BANKS FAVOR DAIRY CATTLE.

By W. H. Eaton, Assistant Dairy Husbandman.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

A recent issue of the Jersey Bulletin has the following editorial comment on the dairy awakening and, the attitude of the banks in the state of Alabama toward fostering the dairy industry:

"Alabama is one of the southern states that is becoming thoroughly awake to the value of dairying, and banking institutions fortunately are among the leaders of promoting the dairy industry. The banks put up the money to pay for shipments of dairy cattle from the north, and the creameries handle the details of selling the cows at cost. Notes are given, one coming due each two weeks, the amount necessary to cancel this note being taken from the creamery check due to the patron at that time. Collateral in the form of livestock already on hand is put up as security for the notes, in case the purchaser is not ready to pay cash for his animals.

"At a meeting in northern Alabama recently, which Messrs. J. P. Quinerly and W. H. Eaton, dairy specialists of the Alabama Extension Service and U. S. Department of Agriculture, attended, and where arrangements were made for these men to buy another car load of Ohio Jerseys, a local bank said:

"'My bank will go $25,000 on the bringing of dairy cattle in this section. I would rather see the farmers of this vicinity milking cows than to see some large manufacturing plant brought to our town.'"

There are several thousand more milch cows in Alabama this year than last year. Folks are beginning to recognize the dairy cow as not only a convenience but a profit making and soil enriching animal, and those who are in intimate touch with conditions in Alabama believe the milch cow is destined to become far more popular in the very near future.

PREPARING THE HOME STRAWBERRY BED.

By G. C. Starcher, State Horticulturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The strawberry is the most cosmopolitan fruit grown, being native to the entire range of plant life from the tropics to the frigid zone and is found growing in profusion on almost every known type of soil. It is one of the few all-season fruits, being found ripe in Alabama almost every month in the year. Ripe fruit of standard varieties is frequently picked in south Alabama in January and fruit is harvested from the ever-bearing varieties throughout the entire season.

For the home planting a wide range of soil may be selected, but for commercial planting a sandy clay loam is desirable. Steep hillsides may be planted if the planting is made on the contour. Level land should have either good natural or artificial drainage.

The planting bed must be deeply prepared because the strawberry roots strike deep if given an opportunity and a deep soil is necessary for the retention of a sufficient moisture supply at ripening time.

If the soil and the contour of the land will permit, the hill or modified hill system should be adopted for the planting plan. The rows are laid off 3 1-2 feet apart and the plants are set 18 to 20 inches apart in the row. They are carefully tilled throughout the first growing season. Most of the runners are cut back. This tends to force an unusually vigorous growth of the mother plant which will throw out many extra sprouts, thus forming a large clump of vigorous plants.

Use only strong, new plants of the present season's growth. If only one variety is selected, the Klondike will probably give the best results, but Aroma and Missionary are two close competitors in public favor. The Chesapeake and Gandy are two later varieties. The Progressive and Superb are the two best all-season varieties, but they are not recommended for extensive planting.

SPRAY DORMANT FRUIT TREES

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

It is probable that more than 90 per cent of all apple trees in Alabama and perhaps nearly as large percentage of peach trees are more or less heavily infested with San Jose Scale. It is advisable, therefore, to treat all trees as though they were known to be infested.

The San Jose Scale is a minute sucking insect which cannot be reached with anything but a strong contact insecticide. An insecticide strong enough to penetrate and kill the scales would destroy the foliage on growing trees. The treatment must be applied, therefore, during the winter while the trees are dormant. It may be applied at almost any season while the leaves are off.

The usual method of treatment is to spray with lime sulphur solution, which may be prepared at home or purchased in concentrated form from commercial manufacturers. The commercial material should be diluted with eight parts of water to form the spray solution. Directions for preparing the home-made solution may be obtained by writing the Extension Service, Auburn.

Another insecticide that may be depended upon to give fully as good results as does the lime sulphur is an oil solution such as Scalecide. The commercial material is diluted with fifteen parts of water. This spray spreads better on the branches than does the lime sulphur and is much more pleasant to handle and apply. It also controls various forms of fungi which occur on the bark and gives an exceedingly clean and vigorous type of new growth where the trees are in good cultural condition.

Do not delay proper spraying. It is essential both to the healthy growth of the trees and to the production of sound, marketable fruit. One of the greatest wastes in fruit production in the South is that resulting from the lack of proper spraying.

It pays to spray. If you have fruit trees you cannot afford to neglect spraying.

VARIETIES OF FRUIT FOR ALABAMA.

By L. A. Hawkins, Assistant Horticulturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

For commercial plantings in Alabama only a few of the best and most profitable varieties of any fruit should be planted, but in the home orchard we have a very different proposition. Here a large assortment is desirable and as many varieties of all fruits as can be taken care of should be planted for home use. In the home fruit garden apples, pears, peaches, plums, cherries, persimmons, figs, quince, grapes, blackberries, raspberries, dewberries and strawberries should be grown in sufficient quantities to furnish all the fruit needed for family use.

In the southern part of the state Satsumas and Kumquats should be included to supply their fruits in season.

A few good pecan trees are not out of place in the home orchard, as they can be planted at good distances, not interfering with other crops on the same ground, and the nuts are delicious.

In most sections of Alabama if winter varieties of apples are planted and properly cared for the fruit can be had in fresh state almost the year round.

Home Orchard List Should Be Large.

The home orchard list, being larger, will include all the good commercial varieties of the different fruits and in the following list will be marked with an asterix (*). This list has been made up by G. C. Starcher, Horticulturist, at Auburn, and the varieties are named in the order of ripening:

According to the figures of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, the number of stock hogs on September 1, 1918, in the United States was 65,066,000, or an increase during the past year of 4,848,000. Of this increase Alabama has contributed her share, and the southeast, as a whole, probably more than any other one section of the United States. Alabama and the southeast both should be proud of the part taken in the increasing of our meat supply, by increasing the number of stock hogs, says the Alabama Extension Service.

Many people apparently lose sight of the fact that silage fed to the animals during winter will keep them in the same healthy condition that is common to animals on pastures in spring and summer. Keep in mind that silage is not only a good roughage, but on account of its succulence and palatability it is the best roughage that can possibly be fed during the winter months. No farmer having 10 head or more of cattle should be without a silo, says the Alabama Extension Service.

FEEDS FOR BEEF ANIMALS DURING EARLY WINTER.

By G. S. Templeton, Chief Animal Husbandry Department.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

All young beef animals up to one year of age should gain at least three-fourths of a pound per day during the winter. This much increase in weight is necessary in order to secure the proper growth. This amount of gain should put them on the pasture in early spring in good shape, but not fat.

During December and early January these animals should have the run of the corn fields and the best pasture available. Then if they have the run of velvet bean fields no other feed will be required. If velvet bean fields are not available then these animals should have at least one pound of cottonseed meal, or two pounds of soaked velvet beans in the pod per day.

For animals of this age that are being grown for breeding purposes a grain mixture composed of equal parts by weight of corn, oats and wheat bran should be fed. Give it to them twice per day, allowing them to have all they will clean up well.

In addition to the above let both classes of these animals, that is, those that are being grown for breeders and feeders, have all the bright clean hay they will clean up well. For this purpose the following hays are satisfactory: Alfalfa, alfalfa and Johnson grass mixed, cowpea hay, soy bean hay and peanut hay.

For mature beef cattle that one wishes to carry through the winter, but not to fatten, little roughage will be need in addition to what can be secured from the run of the corn fields and the best pasture available. As pasture and stalk fields begin to fail, open up a silo and feed silage twice a day, giving them all they will clean up well. Along with this give them one pound of cottonseed meal or two pounds of soaked velvet beans in the pod per day. If silage is not available, substitute a good quality of legume hay for it. If legume hay is not available, use the best that can be secured. These feeds should carry them through the winter in good shape. Of course, no other grain will be needed if they have the run of velvet bean fields.

See that all beef cattle have access to fresh water and salt at all times. All animals, especially the calves, should be provided with shelter during cold, rainy weather.

PECANS PROFITABLE CROP IN ALABAMA.

By L. A. Niven, Agricultural Editor.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In January, 1910, Mrs. L. P. Lilly, of Citronelle, Alabama, planted three acres of pecans, putting 30 trees to the acre, and this year gathered from 30 trees on one acre of the ground 919½ pounds pecans. This illustrates in a very concrete way what can be done with pecans. From these 30 trees, occupying one acre of ground, nuts to the value of more than $400 were gathered. These nuts were quite large and first class in every respect, and were worth a minimum of 50 cents per pound.

These trees were planted in 1910 on rather poor pine land. In fact the land was just cleared in 1909. At the same time the pecan trees were growing, farm and garden crops were grown in between the rows of trees. In five years from the time of setting, these pecan trees were bearing a liberal amount of nuts.

This experience of Mrs. Lilly shows what one can do with pecans, and to say the least of it, every person owning a farm is making a mistake not to put out at least a limited acreage to this wonderful nut. Of course, there are some sections of the state where the pecan may not succeed in a commercial way, yet this is not true of a great portion of the state.

The record of these 30 trees at eight years of age has been certified to in the form of an affidavit by Mrs. Lilly.

The fall or winter is the time to set pecans, and those who are not certain as to the variety best suited to their locality, or who wish any information in regard to pecan growing, should communicate with the Department of Horticulture, Extension Service, Auburn, Alabama, and the information will be supplied free of charge.

ORDER FERTILIZER NOW.

L. A. Niven, Agricultural Editor.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

It is of the utmost importance that farmers buy at the earliest possible moment all the fertilizer needed for next year's crops. This is important not only because of the car shortage, but because the fertilizer itself is quite scarce. The fertilizer manufacturers are having more trouble than shortage of cars and material, because along with other businesses their help has been reduced all the way from 35 to 50 per cent. With such a conditon exsting, the fertilizer manufacturers will have some trouble in utilizing even the diminished quantity of material that they can secure. In order for the fertilizer to be used to the very best possible advantage, it is extremely important that the fertilizer factories be kept busy at this time of the year, and unless the buyers order early this may not be the case.

Therefore, with these facts in mind, it is especially urged that every farmer, big and little, buy his fertilizer at once, and not only buy it, but haul it home and put it under shelter, so that when he needs it it will be right on hand. Unless this is done there is just as sure to be trouble in securing what is needed as the night follows the day.

Those who do not wish to buy as much as a car load should co-operate with their neighbors and order only in car lots. This will not only decrease the freight per ton, but is necessary on account of an order of the railroad administration that cars be utilized to full capacity. In addition to these reasons for ordering in car lots is the further reason that the fertilizer can be bought for a less rate per ton in car lots than in less than car lots.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. OLA LITTLEJOHN

On December 3rd, 1918, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Marion Littlejohn and took from him his loving wife, Mrs. Ola Littlejohn. She was a fond mother, a dutiful wife, a good neighbor, a devoted christian, a member of Liberty Hill Baptist Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss a loving husband, two little children, a father and mother, two brothers, one sister, and a host of relatives and friends. She was loved by all who knew her. The physicians and friends did all they could to save her life but it was God's will to take her where she would be at rest. Weep not dear friends; she is better off than we. Only strive to meet her where there will be no more death or suffering.

Her remains were looked upon by a host of friends. Then the remains were laid to rest in the Liberty Hill Cemetery. Services were conducted by Rev. A. L. Foshee.

AMERICA'S WOMEN JOINED IN ANTHEM OF SERVICE

Millions of Red Cross Workers Do Multitude of Little Things at Home Which Enable Our Boys to Do Great Things in France.

Under the banner of the Red Cross American women are working in homes, churches, clubs, schools, shops, theaters, factories, hospitals and in thousands of Red Cross work-rooms. The hum of sewing machines, the whizz of muslin torn to accurate strips, the rat-tat-tat of volunteer typewriters, the purr of boiling kettles in canteens, the rumbling of automobiles of the Motor Corps, the soft click of knitting needles in lonely cabins and farmhouses, all blend into a great anthem of service.

About 8,000,000 women working through Red Cross Chapters and branches are making with their hands relief supplies—surgical dressings, knitted articles, hospital and refugee garments—or working as volunteers, subject to any call day or night, at 500 railroad stations throughout the country and at the ports of embarkation, or serving in volunteer Motor Corps. Truly here is an army with banners—banners of a red cross on a white field.

For the period up to the first of July, 1918, American Red Cross Chapters, through their work-rooms, had produced 192,748,107 surgical dressings, 10,134,501 knitted articles, 10,786,489 hospital garments and other hospital supplies and refugee garments, making a total of 221,282,838 articles of an estimated aggregate value of at least $44,000,000.

Last spring during the Red Cross war fund drive, when thousands of women workers in cities in every state formed their great symbolic processions, those who looked on saw them as the representatives of all our American women working in this war, and heard in "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," to which they marched, the varied sounds of all their eager labor.

The things they made, which carried a message of love from the women of this country, quite apart from their great money value, went from their work-rooms on great adventures. They have gone into front line trenches, to emergency hospitals in foreign villages and into the most modern operating rooms. They have wrapped lost and frightened children in warmth and sheltered aged refugees from the cold. They have gone overseas into strange and sad places, into Russia and Serbia and Palestine and Italy and France. They have gone into our own huge cantonments for our own young soldiers.

The Department of Nursing of the American Red Cross is the great recruiting agency of the United States Army and Navy Nurse Corps. By the first of October it had assigned over 18,000 graduate nurses to active military service at home and abroad. It has provided over 700 nurses for the Federal Public Health Service and the Red Cross Town and Country Nursing Service, which co-operates with the local health boards in the communities which it serves.

The statement of the Home Service of the American Red Cross to all of our fighting men that it is prepared to help in any emergency that may arise in their homes—help in legal ways, medical ways, business ways, friendship ways—would not be possible without the vision and the active co-operation of thousands of American women. In every division of the Red Cross, from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico, they have seen this service as the elemental right due from the American people to their defenders.

Winter Farm Problems

Winter farm problems are many, and very few of them, as a general rule, are solved until spring. The spring rush is made much more difficult by duties that should have been done during the winter being permited to lap over into the spring. The causes for this condition are first, unfavorable weather, and second, the habit of putting off things as long as they will possibly wait. The first reason cannot be remedied, but can be materially modified by being ready and making good use of the few favorable days that nearly always occur between spells of bad weather. The real good business farmer will adjust his affairs so as not to lose these opportunities. The second reason is purely a psychological one, which consists of the habitual putting off many little things that are necessary and which the weather does not hinder. These things are allowed to accumulate until they form a bunch of congested imperative duties right in the spring rush with the result that the whole spring is huriedly and poorly done. There are many people who believe the crops planted in this way overcome or grow out of such handicaps, but they do not, and the business of farming is robbed of its pleasures and much of its profits by deferring a list of necessary little things that demand attention in the busy spring season.

Things That Require Labor Only

Among the things that should be done on the farm in the winter, of which the weather does not necessarily hinder are clearing new land, reclaiming rested land by chopping bushes, clearing away terracing, fencing and repairing farm houses, barns and farm machinery. If a farmer does these things and utilizes the few pretty days that occasionally occur by plowing when the soil is in condition, he will not have any time to be idle during the winter. He will enjoy his spring duties because he will not be overworked to the extent of worry. He will plant his crop in a thoroughly prepared condition by not having allowed his duties to accumulate and congest. He will also enjoy greater harvests and greater profits. After all, less worry and greater profits make life worth living. It has been wisely said, "We by our own mistakes and neglect are the authors of most of our worries and failures." In no case, are these words more true than on the farm. Every farmer should specialize on how to reduce his worries and increase his profits. It is easy by adopting and holding tenaciously to the system of doing everything at the right time and in the most advantageous and thorough way.

There Are Business Duties

If horse power, tools, man power, fertilizer and credit are lacking and must be had, these are some more of your winter problems that must not be deferred until spring. Have in mind as quickly as possible what you are going to plant, number of acres, where, why, and how, also number of horses needed, quantity and kind of fertilizer, cost, the amount of money necessary and from whom you will obtain it in case you are unable to supply yourself. Get these matters settled as early and accurately as possible. Think wisely and act correctly by not allowing your thoughts to become tangled or your duties congested. To do this you will have to do everything when it should be done and defer nothing until a future time. If you can do these things, you will never need the other fellow's advice, credit or consolation. It is well worth trying.

JAMES A. WADE,
Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries.

JOH H. GORE DIED LAST SUNDAY NIGHT AT 7 O'CLOCK

The death of John H. Gore, age 70 years, occurred at his home in Beat 9 near Thorsby, about seven o'clock Sunday night.

The deceased was one of Chilton county's old and worthy citizens.

A few weeks ago he had his leg broken by an unfortunate accident, and was carried to a Birmingham infirmary for treatment. He returned to his home Saturday, apparently in good condition, with prospects of early recovery from his injury. Up until a few minutes before his death he was lively and in good spirits. A smothering spell seized him and the end soon came.

Mr. Gore leaves several members of his family to mourn the loss of a beloved father. He spent a long life here in Chilton county and maintained a position of honor with his fellowmen and associates.

Burial services were held at New Salem church Tuesday, conducted by the Odd Fellows Lodge of Thorsby.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

On next Sunday, January 12th, at the 11 o'clock hour for service, Rev. Mr. Maye, the pastor, will preach on "The Words of Jesus," to the "Man With the Withered Hand," "Stretch Forth Thy Hand."

At 7 p.m., Dr. O. C. McGehee, the Presiding Elder, will preach. At the close of the evening service, the First Quarterly Conference will be held. A full attendance of the official board is desired.

Special music will be rendered at both hours of worship. You are most cordially invited to all the services. Come and get started off right in the New Year.

MT. PLEASANT

After a three weeks vacation, on accunt of influenza, our school reopened Monday with a good attendance.

Mrs. Hatie Jones is visiting her mother Mrs. Minnie Evans.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT GREATEST AMERICAN CITIZEN DIED MONDAY

Dies Suddenly at Oyster Bay Home Early Monday Morning—America's Most Typical Man Known the World Over Has Passed Away.

(From Montgomery Advertiser)

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, 26th President of the United States, who died at his home on Sagamore Hill early today, will be laid to rest without pomp or ceremony in Young's Memorial Cemetery in this village, Wednesday afternoon. He will be buried on a knoll overlooking Long Island Sound, a plot which he and Mrs. Roosevelt selected soon after he left the White House.

In the words of the clergyman who will conduct the funeral service, "America's most typical American, known in every corner of the earth, will go to his grave as a quiet democratic, Christian country gentleman, beloved by his neighbors."

After prayers at the Roosevelt home, at which only members of the family will be present, the funeral service will be held at 12:45 o'clock in Christ Episcopal Church, the little old frame structure where for years the Colonel and his family attended divine worship.

No Flowers is Request

At the request of Mrs. Roosevelt, no flowers will be sent. The altar will be decorated only with laurel placed on it for the Christmas season. Also in conformitory with Mrs. Roosevelt's wish there will be no music and no eulogy, but only the simple service of the Episcopal church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. George E. Talmage.

The church, founded in 1705 and rebuilt in 1878, will accommodate less than 500 persons, so that admittance will be by card only. These cards, it was announced, will be issued from the colonel's office in New York, and will be given only to relatives and intimate friends.

Cable messages and telegrams of condolence, not only from fellow-countrymen of high and low degree, but from distinguished citizens of many nations, were pouring into Oyster Bay tonight by the hundreds. All express heartfelt grief at the passing of a great man and deepest sympathy for Mrs. Roosevelt, always devoted to her distinguished husband and one of his most truest advisers. The widow is bearing up bravely under the shock of his sudden death, coming so soon after that of their youngest son, Lieutenant, Quentin Roosevelt, who lost his life in a battle with a German airman last July.

Hastened by Grief

The death of Col. Roosevelt is believed by the physicians who attended him, to have been hastened by grief over Quentin's death, coupled with anxiety over the serious wounds suffered by Captain Archie Roosevelt while fighting in France.

He was proud of his soldier sons and their heroism, but he was a devoted father and he grieved for the one who gave his life for his country as well as for the other who was wounded. He hid his suffering from the world, however, in the hope that might set an example for other fathers and mothers who had given their sons to the nation.

To the last, Col. Roosevelt had been preaching "Americanism," and few realized that his health had been shattered. It was believed that the rugged constitution which had stod him in such good stead through so many years of 'strenuous' life would not fail him and that he would regain his usual health. His messages of late, however, had been delivered through the medium of editorials or public statements instead of as addresses.

Hard to Realize

Even to his neighbors in Oyster Bay, it seemed impossible that life had ended so suddenly for the Rough Rider hero of Spanish war days; the statesman who, as Governor of New York and President had wielded the "big stick" so fearlessly; the big game hunter of tropical jungles; the citizen who preached preparedness long before his country entered the world conflict.

Aparently neither Colonel Roosevelt nor his wife had any foreboding that death would so soon still his active mind and body. It was only yesterday that Mrs. Roosevelt sent a letter to Charles Stewart Davison, Chairman of the general citizens' committee appointed to welcome returning soldiers in New York, announcing that the Colonel would accent the honorary chairmanship of the committee.

"The rheumatism has invaded Col. Roosevelt's right hand," wrote Mrs. Roosevelt, "So he wants me to write that he has telegraphed his acceptance. This note is to assure you that he will be at your service by springtime."

Died at 4:15 a.m.

It was at 4:15 o'clock this morning that the former President died in his sleep, painlessly. His death was due directly to a blood clot lodged in one lung, the result of inflammatory rheumatism.

"Put out the light, please," were the former President's last words. They were addressed to his personal attendant, James Amos, a young negro, who had been in his service since he left the White House and who was sitting at the foot of his bed.

Sometime later Amos noticed that the patient was breathing heavily and became alarmed. He left the room to call the nurse who had been summoned from Oyster Bay yesterday. When they returned Colonel Roosevelt had breathed his last. They called Mrs. Roosevelt, the only member of the family who was at home. There had been a family gathering Christmas Day, but as no alarm, was felt over the Colonel's condition, the children who were able to spend the holiday with their parents had gone to different parts of the country.

Cables Sent Children

Cable messages were sent to Major Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Captain Kermit Rosevelt, who are in service in France, to Captain Archie Roosevelt, who left yesterday with his wife for Boston where his father-in-law died Saturday, and to Mrs. Ethel Derby who is in Aiken, S. C., with her two children.

Mrs. Roosevelt telephoned to her husband's cousin, Colonel Emlen Roosevelt, of New York, who started immediately for Oyster Bay and to the colonel's secretary, who also was in New York. Miss Stricker gave the sad news to the world through the Associated Press.

Colonel Roosevelt was visited twice last evening by Dr. J. A. Waller, of this village.

Difficult to Breathe

At 10:30 o'clock when the second visit was made the patient explained to the physician, "I feel as though my heart was going to stop beating." Dr. Waller had no reason to believe, however, that Mr. Roosevelt was in any immediate danger. So certain was he that this was true that Mrs. Roosevelt and the nurse retired.

One of Colonel Roosevelt's New York physicians visited him Friday but although the former President was suffering some pain from the rheumatism he made light of it, laughing and chatting without restraint. Colonel Roosevelt called to Sagamore Hill yesterday a village barber whose work he liked.

"I'm feeling bully, John," he said, "But I sent for you because I don't feel like shaving myself today, so get ready."

Illness Year Old

Colonel Roosevelt's final illness dated from last February. It was on the fifth of that month that, following an operation on one of his ears, he was removed from Oyster Bay to the Roosevelt Hospital in New York. He remained there until March 3, meanwhile undergoing two more operations. Two months later he insisted on keeping speaking engagements arranged for him in many cities and until the fall continued to give from the platform his views on International affairs.

In November he was forced to return to the Hospital for treatment of rheumatism. Today, through an announcement by his physicians concerning the cause of his death, it became known that three weeks before he left the hospital to return to Sagamore Hill on Christmas Day, he had suffered a pulmonary embolism which nearly proved fatal.

Flags at Half Mast

All flags in Oyster Bay are at half mast tonight and in windows of nearly every store and residence are picture of the former President, draped with crepe and surrounded with American flags.

A special meeting of the town board to draft resolutions of sorrows was called for tonight, and Mattinecock Lodge of Masons, of which the Colonel was a member, also met for the same purpose.

Tonight cable messages and telegrams of sympathy, addressed to Mrs. Roosevelt, poured in in such numbers that the local operator was unable to handle them and three more telegraphers were called from New York to assist him.

Cleveland's Widow Wires

Among the messages made public was one from Mrs. Francis F. Cleveland-Preston, widow of President Cleveland, in which she asked Mrs. Roosevelt to "accept assurance of profoundest sympathy in this—yours and the country's—great loss.

Personal messages also were received from William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce; former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Major General George W. Goethals, former Governor Colquitt, of Texas, and Elbert H. Gary.

LEE ELLISON WRITES LETTER TO HIS HOME FROM FRANCE

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Ellison received a letter from their son in France December 31, 1918. The letter is as follows:

Dear Mother:

I will write you another letter. It has been a good while since I wrote you. This writing leaves me feeling fine tonight, and enjoying myself all right. I know you have been wondering what I am doing. I have been having a picnic since I have been in the hospital with the mumps. I wrote you a few days ago and told you about me having the mumps.

Well, mother, I will tell you about France. It isn't a pleasant country at all. It reminds me of the river hills and you know how they are. But I don't think that I will be over here very much longer. I think everything is over now, so cheer up and enjoy Christmas.

Well, mother, I can't think of anything more to write, so I guess I had better close for this time. Tell papa and all the rest of the folks that I didn't write any about them. I havent forgotten them. Tell all of them hello.

So, by, by. From your loving son,
LEE ELLISON,
Headquarters 309 Infty., Co., American E. F., 78th Division.

SYLACAUGA EDITOR KILLED IN ACTION

Sylacauga, Ala., Jan. 3.—Information has been received here of the death in action in France, of Lieutenant Victor May, editor and owner of the Sylacauga News.

The brief dispatch, without details or date of the young man's death, has occasioned much sadness here, where he was highly respected and liked by everyone. In his absence his property has been handled by Captain C. H. Greer. Lieut. May volunteered his services to the government soon after the United States declared a state of war to exist with Grmany and was sent to training camp where he was later commissioned a lieutenant and the next step was France.

Numerous letters have been received here from the young editor during his absnce, but there had been a lack of these for several weks, and friends were not altogether surprised to learn of the sacrifice he has made.

Wm. J. Billingsley, of Thorsby, was in Clanton Monday. He came to see The Union-Banner in regard to printing Minutes of the Chilton County Baptist Association of which he is Clerk.

Germany still keeps her Christmas stocking hanging, and it is still gaping for food.

Among the things which will go on the 1918 scrap-heap is the belief in the divine right of kings.

Tastes in colors differ. Alsace and Lorraine have a special liking for khaki, while Gerany abominates it.

I had rather be on the outside looking in than on the inside looking out—speaking of jails, armies and such like.

* * *

It is all right for any nation to seek "a place in the sun," but no one nation should atempt to corner all the sunlight.

After making a close study of newspaper reports we have arrived at the conclusion that either the Czar of Russia is dead or he is alive.

The difference between the Allies and the Germans is that the Allies want a just peace, and the Germans want just peace.

The same laundry may cleanse the blouse of the workman and the silk pajamas of the captialist. The clothes-line is your only true democracy.

The American colors cannot be made up among the allies. There are red-blooded nations and blue-blooded nations, but not a white-blooded nation among them anywhere.

When our soldiers come home they will be able to tell us what a Christmas in France is like, and any of them will be able to tell us what two Christmases in France are like.

It is sometimes difficult to determine whether a man lives in comfort or luxury. But just now there is an unfailing test which may be applied. You have only to ascertain whether he eats eggs for breakfast.

This week we are starting again to drumming on you about poll taxes. We are not going to quit till Feb. 1. Better pay up next time you are in Clanton and then it will be off your mind.

But the army ain't such a bad place, only you have to get up rather soon, wash your own dishes, be your own washerwoman and about a thousand and one other things that the average man is not accustomed to in civil life, fighting not excepted.

* * *

Between the exploits of our army and the vision of President Wilson riding with King George in a state coach behind eight horses, it will not be surprsing if Uncle Sam is obliged to order a new hat of a larger size.

The American government does not know what to do with the railroads, and the European governments do not know what to do with the ex-kaiser. Why not pull the ex-kaiser on the railroads and run him around America?

Since reaching Europe our president has partaken of Parisian banquets, American army chow and "the roast beef of Old England'.' We do not know what the political result may be, but we should fancy that the physical result might be an attack of indigestion.

One distinguishing peculiarity of the Bersaglieri, Italy's crack troops, is that they never walk. They are supposed always to advance at the run, whether in parade, road marching, or in the field. If we could only engage one of these young soldiers as office boy and messenger!

The man who thinks winter is a time of ease and rest for the Northern farmer ought to have the experience of getting up some morning when the temperature is at zero, and shoveling his way to the barn thru two feet of snow. It may be fun, but it is strenuous fun.

Prince Eitel Fritz, the most respectable of the present Hohenzollerns and the only one who remains in Germany, professes that his only desire is to be "a simple German citizen." It would have been well for the rest of the tribe if they had confined their ambition within such moderate limits.

We sometimes find a fellow who objects to the raising of the price of The Union-Banner to $1.50 a year. Yet they come around with a one-horse load of kindling that used to sell for a dollar and ask us $2.25 for it. Think of that when you begin to figure on the price of the paper and you can readily see one very plain reason we have for raising the price. We can't pay such prices for the necessities of life and live selling papers for the same price we sold them 3 years ago.

VICTOR MAY OF SYLACAUGA

We are indeed sorry to learn of the death of our neighbor publisher and editor, "Vic" May of the Sylacauga News. His death occurred on the battle field in France in the last days of the war, as he was doing service there for his country.

Victor was one of the coming newspaper men of the state. He established The News at Sylacauga a few years ago, and he was using his energy with the paper toward the accomplishing of great things for his home town when called to the service.

The town of Sylacauga has missed him sadly ever since he went to the army and even more so shall it miss him in the future.

He died for his country and we know he died the man that he has always lived.

HOW TO KEEP WAGES UP

High wages and high standards of living have always been peculiarly doctrines of the Republican party. Republicans have consistently supported the policy of not throwing the American workmen into competition with the workmen in foreign countries who are willing to work for lower wages and maintain lower standards of living. If we could only get the Democrats to come to the support of such policies, there would be comparatively litle difficulty in making sure that war-time wages will not be cut any more than absolutely necessary.

OUR ARMY

We stand upon the threshold of a new era, and we cannot predict what its opening door will show us.

During the next few months our young men will come from abroad. They are indeed picked men. Both in physical and mental qualities, they are the best representativs of our nation. From their age and qualifications we know them to be the men who will shape the policies of this country for the next twenty-five years.

Two million in number, they have gone through an experience which was certain to alter them. What changes may have been made in their character and opinions we cannot tell.

Probably their military training will lead them to demand more exactness in all details and business arrangements. But this is entirely subordinate to the great question of how they will react upon America—how they will form her ideas and influence her.

The future must tell us. Just now they are only our boys coming home, and we will receive them with a joyous welcome.

WHAT ABOUT POLL TAX?

The time is again at hand when the citizens of the county should pay their poll tax. Had you thought of it?

If you have not paid this year, get busy and see about it. February the 1st is the limit you know. Don't 'et it get by you.

True this is what we call an "off year" but you can't afford to let your franchise drop.

Let me urge every man of voting age to remember his poll tax and pay it before Feb. 1st.

ROLLICKING WITH ROYALTY

"There was general agreement among Londoners," reads the account of the President's reception in the English capital, "that no visiting head of a state had ever been given such an ovation as that accorded the American President." Medieval pageantry featured the procession in his honor, prominent in the line being the crimson-coated beef-eaters from the Tower of London, armed with ancient halberds, who appear on every occasion of royal pomp. Following the parade Mr. and Mrs. Wilson appeared on the balcony of Buckingham Palace with the King and Queen, and received the plaudits of the multitudes.

Life at the White House will seem prosaic indeed after all this pomp and ceremony, but the people at home will relieve him from it two years hence, and permit Mr. Wilson to renew for an indefinite period the royal acquaintances who, according to censored cables, are flocking to him on his present tour of triumph.

Oh Hoover, dear Hoover, come home to us now!
They have taken the food rules away,
Yet they ask us to save and they don't tell us how,
And we need you so badly today!

May we eat pork and beef, of all dinners the chief,
Or must we take lamb in their stead?
And say if you please, may we have bread and cheese,
And should it be substitute bread?

Shall we eat raisin cake? Apple pies may we bake?
We're all of us sadly perplexed.
The food rules, dear Hoover, seem all to be over:—
Oh come home and tell us what next.

The greatest American of the present age has passed into the life beyond. The many marvelous achievements of his wonderful life are now only vivid scenes of history; but they are recorded in letters of radiance that wil shine forth in the lives of people for ages hence. It is difficult to imagine that such a character as Theodore Roosevelt is forever gone from the stage of human activity.

The Union-Banner has instituted a plan to try to induce the merchants and business men of Clanton and Chilton county to advertise their business to the people through the columns of the paper. Our advertising manager, Mr. M. W. Mareus will see you and put the proposition before you. He is prepared to show you the advantage of advertising in The Union-Banner, and we hope the business men will come across. It will mean money to them as well as making the paper a medium worthy of our county and town.

The Editor of The Union-Banner is back from the army now, and we are taking up with more spirit than ever our chosen task of helping put Clanton and Chilton county in their well deserved places at the top of the list among the towns and counties of the state in every respect. If you live around here you are invited now to put your shoulder to the wheel and help us push our home county and town to the top. If you are inclined to drag on the job and not help, you had better not let us find it out. If you can't pull for your home town you ought to move out of it. Let's all get down to business now and make a showing.

"UNCLE SAM" AND THE HOME GARDEN

Well Known Civic Leader Shows How a Vegetable Garden Will Cut The Family Store Bill In Half

Atlanta, Ga.—(Special.)—"Few people realize the actual money-saving power of the home vegetable garden and what it can be made to contribute in the way of food for the family table," says President H. G. Hastings, of the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, and the Southeastern Fair, in discussing the matter of food supply for the South in 1919.

"Uncle Sam, through the United States Department of Agriculture," said Mr. Hastings, "estimated the value of the vegetables produced last year in home gardens of the United States at three hundred and fifty million of dollars. This means that much actually saved by the garden makers from their store bills.

"Whenever there is lack of food or money to buy food, no matter whether it be due to world-wide food scarcity, boll weevil damage or other cause, the first word 'Uncle Sam' passes out to the sufferer is to make a good big home garden. Why? Because the right kind of a home garden is the quickest, cheapest and best source of food supply there is.

"The great trouble here in the South is that our people don't take the home garden seriously enough, or give it the attention that its importance as a food producer and money-saver justifies. It is mostly made with a 'lick and a promise' and the cultivation and replanting it gets during the growing season is mostly of the unfulfilled promise kind.

"With the present and certain-to-be-continued high food prices on the one hand, and the very great uncertainty as to the price that cotton or other cash crops will sell for next fall, it is a time above all others to play safe.

"This is no time to gamble on cotton. None of us can tell within 15 cents a pound what it will sell for next fall. The farmer who makes few or no store debts for food, producing his own and family needs on home acres, is safe regardless of cotton prices, and he is the only one who is safe.

"The right kind of a home garden maintained all through the season and given a square deal in the way of cultivation, is the greatest store-bill-cutter on record. A quarter to half an acre garden for the average family will cut the store bill in half."

SMITH—SELLARS

A wedding of interest which took place Monday at the home of the bride was that of Miss Calla Mae Sellars and Sergt. Frank C. Smith of the quartermaster's corps. The Rev. W. C. Golden, pastor of the Palm Avenue Baptist Church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in a smart tailored suit of navy blue, with white kid boots, hat and gloves to match. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mrs. L. O. Sellars, a member of a prominent South Georgia family. Sergeant Smith is originally from Birmingham, Ala., but is at present stationed at Fort Dade. He is to be congratulated on winning such a charming bride. The happy couple left on the afternoon boat for the Fort, amid the good wishes of their friends for a happy wedded life.—

Sergeant Smith is the son of Mr. P. C. Smith of Clanton. Friends of the young man here will congratulate him and his young wife upon learning of their marriage.

The Best Cough Medicine

When a druggist finds that his customers all speak well of a certain preparation, he forms a good opinion of it and when in need of such a medicine is almost certain to use it himself and in his family. This is why so many druggists use and recommend Chaberlain's Cough Remedy. J. B. Jones, a well known druggist of Cubrun, Ky., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for the past seven years, and have found it to be the best cough medicine I have ever known."

MILK IN WINTER

Why do your cows give less milk in winter than they do in summer? Just because nature does not supply them with grasses and green food. But we have come to the assistance of Dame Nature with B. A. Thomas' Stock Remedy which contains the very ingredients that the green feed supplies in season, only, of course, in a more highly concentrated form. We guarantee that this remedy will make your cows give more milk, and better milk, with the same feed. For sale by Clanton Mercantile Company, Clanton, Ala., and M. A. Pinson & Co., Cooper, Ala.

AVOID HESSIAN FLY DAMAGE TO WHEAT.

By Frank L. Thomas, Extension Entomologist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Wheatless days and the use of wheat substitutes during the past year have taught us to place new values on this crop.

In nearly every county of the northern half of Alabama campaigns for "wheat on every farm" or wheat clubs are being organized. In four years the wheat acreage in Alabama has increased from 31,000 to 140,000 acres, producing 1,300,000 bushels of grain.

As a crop increases, the insect enemies of that crop find greater opportunity for multiplication, and new pests are more liable to become established. Remembering the old adage that "a stitch in time saves nine," the following statements in regard to the Hessian fly, the most serious enemy of wheat, should be given careful consideration.

The maggot of the fly and the resting stage, or "flax seed" as it is called, is always found near the base of the plant between the leaf sheath and the stalk. Where fields have been infested the flaxseed stage is found in the stubble. An infested plant is without stem and is but a mass of short overgrown leaves that usually kill with the first frost. In summer the effect of the fly is to cause the straw to break over before harvest.

The most practical and effective means of controlling the Hessian fly are identical with the best methods of producing the maximum yields of wheat. The basis of control covers in general three or four points. For precautionary methods the wheat growers of Alabama are urged this fall to practice two of them:

(1) Keep down all volunteer wheat between plowing time and seeding date, and (2) delay wheat seeding until after the fly-free date. Any volunteer wheat which comes up before wheat seeding time should be destroyed, because if it is allowed to grow the fly will live over on it and infest the following crop. The flies coming from the stubble of infested fields will appear and disappear within the space of a week. Therefore if seeding is delayed until after the fly-free date, most of them will die before the wheat comes up. Winter killing of wheat can be largely avoided by thorough seed bed preparation and by enriching the soil.

Based upon government and Experiment Station publications the following dates have been suggested as the best time to sow wheat in Alabama, though departures of a week or more may often be made on either side of these dates. It will be noticed that within the dates is included the first killing frost in each of the respective sections:

Tennessee Valley October 20 to 30.

Latitude of Birmingham October 31 to November 9.

Latitude of Montgomery November 5 to 15.

SHEEP GROWING A PROFITABLE BUSINESS.

By P. O. Davis, Assistant Boys Club Agent, Alabama Extension Service.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Never have sheep been more important than at present and yet we are facing a great world sheep shortage. The demand for mutton is rapidly increasing and our wool supply is very limited. There are far too few sheep in Alabama. At present prices for wool and mutton, sheep are very profitable. These prices will doubtless continue throughout the war and probably after it is over.

Most Alabama farmers can very profitably place at least a few sheep on their farms. In many instances 10 or more can be fed and cared for at little additional cost. Sheep are oftentimes very helpful because of the injurious weeds they destroy. They are doubtless an important factor in the economical management of many farms. The Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin No. 840 makes the very conservative statement that the gross annual returns from ewes of breeding age may be expected to range from $8 to $15 a head, depending upon the percentage of lambs, the weight of the fleece and the value of these products.

All farms are not adapted to sheep. They do not do well in close quarters. Well drained upland is preferable. If only a small area is to be had it should be fenced into two or three blocks, and the sheep frequently changed from one to another in order to prevnt the development of parasites or disease.

Sheep must have care and attention. They need feed and shelter during a rough winter. An open shed, facing the south, is sufficient shelter. They should be kept on the range or pasture as much as possible. Plenty of good hay with a small amount of concentrates is sufficient feed.

An ideal small farm flock is 20 head, but there should be money in as many as four or five. Beginners should start with grade ewes and pure bred rams if possible. Better blooded sheep produce more wool and mutton and are, therefore, more profitable.

The fear of the worthless dog is perhaps the greatest hindrance to sheep raising in Alabama. However, this is oftentimes more of a scare than real. A renewed interest in sheep raising should help eradicate the worthless dog and help enforce the present dog law.

The foot of the sheep is golden. A few on every adaptable Alabama farm will mean dollars to the farmer and thousands of dollars to the state each year. Besides that, they are a patriotic national necessity, which will help win the war.

VOLUME VII. CLANTON, ALA., JANUARY 16, 1919. NUMBER 42.

CLANTON CITIZENS ENTER PROTEST TO THE DAILY PAPERS

WE WANT THE TRUTH TOLD ABOUT CHILTON COUNTY OR NOTHING AT ALL.

The citizens of Clanton are sick and tired of the false publicity that has been made of the town and county through the daily papers of the state for some time past, and there is being formulated a united effort to have such things stopped some way or other.

It is very unjust and degrading to our town and county to have such false news items spread over the country. Many things have recently been spread in bold headlines in the state dailies that were not true, and had no foundation. They were very derogatory pictures of supposed unbecoming conditions that were in truth simply nothing more than the mere figments of the imagination of a correspondent who writes from the narrow view obtained through the window of a secluded room, and not as such correspondence ought to be formulated, by getting out and making a personal reconnoisance, obtaining the true facts and sending them to the papers to be published.

In the interest of bringing about a change in the color of this publicity that has been heaped upon our town and county, and in removing the root of the evil, a meeting of the citizens of the town was held at the office of the Probate Judge Monday night to discuss ways and means of going about the accomplishment of the problem. A good number of representative citizens were present at the meeting.

Hon. Thos. A. Curry was elected Chairman of the meeting and W. M. Wyatt, Secretary.

A brief talk was made by the Chairman, outlining the purposes of the meeting, after which discussions of the proposition were rendered by Judge Reynolds, G. C. Walker, W. J. Armstrong, Sheriff Harris, Tax Collector J. D. Collins and J. B. Atkinson. These men went over the situation thoroughly, reciting numerous incidents where false articles and statements through the daily papers of the state had created very undesirable impressions of conditions that never existed and things that never happened in our county.

After the discussions Judge Reynolds made a motion that the Chairman appoint a committee of three to formulate resolutions bearing on the subject under discussion. The motion was adopted and Mr. Curry appointed Prof. J. L. Johnson, Hon. J. B. Atkinson, and Rev. W. J. Armstrong.

The Committee on Resolutions retired and reported the following resolution:

Resolution

"Whereas, the Birmingham News, Montgomery Advertiser, Birmingham Ledger and the Birmingham Age-Herald, and Montgomery Journal, have, for some time past, maintained at Clanton, Ala., as their accredited and paid correspondent, one, W. P. Thompson, and

Whereas, the above named W. P. Thompson persists in furnishing to said newspapers from time to time articles as news from Clanton and Chilton county, which articles are so gabled and misrepresent facts that the truth is obscured entirely, and,

Whereas, such articles referred to are calculated to and do result in harm and injury to the people of Clanton and Chilton county, and has already misrepresented and injured the good name of Clanton and Chilton county, not only with the people of Alabama, but also with the people of other states; therefore be it

Resolved, in public meeting assembled, that we citizens of Clanton and Chilton county respectfully ask that the further use of said W. P. Thompson as their correspondent at Clanton and in Chilton county be discontinued by the said Birmingham News, Birmingham Age-Herald, Biringham Ledger, Montgomery Advertiser and Montgomery Journal; and be it further resolved that the Secretary of this meting be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to each of the above named newspapers."

The resolution was read to the meeting by J. B. Atkinson and unanimously adopted.

Rigid determination to find some means of getting Clanton and Chilton county properly represented to the outside world was expressed by every citizen present, and the meeting adjourned in the hope that the actions of the body would be heeded by the daily papers of the state and get for us at least fair representation in their news columns.

NITRATE OF SODA COMMITTEE FOR CHILTON COUNTY

A committee composed of J. N. Dennis, J. H. Gulledge and R. M. Hubbard, has been selected to handle the nitrate of soda orders for Chilton county for the ensuing year.

Mr. R. M. Hubbard will take all orders for shipments to Jemison, Ala.

Mr. J. H. Gulledge will take all orders for shipment to Verbena, Ala.

Mr. J. N. Dennis will accept orders for all shipments to Clanton, Ala.

All applications must be in before January 25th, and in order that you may avail yourself of the help of the above committeemen January the 20th and 21st are the days fixed for taking orders.

Mr. Gulledge will be at his office at Verbena, Mr. Hubbard will be at his store at Jemison and Mr. Dennis will be at the Court House at Clanton on January the 20th and 21st to assist you in making your applications as required by the United States Department of Agriculture.

All applications must be accompanied by a deposit of $8.50 per sack to cover cost and freight on the nitrate of soda. (The nitrate will cost $81.00 at the port and the freight to destination.)

The necessary blanks for the applications to be made by each farmer may be procured from the above committee, on the days set out above.

Don't forget that the nitrate will be cash and in order to get the shipment the earliest possible date you are required to make deposit of $8.50 per sack when you place your order.

We have assurance that the nitrate will be ready for shipment in time for all spring grain. We also have assurance that the supply will be sufficient to go around this time.

W. H. CONWAY,
County Farm Demonstration Agent.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Next Sunday at 11 a.m. the pastor Dr. Ernest Maye, will preach upon the important subject of "the Transfiguration," where God spoke to man, saying, this is "My Son, Hear Him."

At 7 p.m. the subject will be "The Eyes of God are in Every Place beholding the Evil and the Good."

These sermons will be of great help to those who attend.

Rev. Mr. Maye wants to be of help to Clanton's people. If the town and people will co-operate to this end. Come, show your interest by your presence and you will hear "plain pointed, practical preaching. Will you be there? Come!

WILL TELL YOU ABOUT MILK, BUTTER, DAIRYING, ETC.

Mr. J. N. Dennis has received a letter from W. H. Eaton, of Auburn, stating that he will be in Clanton Friday of this week to tell anybody anything they want to know about milk, butter, dairying, etc.

Mr. Eaton is one of the agricultural experts of Auburn, and is prepared to tell you all the latest tricks about the handling of dairy cattle and dairy products.

Come to Clanton and ask him any question you may have in your mind on this important question.

MANY DRASTIC BILLS BEFORE LEGISLATURE

ALABAMA LEGISLATOR IS AFTER WALLACE

Falk of Geneva Would Tear Down Several State Departments—Bone Dry Bill Presented in House—Governor's Salary Bill is Favorable.

(From Montgomery Advertiser)

Bills to abolish office and to repeal laws fell from the hopper in a shower during the session of the second legislative day. Of the 32 house bills and 37 senate bills introduced to date a large percentage of them are repealing and abolishing acts.

Representative R. S. Faulk of Samson, Geneva county, was an easy leader in this preparatory work of demolition. He introduced 8 bills in rapid fire succession, each one of which would make many state employees join the army of the unemployed. House bill No 13—an unlucky number for some official or legislator—proposes to abolish the office of game and fish commissioner and his department, and to transfer the books and records thereof to the agricultural department. It makes the commissioner of agriculture do the work now being performed by the game and fish commissioner.

The second broadside abolishes the county boards of equalization and transfers their duties to the boards of county comissioners. The third proposes to abolish the state normal school located at Daphne, Mundville, Livingston and Jacksonville and to repeal their charters and dispose of their property.

Court of Appeals.

Another one of the Faulk bills threatens the destruction of the court of appeals and provides for the disposition of all cases pending therein.

With three other and further acts Mr. Faulk proposes to abolish the nine district agricultural schools, to dispose of the property and repeal their charters; to repeal the act providing for teachers institutes, and to repeal the act for the regulation and control of fraternal benefit societies.

An even 100 members of the house responded to the call of the roll Wednesday at the afternoon session. Speaker Henry P. Merritt presented Rev. Brooks Lawrence who asked Divine blessing upon the legislature and its labors for the state and people.

Before the routine of business had begun Mr. Green of Selma presented to the speaker of the house a wreath, which was the gift of the Alabama Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Accompanying the gift was a message from the W. C. T. U. expressing the gratitude of its members for the act of the house in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment and for the zeal of the speaker in the cause of temperance.

In accepting the gift, Mr. Merritt expressed heartfelt thanks for the wreath and the sentiment expressed in the message. He paid a beautiful tribute to the women of the Temperance Union, and to women whom he said was at the beginning and the ending of every fight for the uplifting of mankind.

Under a suspension of the rule, the message of the W. C. T. U. and the reply of the speaker was ordered spread upon the minutes of the house.

New Bills Roll In.

The call of the roll by counties for the introduction of bills gave the first opportunity of the session for the general introduction of measures for legislatin and twenty-six bills were presented covering a wide range of subjects.

Speaker Merritt, observing the insufficiency of title on the back of several bills offered, called attention to the rule which requires that each bill must show on its cover the title thereof and sufficient further explantory language to show the subject and purpose of the bill. He also directed attention to the law requiring triplicate copies of notice and proof, which must be filed with all local bills.

The house committee on rules retired during a recess of that body and later made favorable report on the bill to restore the salary of the governor curtailed from $7,500 to $5,000 per year at the 1915 session and took similar action on the bills to increase the fees of sheriffs in certain cases and to allow these officials a larger sum for the feeding of prisoners in their custody.

Bone Dry Act.

Representative W. H. Shaw of Colbert county introduced in the house the "bone dry" bill prepared for the anti-saloon league by Judge Samuel D. Weakley. It is entitled an act "to further suppress the evils of intemperance, to restrict the receipt, possession and delivery of spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented liquors, and beverages and fixing punishment and penalties. The same bill was introduced in the senate during the afternoon by President Pro Tem T. J. Bedsole.

Mr. Rose of Jefferson introduced a bill to increase the pay of grand and petty jurors from $2 per day to $4 per day and on the other side of the dome Senator Acker introduced a siilar measure which proposes to increase the pay of jurors to $3 per day. The authors of these measures tate that the demand for this legislation comes from the rural sections of the state, where complaint is made that people from the country are compelled to spend more money when they go to the county seat than was required when the present pay of jurors was fixed, fifty years ago.

The bill to so amend the constitution as to permit the state to engage in internal improvements, for highways, was introduced in the House by Mr. Jones of Escambia, and in the Senate by Senator John Craft of Mobile. This measure is said to have the endorsement of the State and National Highways associations, and will eventually result in the expenditure of many millions of dollars on highways in the state, if adopted, in the opinion of its authors.

Both the house and senate took a recess until 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

THIRTY-FIVE STATES HAVE RATIFIED THE AMENDMENT

Washington, Jan. 15—Legislatures of 35 states—one less than the required three-fourths—have ratified the prohibition constitutional amendment. Several state assemblies now in session are expected to take action tomorrow with a probable race between Nebraska, Missouri and Minnesota as to which will be the thirty sixth one the list.

Ratification was completed today by the legislatures of five states—Iowa, Colorado, Oregon, New Hampshire and Utah—making a 12 in two days.

INCREASE PAY OF JURORS

A bill has been placed before the Alabama Legislature to raise the pay of jurors from $2.00 per day to $3.00 per day and give them 5 cents per mile for travel to and from the court house.

Will you please allow me space in your paper for a few lines?

Will anyone that has come back from France that knew Pvt. James C. Prim, Co. A, 167th Infantry, American Expeditionary Forces, France, (of the Rainbow Division) write to his sister, Mrs. W. H. Raybon, Randolph, Ala. We received a telegram in August, 1918, that my brother was killed in action July 26th, and that is all we can learn about him. One letter has returned to me that said on back of same that he was wounded in action July 26, 1918, at Tours, France. We have written several letters to headquarters at Washington and also in France, and can't hear from them. Would be glad to hear from anyone that knew my brother or anything about him while in France.

Have just received a letter from my brother, Pvt. Hugh Prim in France and he says he is well and didn't know when he would be home.

Health is very good around here at present.

Mrs. Eva Brown and Mr. and Mrs. S. Raybon taken dinner with W. H. Raybon's family Sunday.

Mrs. R. L. Prim is slowly improving.

FROM FRIENDS IN GEORGIA.

Rome, Ga., Dec. 8, 1919.

Dear Editor:—Enclosed find check for the renewal of our subscription to The Union-Banner.

We have been receiving the paper weekly since we came to Georgia, and we surely apreciate it very much for it is like a letter from home. We also thank you for your kindness in reembering us each week.

Wishing The Union-Baner a successful year, and much happiness to its many readers, we are

$221,000 OF CHILTON COUNTY BONDS FOUND TO HAVE BEEN FORGED

CHICAGO BOND SALESMAN CONFESSES TO ISSUING FRAUDULENT BONDS AND SELLING THEM.

A gigantic forgery of bonds has recently been revealed in the city of Chicago wherein over six hundred thousand dollars worth of fraudulent bonds had been placed on the market and sold.

In this lump were two hundred and twenty one thousand dollars worth of bonds supposed to be made against Chilton County and bearing what was supposed to be the signature of Judge L. H. Reynolds and Treasurer Bice.

In some way, the bogus bonds were made in duplicate of the bonds that were actually issued by the county three years ago, and passed upon the market as bona fide papers.

One of the fraudulent papers has been received in Clanton and compared with one of the valid bonds and the resemblance is said to be very close indeed.

The man who perpetrated the fraud is being held in jail in Chicago.

CUTTER READY TO PLEAD GUILTY AND TAKE HIS MEDICINE

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 15.—Millard H. Cutter, head of a Chicago bond firm, who confessed several days ago that he had disposed of forged municipal and school bonds aggregating $600,000, including $221,000 bonds in the name of Chilton County, Alabama, expects to be indicted tomorrow, to plead guilty Friday and to enter the state penitentiary Saturday. His attorney has ade arrangements with the authorities for the necessary procedings.

Among the cities and counties against which forged bonds were issued were the following: Hamiet, North Carolina., $50,000; Statesville, N. C., $13,000; Lonsdale, Tenn., $30,000.

BAKER SCHOOL HOUSE

School is progressing nicely under Prof. W. J. Moore. He and his assistant, Miss Manila Littlejohn rule a large number of pupils.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Littlejohn have named their son James LaFayette.

The ball at Mr. Thornton's Monday night was given in honor of Misses Eva Jones and Ella Garrett, who were the guests of Miss Cecile Cook. The ball was well attended and enjoyed by all present.

A large crowd from this community attended services at Liberty Hill Sunday.

Miss Fannie Tidwell, of Cleveland, is spending the winter with her cousin, Miss Etta Headley.

Miss Bertha Baltzer, of Montgomery, is expected to be the guest of Miss Vera Watson Saturday and Sunday next.

Delene Watson spent Saturday night with Leona Smith.

Miss Bertha Best spent Tuesday night with Miss Mae Mims.

Misses Myrtle and Willie Popwell dined with Miss Vera Watson Sunday.

HAVE YOU ANY PRODUCE?

Read the ads of the Clanton Produce merchants and bring them what you have on hand. They are offering you good markets for your produce, chickens, etc., and it means cash when you sell to them. It is the best opportunity the farmers of Chilton county have ever had to convert their products into cash.

MRS. DAVIDSON DEAD.

Information was received in Clanton Wednesday of the death of Mrs. R. E. Davidson at her home in Birmingham. The deceased was before her marriage Miss Grace Tyus of near Clanton.

WADE TO QUIT HOTEL.

We learn that Mr. J. Q. Wade is soon to discontinue the management of the Wilson Hotel at Clanton. Arrangements are already made for the disposition of the hotel furnishings.

It is not known yet who will take charge of the hostelry. Clanton cannot afford to give up this splendid hotel; so it is a good chance for somebody who can take charge of the place and keep it up to the high standard that has been set by the retiring management.

OBITUARIES.

When you write obituaries or resolutions for publication in The Union-Banner, count the words and enclose price, which is one cent a word, with the article if you want it published. This applies to all obituary notices or resolutions passed by Lodges or religious organizations.

The Amendent has been ratified by Alabama's Legislature, and still The Advertiser continues alive. We thought sure it would kill the dear old thing.

At the opening session of the 1919 Legislature of Alabama at Montgomery Tuesday, the national prohibition amendment was ratified by a large majority in both houses of the body.

The Legislature is geting well into swing now and from the tenor of some of the bills already before the body, the present session bids fair to leave its imprint upon the affairs of the state in big letters.

It will be going some when a state Legislature outclasses the 1915 session; but there is no telling where this one we have now will stop. They are getting up a mighty lot of steam to start off with.

If all the bad things that have been said about Clanton in the daily papers of the state had been boosters, our town and county would be worth exceedingly more than it is today, and the outside world would be looking on us as civilized instead of the distorted way they have been made to see us.

The attention of the farmers of the county is called to the article in this issue of The Union-Banner by Mr. W. H. Conway, relative to the nitrate of soda situation for the coming farm season. In this article is all the information you need on how to proceed to get nitrate. If you are interested read the article herein referred to and go after your soda.

The Union-Banner calls upon our fellow-craftsmen of the Birmingham and Montgomery dailies, as newspapers which have a mutual high regard for truth and honesty in everything, to slack up on the way they have been handling Clanton and Chilton county through the news columns of their good papers. We know these papers do not want to do any harm or injustice to Chilton county or any other community in the state. But they are carelessly allowing corrupt correspondence from here to get into their papers and in that way it is hurting our good county and town. Will these newspapers kindly investigate what their correspondent writes fro Clanton and see that it is at least truthful before spreading it to the outside world? Justice to our comunity deands that they do.

The daily papers of Birmingham and Montgomery have been asked fairly and squarely by the citizens of Clanton to discontinue the publication of untruthful correspondence in regard to the town and county, We suppose their correspondent here will persuade these papers that it is just a political grudge against him here by a few enemies who want to see him ousted. We wish however to inform them now that the movement is not such a narrow personal scheme. It is a united effort of all citizens to have Clanton and Chilton county justly represented through these papers. And if they can't publish the truth they can just leave Clanton and Chilton county out. They will see sooner or later what we mean and when they do see they will recognize our petitions. They cannot take the story of one man over the voice of our entire citizenship.

PAPER LATE AGAIN

Owing to the fact that we could not get electric power to keep our linotype and presses running continuously this week we are late in getting the paper out to our readers.

We hope in a short while to make arrangements for power to operate on so that we can get out on time.

Dr. T. J. Marcus received a telegram last Thursday from his son, Raymond, stating that he had landed safely at Newport News, Va., after a years service with the U. S. forces in France. The young soldier expects to return home soon.

If you go outside of Chilton county you would be shocked at the way strangers look on us here. They have been misled by numerous false statements in the daily papers till they have the idea that our town and county would smell bad in the nostrils of good meaning citizens. No one can realize the falsity of these articles like we who live here; and no one can appreciate the unjustness of these malicious impressions like we who live here and know the absurdity of them. There is no reason for our town and county being so misrepresented. We do not have to endure it. We can get right with the world on this question and we will do it. Chilton is as good as any county in the state in every particular and we are going to have it represented as such or not at all.

COLUMBUS JONES

On the night of December 15th, 1918, the grim reaper, death, took the life of Columbus Jones. Columbus, in the years of his youth was a model boy and when he came to the strength of manhood, he had builded a strong oral character. He was then united in holy matrimony to Miss Nellie Honeycutt with whom he lived happily and faithfully until he was called home.

He leaves a wife and four sweet children who mourn their loss in his death. His friends were numerous.

He was buried at Union Grove with appropriate services by Rev. W. P. Lowery.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Our State Baptist Convention which met in Birmingham last week, was a great meeting in which great men and great plans were manifest. Among other things that we would call attention to was the purchase by the Convention of our State paper, The Alabama Baptist.

While the paper has always represented the denominational interests, yet it has been under private ownership and a personal enterprise. Now it is the official organ of the denomination and belongs to all the State. It will be edited by the best talent procurable, and be the statewide source of information, opinion and inspiration. The pastor hopes that every Baptist family in both Chilton county and Unity Associations will now subscribe for and read it. He hopes soon to put on a campaign for subscriptions. It is as important as a text book in school.

A Revival Meeting will be begun at the Baptist church on the Sunday following the Commencement Exercises of the High School, May the 25th. The meeting will be conducted by Rev. T. O. Reese, one of our State Evangelists, assisted by his singer, Mr. Rowland. A great time is expected.

At the recent Baptist State Convention quite a tempest in a teapot was stirred up by an ignorant young lady reporter who turned in to a Birmingham daily a lot of copy making leading features of two rearks which plainly showed that she did not recognize a jest when she heard one and also that she had not the slightest conception of the church polity, of the Baptist people. But this is almost invariably the case in our large gatherings unless they are reported by a Baptist who understands what he hears and sees.

The first blunder was made when, in the Ministers' Meeting which preceded the regular convention.

The subject of Protestant Church Union was under discussion, a speaker had said something to the effect that such a union was being pressed by certain parties of great influence, and he thought that the Baptists should always be found co-operating in every good work for the advancement of the Kingdom of God. He was followed by another who spoke from an entirely different point of view, declaring that Baptists would never enter into organic union as a denomination with any other people, that they have a special message to deliver, and even if his denomination should forget its mission and so unite with others (in organic union) he and his church would still be found independently doing business at the same old stand. That is no new principle with Baptists, but is one of the foundation stones of their polity. Each church, association and convention is perfectly independent as are the towns, counties and states of our political organization, and even more so. Organic union with others is one thing, and co-operation in good works is entirely another. But this was promptly headlined by the aforesaid young lady reporter as a declaration that "Baptists will oppose every good work done by other Protestants."

The second scare head was simply a jest by the President of the Convention, Dr. W. B. Crumpton. At a certain point in the convention it was announced that the State Superintendent of Education, who is a Baptist, was present. In recognition of his ability as displayed during long years of both religious and secular work in the past the president called him to the front to make a short talk to the convention, remarking as he did so. "Here is some good Baptist timber that may make a Governor sometime," or words to that effect. This remark was taken very seriously by the aforesaid reporter and headlined "Baptists Grooming So and So for Governor," and the inference boldly set forth that the one religious denomination proposed to capture the state for its own control.

The delicious absurdity of both of these blunders can be fully appreciated only by those who are familiar with the Baptist spirit and lack of political intrigue, made impossible by their personal and church independence. The ignorance of the reporter and of the editor who thus featured the blunders is revealed in the fact that church independence and complete separation of church and politics are two of the fundamentals of Baptist principles.

PLETCHER.

Editor Union-Banner:—Please allow me space for a few words from this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Miner received a telegram the second day of January from the War Department telling them the sad news of their only son being killed in action in France. He was first reported missing in action, now reported kiled on Sept. 13. He was 31 years of age and went to the army the first day of April, 1918. Along with the many other Americans sacrificed in the great conflict, he died that we might live in peace. His bereaved parents have the sympathy of a large number of friends. The young man will be greatly missed in his home community.

Lieutenant T. E. Williams has his honorable discharge from the army at Camp Gordon and is again in Clanton. He does not yet know where he will locate or what he will do in the future.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

WHAT ABOUT POLL TAX?

The time is again at hand when the citizens of the county should pay their poll tax. Had you thought of it?

If you have not paid this year, get busy and see about it. February the 1st is the limit you know. Don't let it get by you.

True this is what we call an "off year" but you can't afford to let your franchise drop.

Let me urge every man of voting age to remember his poll tax and pay it before Feb. 1st.

SOME POISONOUS PLANTS TO AVOID

Auburn Botanist Cautions Farmers Against Some Dangerous Enemies.

Many of our common plants are injurious to man and to animals because they are poisonous. The object of the present article is not only to discuss the poisonous effects of some of these plants, but also to urge the destruction of these forms as well as all other noxious weeds before they produce new seed. They should be pulled up by root or cut down, and as soon as possible burned to destroy the seed.

A common poisonous plant found in the fields of Alabama is the Rattlebox, which is one of the Crotalarias. It is a dwarf, much-branched, small-leaved, hairy annual, with dry blackish pods one inch long, in which brown hard seed rattle. The plant is suberect, three to ten inches high and has yellow flowers. It grows in sandy soil. The Crotalarias have simple leaves which will distinguish them in most cases from another group of plants which reesmble the Crotalarias as to pod and flower, but which have three-foliate leaves as a rule.

When eaten, the plant causes stupor, loud, heavy breathing, and death after many days, weeks or months. The toxic principle is an unnamed alkaloid. The plant causes crotalism in horses and cows. It is poisonous both in the meadow and in the hay.

Treatment. Immediate: Emetic or stomach tube. Give tannin, followed later by Epsom salts and demulcents, swallowed or injected. The plant can be eradicated by simply cutting it out before it matures seed.

A very common weed in pastures at this time of year is the Bitterweed. It is an erect, branching perennial herb, one to two and one-half feet high, with numerous narrow leaves and composite heads of yellow flowers. It contains an irritant narcotic poison which is said to be fatal to horses and mules. It is thought that it gives the bitter flavor to milk and sometimes to meat. It is a very troublesome weed and should be removed by cutting to prevent seeding, and by plowing to destroy the underground parts.

The Spiny Amaranth is a very bad weed. It can be told by its stout, branched, reddish stem, with a pair of stout bristles at the base of each leaf, and its yellowish green flowers. It is very common on waste or cultivated ground around the house or barn. It is mentioned in this connection because it sometimes produces mechanical injuries, and may cause bloat in cattle. It can easily be destroyed by cutting it off below the ground level or by pulling it up. It produces seed in early fall and should be burned after pulling and piling.

The Thorn Apples are dangerous, unsightly weeds. All are poisonous. Two species are very common in fields and waste places. Jimson weed or Stramonium is a rank-scented annual plant. All parts of the plants are narcotic and poisonous, especially the seed. They produce a very disagreeable odor and the hay containing the plant is poisonous to cattle. Cattle have been poisoned by eating the leaves in dry hay. Children have been poisoned by eating the seed, and even by sucking the flower or playing with it in the mouth. These plants should not be permitted to grow upon the farm. Cut them off below the surface of the ground before they produce seed.

Symptoms of poisoning: Headache, vertigo, nausea, extreme thirst, dry burning skin, and general nervous confusion, dilated pupils, loss of sight and of voluntary motion, and sometimes mania, convulsions and death. In smaller amounts the effects are like those of ordinary narcotics.

Treatment: Use stomach tube or emetics. Wash out stomach thoroughly with strong tea, tannic acid, or an infusion of oak bark, and give a stimulant such as hot, strong coffee.

Water Hemlock, Poison Hemlock, Nightshade and many others, too numerous to discuss in so short an article as this, are also poisonous plants that one should watch out for, and destroy. The writer cannot urge too strongly the destruction of these poisonous forms as well as all obnoxious weeds. The foregoing list of plants by no means gives all the poisonous forms, but it should cause one to be more cautious in permitting weeds to take possession of the farm.

The average farm can easily take care of 100 hens at very little outlay in expense or labor. The number of farms in the United States is about 6,000,000, and if every farm had on it 100 hens, and each hen produced 100 eggs per year, that would mean an annual production of 60,000,000,000 eggs. Certainly this is a source of food supply that is of no little importance. A hen should produce at least 120 eggs per year, says the Alabama Extension Service.

Experienced corn exhibitors know that success at fairs and corn shows depends largely upon the uniformity of their exhibit, says P. O .Davis of the Alabama Extension Service. Ten ears of equal length will impress the judges much more than ten ears of unequal length. One or two ears just a little off in color will mar the effect on the judges. Deeply indented or shrivelled grains would not make a uniform exhibit. Damaged or rotten grains at the tip of one or more ears may [illegible] the judges away.

PERRY LITTLEJOHN WRITES LETTER HOME

December ,9, 1918.

Dear Sister:—I will now answer your letter which I received a few days ago.

I am working some these days. I guess you would enjoy seeing me work as that is one pleasure you did not have very much when I was at home.

I think I will be at home in time to help Dad make a crop next sumer. I would like to sit around the fireplace of a real American home once more. I think I would enjoy it better now than I did before I left the United States.

Tell Will Jones I would like to see him with a uniform on. I hope to see him before many more weeks anyway.

I will close now as there are some boys here who think too much of themselves to keep still.

Your brother,
PERRY LITTLEJOHN

MT. NEBO SINGING.

The Mt. Nebo singing society met at Mt. Nebo church last Sunday with an extra number of singers and visitors present. We were proud to see them.

The singing was opened by a song and prayer by the Chair man, Mr. S. A. Henley, who directed a short leson while the program comittee was preparing a program.

The directors for the afternoon were Luther Williams, Eugene Williams, Aurelius Culp, William Cox, Blanco Durbin, Calvin Parrish, and S. A. Henley, who directed ten minutes each. Prof. Popwell was given unlimited time.

The singing was closed with prayer by the chairman.

The society will meet again next fourth Sunday, at two o'clock. All singers and lovers of music are invited to come to see us and help us.

GARDEN REMINDERS FOR LATE JANUARY AND EARLY FEBRUARY

By C. L. Isbell, Garden Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

By the latter part of January, or early February, seed of early vegetables, such as Irish potatoes, peas, radishes and lettuce, should either be in the ground, or ready to go there. The ground should be ready for spring turnips, cabbage, cauliflower and kohlrabi should be coming on in the hotbed. Plans should be made for bedding the sweet potatoes; also for starting tomatoes, eggplants and peppers in the hot bed.

The success of the garden depends largely on what is done early in the spring. The preparation and fertilization of the land should be planned so that as soon as one crop comes out another can be planted, and by all means every foot of the ground should be growing some crop all the time. More vegetables will be needed in most homes than were used in 1918. The boys will be back to help enjoy them. They have undergone great physical strain, and being constantly fed on a meat diet, they demand more and better food in the form of vegetables. Then there is a fifth Liberty Loan coming in the spring of 1919, and we will all want to be ready to meet it. A garden with plenty vegetables will reduce the grocery bill enough to make it possible for many to buy a bond who could not otherwise do so. At least one colored woman in Alabama bought a bond of the fourth issue with turnips thinned from a small patch. She marketed them from a one-horse wagon in small towns. Others can do as well.

To make big yields on small areas it is necessary to have a good stand for plants. If home grown seed are to be planted they should be tested before planting to see if they will germinate. If seed are to be bought they should come from reliable seedsmen a few days before they are to be used.

During the war Alabama has been taught to largely feed herself; now she should learn to "seed herself." Saving garden seed is both interesting and profitable. By saving seed one can have them to plant at all times, and by continuous planting it is possible to have a garden for 365 days out of each year in Alabama.

For further information write the Alabama Extension Service, Department of Horticulture, Auburn, Ala.

HOW AND WHEN TO CHURN

W. H. Eaton, Assistant Dairy Husbandman, Alabama Extension Service

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Farm butter making in Alabama is no longer a profitable means of utilizing the surplus cream for farmers within a convenient radius of a creamery. During the early part of December the creameries of this state paid the farmers 67 cents per pound for butterfat, or 57 cents for sufficient fat for making a pound of butter.

A considerable percentage of milk and cream produced in the state is not accessible to a creamery and this should be made into the best butter possible, as a good product of uniform quality is not only appreciated on the home table, but also finds a ready market at a profitable price.

Under no conditions can butter be properly churned in five to ten minutes. A half hour is about the average time required to get butter to come in the proper granular form. Difficult churning may be due to the following causes:

1. Stage of lactation: Toward the latter part of lactation the fat globules are very small and strippers' milk churns with difficulty.

2. Seasons of the year: Other things being equal, cream churns more readily in the summer than during the winter months.

3. Feed: A ration without succulence in it, as grass or corn silage, is conducive to the production of hard fat, and, hence difficult to churn.

4. Size of herd: Difficult churning occurs most frequently when the herd is small, one to five cows. With the small herd the individuality of the cows may play an important part. When the cream comes from a large herd these factors are covered up.

5. Thickness of cream: Cream which tests 20 per cent or less churns with more difficulty than a richer cream, testing 30 to 35 per cent.

It sometimes happens that cream becomes contaminated with certain ferments which cause it to froth and makes churning an impossibility. Cream should be well ripened before churning, as butter comes more readily from sour than from sweet cream. One of the main factors in creating churning troubles is the temperature of the cream, and the use of a dairy thermometer will eliminate many of these difficulties. No definite churning temperatures can be given to cover all cases, but in general cream should be churned at a temperature of approximately 60 degrees in the summer and from 62 to 65 degrees in the winter.

The churn should be of the barrel or swing type without inside dashers or other fixtures, and for best churning results should never be more than one-half full of cream. The speed should be such that the cream can be heard to rise and fall with each revolution of the churn.

A combination of the above factors may cause difficult churning. For example, a person with one cow well advanced in lactation, in the winter time, feeding dry feeds entirely, and churning in a churn large enough to accommodate the cream from five cows, certainly is in a bad predicament, and has reasons enough for the cream to churn slowly.

M. D. Foshee was in Montgomery the first of this week on business.

PRAISES SHERIFF HARRIS.

As the term of our present Sheriff expires in a few days I do not feel that it would be amiss to say a few words of praise of the services of Sheriff Harris, not altogether as an expression of my opinion, but as a summary of many remarks that I have heard.

The duties and responsibilities that have fallen on him have been tremendous, but he has proven himself worthy of our vote. He has in no doubt executed many laws that were unpleasant for him, yet I have never seen an officer clothed with authority who had a higher regard for the personal feelings of others.

As Mr. Harris retires from office he holds a distinguished place with and among the citizens of the county, not merely because he has been an officer, but from the fact that he has won the confidence of those whom he has served. The people are more than satisfied with his services; and from all parts of the county comes the applause: "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

Respectfully,
W. E. MARTIN.

No Great Act of Heroism Required

If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is within the reach of all and is prompt and effectual.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

We are all at a danger point. On the use of good common sense in our 1919 farm and garden operations, depends prosperity or our "going broke."

Even at present high prices no one can plant all or nearly all cotton, buy food and grain at present prices from supply merchant on credit, and make money. Food and grain are higher in proportion than are present cotton prices.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to furnish nearly half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best two or three acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1919 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the farm crops as well and shows you the clear road to real and regular farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

Any little wound or abrasion of the flesh occurring in cold weather that is not promptly treated becomes a bad sore and is difficult to heal. Apply BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT at once when such accidents happen. The wound heals promptly and soon does away with the annoyance of a bandage. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

VOLUME VII | CLANTON, ALA., JANUARY 23, 1919 | NUMBER 43

CHILTON COUNTY WILL NOT LOSE ANYTHING ON THE FORGED BONDS

Judge Reynolds Thinks That The County Will Not Suffer Any Loss on Account of Forgery.

The Union-Banner has had an interview with Judge L. H. Reynolds in regard to the Bond business of Chilton County and the Judge assures us that there is no chance of the county losing anything on the bonds that have been forged against the county.

Chilton County has sold $178000,-00 worth of her bonds—$123,000.00 to Steiner in Birmingham and the remainder to J. C. Mayer of Cincinnati. The contract of the county provides for the payment of the interest on hese bonds o the National Park Bank of New York. The interest on these bonds at the National and accepted by them. They in turn pay the interest coupons. So if any of the forged coupons have been paid the liability will fall on the bank and not on the county. Chilton county will not have to pay anything on the fraudulent papers.

MAN WHO FORGED BONDS READY TO PAY PENALTY

Man Who Forged Chilton County Bonds is Ready to Pay—With Magazines, Chewing Gum and Prayer Book, He is Happy.

Millard Hawthorne Cutter, LaSalle Street Broker of Chicago, admits he forged road and bridge bonds of Chilton county in the amount of $221,-000, and says he is ready to pay the penalty of his crimes, according to a Newspaper Enterprise Association special to The Ledger. Cutter declares he is happy for the first time in four years, asserting his forging career began four years ago.

Cutter is alleged to have forged $221,000 of bonds of Chilton county, and to have disposed of them. The forgery was one of the cleverest that ever came to the attention of Judge L. H. Reynolds, of Chilton county, that official declares.

The N. E. A. story relating to the case tells how Cutter was caught, and reads as follows:

Broker is Happy.

CHICAGO, Jan 20.—(Special.)—Four years of continued, methodical forgery, and then the knowledge that he is happy for the first time in years. That is the record of Millard Hawthorne Cutter, LaSalle Street Broker and confessed forger, who has been turned over to the grand jury, charged with bond forgeries aggregating more than $600,000.

Cutter, who is 40 years old and married, began his forgery career 4 years ago, according to his own statements. His methods lay in purchasing a small issue of village bonds and taking charge of the printing. If he purchased an issue of $10,000 he would have $20,000 or $25,000 printed, send the $10,000 back for the bona fide signatures and forge the remaining signatures himself.

Then he would take the forged bonds along with a few good ones and put them up as collateral for loans. He claims that he has never sold any of these forged bonds outright.

For four years he kept track of the forged collateral bonds, always meeting payments on the coupons himself. It was when he lost track of a few coupons that things began to go wrong for him.

"I wouldn't trade places with a king tonight," Cutter is reported to have told the officers arresting him. "I am happy for the first time in more than four years. I have stopped lying to myself. Yesterday I was worth a million; tonight I have my clothes, two magazines, two packages of chewing gum and a prayer-book. I am content. I am ready 'to pay' for what I've done."—Birmingham Ledger.

WILL LEAVE CLANTON

B. E. Jones, a prominent lumber manufacturer of Clanton, Alabama, and his wife were in Montgomery yesterday. Mr. Jones says he intends closing out his lumber plants in Chilton county in a few months and that he intends to move with his family to Montgomery where he will live in the future.—Montgomery Advertiser.

LETTER FROM MARSHALL SIDNEY PLIER IN FRANCE

St. Dizier, France, Nov. 24, 1918.
Dear Mother:

I will write you a few lines to let you know that we are well except colds. We are continually hiking south now. Been moving since the war ended and have quite a little distance to go yet.

Mother, I can tell you anything you wish me to since this mighty struggle is over. First, I will tell you where we were. We landed in Liverpool August 12th, crossed the English Channel August 18th, then rode and walked all the way across France, missing Paris only about 4 miles. I took the influenza soon as we got to the front near the State of Alsace and did not go to the firing line. (Oct. 18) was in hospital 9 days—was sick 27 days. See this was not a bad place there, was not much fighting there. Then we moved on north slowly, resting 2 to 6 days at a stop. Finally we went in to the strongest line on the western front. I think we went in battle Nov. 9 at 8 a.m. and was under terrible fire for 8 hours, till Monday, November 11th, but was in danger all the time. Went out Monday a.m., but just as we reached the firing line the bugle sounded cease firing, and a move of calmness fell all over the world and there were many thousand happy hearts. We laid down our guns and the Germans and Americans had a jolly time talking and smoking and swapping souvenirs. We stayed two days right where we laid our rifles down, taking up dead and wounded, and burying German bodies that were killed in 1914. Then we started south and are still going. So you see the war is absolutely over now. So just forget it and think we are only on a pleasure trip.

Listen, I don't know when we will be home, but it won't be long. I don't think. May be on our way when you get this letter.

I sent you a cablegram. I guess it broke your heart till you read it—then, O joy.

Listen, my address is just the same. I kept the name of this town to let you know where I am.

I forgot to tell you where we were when the war ended. We were 7 miles southwest of Verdun and that is where the hardest and longest battle of the war was fought.

We will move out in the a.m. I don't know where we are going. Well, I will write more next time, so write to me. You don't have to worry any more now about the Germans killing us. So good bye. Lots of love and many good wishes till I get home.

Your happy boy,
MARSHALL S. PLIER.

MATILEA McCRAW

On the 10th inst., the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McCraw, bearing thence their baby daughter, sweet little Matilea, aged 2 years and 7 months.

On the evening of the 9th, the mother left the room for a few minutes, leaving the twin babies, Matilea and Emma Lou, playing happily together. In some way the clothing of Matilea caught fire and when summoned by her screams the mother reached her, the litle figure was enveloped in flames and her clothes almost burnt off. A doctor was hastily summoned but human skill could not save her. She lingered till the afternoon of the following day when she peacefully passed away.

To The Dyspeptic

Would you not like to feel that your stomach troubles are over, that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? Consider then the fact that Chamberlain's Tablets have cured others—why not you. There are many who have been restored to health by taking these tablets and can now eat any kind of food that they crave.

A SPLENDID NARRATIVE OF A SOLDIER'S EXPERIENCES IN GREAT BATTLE

The Besst Descriptive Letter We have had from a Soldier Who Fought in Great Battle.

Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Nov. 25,1918
Dear Papa:

Yesterday was the day agreed upon and set aside as the day to write "Dad's Letter," but as I was down in Verdun yesterday I couldn't write when most of the other fellows did.

As you see, we are in Dun, a little city on the Meuse about 33 kilometers north of Verdun. We entered this city about three days after its capture and things were still pretty much torn up with all the signs of pretty siff fighing.

But I suppose I should start my tale at the beginning rather than at the end. After we left St. Eloi last month, we went to La Gerche (I think that is the correct way to spell it) where is located a casual replacement camp. That is, the fellows discharged from the hospital are sent here, refitted and sent out to fill up the gaps in some other outfit. We rode part of the way on a work train across the very bridge we had built and marched the rest of the way. We did not find the camp at La Gerche very agreeable. We didn't get near enough to eat and the mud was bad. However, we did not remain long. After we received our gas masks and whatever equipment we were short of, we pulled out. We boarded a train—freight cars, of course, and pulled out. We left La Gerche on a Thursday night. We passed through Nevers, La Crensot, and Dijon and finally arrived at Issur-Tille on Saturday night. The French cars are much smaller than ours, and each car has the number of men it will accommodate painted on the outside, "Hommes 40, Chevaux 8" (Men 40, Horses 8). We had 32 in our car, and I don't see how we could have made room for more, for we couldn't all sleep at the same time as it was. We had no straw—we would simply lie down on the car floor and go to sleep while she bumped along. Some of us would sleep during the night and some during the day. We stayed in Is-sur-Tille until Saturday night (I sent home a bunch of post cards from here, did you receive them?) and then we pulled out. On Sunday afternoon we reached the rail head at Clermont-en-Argonne. Just as we pulled in, a squadron of German planes appeared and it looked as if they were going to bomb our train, but a whole flock of Americans appeared as if by magic and, they together with the anti-aircraft guns, chased 'em (the Germans) off.

We detrained and made camp for the night on the slope of a hill near the road leading to the front. Over to the north the flashes from the guns were plainly visible and the detonations reverberated among the hills like thunder. Along the road thousands of trucks and tens of thousands of troops passed all night.

At dawn, we broke camp, had breakfast of corned willey and bread-practically all we had for more than a week—and then marched forward. At noon, we stopped to rest and to eat a bite in some little shell torn village. My partner and I laid our packs on the steps of the church, one side of which was entirely gone, the roof being supported by the pillars. Through this village there passed about ten thousand trucks a day since its capture by the Americans. At night it had already been dark about two hours we came to a halt. We were all miserably tired. That pack had come to weigh a ton, and the ache in our shoulders had become a species of tortue. Our legs, too, were tired, for this is a hill country, and it is no joke to march all day with 65 pounds on your back.

Bill Ertman and I decided that it was too much trouble to build a pup tent, so, we made a sort of bed sack of our ponchos, and blankets and lay down for the night. Just as I was wiggling in, I heard a strange swishing sound. Whe-e-ez—BANG! My, but it was some explosion, but they were going over and exploding some distance beyond. I thought that they were after the ammunition dump some distance beyond, for every few minutes another one came. I was too tired to bother and after the third one, I went to sleep. I woke up about two a.m., when two came unusually close, but I went to sleep again almost immediately. At dawn, we were up, and we learned that the shells had fallen just behind us, almost at the edge of a field hospital which was on the same hill, and two had fallen a little further away. One of these made a direct hit on two Frenchman sleeping in a pup-tent. They found the head of one on the same hill and the legs of one (the part below the knee) on the nekt hill, and a few shreds of flesh on the surrounding bushes. This they gathered and put into one ammunition box and buried. Over beyond in the next valley, was a cavalry or wagon train camp. Twenty horses and one man were killed here. I don't know what further damage the shelling did elsewhere. At nine o'clock, we had the pleasure of seeing the Germans come over and burn one of our sausage baloons. We had witnessed a similar performance the day before. Another sausage was barely rescued, the observers, thinking the baloon doomed, descended in their parachutes, but our anti-aircraft drove off the enemy planes.

About the same time another ssuadron of enemy planes circled above us at about 10,000 feet altitude. We figured that they were out making observations of the effect of thier shell fire, and that we would be in for some more "strafing" a little later on.

As we supposed, it came at one p.m. A bunch of 'em fell right together on the field hospital. Some of the sick and wounded were terribly mangled and some of the staff also injured. Then the shelling shifted and a few came to our place and then they went beyond. Bill Ertman and I and some others decided to cross over the valley on the south and wait till the shelling was over. This we did, but we figured that we would get a little more that night, so we went back and got our blankets and took them across the valley and made a bed on the other hill. Many of the patients at the hospital had fled to this hill. The authorities decided to move the hospital further back to the rear and so nearly all night a search went on for the men in the hills. Some were not found till morning because no one dared make a light and it was inky black.

The guns, of course, were banging away all around but whenever anything unusual happened, I would wake up. I stuck my head from under the blankets. The anti-aircraft were sending up a terrific barrage. Seven immense searchlights were focused on one spot from which came the steady purr of half dozen planes away up. As we watched we observed some flashes rising from the ground—there were several, and almost immediately there followed as many violent detonations. They were dropping bombs. We waited awhile. They flew almost directly over us, passed on and then we saw four more flashes followed by explosions. After that the second of the motors became dimmer. The anti-aircraft guns were stilled and searchlights were turned out. We went to sleep again, after listening to the shells on the hill where our original camp was.

The next day we all set to work constructing our dug-outs. These we built in the valley, and into the slope of the hill. We only wanted holes a couple of feet deep and big enough to lie down in. That is all the Americans have used, because their advance has been too rapid to build anything elaborate. The idea of such a hole is that a shell must be a direct hit to harm the occupant of that hole. Over the hole we would stretch our pup tents or place a piece of tin or anything that would shelter us. Of course, if it should rain and the hole fill with water, as it often did, you were simply out of luck. Well, more shells came that day and again that night—a few gas shells also, but no one was gassed.

On the night of November 1st a new American push was started. It is said that artillery was never used as we used it that night. The guns were almost hub to hub. At about 1:30 a.m. it seemed as if all hell had broken loose. The whole sky was illuminated by the vivid and jagged flame stretching as far to the right and left as one could see. A captured German afterwards told us that we did not know what war is, but if we had been under that barrage we would have known. Another wanted to know if that 3-inch machine gun was an American invention.

We use the 75 m.m. gun for field artillery just the same as the French, but we fire them from three to four times as fast. The French fire more slowly because it hurts the gun—soon wears it out to treat it as the Americans do. The American's idea is—"To Hell wih the gun, when she wears out we'll get a new one." Our boys sure do know to handle those guns, too!

The artillery fire was so terrible that the infantry going over the top at 5 a.m. encountered practically no resistance.

In a day or two they crossed the Meuse. At Dun, the Germans held a bluff just opposite the river. A little to the south they held another hill. On these positions they had hundreds of machine guns. Here the Americans encountered stiffer resistance than at almost any place.

Before retreating across the Meuse the Germans destroyed all thebridges. It was, therefore, necessary to build new ones before the advance could go on. The 308th Enginers put over a pontoon bridge and it is said that they lost seventy men while doing the job. The Germans on the bluff kept spraying them with machine gun bullets. The town was pretty well shot up. Dead Germans and Americans covered the hills. All along the advance haversacks, belts, canteens, helmets—all kinds of equipment bestrewed the ground.

In Dun we took some old German barracks. They were considerably damaged by shell fire, but we figured they'd be better than sleeping in the mud. On Saturday night came the news that the German envoys had crossed the lines to arrange for an armistice. Sunday while ransacking the German positions, one of our fellows fohnd a piano. We brought it down and put it in one of our barracks. We also discovered a field of potatoes, cabbage, and turnips, not to mention a lot of hay which we are now using to sleep on.

Monday morning about nine o'clock our boys captured Stenay, just a little north of here. At eleven o'clock the armistice went into effect. That silence should reign where for four years the guns had boomed, was almost unbelievable.

Stenay was the Crown Prince's headquarters. There is a beautiful chateau there which he occupied.

Prisoners and refugees are returning by the thousands. Some whose homes are in Dun are moving into their wrecked homes and beginning to straighten things up. There is one family on the main street. Their house wasn't entirely smashed, so they have covered the windows with paper and now they call it home. The men are busy building beds and tables as there remained very little furniture in Dun.

Yesterday, some of my friends and I visited Verdun. Since the armistice was signed we actually have Sundays onie more. Traffic on the roads isn't once more. Traffic on the roads isn't tions generally are much improved. We now get better eats and we can have lights at night, whereas a match before might have brought down a barrage.

I would like to describe all I saw at Verdun, but I fear that would make my letter too long. Out side of the city, about 12 kilometers to the north, are miles and miles of trenches and barbed wire. Hardly a foot of the ground is unbroken by shells. Half a dozen villages have been reduced to powder and the saying "Not one stone left upon another," was nowhere better exemplified than here. All along the canal were large trees. Almost every one for miles has been shot down. Before this city more than a million lives were lost.

One thing, we are all thankful for, and that is, that it is all over now. We don't know how soon we'll be coming home, but we hope it won't be long.

Hope everything at home is getting on all right and that you are all well.

Lovingly your son,
CARL.

PROGRESSIVES OUTLINE PROGRAM FOR FUTURE IN THE NATIONAL CONGRESS

"Bull Moose" is Only Party in Congres that Has Definite Plan for Future.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The program of progressives in congress is rapidly taking shape. The progressives are the only group in congress who appear to have any sort of program.

Their possesion of well defined aims gives them a distinct advantage over democrats and "stand pat" republicans in the next congress, the progressives believe.

The essentials of their program are these:

1. Immediate and adequate liquidation by the government of its obligations to returning soldiers and sailors.

2. Prompt meeting of the unemployment problem, followed by a scientific handling of the question of employment as a permanent government policy.

3. Severance of America's intimate relations with European affairs as such at the earliest possible moment.

4. Inauguration as speedily as necessary care in legislation will permit of domestic policies designed to increase democracy in the United States.

Multitude of Questions

These four items cover a multitude of closely related questions, progressives say.

Borah, Hiram Johnson, Kenyon and Cummins are the leaders of the progressive group, which is much more active and more feared by standpatters than at any time since the bull mose revolt. They have formulated the program, it was pointed out, not as the result of political causes, but through common belief that it represents he best means of giving the American people the fullest benefits possible from the war and saving them as much as possible from its after evils.

On the first point the progressive idea is that the men who went overseas to give heir lives, if need be, in defense of liberty should receive maximum consideration from the nation they saved. Vocational training, jobs for all soldiers and sailors, rehabilitation of the truest degree of wounded are among planks in the progressive platform.

Kenyon Makes a Start.

On point two, Senator Kenyon has already made a start by proposing an unemployment conference of governors to devise emergency action. After the precent unemployment difficulty has been met, progressives favor preparedness to meet periodical unemployment by collecting data which will enable the federal employment service to place surplus labor where it is needed without delay.

Point three involves speedy return of American soldiers, both from the Franco-German field of operations, and from Russia and leaving to Europe her own policing, if any is needed. It also means candid breaking of any ties which may have grown up by reason of war-time association, and which seem likely to become permanent to the extent of entangling the United States in European affairs.

The fourth point covers governmental economy, revision of tax laws, industrial welfare legislation, wise regulation of immigration, encouragement of American industry and business, and everything possible to bring to the workers of America an era of contentment and prosperity.

LOCAL BOARD OUT OF JOB

Sheriff Harris says the Local Board is not doing much now. Frequently he is ordered to pack up all records of the Board and send them in to the War Department; and right away another order tells him to unpack them and add something or take something out. But Mr. Harris adds: "I am glad I don't have to send away any more of the boys."

CLANTON BOY SCOUTS

The Clanton troop of Boy Scouts are planning a campaign of activity that will be of much interest to the citizens of the town.

Work for the year has been outlined by Scout Master Rich, and the enthusiasm of the boys is at a high pitch for accomplishing the things proposed. Sheriff Harris, Dr. Gragg and W. M. Wyatt have been designated as troop committee to aid the movement in whatever way they can.

The first thing that the boys are going to de is organize and train for a brass band. Already a number of them have thier instruments, and right soon the practice work will begin under a competent instructor.

The Boy Scouts are going to work up Clanton this year. We hope all our citizens will stand by them and help and lend encouragement.

MR. HARRIS A CITIZEN

This week sees Mr. H. A. Harris again a plain private citizen as he was before he took the office of Sheriff four years ago. Before assuming the duties of the office Mr. Harris was a citizen of the highest repute. As an officer of the law he has done his duty well and made an official record that is unassailable. He has made friends by the hundreds. He takes up private life again much better fortified than when he left it, because of having touched many more people and shown them in every instance that he is in addition to being a good officer, a good man also.

During his term of office duties have fallen upon him that never fell upon a sheriff before, nor will probably ever occur again. The strain has been heavy but like the sturdy man he is sheriff Harris never flinched from his duty to his people and his country. He is congratulated on every hand by his behavior while executing the demands of the law.

LETTERS FROM SOLDIERS

The Union-Banner is glad to publish letters from soldiers to their parents and friends at home, but we have not got time and space to give to letters that carry no news of public interest.

If you get a letter from your boy telling you that he is all right and in good health and anxious to get back home, that letter is of course all right to you, but what is it worth to the public?

We are totally swamped every week with soldier letters for publication and nine-tenths of them contain no more information than that the boy is well and all right and wanting to come home.

A newspaper must publish news that is of interest to all the people. We shall use our judgment on these soldier letters and those which we do not think of general interest will have to be left out and the space given to other matter.

ORDER NITRATE THIS WEEK

Mr. J. N. Dennis informs the Union-Banner that the farmers of this vicinity will be given the balance of this week to place their orders for nitrate of soda. Orders will be taken at Mr. Dennis's office in the Court House.

Orders for over $4000.00 worth have already been put on the books to be shipped to Clanton and the money paid for same.

Mr. R. N. Wilkins, of Billingsley, was in Clanton Tuesday hustling around attending to business.

NEW REGIME IN GERMANY

Many Republics to Form New Nation—Universal Suffrage and Votes for the Women.

The upheaval of things in Germany is being watched by anxious eyes all over the world. The formation and establishment of the government that is to be in the conquered empire in the future is of world-wide interest. The following dispatch from Switzerland, taken from the Montgomery Advertiser is enlightening upon the subject of Germany's future:

BASLE, SWITZ., Jan. 21.—The draft of the proposed new constitution for Germany, recently prepared, provides that all Germans shall have the same rights before the law and that all privileges and advantages of birth, social condition or creed shall be abolished, according to Berlin advices received here. The free exercise of religious practice is guaranteed, within the limits of morality and public order, and no one shall be compelled to take part in any religious acts of ceremony or to make known his religious convictions. It is provided the authorities shall have no right to ask questions on this subject.

Scientific instruction, the measure provides, shall be free and accesible to all Germans, according to their capacities. It is proposed that the present distribution of landed property shall be modified by a comprehensive process, with a view to the re-population of the country districts. Colonization will be fostered in districts where there has not been as yet a reasonable fusion of the great, medium-sized and small properities.

In its main features, the proposed constitution, which has been drafted under government auspices, provides for a reichstag composed of two chambers, one to be a popular chamber and the other chosen by the states. The people's chamber shall be composed of deputies of the United German people, elected by secret, direct and universal ballot. All men and women more than twenty years of age, may vote. The lower chamber will be chosen on the principle of proportionate representation.

The upper chamber shall be composed of representatives of the various states.

The duration of the legislative mandate of both chambers would be three years.

The drafters of the bill evidently had in mind a highly centralized government, with full control over most of the activities upon which the people are dependent. It characterizes as "imperial matter" the following:

"Foreign relations, the defense of the empire (?); the administration of the banks and exchanges; currency and weights and measures; management of railway and river transportation and of all waterways common to the severl German states; control of the postal and telegraph service and of motor traffic and aviation; questions of nationality, freedom of domicile in a state and passports; the status of foreigners; emigration and immigration; civil and criminal law and judicial procedure; labor legislation; maritime navigation; legislation bearing on landed companies and on the press, on public companies and on public meetings, church and schools.

SHERIFF JOHN L. GORE

Monday of this week Deputy Sheriff John L. Gore was sworn in to be the Sheriff of Chilton county for the next four years.

He promises to make us a good official, and his former experience as Deputy Sheriff qualifies him to prove his claim.

As is quite often the case, Mr. Gore takes charge of the office in the waning shadow of a political campaign, wherein minor differences of opinion among the people were aroused on questions involved in the execution of the office. Nt every one vted for Mr. Gore, it is true; but now those differences are of the past.

Sheriff Gore takes up the office pledged to make us an official worthy of the good standing of our county. Then it becomes the duty of every citizen of the county to co-operate with him and help to uphold the good reputation of Chilton county for peacefulness and respect of law and order.

JONES HARDWARE CO. TAKES PLACE OF THE CLANTON HARDWARE

C. Fenn Jones Remains as Owner and Manager of the Business in Clanton.

A Brief History.

About sixteen years ago saw the beginning of the first exclusive hardware business in Chilton county. Messrs. C. F. Jones and W. D. Spigener opened up the Spigener and Jones Hardware Store in Clanton which contained for several years with Mr. Jones as the manager.

Some 8 or 10 years after the first firm started, the busines was combined with interests of the Gamble Hardware Co. operating stores at Clanton, Wetumpka and Alexander City. Again Mr. Jones ocupied the position of Manager of the Clanton store and under his guiding hand, the business grew and reached out to the corners of Chilton county.

After a few years then the Clanton Hardware Co. was formed by Messrs. J. D. Martin and C. F. Jones, who took over the Gamble interest, and up to a few weeks ago the business was successfully operated by these two men with Mr. Jones again acting in the important capacity of President and General Manager.

Now a few weeks ago Mr. Jones bought the interest of Mr. Martin in what was the Clanton Hardware Co. He has changed the name of the concern to the Jones Hardware Co., and dissolved the corporation. In the future he will conduct an individual business under the name of the Jones Hardware Co.

C. Fenn Jones needs no introduction to the people of the county. He has been in the business here a long time. When you speak of "Hardware Jones" everybody knows that you are talking about C. Fenn. His splendid record for fair and square business with the people has made him a fixture in the minds of the people whom his store has served.

As the pioneer in the hardware busines in Chilton county is starting out now as the individual owner of his own store, he no doubt feels that he is going to be better prepared to give his friends the kind of business they want, and we predict for him a continuance of the good will of the many people who have become so accustomed to associating, "Hardware Jones" with their Hardware needs.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

We are very sorry to lose Dr. and Mrs. Amzi Gowan from our church membership. They have moved to Brewton, Ala., where he has bought a retiring dentist's office. The Lord's blessing go with them.

* * *

Mrs. W. I. Mullins is recovering from an attack of influenza. The town seems to be pretty well cleared now of the disease, but there are country neighbors where it is still in epidemic form.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. Earl Gowan wish to introduce a young lady lately come to their home to Clanton society. She arrived last Saturday and her name is Ruth like her mother's.

* * *

Mrs. Eliza Jones, the mother of several well known Clanton people, has been ill since Christmas. Last week she passed through several severe crises from heart failure, but is better now and growing stronger.

* * *

A committee of strong Clanton business men now has charge of our building project, authorized by the church in conference last Sunday. It is probable that a preliminary report will be presented next Sunday morning of the progress they are making. And periodically thereafter. Their slogan is, "We will hold Thanksgiving service in the new church house next fall." The house is expected to be a credit to the congregation and to the city.

* * *

On next Sunday the pastor's subjects will be, at 11 a.m., "The Light that reveals more than a picture show." At 7 p.m., Christian Communion.

Lame back may come from overwork, cold settled in the muscles of the back or from disease. In the two former cases the right remedy is BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. It should be rubbed in thoroughly over the affected part, the relief will be prompt and satisfactory. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

MILK IN WINTER

Why do your cows give less milk in winter than they do in summer? Just because nature does not supply them with grasses and green food. But we have come to the assistance of Dame Nature with B. A. DEPUTY SHERIFF W. H. GILLESPIE

During the term of Sheriff Harris just closed, his chief deputy has been Mr. Walter H. Gillespie, whose picture is shown above.

The record of this deputy has been one of partirular note, especially in the work of capturing wild cat stills and chasing the operators from their nefarious practices.

No other officer in the county has ever made such a record in the capture of stills as has Mr. Gillespie. He has been a fearless officer in the enforcement of the law regarding prohibition of the liquor traffic and has brought in the scalps of many of them. He has to his credit the capturing of several of the old heads in the game.

As a result of his tireless efforts, the wild cats are afraid of him.

FROM AN OVERSEAS BOY

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words as I haven't time to write much nor haven't much to write.

I want to say a few words in regard to the American Red Cross. It can't be praised too much, speaking for myself, and I think I can speak the sentiment of all the troops, especially those who have been to France. They have been the mother of the U. S. troops. They are always ready to give the boys cigarettes, matches, candy, ice cream, or something in the line. Of course, they didn't do as much in France as they do back in America for the reason that they haven't the force in France that they have here, but they did extra work here. Cigarettes and tobacco is not very plentiful in France. Very little except what the Americans took over there, and the Red Cross did their part in preparing them for the boys, and they always are giving them away and not selling them at all.

Well, as I said in the beginning, I didn't have much to write, I will close for this time, giving my thanks and best wishes to the American Red Cross—and The Union-Banner, of course.

Respectfully yours,
THOS. M. POWELL.

Reasons!

Why you should use Cardui, the woman's tonic, for your troubles, have been shown in thousands of letters from actual users of this medicine, who speak from personal experience. If the results obtained by other women for so many years have been so uniformly good, why not give Cardui a trial?

After taking about two bottles I began going around and when I took three bottles I could do all my work." E-80

A MATRIMONIAL MIX-UP

Last year I did not want to embarrass my best girl to make her propose to me, so I asked her to be my wife. She said: "I would rather be excused," and I, like an idiot, excused her. But I soon got even with her, as I married the girl's mother and then my father married the girl.

Now, I don't know who I am. When I married the girl's mother the girl became my daughter and when my father married my daughter she was my mother. If my father is my son, and my daughter is my mother, who in the thunder am I?

My mother's mother, who is my wife, must be my grandmother and I being my grandmother's husband must be my own grandfather.—Ex.

NORTH ALABAMA PEANUTS BRING HIGH PRICE

Auburn, Ala., January 21.—J. J. Watson, Chief of the Marketing Division of the Extension Service, has just returned from north Alabama, where with the county agents he has been assisting the farmers in marketing their peanuts and hogs. He reported much progress toward better marketing of farm products in these counties.

In Blount, the farmers grow mainly the improved white spanish which they are now selling in limited amount for 8 cents per pound for the local roasting trade. County agent Sizemore plans to have nothing but unmixed seed planted this year so that they may be able to meet the demands of the fancy roasting trade next year.

In Lauderdale, most of the peanuts have been grazed by hogs with gratifying results. County agent Hollingsworth last year purchased a large number of registered Durocs for the farmers of that county, and now both hogs and peanuts are increasing together. A carload of lard hogs recently shipped from that county to Louisville was sold for 16 cents per pound for the lot.

In Franklin, the county agent, J. D. Wood, has several carloads of hogs which he expects to ship to St. Louis at an early date. Mr. J. W. Sullivan, of Hodges, pioneer peanut grower of Franklin county, expects to install a recleaning machine to prepare his peanuts for the fancy roasting trade. He is now selling all he can furnish of hand picked improved spanish at 8 cents per pound.

In Marion, the Sunny Home Better Farming Association, organized by county agent, C. W. Frederick, has about 10,000 bushels of unmixed white spanish peanuts which they are preparing to reclean, for which they will receive 6½ to 7 cents per pound. This community of progressive farmers planted a uniform variety of seed, and own and operate their own peanut picker with excellent results.

Dr. Watson states that the confectionery trade of the Birmingham distric uses a large amount of peanuts and he made this trip in company with district farm demonstration agent, C. M. Mauldin, of Birmingham, for the purpose of helping the county agents organize their farmers to supply this demand.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY HONORED FOR BRAVERY

Brooklyn Man Is Awarded Croix de Guerre by Commander of Polish Forces

Paris, Dec. 11.—"For heroic and untiring work for the soldiers while under fire," Stanley Modra, of 2123 Caton avenue, Brooklyn, a Y. M. C. A. secretary, has just received the Croix de Guerre from General Haller, commander-in-chief of the Polish army, and has been mentioned in the official citations. He is the third Y. M. C. A. man thus honored for conspicuous bravery.

Modra has been with the Polish forces continuously since his arrival in France five months ago, and has given many notable exhibitions of gallantry and fidelity to duty. During the last days of the hostilities he served with the First division in the Vosges, in charge of a hut in a narrow valley between the first and second line trenches. From this hut he made trip after trip, carrying supplies to the men at the most advanced posts, and was under fire repeatedly.

When the fighting was at its heaviest Modra and the men associated with him in Y work continued their ministrations to the soldiers, serving cocoa, cakes, when the men were in position to receive them, and cigarettes. This service contributed much to the high morale of the troops and won not only the praise of the officers but the lasting gratitude of the men.

SWEET CHOCOLATE CARRIED UNDER FIRE

Chocolate Furnished by Y. M. C. A. Arrives Just When It Is Needed

With the American Armies in France, Jan. ...—Praising the men of Company D, 109th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division, Howard R. Keister, a Y. M. C. A. man of Dunnellon, Fla., tells how, when without food, they sent the sweet chocolate which he secured for them to an isolated platoon, which was under severe fire, across the Vesle river at Fismes.

It was during the heavy fighting eastward from Chateau Thierry, that the men of the 109th Machine Gun Battalion got ahead of their supplies, and the sweet chocolate which the Y. M. C. A. managed to get to them, was specially welcome.

The battalion reached the Vesle river on its advance. There the German line held. Men were thrown across the river by various units to keep in contact with the enemy. There was terrific fighting all along the line. A platoon of Company D was hurried over to help in holding the narrow strip that had been taken at great cost by the American soldiers. It was surrounded on three sides by the Boche, who tried every means in his power to dislodge them,—gas, shells, machine gun fire and snipers. It was a difficult matter to get food over to them for men with supplies had to cross the river which was exposed and under heavy fire.

FIGHTING PARSON GETS WAR CROSS

John Clifford Wearing Y. M. C. A. Uniform, Proves Himself Real Hero

New York, Jan. ...—There have many war heroes, but there is certainly no more conspicuously heroic figure than John H. Clifford, Baptist minister in time of peace, but real fighter in time of war, who has been awarded the Croix de Guerre for extraordinary heroism in action.

John Clifford, as a Y. M. C. A. worker, braved the red wrath of war. He has been in the firing zone as much as the hardiest infantryman and was decorated for a most unusual exploit. He was one of three men who braved incessant enemy shell fire while rescuing Col. Albertus W. Catlin, commanding officer of the Sixth regiment of Marines. The trio carried the colonel to safety on a stretcher.

Mr. Clifford went over the top many times and came near being killed on several occasions. He is fifty-one years old and was born at Oxford, England, and has preached the gospel in many parts of the world. When given a chance to serve with the Y. M. C. A. in France, he knew that it was a good thing, and he jumped at it.

KILBY'S FIRST DAY WAS A BUSY ONE

Many Callers Visit New Chief Executive of Alabama on His First Day in office

Thomas E. Kilby's first day as governor kept him busy until night Tuesday receiving scores of visitors, many of whom called to greet him while quite a few were embryonic aspirants for positions in the state government which will be filled by appointment by the new executive. Governor Kilby received all visitors cordially and happily, and expedition was used by the governor's secretaries in according practically everyone who called an audience with the executive.

W. A. Darden, private secretary of Governor Kilby, said that owing to the fact that His Honor had just assumed his duties, litle events in the way of news happened Tuesday, but it was intimated that on Wednesday perhaps the governor may have something to say regarding appointments, in addition to those he has already announced.

Among the men heretofore slated for appointments, under the new governor are: C. B. Rogers of Birmingham as president of the convict board, Len F. Greer of Calhoun county as associate inspector. The governor, it was said has not reached a decision regarding the physician inspector of the board. He also was said to have announced his intention to appoint Major Martley L. Moon, of Birmingham, as adjutant general to succeed Major Virgin V. Evans. The later is just back from Washington and had a brief conference Tuesday afternoon with Governor Kilby.—Montgomery Advtriser.

No Great Act of Heroism Required

If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. FARM PROSPERITY IN GRAVE DANGER

Hastings Declares Greater Food Production Essential To The Maintenance Of Agricultural Prosperity

Atlanta, Ga.—(Special.)—That there is a large element of danger for Southern farm prosperity in the present situation, is the firm belief of H. G. Hastings, President of both the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce and the Southeastern Fair Association.

Mr. Hastings repeated substantially his statement of a year ago when he said: "Unthinking people are apt to attribute the present measure of farm prosperity in the South to the high price of cotton rather than to its real cause.

"Just as soon as peace began to appear probable last fall, there was a distinct let-up in the planting of wheat, oats and other small grains. One Georgia cotton farmer said to me, 'If we are going to have peace, we are not going to plant any wheat in my neighborhood.'

"Of course the high price of cotton has helped, but if it had not been for the increased supply of bread, meat, vegetables, grain and forage made on the farms, there would have been little prosperity for any one but the supply merchant. Cotton was and is relatively lower in price than foodstuffs, and will continue to be for years to come.

"An extra two or three million bales in the 1919 cotton crop will smash present attractive prices, while the world-wide demand for bread and meat and the disorganization of food production in Europe incident to the war, means high food prices everywhere for years to come.

"High food prices are a certainty and low cotton prices are an equal certainty if the food and grain acres of 1916, 1917 and 1918 are thrown back into cotton in 1919. Herein lies the danger to our present farm prosperity. If we go back to our old before-the-war system of growing all cotton and buying all food and grain, we will get another jolt like 1914 with reasonable certainty.

"Present Southern farm prosperity can be maintained in one way only. Produce on home acres, so far as possible, every pound of food, vegetables, grain, hay and forage needed by family and livestock, then put every other available acre in cotton or other cash crop. This method means cash crops made with little or no debt—the crop owned by the producer at the end of the season instead of 'owed' to the supply merchant.

"Food and grain production sufficient for home needs, insures continued farm prosperity. Dropping back to the old way means debt like a millstone around the farmer's neck."

LOCAL NEWS OF JEMISON AND THE ADJACENT COMMUNITY

This page will be filled every week with things of interest to People who live in Jemison.

Every week hereafter you will find this page of The Union-Banner devoted to the town of Jemison and the things that happen around there.

The merchants of Jemison will advertise their business on this page, and it will be made a page of value to the people of Jemison and community.

We feel that Jemison deserves this space and therefore have made arrangements to give it to them. A correspondent has been secured to furnish us with the local news every week and it will appear on this page.

It is our hope that we may have the co-operation of the people of the town and community in our effort to give them this liberal recognition in the paper. We can't do it unless the people will support us. If the citizens of the town will read the paper and the business men will let us have their advertisements then we can carry our plans to completion.

The local news from our correspondent did not reach us this week, but by next week it will be all lined up and we will tell all the things that are happening around the town. The news will be gathered in Jemison by the pupils and teachers of the public school. Under the supervision of Prof. Bone it will be edited and sent to The Union-Banner for publication.

If you know an item of news that is interesting make a note of it and give it to some school boy or girl and tell him or her to give it to Prof. Bone. In this way we can cover all the news of the town and make you a page which you will be proud of. Now let us see what can be done.

MRS. BARNEY LITTLEFIELD DIED IN BIRMINGHAM INFIRMARY ON LAST SUNDAY

The wife of Mr. Barney Littlefield of Union Grove died in a Birmingham infirmary last Sunday. She had been sick with the flu and death resulted out of complications of that ailment. The remains were brought back to Jemison and carried to the family home. Burial was made in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill.

TWO NEW FAMILIES RESIDENTS OF JEMISON

The population of Jemison has been increased lately by the addition of two families of note. Mr. W. H. Conway has removed from Union Grove to Jemison and Rev. Job Reynolds has moved to Jemison from Dry Valley.

Mr. Conway is County Demonstration Agent, and Mr. Reynolds is the distinguished Confederate veteran, father of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds.

W. E. Green, of Anniston, was in Jemison a few days ago visiting his mother, Mrs. Murrah.

HEFLIN ASKS FEDERAL PROBE NEW YORK COTTON EXCHANGE

Alabama Congressman Says Unjust Speculation Is Robbing the Whole South.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Representative Heflin, of Alabama, announced in the House today he had asked the department of justice to investigate the New York Cotton Exchange, which he charged had violated the cotton futures act "in driving down" the price of cotton from 37 to 24 cents a pohnd.

"The South has been robbed of millions of dollars by this unjust speculation," Mr. Heflin declared. "At a time when the world demand for cotton is greater than ever before, the price has been forced down and down. No one is being benefitted, but the gamblers themselves. The spinners cannot obtain cotton at the present prices and the growers refuse to sell."

Mr. Heflin said governors of southern states had appealed to planters to hold their cotton until the price goes back to thirty cents a pound, and that a the close of the present session of Congress representatives from the South expect to go through their states to urge that cotton acreage be decreased.

"The demand for cotton next year will be just as great as it is at present," he stated, "but so long as the price is arbitrarily controlled by an exchange which defeats the laws of supply and demand, there is no reason why the crops should not be decreased."

Mr. Heflin said the New York Exchanpe should be abolished and its activities taken over by the New Orleans Exchange, or some other exchange located in the cotton belt.

AMERICA WILL BE PREPARED FOR ANY ATTACK IN FUTURE

Three Million Rifles, Two Billion Rounds of Ammunition and Artillery Held on Hand.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Major General C. C. Williams, chief of ordinance, described to the house military committee today some of the steps taken by his department to prevent the country from going back to the state it was in before the war. Suficient arms and ammunition will be kept, he said, for an army large enough to guard the country against any possible invasion.

"The ordinance department now has 3,700,000 rifles, 2,000,000,000 rounds of ammunition and enough artillery ammunition to supply 48 divisions for six months," General Williams said.

Other Material Held.

"Similarly large quantities of other equipment is being held. The department plans to keep this material and in addition machinery for making it which has been manufactured during the war."

General Williams asked for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for bringing back from France thousands of tons of ammunition of all kinds.

Arsenals the government had before the war will be kept in operation, General Williams said, and in addition several of the new war plants will be taken over and kept in such condition that they could be put in operation at short notice.

General Williams asked for $500,000 to carry on experiments with tanks which, he said, had proved to be one of the most effective instruments of warfare.

General Williams said experiments with body armor had not been very successful. With the exception of the helmet, all armor was found to be practically useless.

Much T. N. T. on Hand

General Wiliams said the department had abandoned the idea of throwing into the ocean, or otherwise destroying great supplies of T. N. T. and other high explosives. He explained that 80,000 pounds of T. N. T. and 100,000,000 pounds of powder were on hand, in addition to immense quantities of other explosives. The powder will be sold or kept for use of the war department. A portion of the T. N. T. will be sold to the agricultural department, will be sold to the trade, and the remainder will be kept in storage in well guarded warhouses with unusual protections against fire.

LAWMAKERS LIKELY TO SPEED THINGS BEFORE LONG RECESS

Members of the legislature who went to their home when the house and senate recessed from Friday evening to Tuesday at 2 p.m. began arin considerable numbers and most of in consideragle numbers and most of them seemed to be in favor of speeding up adjournment for the long recess.

Recess for Second Thoughts.

As the chief reason for the splitting of the session is to prevent the passage of laws that have not been given sufficient thought and study, it is argued by many of the statesmen that the more important bills now before the legislative bodies, other than those specially requiring immediate action, should be deferred until the latter part of the session and that they should be printed and furnished the members for study.

It is understood to be the purpose of legislative leaders that this course be adopted towards all measures looking to important changes in the constitution. Governor Kilby is said by his friends to be in favor of holding a constitutional convention at some time in the early years of his administration, after conditions brought about by the war shall have become more settled than at present.

Kilby Says Nothing About Constitutional Convention.

Governor Kilby did not refer to the consitutional convention plan in his message to the legislature, nor would he give out any statement on the subject when approached by the Advertiser reporter on the subject Tuesday morning, but those who are close to the executive in a personal and political way express the opinion that he will send in a special message after the long recess urging that a bill providing for a constitutional convention be passed before final adjournment.

Ze Bone-Dry, It ees "Feeney."

Legislation included in the program outlined by Governor Kilby and recommended by him for action during the session includes legislation for the enforcement of prohibition laws. Those who have read the bill known as House Bill No. 7, or the Weakley Bone Dry bill have reached the conclusion that this part of the schedule has been carried out to some extent. The confiscatory clauses are so severe that men caught with whiskey in his auto loses his machine and a man caught with prohibited liquors in his hip pocket loses his pants. Montgomery lawyers have advised their clients to go after liquor supplies on foot. No vehicle used for the purpose is safe from seizure and sale. Representatives of the Anti-Saloon League say that the law is tight enough to suit them, and that phase of the legislative program is "Feeney!"

Budget Commission Bill.

The next measure recommended by the governor for immediate action is the Budget Commission bill introduced by Senator Acker, which has been printed for the information of the members and is expected to go on the calendar on the next legislative day with a favorable report from the Judiciary Committee to which it was referred.

Edùcational Commission.

Bills for the creation of a commission to conduct an investigation of the educational system have passed both houses. Though it will be neccessary for one of these bills to again run the gaunlet in either the house or the senate, this measure may be said to have been fairly disposed of, as it is not probable that such a contest when once settled will be renewed.

There is no opposition to the governor's plan for a recess committee or commision for the improvement of the Judicial system and at least one measure, that by Mr. Orr of Marshall already has been introduced for this purpose, making the body a legislative committee.

Vocational Education.

Dr. Manasco of Walker county was given the honor of introducing the bill providing legislation necessary for the state to get full benefit of Federal aid for vocational education and for extension work in agriculture and home economics. This came to the gentleman from Walker by reason of the advanced stand his county has taken as a pioneer in the field of vocational education. The same bill was introduced in the Senate Friday by Senator Archie Carmichael, chairman of the education committee in that body and an early advocate of that education which includes the training of the hands as well as the brain. No opposition is looked for in this branch of the governor's program.

But governor Kilby's proposal that a board of control and eronomy be appointed, and the bill by Senator Acker to put this idea into the concrete form of law, will be opposed by forces now appearing at the Capitol. —Montgomery Advertiser.

NITRATE OF SODA BOUGHT BY CHILTON FARMERS

Mr. J. N. Dennis furnishes us with the following figures on the purchase of nitrate of soda by the farmers of Chilton county:

At Clanton 189 farmers made application for shipments of nitrate, totalling 126.9 tons.

At Jemison 65 farmers entered applications making a total of 47.5 tons to be shipped there.

At Verbena 46 farmers bought nitrate, making a total of 72.9 tons to be shipped to that point.

In the whole county 302 farmers bought the nitrate, which is an aggregate amount of 246 tons.

Mr. Dennis thinks that considering the value of the nitrate more farmers should use it than those who bought. He says that nitrate of soda is 30 per cent cheaper to the farmers than any other form of nitrogen he can buy.

MT. NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo singing society held its regular meeting at Mt. Nebo church last fourth Sunday, with an extra full class and quite a number of visitors, all of which we were very proud to see.

We were especially glad to have with us boys that had to leave and go to training camps a few months ago. We had an interesting short talk by Mr. Bob Roper, which was enjoyed by all.

The singing was opened in regular order with song and prayer by the Chairman, Mr. S. A. Henley, who directed a short lesson while the program committee arranged the program.

The directors for the afternoon were Mesrs. Eugene Williams, Sam Culp, William Cox, Blanco Durbin, Luther Williams, Jim Dunlap, F. I. Popwell and C. C. Parrish, 10 minutes each.

The Society will meet again next second Sunday at 2 o'clock. We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

NEGRO ARRESTED SUNDAY

Last Sunday morning a negro boy was arrested on the streets of Clanton by Sheriff Gore, on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that the youth changed the figures on a three dollar check and made it read ten dollars.

After he had been placed in jail the Sheriff searched him and found a pistol on him. This will make a second charge of carrying a concealed weapon for him to answer to in the courts.

ROOSEVELT AS HE MOURNED FOR HIS SON TYPICAL OF MILLIONS

Manufacturers' Record.

The intensely human side of Colonel Roosevelt's life is indicated in a letter received by the editor of the Manufacturers Record from a friend, who, writing about Colonel Roosevelt's death, said:

"Did you read where the Colonel had been found lately in the stable with Quentin's pony, which is twenty years old? It is the pony that climbed to the second story of the White House when Quentin was a child. The Colonel was found shortly after he heard of the death of his boy in France with his arms around the pony's neck, crying."

In this little story is seen a touch of one side of Colonel Roosevelt's life of which the public rarely heard much. Here is the iron-nerved fighter melted into the tenderhearted father as around the neck of Quentin's boyhood pony he throws his arms and weeps in silence that in the great call of civilization his boy had had to make the supreme sacrifice.

As our hearts as melted at the thought of Roosevelt weeping for his boy, let us remember that millions and millions of fathers and mothers, wives and others have had to weep because their loved ones had had to suffer and die because of the accursed work of Germany which for half a century planned wholesale murder that it might loot and lust to its heart's content.

Roosevelt, as he threw his arms around the neck of Quentin's pony and wept for his boy, typified the mighty woe of hundreds of millions who for four years lived in the agony of fear and of tens of milions whose dear ones never came back and who unto the grave will carry the burden of their sorrow.

Perhaps even Roosevelt's heart broke beneath the strain as millions of other hearts have broken.

PEOPLE WANT ALA. POWER CO.

The people of Clanton want the Alabama Power Co. to connect Clanton on to the big electric plant and give us some "juice". Their wishes in this matter have been expressed and placed in the form of a petition which has been or will be placed before the officials of the Power company. The petition contains the name of practically every business house in Clanton, together with a long list of citizens.

The service of the local plant has been falling far below the needs and demands of the town, which incapacity has been caused by the scarcity of fuel.

Everybody realizes that it is nonsense to try to manufacture our electric current here with a steam plant, having to deal with all the handicaps of fuel shortage, when only twelve miles from our town stands the biggest electric making plant in the state with both fuel and electricity to waste.

Clanton needs the current from Lock 12. We hope our petition will bring us some results quickly.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY

Arnie Davenport and Dewey Lewis were arrested in Jemison on Tuesday by Sheriff Gore. They are charged with stealing some overcoats. Both were carried to Clanton and placed in jail.

A FARMER HANDS CLANTON SOME VERY WISE TIPS

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 20, 1919.
Editor The Union-Banner:

Since the first session of that get-together club was pulled off with so much satisfaction, and may I say relief to every reader of the daily papers, may I suggest some things Clanton folks should do? Now, don't say I am knocking; first, keep that get-together Club of Clanton business men organized all the time. There is mighty few towns anywhere the size of Clanton without a wagon yard. A safe dry place for the country people to put their teams over night. Of course, it could not be used in day time because so many people go to town who live close till it would be crowded out. This writer has in mind a town in North Alabama, where farmers go from 4 or 5 counties to sell their produce and buy goods, more on account of a good place to stay all night at free of charge than any other reason. For the business men of Clanton to chip in and build a wagon yard would be a better advertisement for them than all the newspaper space.

If a farmer drives his team to town there ought to be a cement watering trough free for everybody at all times. You have city water already; just make the trough and connect at small cost.

How many stores in the town have a place in the building market (private, for ladies only) where the country women can go when they go to town shopping? Clanton is based entirely on the farmers of Chilton county; without them the grass would grow in the streets.

These are some of the things that the get-together club should consider.

FAIRVIEW FARMER.

SOME OF CLANTON'S NEEDS

A farmer who makes Clanton his market has ventured to tell the business men of the town a thing or two that Clanton needs to do. And the Editor of The Union-Banner says amen to his suggestions.

Clanton business men should feel ashamed of themselves for the farmers to have to be telling them what they ought to do and there is no way of getting even with the farmers on the proposition but to do what is suggested. There is no other way to answer the argument. For we can see very easily that the farmers statements about what Clanton ought to do are right.

Justice to the farmers who trade in Clanton demands that a hitching ground be provided for their stock. And the busines men are the ones whose duty it is to provide it. We ought to have a place where a farmer can put up his team and spend the night if he needs to stay here for any reason, and the other conveniences which this farmer mentions are much needed and there is no reason in the world why the business men of Clanton should not provide them.

All these things were at one time in the past under the consideration of Clanton's Civic League, but the war came along and our attention was turned to other worthy things.

Now the war is over and we can get back to our own welfare. Clanton must give the farmers these things that we owe them. The Union-Banner is going to make a fight for them and we want to have the help of other Clanton business men.

OBITUARIES.

When you write obituaries or resolutions for publication in The Union-Banner, count the words and enclose price, which is one cent a word, with the article if you want it published. This applies to all obituary notices or resolutions passed by Lodges or religious organizations.

Is there a merchant in Clanton who will read "Fairview Farmers" letter and say to himself: "Yes, that is right; we ought to do something like that for the farmers, but—?

If there is such a merchant or business man in Clanton we know he ought to be and would be ashamed to own it.

What he ought to do is to read what this farmer says, and then go across the street to his neighbor merchant and invite him to help in a movement to secure these things. As long as one fellow waits for the other fellow to start this thing, it will be always with us just as it has in the past.

The farmers will think that Clanton business men just want their dollars and don't give a kick for what becomes of them afterward.

Clanton merchants want the trade of the people in the country. They are prepared to sell them the goods and to treat them right so far as that goes. But how are we to show these farmers that we do appreciate their coming to our offices and stores to spend their money? We can tell them of it. Yes, but while we are telling them about it the farmer's horse and wagon are hitched out by the side of the street to a telephone pole in the rain. Then how does your story sound to that farmer? Well, he just smiply thinks that if you were very glad to see him, so many of us here together could fix him up a decent place to put his teams when he comes to town.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Jemison, Ala., Jan. 27, 1919.
Editor The Union-Banner:

We note in last weeks Union-Banner some proposed legislation for Chilton county, which from our viewpoint does not look very commendable.

Now, we are not in haste to condemn everything without inpestigation, so if this proposed legislation has redeeming qualities, let them be made known to the public; if not, let the people, regardless of party, enter their protest against it.

We regard our officials as good business men of sound judgment, willing to pay for whatever legal advice they may need.

LIVESTOCK EXCHANGE DOING GOOD WORK

By L. A. Niven, Agricultural Editor

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The Animal Husbandry Department of the Alabama Extension Service maintains at Auburn a Livestock Exchange, which is being made use of by a great many farmers in Alabama, but not nearly so many as should make use of it. The service is absolutely free for the asking, and those who have any kind of livestock for sale, or who wish to buy any kind of livestock should write to the Livestock Exchange, Auburn, Ala., and make their wants known. Those who wish to sell should send the following information: Number and kind of animals, purebred or grade, age, weight and name and address of owner; and those who wish to buy should give the same information with reference to their wants.

It should be kept in mind that the Livestock Exchange does not buy nor sell animals, but merely accumulates information as to who has livestock for sale and who wants to buy, and twice a month this is published and sent to a mailling list of 1700 people.

Even those who are not in the market and who have nothing for sale at this particular time can have their names listed to receive this publication every two weeks, provided they think they may be in the market for livestock or may have something to sell in the reasonably near future. This service is maintained for the benefit of the Alabama livestock men and all are urged to make use of it.

PREPARE NOW FOR SPRING OATS

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agronomist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Every farmer who has suitable land and needs other feed to supplement his corn should plant a few acres in spring oats. This crop will furnish cheap feed; it is easily and cheaply planted and harvested; and it comes at a time when feed is high and scarce. For the past five years the average yield of spring oats on upland at the Alabama Experiment Station was about 38 bushels.

Now is the time to plan for this crop. The sooner it is planted after the danger of being killed by a freeze has passed, the larger the yield is likely to be. February planting is better than March planting.

Spring oats do best when planted on land moist and well supplied with plant food. Land that is poor and liable to become dry and hard in the spring is poorly suited to this crop. Bottom land that is not subject to spring overflows and is well drained usually gives the largest yield.

Land for oats should be well plowed if it has much surface litter or is hard, but in case it is soft and free from trash, plowing is not a necessary preparation.

The seed may be sown broadcast by hand at the rate of two to three bushels per acre and covered with a disk harrow. Where land has been plowed the seed may be covered with a spike tooth harrow, "Gee Whiz" or some other shallow cultivating implement. A grain drill is a very satisfactory machine with which to plant oats on plowed land, because it sows the seed to an uniform depth, economizes time, and does not require so much seed per acre as broadcast sowing.

The old practice of plowing in spring oats has little to commend it. This method leaves the surface rough, covers many oats too deep.

On upland a mixture of 200 pounds of acid phosphate and 100 pounds of cotton seed meal per acre applied at the time of planting may give a paying increase in yield. The yield may be greatly increased by applying a top dressing of 75 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre on the grain when it is about three or four weeks old.

The best varieties for spring planting are usually those that make a tall, rapid growth. The red rust-proof varieties usually head out low, and, where moisture or plant food is scarce, they often do not get high enough to harvest easily. For spring planting probably Burt and Fulghum are the most satisfactory. If they are not available Culberson, Bancroft, Cook, Texas Red Rust-Proof, etc., may be planted. All seed should be treated for smut. See Card No. 1 from Alabama Extension Service.

ENORMOUS AMOUNT OF SUPPLIES SENT BY Y. M. C. A.

Cost of Sweets and Smokes for One Month Reaches Staggering Figure—Armistice Didn't End Smoking on Any Front

New York, Jan. ...—Almost $4,000,000 worth of smokes, sweets, sporting goods, chewing gum and other commodities was shipped to France during the month of November by the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., for the use of the American Expeditionary Forces. A statement to this effect has just been issued by the National War Council and tends to demonstrate that the demand for supplies of this character has not been reduced by the fact that hostilities have ceased.

In exact figures the value of the supplies shipped to France was $3,895,908 and each month's quota will approximate this total until the forces overseas have been materially reduced by demobilization.

The demand for tobacco, cigars and cigarettes has not diminished since the armistice was signed, as witness the fact that $1,351,000 of the total amount went for the purchase of the weed in some form. In the shipments were 464,911 pounds of tobacco, 198,065,320 cigarettes and 99,700 cigars. As for confectionery, there were 213,800 pounds of hard candy, 175,918 pounds of chocolates and 329,280 packages of cough drops, not to mention 537,600 tins of jams and 6,541,300 pounds of sugar. The chewing gum conignments totaled 6,100,000 packages—enough to load every slot machine in the United States.

PERSHING SENDS MOTT NEW YEAR GREETINGS

Paris, Dec. 26.—Many times during the past year General Pershing has taken occasion to commend the work of the Y. M. C. A. for the soldiers of the A. E. F. and to express his keenest appreciation for the many good deeds done by the "Y" in this country.

On Christmas Day the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces sent the following cablegram to Dr. John R. Mott, head of the National War Work Council:

"With a deep feeling of gratitude for the enormous contribution which the Army Young Men's Christian Association has made to the moral and physical welfare of the American Army, all ranks join me in sending you Christmas greetings and cordial best wishe for the New Year."

KIND OF GARDEN SEED THAT YOU SHOULD BUY

Stick to Those Varieties Which are Tried and Known to Be Worth Your Time And Money.

Now that the season for buying garden seed is here, it is well for one to consider carefully the matter of varieties. Every year nearly all of the seedsmen bring out some new variety, for which great claims are made. That many of these varieties possess considerable merit there is no question. Neither is there any question that many of them not only do not possess any merit, but are practically worthless. This is not because the seedsmen are trying to put something off on the growers that is not good, but because they do not come up to their expectations. In other words, these new varieties are usually untried at least for more than a few seasons, and this is not sufficient length of time to thoroughly test out any variety.

For this reason it will be well when ordering the garden seed to stick to the varieties that are sufficiently well known for their merit to be established. It is desirable to try some of these new varieties, but not to depend on them for the main planting. We have usually followed this plan in our own garden. In this way one can spend a small amount of money and utilize only a few rows in the garden and find out whether or not some of these new varieties possess any merit under his own conditions.

Order seed catalogs from several of the established seed houses and make a study of them. They are full of valuable information, and a careful study of them will be not only interesting but valuable. Select the varieties carefully and be sure to depend on those that are well established as to merit for the main crop, and order a few of the new varieties to test out under your own conditions.

No Great Act of Heroism Required

If some great act of heroism was necessary to protect a child from croup, no mother would hesitate to protect her offspring, but when it is only necessary to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and give it as soon as the first indication of croup appears, there are many who neglect it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is within the reach of all and is prompt and effectual.

BOY SCOUTS WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY WEEK

During the week beginning on Friday, February 7th, the Clanton Troop of Boy Scouts will observe the anniversary of the founding of the Scout movement in America.

A special program is to be worked out for each day under the following heads:

Friday, Feb. 7—Preparedness Day.
Saturday, Feb. 8—Jollification Day.
Sunday, Feb. 9—Scout Sunday.
Monday, Feb. 10—Father and Son Day.
Tuesday, Feb. 11—Soldiers and Sailors Day.
Wednesday, Feb. 12—Patriotic Day.
Thursday, Feb. 13—Extension Day.

Scout Master Rich is planning to make the program for these days of much interest and benefit to the boys and to the Scout movement generally. He hopes to have the co-operation of the citizens of the town and especially the help of our ministers and teachers.

SHOULD FERTILIZER BE INCREASED OR NOT?

SOME ITEMS FROM AUBURN EXPERIMENT STATION.

Sometimes a person will say that he is not going to use as much fertilizer as formerly, because it is so high in price. Now the question that faces us today is, Is fertilizer high in price? The only real way to determine this point is to compare the price of fertilizer with that of farm crops now and before the war. A little study along this line, we believe, will show one that fertilizer has not advanced one particle more, and in most instances not as much, as have farm products.

Fertilizer, which before the war cost $10.50, now costs approximately $21. Two hundred and ninety-seven pounds of lint cotton and 593 pounds of seed before the war brought approximately $44.50; today the same will bring around $100. Thus we see that while the value of cotton and seed have more than doubled, the cost of the fertilizer has only about doubled.

Cost values are relative, and the only way we can determine whether or not fertilizer is too high in price to use is to figure it out and see whether $10 worth of fertilizer or any other given amount will increase yields sufficiently to more than pay for it. If $10 worth of fertilizer will produce $15 worth of cotton, it should be used; if it will produce only $9 worth, then it should not be used. So the proper thing for each person to do is to figure it out for himself on this basis. It is a definitely established fact that fertilizer of the right kind, judiciously used, even at the present so-called high price, will make a good profit.

Before the war the average price of corn was around 75 to 80 cents per bushel; now it is $1.50 and above. Tobacco that sold for 15 cents per pound before the war, sold the past season for above 30 cents. Cotton that was 10 to 12 cents per pound, has sold this season all the way from 25 to 35 cents.

Therefore, these figures show that fertilizer has not increased as much in price as have farm products. If fertilizer was profitable to the farmer during prewar times it should certainly be profitable now. Let each person figure out this problem to his own satisfaction. Don't refuse to use fertilizer simply because it costs nearly twice as much as it did before the war, but remember that cotton, corn, tobacco, etc., are bringing twice as much, or more than twice as much, as they brought before the war. Study the proposition and figure it out on the basis of cost and returns. That is the only way in which one can arrive at a proper solution of the matter.

HOGS FOR MARKET

To realize the largest profit from the sale of hogs they must be properly prepared for market. The ultimate object in view, in growing hogs, is to produce pork. The feeder should constantly keep this in mind and to produce the most pork with cost. To properly supply the of the pork market the pro constantly keep in mind animal that the market wa weighing 200 to 250 pou more ready market than s mals. Stags and rough hogs in as great demand as sm mals.

The time to sell hogs shou the feeding operations. The is higher in the early fall and late spring than at any other time. If hogs are finished for sale at this time the feeder is sure of a good price and a steady demand. A rotation of feed crops, planned so that hogs finished on them will be ready for market in spring and fall, will do much to help the farmer realize a large profit from his feeding operations.

The sows should be bred for spring and fall delivery, and the management of these pigs should be such that they will be ready for market at the proper time. Corn is considered by most people to be the ideal feed for finishing hogs, but corn alone constitutes a rather expensive ration for the Alabama farmer. If tankage, peanut meal, or other nitrogenous feeds are available they can be very profitably fed along with corn. A rotation of green feeds should always be planned to furnish as much of the fattening ration as possible.

Peanuts come in for a large share of consideration when we think of fattening hogs in Alabama. They give excellent results in making fat, but we must always take into consideration the fact that peanut fed hogs sell for less on the market than corn fed animals. A difference of from 1 to 2 cents per pound is made in favor of corn finished hogs. Many farmers, however, are willing to finish hogs on peanuts and take the reduced price, because of the ease with which animals fatten on them and the saving of labor in harvesting. Each farmer should take into consideration the price of finishing feeds and determine for himself whether it is most profitable to market so-called soft or peanut fed hogs, without feeding corn.

We should keep in mind the fact that a finished hog of the right weight will always find a better market than a poor hog of light weight. The ultilization of the hog in harvesting of the fattening ration will save both labor and money, and whenever the hog can be made to harvest the crop the margin of profit is usually increased.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS OF THE TOWN OF JEMISON

We notice that The Union-Banner has given a page of their paper to Jemison every week, and the people of our town should be proud of it and help to make the page a success.

Through this page I would like to state a few things about our town that will be of interest to people outside.

Jemison is located on the L. & N. Railroad about half way between Birmingham and Montgomery, and occupies the highest point between these two cities. The water shed from the vicinity of the town feeds into three large creeks which carry the water away quickly, leaving no stagnation around us to cause sickness and unsanitary conditions. This makes it one of the most healthful place I ever lived in.

We have good public schools, with Prof. J. F. Bone as our Principal. Three churches, Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian; fraternal orders of Masons and Odd Fellows.

Property around Jemison is cheap, and the surrounnding land is very productive. Good section for farming.

There are two good doctors in Jemison, nrs. McNeill and Johnson, and they stand well among the members of their profession in the county.

The town is to be congratulated generally for its good people. Tho we have a calaboose, there is scarcely ever anyone to reside therein.

I do not want to make my letter too long, so I will close by inviting any good loyal citizen to come to Jemison to live. We want to help build up our county and town. We have about eighty white families in Jemison, making a total of six or seven hundred population. In addition to these there are some colored people here.

Come to Jemison and we will make you feel at home.

Soldiers Overseas To Serve For Y. M. C. A.; Fewer Men Go From U. S.

General Pershing Tells Y. M. C. A. to "Take Their Pick" From Men of A. E. F., Which Cuts Down Recruiting Program in This Country

Atlanta, Ga., Jan....—The offer of General Pershing to release officers and men of the A. E. F. from military duty in order that their services might be utilized by the Y. M. C. A. resulted in the recruiting of a large number of soldiers for "Y" work, and naturally resulted in a decrease in the number of men being sent from this country overseas.

Up until the time General Pershing's offer was made, the Y. M. C. A. had done extensive recruiting for the purpose of sending a large number of workers overseas. But when it was learned that workers could be secured in France—men well fitted for the work because of their familiarity with conditions—the services of many men in the United States were not needed.

While many candidates for service overseas were disappointed over the outcome, the Y. M. C. A. could not have acted otherwise. General Pershing told the "Y" to take any soldiers it wanted and as many as it wanted, and by so doing the Association has saved a great deal of money that would have been spent in transporting the workers to France. The soldiers in France know the work of the Y. M. C. A. almost as well as their own, and those who have been so far selected are making excellent workers.

The Y. M. C. A., however, will not discontinue the sending of men to France. Now and then men who are especially qualified for the work overseas will be used, only they will be fewer in number.

Dr. W. W. Alexander, director of personnel for the Southeastern department, points out that the generous offer of General Pershing is only another indication of the high esteem which is held for the Y. M. C. A. by the United States government and by the leader of the American Expeditionary Forces.

An old stump in or near the edge of the garden is often used as a roosting place for rats and moles, while the garden supplies them with fresh vegetables. Of course the mole does not eat many vegetables, but its borough is a subway through which the rat enters and destroys or damages valuable crops. A few hours grubbing some cold day or a stick of dynamite will remove such stumps and make them ready for fire wood, thereby reducing the coal or wood bill and probabl einjury to vegetables, and at the same time, gives more room for vegetables. Vegetables grown where an old stump has been removed usually are the best plants in the garden. C. L. Isbell, Garden Specialist of the Alabama Extension Service, Auburn, Ala., urges every gardener to set a date right now for removing such stumps.

The extension service of the Department of Horticulture, Auburn, Ala., goes on record as asserting that "a small area will produce more food when planted to vegetables than to any other crop." More food is what we need, therefore we need more gar ns.

MODERN CREAMERIES ELIMINATING FARM CHURNS IN ALABAMA

By J. P. Quinerly, Dairy Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Farm butter making is less profitable than selling cream. Few farmers who make butter realize anything for the time spent in its churning and marketing—in fact, they usually pay heavily for the privilege of inflicting several extra hours of laborious work on their wives each day of the week.

Shipping cream to a creamery is the modern way of marketing farm butter. Most of the former work and all the marketing problems are thereby eliminated. After separation, the cream is simply accumulated, with proper care, in shipping cans and expressed to the creamery two or three times per week, depending upon the season of the year. Special rates, including the return of empty cans, make the cost of delivering the butterfat little if any more than a cent per pound.

Records are kept at the creamery of the weight of each can of cream and its percentage of butterfat (determined by the Babcock test.) Payment is made promptly twice each month for all butterfat received, the price being based on the Chicago market. The creamery takes all the cream shipped and is glad to get it because the demand for creamery butter cannot be supplied. The whole state of Alabama does not produce enough such butter for the city of Birmingham, so there's no need of being afraid of glutting the market!

Many former butter makers are now selling their cream to Alabama creameries. They are all pleased with the change and say that never again will they be worried with butter making. Spiders are webbing their churns and they don't care if the hoops do fall off, for there is more money and less work in selling cream than butter.

Butterfat is butter without any salt, water or curd in it. About 85 per cent of standard butter is butterfat. In early December butterfat was worth 66½ cents per pound at any Alabama creamery. Since butter is 85 per cent fat a pound contains 55½ (85 per cent of 66½) cents worth of fat. Paper and cartons cost about 2 cents per pound for butter. Therefore, a farmer must get 57½ cents for his butter and throw in the time consumed in making and marketing it in order not to actually lose money. Moreover, he must get a 15 per cent overrun—which is almost impossible under farm churning conditions. Investigations have proved that few farm butter makers turn out more pounds of butter than their milk or cream contained in fat. They often get an "underrun" instead of an overrun in churning. But, assuming that they break even, they will lose the difference between the present price of butterfat and what they get per pound every time a pound of butter is sold. Most farm butter sells for considerably less than 50 cents, and the loss is therefore more than 16½ cents per pound, plus the cost of making, packing and marketing.

Farmers with three or more cows should use a cream separator of standard make. A separator will increase the income from each cow between $10 and $20 per year. It gets practically all the fat out of milk, while spoon skimming and whole milk churning entail an average loss of 15 to 25 per cent.

A farmer with 10 good cows, averaging two gallons each per day, is sure of a cash income of between $60 and $75 every two weeks. In addition, the skim milk is left at home for calves and pigs and the "cowano" to revive a hungry, worn-out soil.

Miss Mae Dorminy of Union Grove, spent the week end with Miss Lummie Murrah last week.

VOLUME VII | CLANTON, ALA., FEBRUARY 6, 1919 | NUMBER 45

COMING OUT FOR THE FARMER'S INTERESTS

L. J. Duncan Motor Company is Right On a Good Proposition and Ready to Lend a Hand to Hitching Ground.

Editor Union-Banner,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Sir:

Referring to the "Fairview Farmer's" letter, and your editorial anent the same, we wish to place ourselves on record in regard to this mater.

We have been residing in Clanton nearly six years, and one of our first impressions of the town was the utter lack of accommodations for the farmer customers.

And looking at the matter from another standpoint than that taken by the "Fairview Farmer"—how much better it would be for the town and its residents to have these accommodations both for the country people and their teams!

Our streets and vacant lots would be cleaner and more sanitary, and the town present a much more pleasing aspect than it does.

We suggest that the City Officials take up this matter without delay and (perhaps with the co-operation of the County Officials) start a movement to obtain these neded accommodations before he warm weather is upon us.

Respectfully submited,
L. J. DUNCAN MOTOR CO.

A SOLDIER'S LETTER

Grancy, France, Dec. 22, 1918.
Dear Brother and Family:

I will write you all today. It is Sunday and raining. But we don't have to work Saturday or Sunday now. I am well but not feeling very good. The weather is bad—not so cold but a constant drizzle of rain. The mud is as sticky as dough. The further you walk the more mud you have to carry.

When we come in we take our knives and cut the mud off our shoes. I would have written sooner but have been unable to obtain any paper for some time. But can get plenty again now.

We landed at Liverpool, England, when we came over. We took a few shots at submarines on the Atlantic. We crossed England and the Channel into France.

We were lost in a fog at sea for awhile one morning. Next night I was on guard on the upper deck when we encountered a storm. We seemed to be in a mountain of snow with the white caps sailing our ship seemed to be going to the bottom, then she would ride entirely too high to be comfortable, but we made it through safe, although the subs chased us up the Channel. We out-run the Devils and landed safely in Sunny France.

We were sent to Thierry where we had one months training, when we were sent to the front. We were sent to the Alsace-Lorraine front, where we served for quite awhile, then we were sent to the Verdun front, where on Sunday, November the 10th we gave the Bochs hell. I will not attempt the details—will save that until I get home.

I was on the job on the eleventh day of the eleventh month and the eleventh hour when the big guns ceased. You can't have any idea how funny we felt; I cannot describe it, but there was a sprinkle of joy in the feeling for me and many others.

They say this was one of the hardest battles of the war. I don't know about that, but it was hard enough for me. I didn't get hurt but I know how poison gas tastes and smells.

Wish you were here to go hunting. Deer are as thick as rabbits. I hope however, to be coming home soon.

Wishing you all a mery Christmas and happy new year, I will close. Write soon and all the news.

As ever, your brother,
DANIEL PARRISH.

RESPITE GRANTED DR. KNOTT SENTENCED TO HANG

Governor Kilby has granted a respite to Dr. Knott of Wetumpka, which gives the condemned man six weeks more of life. He was sentenced to hang on conviction of a charge of murder. His case will be reviewed and probably a new trial granted.

HE SAW HIS SHADOW

The ground hog surely saw his shadow if he ventured out anywhere in the neighborhood of Clanton Sunday. Beware you thrifty gardeners who have already got the sign of fresh plowed ground on your "every-day" shoes.

A SOLDIER'S LETTER

Son of S. J. Tucker, of Montevallo, Writes to His Parents.

Mrs. Nettie Langston of Jemison, sends us the following letter from her brother in France, written to her father and mother:

Dear Parents:

I guess you all are having a fine time as it is Christmas now. I know you are having a better time than the boys in France. Christmas over here is about like Thanksgiving was. I saw in a paper where it said all the boys overseas were having a big time, with turkey and plenty to eat. But I am sorry that was a mistake. We were on a long hike in the rain and our dinner was corned beef and rice. The rice had a bar of laundry soap in it and we could not eat it. And that is about the way we are spending Christmas, too.

We drilled all day yesterday and went on a maneuver this morning. We had plenty of blank cartridges and plenty of Christmas guns were shot. We had a foot ball game and a very good time all considered.

We can't buy anything here like we can in the States. Candy and cakes are unknown to the French. We can buy plenty of wine and beer but I don't like it. The champagne is a good drink but it costs too much.

The Red Cross gave us a pound of candy Xmas. The Red Cross is like a mother to a soldier in France. Without that and the Y. M. C. A. it would be bad to stay here. We can get cigars and cigarettes from them at low prices.

We have a mighty good officer in our platoon. All the boys like him. We gave him a present that cost $30.00.

We are all homesick and want to come home. But we are serving our country faithfully just the same.

Don't know when we will be released.

Hope you all a merry Xmas and a happy new year.

CORP. WILEY TUCKER.

BIG BLIND TIGER DEN UNCOVERED IN CLANTON

Sheriff Gore and Marshal J. P. Gore Arrest Five Negroes at One Time for Dealing With Moonshine Whiskey.

Sheriff Gore and Town Marshal J. P. Gore on last Monday succeded in locating and bursting up a big blind tiger den right in Clanton and at the same time caught half a dozen of the tigers alleged to have been operating the place.

The den was located in the residence of Mike Foshee, a prominent negro property owner, who lives in Frog Level in the extreme western limits of the city. Frog Level is the negro district of Clanton.

The negroes arrested in connection with the raid were Mike Foshee, Lee Oden, Pearlie Foshee, Tobe Kennedy, and Ida Oden.

The strength of the evidence against these parties dealing in moonshine whiskey is built on some direct information reaching the officers that some of them had recently sold some whiskey to parties in Clanton. Further evidence of their operations was found in the large number of vessels, jugs, etc., of one kind and another, which had the smell of high powered spirits. The Sheriff took charge of eleven jugs varying in size from 1 to 5 gallons, and 2 kegs of 10 and 15 gallon capacity. There were 24 other small jugs that were not brought as evidence to go before the court. All these vessels were found in Mike Foshee's smoke house.

The only whiskey that was found was a small quantity in a bottle under the pillow on Mike's bed.

They stated that they had been using the whiskey for the flu, and judging from all those jugs and things that smelt like whiskey, they must have had a lot of flu to doctor.

Lee Oden has already plead guilty to dealing with the whiskey.

WILLIAM LOGAN MARTIN IS MADE CIRCUIT JUDGE

Will Succeed Judge Gaston Gunter Who Died Last Week —Chilton County is Among Counties of His Circuit.

Maj. William Logan Martin, former attorney general of Alabama, was elevated to the judiciary by the stroke of a pen Monday afternoon when Governor Kilby named him as judge of the fifteenth judicial circuit to succeed the late Judge Gaston Gunter, of Montgomery, who died last week. W. A. Derden, the governor's private secretary, wired him immediately at Camp Jackson, S. C., advising him of his appointment.

Major Martin, it was indicated, did not formally apply for the appointment, but his friends were very active in his behalf.

The appointment was announced Monday afternoon shortly after the governor had received a large delegation who asked that Maj. B. K. McMorris, of Wetumpka, be named, and after the governer had received a delegation who presented the claims of A. C. Smith, of Clanton. During Monday morning friends of J. Lee Holloway and Judge A. A. Evans, of Montgomery, were busy in an effort to convince the governor that their favorites were the logical men for the place, while supporters of Eugene Ballard, of Prattville, were equally as alert. Among those in the McMorris delegation were, Henry P. Merritt, speaker of the House, and Col. Bibb Graves, of Montgomery.

JUDGE McCORD HERE

Judge Leon McCord of Montgomery, was in Clanton Monday to draw the jury for Circuit Court which convenes here next Monday. The Sheriff has been given the names of the jurymen and is now engaged in summoning them.

MAIN STREET OF CLANTON CROWDED WITH AUTOS

On Saturday afternoons and other busy days the main business streets of Clanton are excessively crowded with automobiles. Last Saturday in particular there were a great number of cars on Second Avenue.

It was particularly noticeable that there was no system to the way the cars were parked alongside this main street. It was a very unsightly spectacle that might have been turned into a very pleasing one had there been some order to the parking of the cars.

And then too the greatest need for having some order to the stopping of cars on the streets is that it is of much more safety to the public and the convenience of those driving cars. Just in casual observance last Saturday we saw three cars that were so hemmed in to the sidewalk by other cars that the drivers experienced great difficulty in getting their machines out into the street when they wished to go away.

Cars being stopped on the main street of the town should at all times be systematically parked. I would make for convenience, safety and good appearance. It would be a means of insurance against accidents.

The town council should make and enforce an ordinance regulating this thing right now before it gets to be a bigger nuisance than it is at present.

DEATH OF D. A. GULLEDGE AT CLANTON ON LAST SATURDAY

Mr. D. A. Gulledge, age 37 years, son of Judge J. W. E. Gulledge, died at his home in Clanton at an early hour Thursday of last week.

The deceased leaves a wife and two children. Death was caused as a result of pneumonia, following influenza.

The remains were carried to Union Springs Friday and burial made at that city, where he formerly lived prior to coming to Clanton.

STATE FOOD CONTROL IS TO BE NO MORE

Mr. Hobbie Has Completed His Duties as State Food Administrator and Closed His Office in Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 1, 1919.

The offices of Federal Food Administrator, Richard M. Hobbie, in the Bell Building, were closed today under instructions from Washington. The Auditor will retain one office for a short time in order to close up all accounts and ship the files to Washington, but all other activiies ceased tonight.

In speaking of the winding up of the work of his offices Mr. Hobbie said:

"The public should understand that many of the rules of the Food Administration are still in effect and will be strictly enforced. The only difference will be that all complaints must go direct to the Washington offices and all violaions will be handled directly from those offices. From time to time as rules are rescinded due notice will be given in the newspapers and to the licensees affected and all parties under license should be careful to inform themselves of such changes.

"We feel that the people of Alabama have a just right to be proud of the manner in which their State has responded to the appeals, rules and regulations of the United States Food Administration. There have been only a small number of penalties imposed for violations of rules. Alabama has met every call made upon it for conservation and economy in food and feed stuffs in that splendid spirit of sacrificial consciousness upon which the President and Mr. Hoover relied when they determined that this nation could meet the food emergency of the world without the neccessity of a rationing system.

"For myself, the Executive Staff, the County Food Administrators and their Assistants, I desire to express sincere appreciation of the cordial and patriotic manner in which our efforts have been received by the people generally. During our work of the past eighteen months we have had occasion to call for the help and assistance of practically every public organization in Alabama and we have never made a call that was not promptly and cheerfully answered. We have had the unlimited use of the space of the Press of the State free of charge and have had the voluntary services of thousands of individuals. Without this co-operation our work could not have been done; through it the success that has attended the Federal Food Administration in Alabama was made possible.

"We earnestly hope that the people will continue their loyal observance of such rules as are still in effect and that they will not forget the lessons of economy and thrift which they have learned in their patriotic efforts to "Keep the Faith" with their government, their soldiers, and their allies."

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

It is earnestly desired by the Pastor, Deacons, and Building Committee that every member of the church he present on next Sunday morning to vote on the location of the new church building. Several different propositions will be offered for choice and probably a recommendation will be made by the committee. Let every one be on hand.

SAMARIA

Health of this community is good at present.

Our Sunday school at Samaria is progressing nicely. Our school at Samaria is fine, there being near 100 pupils. Mr. J. L. Wilson is principal.

The singing at Misses Vallie and Beatrice Alred's Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by all.

We are glad to know that Mr. Tom Foshee is at home from overseas.

Mr. Joe Dennis of Jemison was down on business Friday.

Ezra Calloway, age 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Calloway, of Maplesville, was buried at Samaria Friday.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank our friends for their kindness during the sickness and death of my father, M. C. Williams.

CROEL WILLIAMS.

Mrs. J. F. Stroud, of Union Springs, was in Clanton last week with the family of her brother, Mr. D. A. Gulledge, who died Thursday.

Fortune Knocks at a Man's Door Only Once

The GREATEST Bargain Day that Clanton has had in Years

W. W. FOX, THE AUCTIONEER

LISTEN!

One four-room house, with city water and sewerage, located on the corner of 1st Street and 2nd Avenue; fronts 150 feet on 1st Street and 70 feet on 2nd Avenue; fronts East and South.

Also one six-room house, city water and lights on 2nd Avenue. A splendid home; lot 140 x 150 feet; fronts South.

One vacant lot, corner 2nd Avenue and 2nd Street; 70 feet front on the Avenue and 150 feet front on the Street. An admirable place to build a home.

All of this property is within one block of the State High School and within three blocks of the new $50,000 Court House.

Alabama Power Co. is going to put their power here in the near future, which not only means good service, but will bring in many other industries in its wake. If you want to live in Clanton you will have to buy or build, for there is not a house in town for rent. This property will double in value in the next two years. You can't go wrong if you buy real estate in Clanton. Why? Because Clanton is already the largest city between Birmingham and Montgomery; is surrounded on all sides by the best agricultural section in the State. Crop failure here is unknown. Our farmers are progressive and fully abreast of the times; 85 per cent white and own their own homes. The natural home of the truck grower and unsurpassed for stock raising.

SALE TAKES PLACE ON THE PREMISES AT 1 P. M., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15TH. TERMS: ONE-THIRD CASH, THE OTHER IN ONE AND TWO YEARS WITH LEGAL INTEREST.

MY REGULAR AUCTION SALE WILL TAKE PLACE AS USUAL FROM 10 TO 12 A.M. WILL PUT ON SALE THEN ONE 7-PASSENGER CADILLAC CAR AND TWO 5-PASSENGER FORDS. ALL IN GOOD RUNNING ORDER. A BIG LOT OF OTHER USEFUL ARTICLES WILL ALSO GO AT THE SAME TIME.

OBITUARIES.

When you write obituaries or resolutions for publication in The Union-Banner, count the words and enclose price, which is one cent a word, with the article if you want it published. This applies to all obituary notices or resolutions passed by Lodges or religious organizations.

The Union-Banner is glad to see The Collinsville Courier out again every week after a spell of the flu. Harmless Henry is one of Alabama's interesting editors.

Is it just natural for Alabama's legislatures to be "plum wild" on some subjects? That one at Montgomery now seems to be raving just about as bad as all the others have done in the past.

That the price of cotton is going up in the near future is stoutly argued by Congressman J. Thomas Heflin. He contends that the price will soon reach 40 cents after peace is finally made and the commerce of the world is restored.

The newly appointd Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, in which Chilton county is included, is at present a Major in the United Staes army. He was Attorney General of the State before going into the military service.

GEORGIA CYCLONE

The famous Georgia Cyclone has been elected to Congress from the Fifth Georgia (Atlanta) District. His name is William D. Upshaw, and he is known all over the country as one of the nations most active booze fighters. He is not however, a "booze fighter" of the kind who want to get rid of liquor by drinking it all. He works for prohibition the other way. His speeches from the platform are of the best kind and most highly intellectual and entertaining.

And another thing that makes him a better man is the fact that the Catholics can't rope him and lead him here and yonder. The great Cardinal Gibbons recently essayed to let loose a slap at the prohibition movement in the United States and no sooner had he turned it loose than Upshaw grabbed it and flung it back to him right in the face.

The Georgia Cyclone will go to Congress unpopular with the Catholics, of course; but that is the best proof in the world that he is a man standing for the things that are bequeathed to the common people of the south as a heritage of the Little Red school house on the hill.

J. Hance Alred of the Alred Drug Co., went to Birmingham last week and placed an order for a big new iceless and germless soda fount to be installed in about six weeks. Such a soda water plant as this one to be put in at Alread's would be a credit to a city even larger than ours.

Shumate Razors, guaranteed for life. You can get them at Alred Drug Co.

FARMERS BEWARE

Farmers should keep their eyes open at all times lest they be swindled out of their hard earned crop money. Many times you can find various kinds of agents who claim to be the farmer's very best friends when they are really interested in what cash they can induce the farmer to part with.

Some will offer to send you absolutely free a so-called farm paper, or give you a war map or picture of some kind, but as soon as you sign your name then there is something else they must have you to do to complete the order. And after all you may never get a copy of the paper or see the agent again.

Other fakes with which our farmers have to contend are seed salesmen. They want you to buy "Wonder" cotton seed or "Gold Mine" corn or other such things which have never been tried out and have not the endorsement of responsible authorities. Our state and national governments maintain experiment stations and expert agriculturists to advise and protect the farmers against such fakes and the wise farmer will spend a postage stamp to get reliable authority on seed rather than go blind and buy a "gold brick" from some party who travels the country seeking only to get the cash.

The County Farm Demonstration Agent can also be reached easily for advice on such matters.

Such matters as these are of course small. Many of our farmers are too wise for them. Some have already been burnt by playing with fire. Others will get burnt. But in the aggregate the crookedness that is dealt out to the farmers amounts to enough to warrant them in being careful. Little bits of cash are much better saved than wasted on fakes.

BONDS FOR RECONSTRUCTION

Through the four issues of war bonds floated since May, 1917, the Government raised nearly Seventeen Billion Dollars.

This vast sum, invested largely in implements of destruction, brought the autocratic Hun to terms twelve months earlier than expected. Had the war dragged on for another year thousands of American lives would have been sacrificed and our war debt increased many Billions.

Another great bond issue—the Victory Liberty Loan—will be floated next April. Treasury officials have announced that it will be for not less than Five Billion Dollars. With this issue, Liberty Loans will pass into history; the job will be finished.

Heretofore the Billions have been used for destructive purposes. This time the bulk of the money derived from the sale of these securities will be spent in constructive work.

It will go towards maintaining our army of more than a million men enforcing the armistice terms upon Germany. This army must remain in Europe until permanent peace is established. The sick and wounded soldiers overseas and at home must be cared for and eventually the rest of our army brought back. But the work this money will do must not end here. The men who have been disabled; who sacrificed eyes, arms or legs, must be taught self-supporting trades. For what nobler purpose could it be used than in protecting these heroes from future poverty and distress?

Our soldiers did not relax when the Hun retreated. They kept on fighting until the very minute the armstice became effective. We at home should follow their example. We should put our full force behind this Victory Loan and provide the Government with the means for carrying thru the work forced upon it by war.

PUT CLANTON ON THE MAP

It is most certainly time for Clanton to wake up and assert herself. "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at its flood leads on to fortune; neglected, all the rest of the journey leads into disaster." Now is that tide in the affairs of Clanton? We from this day shall traverse the road toward fortune, or on the other hand the road to disaster.

"To improve the golden moment of opportunity, and catch the good that is within our reach, is the great art of life." Now shall we assert the great art of our lives or else show to the outside world that we are sluggards and possess no life in fact.

The tide is now upon us and we must either win or lose. We have been standing on middle ground long enough. If we don't improve our conditions the architect of our destiny will close the door of our opportunity.

Clanton must have some industries if the town is to produce us all a living in the days that are to come after peace is restored to the world. There is nothing to this old plan of allowing all our money to flow outward to foreign markets with the foreign interests sending us nothing back here but something that is quickly eaten up and forgotten. There should be a weekly payroll contributed to hundreds of workmen in our town, in this way money coming into our cash registers from outside sources instead of going out of our hands into the hands of the big men away from here.

This is a rather vague dissertation on the subject of progress and awakening in Clanton.

But there are some phases of the situation that are plainly discernable. If we are to have a commercial awakening we may not expect it to come in a day or a night. It must be accomplished step by step. Consequently we must take those steps one at a time in the proper order.

One of the first to be done is to bring the Alabama Power Co. into Clanton. This will open the gate that now has us shut off from many opportunities. It would help us much to rub elbows with this great enterprise which has its seat in a stone's throw of our town. Let us pull for this first accomplishment and it will be easier then to accomplish each successive task we may undertake.

HAVE WE SUCH ANIMAL?

We opened our book casually the other night and this quotation from Henry Ward Beecher greeted our eyes:

"The cynic is one who never sees a good quality in a man, and never fails to see a bad one. He is the human owl, vigilant in darkness and blind to light, mousing for vermin, and never seeing noble game."

Indeed, what a horrible thing this "cynic" must be. What a load such an one must be upon the movement of a community in the progress of education, religion, industry and the whole of society.

We read again this definition of what a cynic is and think more and more of the tragedy of such a personality. We look at first one and then another character through the microscope. We examine many whom we think of and let us hope we do not find any of our neighbors whom the despised cap might fit.

But then think of ourselves under the microscope with all the neighbors examining us. Wonder if one of them will indict us on the charge and put us down as the cynic. Let us hope that the cynic is a back number in Clanton.

Clanton business men had just as well loosen up for that request of our farmer patrons for a hitching place and stable for their teams has got to be answered. And remember there is but one answer. This town has waked up to a few things and you can't afford to see the march of progress going by without going your bob in oiling the machinery.

"They say that love makes the world go round, and so may it never cease; but please remember that money is the axle grease."

A FRIEND OF YE EDITOR

On last Friday the Editor of The Union-Banner was pleased to have a call from one of his most particular friends, in the splendid and well known person of Mr. John W. Hays, of Thorsby. It was the first time we had seen him since returning from the army.

To meet this old friend reminds us of those fine summer days of the past when we trolled the streams in an effort to lure some member of the finny tribe into taking the bait we had so carefully prepared for them.

Mr. Hays is now running a store at Thorsby, dealing in general merchandise and buying and selling country produce.

But he promised to go fishing with us again when the dogwood blooms.

SHERIFF GORE WANTS NAMES SIGNED TO LETTERS

Sheriff John L. Gore addressed the following brief, but important letter to the people of Chilton county:

"I want to impress upon the people of the county the necessity for anyone to sign his name to communications to me reporting alleged violations of the laws. Within the past few days I have received some communications of this kind without any names signed to them, and it places me at a great disadvantage in working after the matters referred to.

"I want to say further that I am in the Sheriff's office to enforce the laws of our state and county to the very best. I want the co-operation of all lab-abiding citizens of the county in enforcing the laws and prosecuting those who disregard the laws. But when anyone calls my attention to any case that needs investigation please sign your name so I may have some point to start to work from.

"All such communications I assure you, will be treated with due confidence and respect and no disclosures made to the disadvantage of the citizen making same.

"I want all the people to realize that I am with them for the good name and honor of our county and due regard for the laws of our land."

"JOHN L. GORE,
Sheriff Chilton County."

VIRGIL J. ELMORE AND MISS OLIVE RAINER MARRIED

Friends of Lieutenant V. J. Elmore in Clanton will learn with interest the news of his marriage last week to Miss Olive Rainer of Elba.

The following is clipped from Sunday's Advertiser in regard to the interesting event:

Lieut. Virgil J. Elmore of Camp McClellan, Anniston, and Miss Olive Rainer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rainer of Elba, were married Sunday noon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ford.

The ceremony was impressively performed by the Rev. R. A. Moody, of Foster street M. E. church.

Mrs. Elmore is well known in Dothan where she has often visited her sister, Mrs. Ford.

Lieut. Elmore, formerly of Elba, is a prominent young business man of Clanton, where he was located before entering the service, eighteen months ago.

Lieut. Elmore returned to Camp McClellan, and Mrs. Elmore will be in Dothan a few days longer, before going to Elba to remain until Lieut. Elmore receives his discharge.

The Union-Bannr, together with scores of friends here extend to the couple hearty congratulations.

CLANTON, ALA.

GET THE SEED CORN READY FOR PLANTING

By P. O. Davis, Assistant Boy's Club Agent.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The proper time to select seed corn is in the field as soon as it is thoroughly mature, but there are many farmers who failed to do this and must either buy or select from the crib which should be done during the winter when other farm work does not demand so much attention and also to avoid further lowering of vitality by exposure in ordinary corn cribs. The United States Department of Agriculture found by experiment that seed corn well dried and kept dry throughout the winter produced from 12 to 27 per cent more corn than that stored in ordinary cribs. The germinating qualities were the same but plants from the cribbed seed were less thrifty and less productive. Therefore, if cribbed corn is to be used for seed it should be immediately selected and kept dry until planted.

It is not possible to name any one best variety of corn but before selecting seed corn the farmer should investigate its productiveness, uniformity, and adaptability to the soil and climate where it is to be grown. The county demonstration agent will gladly give advice.

Ears of corn should be selected on their individual merits and they should be true to variety, heavy, sound and contain good uniform grains or kernels of equal length, width and thickness. Ears having grains of various sizes and shapes should be discarded. Small, poorly developed grains should be removed before shelling because they will produce weak, barren stalks. If a planter is to be used the large irregular grains at the butt should be discarded.

The size of the cob must always be considered. It should be about one half the diameter of the entire ear and preferably smaller. Again it should be sound and the pith not too large.

The shucks must not be overlooked, because it is a great protection against weevils and severe weather. A long, close, tight fitting shuck is preferable. By selecting it much damage from weevils will be saved.

Seed corn should be shelled by hand in order to carefully watch for unsound or defective grains.

Cleanliness should be the chief basis for establishing the grade of milk. The butterfat content should be largely considered by creamery patrons, but for the consuming public, cleanliness and wholesomeness are most important, says the Alabama Extension Service. Too often a wide cream line is taken as an indication of a good quality of milk.

The only safe method for the dairymen to increase their profits is that of lowering the cost of production by weeding out poor animals and keeping only the high producers. The high-priced grain ration may be offset by raising on the farm more of the feeds needed for the herd, says W. H. Eaton of the Alabama Extension Service.

People who grow gardens during 1919 can count on feeding bugs as usual unless they prepare to kill them by spraying or dusting. It is just as much fun to kill bugs that are eating vegetables as it is to shoot hawks when carrying away chickens. To be sure the hawk will not get away with the chicken—all farmers keep their guns loaded,—but most of them wait until the bug is flying away with his vegetables before becoming alarmed. Now is the time to get your spray pump and poison. They are the shot and powder for vegetable hawks. Write the Department of Horticulture of the Alabama Extension Service for bulletins on when and how to spray garden crops.

It will soon be time to plant spring turnips. C. L. Isbell, State Garden Specialist of the Alabama Extension Service, Auburn, Ala., says every one should remember to sow the seed near enough the house for the wife to get them when needed. The husband and boys usually forget to bring them in before going away to work in the morning. Also remember that turnips require a rich, well prepared soil, and that they are likely to rot if planted on ground where turnips or cabbage rotted last year.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE -:- CLANTON, ALA.

LEADING VARIETIES OF CORN ALABAMA.

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agronomist Alabama Experiment Station.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

In 1918 the Alabama Experiment Station tested at Auburn 18 varieties of corn. They were planted on an upland sandy soil and followed a summer crop of soy beans for seed and a winter cover crop of rye, which was plowed under for soil improvement about the middle of March.

All the varieties were planted March 27th in checks 4 2-3 feet by 3 feet and thinned to one plant to a hill. At time of planting a mixture of 160 pounds of cotton seed meal and 200 pounds of acid phosphate was applied per acre in the drill. On June 27th 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre was applied as a side dressing. The corn was given frequent shallow cultivation until it began to tassel.

VARIETY:	Bus. of Shelled Corn Per Acre.	No. of Ears and Nubbins Per Bu.
Whatley, No. 125	46.2	155
Weekley	40.8	164
Pee Dee	40.0	137
Barric	39.6	144
Henry Grady, No. 1105	36.9	121
Hastings Prolific	35.0	175
Shaw	34.8	98
Alexander Prolific	34.8	165
Experiment Station Yellow, No. 1001	34.2	171
Sanders	34.0	162
Mosby	33.7	133
Vardaman	33.4	99
Williamson Red	32.9	120
Henry Grady, No. 1104	30.7	125
Experiment Station Yellow, No. 1009	30.4	166
Jackson Red Cob	30.3	140
Goliad	26.5	145
Watson	23.8	140

The four leading varieties in yield are classed as prolific because they produced an average of 194 or more ears and nubbins per 100 plants. The varieties having a tendency to produce only one ear to the plant, except Shaw, fall in the lower half of the table.

The second column suggests the number of ears and nubbins required to shell a bushel of grain and varies from 175 in Hastings to 98 in Shaw. Most of the varieties are classed in size of ear, as small and medium.

During the past 13 years, among the four most productive varieties each year, Alexander Prolific (tested 6 years), Hastings tested 8 years), Mosby (tested 11 years), and Sanders (tested 10 years) were included five times; Marlboro (11 years) and Whatley (5 years), four times; Garric (8 years) and Weekly (4 years), three times; and Improved Henry Grady (7 years), twice.

Judge S. M. Adams was seriously ill on Tuesday with an attack of acute indigestion. He is better now but has been confined to his room since the attack.

Clay Marcus went to Birmingham last Wednesday on business.

COUNTY COURT HELD AT CLANTON THIS WEEK

The following cases were disposed of by Judge Reynolds in the County Court this week:

Man Mims, charged with violating the prohibition laws was tried and convicted; sentened to six months hard labor.

Richard Lovelady, on a charge of violating prohibition laws, plead guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

Wiley Jones and Frank Nelson were before the court charged with failure to work the public roads. The case of Wiley Jones was nolle prossed by the Solicitor. After trial Nelson was discharged.

Melvin Logan, a young negro, was brought before the court on a charge of forgery and carrying concealed weapon. Both cases were transferred to the juvenile docket.

Dewey Lewis and Arrie Davenport were discharged on trial for petit larceny.

Pearlie Foshee was arraigned before the court charged with violating prohibition laws. Her ase was continued.

Murder Case Up.

Mrs. W. H. Denton was brought before the court on a charge of murder, allged to have been implicated in the causes of the death of a young Northcutt girl which occurred at Jemison last week., It is charged that the death of the girl was caused by a dose of medicine which she took and it is in connection with this that Mrs. Denton is held.

Preliminary trial was held on last Wednesday and Mrs. Denton was placed under $500 bond to await the action of the grand jury.

A BETTER UNION-BANNER

The Editor of The Union-Banner went to Birmingham Monday and purchased a large amount of new printing equipment to be placed in the composing room of the paper within the next two weeks. The increased business of the paper demands this expansion, and with the added material and equipment we will be able to take care of more business and also to enlarge the paper and give our readers a better paper.

Mr. J. E. Johnson and wife, a former well-known citizen of Chilton, now of Sapulpa, Okla., arrived in Clanton Wednesday night on a visit. While in Clanton they will be the guests of Mr. Johnson's sister, Mrs. T. S. Pyron.

Starting again next Tuesday at the Ideal Theatre "Hands Up" will be run to a finish.

SHOULTS

The Union-Banner:

We wish to have published in the columns of your paper the result of a basket ball game played Friday evening, January 31st, between Prof. Thompson's school of Lawley and Prof. Akins Collins school of Shoults. The contest was opened by the girls of the two schools. It appeared at first that the contest would be an equal one for the girls, but soon the Shoults squad had Lawley in the air, and the final score was ended with 10 to 1 in favor of Shoults.

After the girls had played 40 minutes then the boys between the two schools walked out upon the court to see who would take off the honor for the boys.

For awhile Lawley seemed to be determined to hold Shoults to a score of 4 to 0, but rather have his school beat Prof. Collins began to arouse some enthusiasm and soon there seemed to be plenty of pep and Shoults walked away with Lawley 13 to 5.

A large crowd of spectators were present and a number from each school to do the cheering.

If Lawley wants another game with Shoults, we will be glad to give you another opportunity to do better.

Joe Logan, a hustling farmer who lives on Route 4, was in Clanton last Tuesday.

PRATTVILLE DISTRICT METHODIST MEET AT MONTGOMERY

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 4 and running through Feb. 5, there will be a district group meeting of the Prattville District of the Methodist church, held in Mongomery at the Court street Methodist church, Rev. O. C. McGehee presiding elder of the district will be in charge of the meeting, which will be attended by delegates from all the churches in the district, as well as by prominent people from a distance.

The meeting of the Prattville district is held in Montgomery for the reason that it is the most cenral point, and most easily reached by delegates from the group of churches that compose the district, which are widely scattered.

The purpose of the conference is to discuss the Centennial Missionary movement.—Montgomery Journal.

Dr. E. C. Maye and Mrs. J. C. Jones of Clanton are chosen to speak on subjects at this meeting in Montgomery Thursday. It is a distinct honor to Clanton to be so ably represented in this nation-wide church movemnt by these two splendid workers.

LETTERS FROM SOLDIER OVER IN GERMANY.

Somewhere in Germany, Dec. 22,1918
Dear Mother and Sister:

Wonder how you all are tongiht? Fine I hope. This leaves me all o.k. All the boys are just as jolly as jolly can be. We are all sitting in a large beer hall, singing and dancing and passing the time away. We get light drinks here, such as beer, wine and lemon soda.

Mama, I have been on five different fronts since I have been in this man's country. The first was the Lorainne. We held the sector for one hundred and ten days. We were relieved and sent to the Company. The Huns were making a big drive there for Paris, but did not break our lines. The whole world that night was almost as light as a sun shiny day. The flash from the big cannons from both sides were a solid fire. Large shells fell everywhere and the report from the big guns, the explosion of the shells went like a thunder storm. We just could hear the cracking of the machine guns and rifles that lasted for twenty four hours. I saw where the allied countries celebrated our Fourth. That is where I was at that time. I don't want to forget to tell you that was some celebration. But we only stayed there about twenty days and were sent to Chateau Thierry. I suppose you know enough about that place without me saying any more. My best expression of it is par bun if it near Paris. I don't know exactly how many days we were there about a month I suppose and were relieved and sent back for a short rest, and then we were sent to the Toul front, known as St. Michiel. There we were to make a drive. We arrived at our destination about the 6th of September, and rested until the 12th. That night we went to the front about 10 o'clock. We were in the trenches ready to go over, our barrage opened up at the zero minute; we started across No Man's Land on the morning of the 12th. We advanced about a mile, taking a large number of prisoners, and in two days advanced seventeen kilometers. We were there for twenty days and carried to the Verdun, advancing a good deal at that place, and kept on advancing till we reached the Rhine River, a distance of 350 kilometers (1 kilometer, 5-8 mile), which we hiked and now we have reached our destination. So when we leave this village I suppose we will start on our way to the U. S. A.

Well, we are fixing for a Xmas. dinner, and will have some kind of interesting time. There is going to be a Y. M. C. A. young lady to entertain us. The Chaplain is helping out a lots. We sure have a good Chaplain. We hiked on Sunday and between rest periods the Chaplain held a few moments services. So we are going to make the best we can of it, and on our return we are going to make up for all lost time.

I will close for this time. Take good care of yourself. I would like to hear from any one that would care to write to me. Hoping you a merry Xmas. and a happy New Year.

Somewhere in Germany, Dec. 26,1918
Dear Mother and Sister:

I am going to drop you a few lines to let you know I am still living. This letter leaves me in the best of health, and I am hoping it will find you the same. Well, another Christmas has passed away. We were in Versain, France, last year (today one year ago). We started on a long hike and the weather was so cold we almost froze and the snow was 1 1-2 feet deep. We had a one hundred per cent better time this Christmas than we had last. We sure had a nice dinner. We had chicken with dumplings, creamed potatoes, sliced bread, roast pork, apple sauce, dill pickles, rice pudding, apples, fried fruit tarts, coffee with cream, chocolate bars and cigarettes. Believe me, we had plenty of it too. I suppose you will begin to get plenty of mail. I am sending some more cards of towns, cities, etc. After dinner a little German band came up and played for us, and the Y. M. C. A. young lady served hot chocolate and gave out cigarettes and cigars. So you see we had a nice time. I haven't anything to write this time. Will write again soon.

Your son,
Corp. MARVIN HEADLEY

BOY SCOUT PROGRAM AT METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

Next Sunday is to be Boy Scout Sunday in Clanton and a fitting program for the occasion has been arranged to be enacted at the Methodist Church. The program in detail appears in another place in this issue of The Union-Banner. We hope all the people of the town will take an interest in this movement and come out to the services.

The local troop of Scouts will form a line for march in front of the Court House a few minutes before eleven o'clock Sunday and will arrive at the church at eleven o'clock. All returned soldiers and sailors are invited to form in line with the scouts and participate in the program.

Now is the time to plan for Spring Hatches

Already you are counting the days till you can start hatching. But active, able-to-live, disease-proof chicks, the only kind it pays to hatch, must be planned for.

Insure health and vigor to breeding stock so they can produce lots of fertile eggs, and insure big hatches of husky chicks by giving your breeders

Pratts Poultry Regulator.

It imparts vitality to your whole flock, is strengthening and invigorating. Hens lay more eggs, secures greater fertility, better hatches, stronger chicks.

Also, have a good clean-up before the hatching season. To destroy lice and mites, to prevent disease and contagion, use

Pratts Poultry Disinfectant,
Pratts Powdered Lice Killer.

The Pratt label means goods guaranteed to satisfy or money back.

Therefore, refuse substitutes. Insist on Pratts. 421

Red Cedar Shingles

We are expecting to receive a car load of "TITE-HOLD" Cedar Shingles this week. They are GUARANTEED for FORTY YEARS, and will cover from 15 to 20 per cent more space than other shingles, and are therefore cheaper.

Factory says they will not warp or curl on a roof.

Do not buy other Shingles or roofing until you have seen and examined these shingles. We believe it is economy to invest in these Red Cedar Shingles rather than use other cheaper coverings.

THORSBY ITEMS

Among the soldiers back from France, we note the presence here in Thorsby last week of Mr. Sanders Ogletree, Chester Bice and Jay Bice.

Thorsby Institute entered on the second half of its year's work on Tuesday morning. The Commercial Department with is Typewriting and Shorthand under Miss Ida F. Lockwood, seems to be especially popular.

Several of our families have been moving this last week. Mr. Ollie Camp and family have moved to Trafford, Ala. Mr. Nels Peterson and family have gone into the Twin Cottage vacated by the Camps and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams recently of Birmingham, have followed the Petersons in occupying the Kaufman Cottage. Mrs. Adams is a sister of Prof. C. M. Williams formerly a teacher of Thorsby Institute. Mr. and Mrs. Piper have moved into the house recently vacated by Mr. D. J. Flummer.

Mr. Robert Robinson spent a few days here last week with his folks. He is still in camp on the Mexican border. Thorsby people are proud of Lieut. Robinson and always glad to see him.

The outlook for Thorsby Institute under the joint principalship of Misses Jenkins and Stoddard is very promising. Miss Lenore Goodwin recently teacher in Chicago, has become Matron of the Boarding Department.

Mrs. Sarah Jenkins, of Demorest, Ga., returned home yesterday, after a week's visit with her daughter, Miss Helen C. Jenkins.

Mr. William Rogers spent the week-end in Montgomery. Mr. Rogers has charge of the Military Drill of Thorsby Institute.

Miss Ida F. Lockwood spent the week-end in Calera, a guest of Prof. and Mrs. C. M. Williams.

CAN ALABAMA AFFORD TO RAISE APPLES?

By L. A. Hawkins, Assistant Horticulturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

There is not a question but that Alabama should raise apples, not only for home markets but for shipment to any of the southern cities that now are obliged to purchase their supplies from commission men, who in turn are forced to look to Oregon and Washington and the east for their fruit.

Alabama can grow fruit of just as good quality and equally desirable as that grown in east or west, getting it into our local markets in much better condition, if our growers will only make the effort.

The writer stopped at a fruit stand in one of Alabama's larger cities a few days ago to purchase an apple to eat. This is what he found. All the boxed apples were grown and packed in the Yakima Valley, Washington. One box which packed 154 to 166 apples per box were retailing at 5 cents each or from $7.70 to $8.30 per box, which means from $23.10 to $24.90 per barrel that the consumer pays for his fruit when buying one or two apples at a time. Another and larger variety which packed about 76 to 88 apples per box were retailing for 10 cents each, or $7.60 to $8.80 per box, which in this case means $22.80 to $26.40 per barrel to the consumer who buys from the fruit stands.

Alabama growers could not hope, and indeed would not need, to secure such high prices in order to make excellent profits from the production of apples.

Possibly the grower in Yakima Valley received between $2.00 and $3.00 for his product, and we can figure transportation cost at around $1.00 per box. We can produce apples cheaper in Alabama than they can be produced in the Northwest on several points: Land is much lower in value, as these apples are produced on land valued at from $500 to $1200 an acre; cost of labor is much lower in Alabama; the costly irrigation is not necessary in Alabama; in most cases our lands are easier to cultivate; the difference in marketing cost is obvious; and probably in many cases first class fruit could be grown here with a less rigid spraying schedule.

With these facts in view the Alabama fruit grower can well afford to put his product on the market at much lower prices than is at present being obtained for outside fruit, and still make a big profit over cost of production. If our growers could realize the necessity of better methods of orchard management and would put into practice to some extent Northwestern methods of production and harvesting, the returns from their efforts would be a source of tremendous revenue in several horticultural counties of the state in which apples thrive real well.

The Extension Service of the Department of Horticulture at Auburn is ready and anxious to render all aid possible to secure increased apple production in the state, and will be only too glad to answer all inquiries.

GIVE COLLARDS PROTECTION FROM EXTREME COLD.

By C. L. Isbell, Garden Specialist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

A great many people in Alabama grow the collard for winter greens. It makes a splendid food and comes at a time of year when fresh food in the form of vegetables is scare. If all people had enough green food during the winter to supply the iron and phosphorus needed by the body they would have better health and less money would be wasted buying iron tonics to tone up the body each spring. There are enough collards grown in this state to larely supply the table with greens, if they were only carefully stored to prevent freezing, and later well distributed. However, as a general rule, they are neither carefully stored nor well distributed.

Many farm gardens grow 200 or 300 plants where only 50 or 75 are needed for table use. Of course there is no objection to growing large quantities, as they can be used for chicken and pig feed. But the sad part is that these plants are given little if any protection to prevent hard freezing during the latter part of the winter.

The collard likes cool weather, and for this reason grows well in late fall and early winter. But it can be killed by freezing, as was done in many gardens in North Alabama last winter. In the southern half of the state it does not need protection and will live as far north as the Tennessee line with little protection, provided it is a normal winter. But when the temperature goes below zero special protection should be provided. This can be done by allowing the collard to grow until severe winter sets in, which is usually soon after Christmas. Then make a ditch in a well drained place, deep enough to set the entire plant in a vertical position. Place the plants close together and cover with fine straw. On warm days when they are not frozen remove the straw and allow the sun to shine on the plants. When the temperature goes low add more straw. Do not risk covering them with pine brush as is commonly done. During hard winters they must be put in ditches or they will be killed.

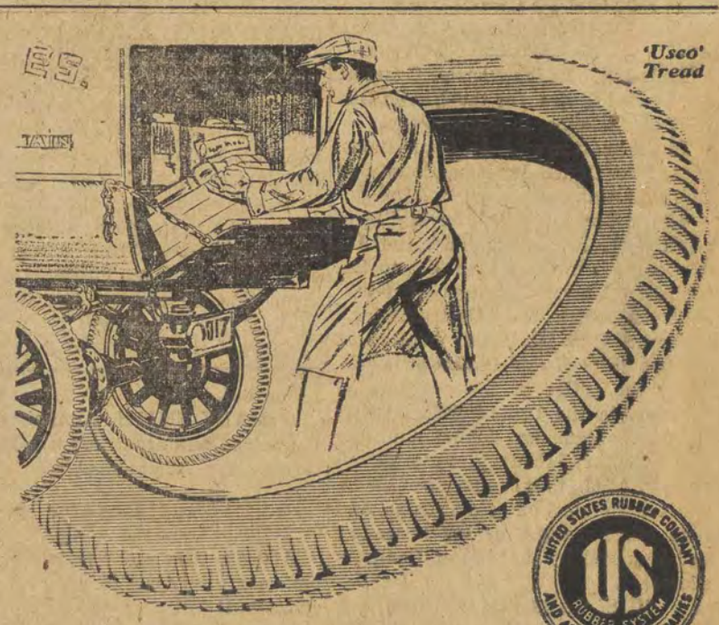
Half Your Living Without Money Cost

We are all at a danger point. On the use of good common sense in our 1919 farm and garden operations, depends prosperity or our "going broke."

Even at present high prices no one can plant all or nearly all cotton, buy food and grain at present prices from supply merchant on credit, and make money. Food and grain are higher in proportion than are present cotton prices.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to furnish nearly half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best two or three acres of cotton you ever grew!



Hastings' 1919 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the farm crops as well and shows you the clear road to real and regular farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

LEGAL NOTICE

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 1, 1919

Hon. Jno. L. Gore,
Sheriff of Chilton County,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

No U. S. Internal Revenue License have been issued in your county this month.

I hereby certify that I have carefully examined the record of the Collector of Internal Revenue and the above is complete and correct.

Yours very truly,
SAM P. JONES.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of February, 1919.

J. B. MOSLEY,
Notary Public.

Oscar L. Mims made a business trip to Birmingham last Friday. He plans to move up to the city soon to work.

OAK GROVE

On the night of the eighth of February the pupils and teachers of Oak Grove school rendered a very interesting entertainment in the form of a negro minstrel. Those present declare they never saw the production surpassed.

Among the most interesting items on the program were the roll call of a negro school, Judson was a man off to camp, ring the wedding bell, the negro dance, the unfinished breakfast, thars whar this darkey wants to go, elopment of American boys with French girls, and good night white folks.

These are only a few of the many interesting features of the program.

Those who perfomed their parts were well praticed and reflected great credit on the school. The attendance was good.

The teachers of Oak Grove school are Misses Roper, Millsap and Williams.

LEGAL NOTICE

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 12, 1919.

The Commissioners Court will be in session February the 22nd, 1919, to consider the Compulsory Tick Eradication Law. Will be glad for all concerned in building Vats to meet the Court.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Wallae C. Edler, of Thorsby, was here Tuesday.

TIME CHANGED ON THE CATTLE TICK BUSINESS

It is stated elsewhere in this issue of Th e Union-Banner that the County Commissioners will have a meeting on next Saturday in regard to the new statewide cattle tick law. But the date of the meeting has been changed to February 22. All concerned will please take due notice of the change, and come to the meeting on the 22nd instead of the 15th.

LEGAL NOTICE

According to an order passed by the Commisioners Court on February 10, 1919, I, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, will proceed to sell the vacant lot which belongs to Chilton county and which is situated directly in front of the Court House which recently burned, to the highest and best bidder for cash at 12 o'clock M., March 12, 1919; said sale to be held at the said vacant lot.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Commissioners Court of Chilton County was in session the first of this week. All the members of the Court were present. The session extended over Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. S. E. Waldrup, of Jemison, was in Clanton Monday. The Squire says he has not had the flu; and his looks shows it. He is looking fat and sassy.

CLANTON STUDY CLUB MET ON LAST FRIDAY.

Mrs. T. C. McSwain was the charming hostess of the Study Club on Friday afternoon, the seventh.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Earl Gowan, the Vice-President, Mrs. Splawn, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Grady Broadhead had charge of the program.

This meeting was the first of this fiscal year and with it began the new program which is based upon a study of Shakespeare.

The members responded to roll call with a quotation from the play being studied.

Mrs. W. P. Splawn read a splendid paper on Shakespeare's life. The first act of "The Merchant of Venice," was read by the members and a discussion led by Mrs. L. J. Duncan was very interesting.

Mrs. N. S. Johnson made a talk on "The Educational System of Alabama; does Clanton come up to the Standard?"

This concluded the program. Mrs. McSwain, assisted by Mrs. M. F. Jones, served a most delicious salad course.

At this meeting the new year book was presented to the members by the Committee in charge of this important work. The members were very much pleased with the appearance of the new book and the arrangement of the program. A vote of thanks was extended by the Club to The Union-Banner for the neatness and expedition employed in getting the book out in time for this meeting.

Mesdames R. E. Luckie, W. K. Mullins, and H. M. Simpson were guests at the meeting.

MT.NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo Singing Society met at Mt. Nebo Church last Sunday, Feb. 9th, with a large class and a few visitors, all of which we were proud to see.

The singing was opened with song by Mr. Jim Dunlap, who acted as Chairman during the absence of the regular chairman. Mr. Dunlap directed a short lesson while the program committee arranged the progrom.

The other directors for the afternoon were Messrs. William Cox, Eugene Williams, Luther Williams, Sam Culp and Calvin Parrish, 10 minutes each.

The singing was cosed with song by Mr. Dunlap and prayer by Mr. Parrish.

The Society will meet again next fourth Sunday, Feb. 23rd, at 2:00 o'clock prompt.

We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

OLLIE CHAPMAN,
Secretary.

MRS. BROADHEAD DEAD

Mrs. Calie Broadhead, wife of L. B. Broadhead, died at the family home in West Chilton on February 6th.

W. E. Robinson has received appointment in the Birmingham post office and gone there to take up his work.

COMMISSIONERS COURT FEBRUARY 10TH, 1919.

The Commissioners Court realizes that if the present system of buying and making bills against this county is not changed or checked, it will be but a short time until we cannot pay cash for what we buy. The county is now on a cash basis, but if we have to buy on a credit we will have to pay excessive prices, and of course will get deeper in debt.

We are trying to build a new Court House, we do not see where the money fill come from to pay for it with, but your records are not protected from fire as we have no vaults. If the house we are in were to burn, in all probability all the records would be lost. Then the Legislature has just passed a compulsory dipping law, this will cost the county a great deal, and we do not see where this money is coming from.

We as your Commissioners feel the responsibility of looking after the financial affairs of your county. We feel that the people of this county are looking to us to work this county out of the state of bankruptcy which it now faces, therefore, we have passed the following resolution which we must ask all to abide by for we will not issue any warrants for bills that do not comply with this resolution:

"Resolved, that on account of the financial condition of the county it is not able to pay the bills that are being made against it by the different parties, therefore, the Commissioners Court gives notice that they will not pass a warrant for any bill or claim against the county until the request to purchase or make the account is first submitted to the Commissioners Court and a permit is given by the said Court to make the bill."

The above resolution was passed unanimously by the Commissioners Court February 11, 1919.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

LOOK OUT FOR FAKES

We want to remind the farmers again this week to look out for fake schemers trying to sell them a "gold brick." There has been one or two of these agents in Clanton for several days, selling subscriptions to some useless farm paper which you will probably never see after you subscribe for it. If you want a farm paper get the Progressive Farmer of Birmingham, one that will do you some good and one which you are sure to get if you subscribe. Don't fool with the fellow that heads you off on every corner of the street and tries to persuade you to turn loose a dollar for a cheap and good for nothing farm paper with a war map and a pair of spectacles thrown in.

Attorney F. B. Collier has obtained his release from the army and has returned to Clanton. He will resume the practice of law, in connection with the Chilton County Abstract Co., in which he is interested.

A large crew of telephone men are at work in Clanton improving the property of the Bell Telephone Company in the city.

Thos. J. Dorminy, of Stumps Hills, now a member of Chilton County's Board of Commissioners, was in Clanton the first of this week looking after some duties of his office.

One four-room house, with city water and sewerage, located on the corner of 1st Street and 2nd Avenue; fronts 150 feet on 1st Street and 70 feet on 2nd Avenue; fronts East and South.

Also one six-room house, city water and lights on 2nd Avenue. A splendid home; lot 140 x 150 feet; fronts South.

One vacant lot, corner 2nd Avenue and 2nd Street; 70 feet front on the Avenue and 150 feet front on the Street. An admirable place to build a home.

All of this property is within one block of the State High School and within three blocks of the new $50,000 Court House.

Alabama Power Co. is going to put their power here in the near future, which not only means good service, but will bring in many other industries in its wake. If you want to live in Clanton you will have to buy or build, for there is not a house in town for rent. This property will double in value in the next two years. You can't go wrong if you buy real estate in Clanton. Why? Because Clanton is already the largest city between Birmingham and Montgomery; is surrounded on all sides by the best agricultural section in the State. Crop failure here is unknown. Our farmers are progressive and fully abreast of the times; 85 per cent white and own their own homes. The natural home of the truck grower and unsurpassed for stock raising.

OBITUARIES.

When you write obituaries or resolutions for publication in The Union-Banner, count the words and enclose price, which is one cent a word, with the article if you want it published. This applies to all obituary notices or resolutions passed by Lodges or religious organizations.

The Union-Banner is glad to have a number of persons in different communities say they will furnish us the news of their vicinity to publish in the paper. We want more of this kind of correspondence. If you want to write for the paper just say so and we will send you stamped envelopes to be used.

President Wilson will return to Washington from Paris in a few days. He is to be at the capital at the close of this session of Congress for the purpose of signing some important bills. He will however return to the peace conference in Paris by March 15.

Mr. W. W. Fox, the auctioneer, is planning a big day for Clanton Saturday. He has lots of good propositions to put before buyers who are looking for opportunities. Read his annunement on the front page of this issue of The Union-Banner and come to Canton Saturday and see what a big time we are going to have.

There are many people in Chilton county who do not want to dip their cattle to get rid of ticks, but the law recently passed by the legislature says it must be done. We hope everybody will comply with the requirements of the law without opposition for that is the best way to get along with the thing. The man who resists the law is going to make it harder on himself. Just better do what is required to be done and then we will be through with it.

The people of Shelby county are making an effort in the legislature to get back to the system of electing their board of county commissioners instead of having the Board of Revenue appointed by the Governor. For some years past a local law relating to that county has taken from the people the privilege of voting for these officers who handle the financial affairs of the county. We hope they get back to a rule of the people.

Chilton county is to have a tick eradication law now in spite of the recent disproval of such a thing by vote of the people. The legislature of Alabama has made the law statewide and every county that has not already done so is going to have to get rid of ticks by systematic government-approved methods of dipping cattle.

Saturday, Feb. 22 will see the beginning of the fight on ticks under this new law. Dr. Jackson, representing the government, will be in Clanton to meet the County Commissioners and get the work started off. It has been argued that cattle dipping was good and that it was bad. We shall all soon see for ourselves what there is to it. We must do it for the law says so. It is to be hoped that the county will be benefitted in the process.

FOR SALE—Several registered Berkshire sows; also a lot of pigs. JESSE A. DAVIS, Clanton, Ala., R. F. D. No. 6.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR FREE NATIONS

Beaten down by facts and the reasoning that is based upon them, President Wilson is retiring as gracefully as possible from his untenable position on the question of the league of nations. The supreme peace council is helping him to "save his face" by outlining a so-called league of nations, which is as different from his original proposal as day is from night. The league as now agreed upon will be nothing more than an international association, without power. Sovereign nations like the United States will remain sovereign, determining for themselves, absolutely without interference, upon such course of action at any time as seems best to them. The world is merely to have another advisory, statistical, rhetorical headquarters. President Wilson's original league of nations, the United States of the World, armed with military and naval power, and bound to suppress any nation that should dare to disturb the world's peace, has gone glimmering into the shadows of Never-Never land.

It is well. There should not be any league of nations on the original plan. It is in its essence internationalism, destructive of nations, and therefore dangerously resembling bolshevism. In order to live such a league of nations would have had to draw its strength from the nations, and therefore each nation would have been left weaker than before. No nation's peculiar problems could have been solved by itself alone, but would have been passed upon also by other nations, perhaps secret enemies.

The hard facts which have wrecked the ideal supernation are these: The civilized peoples of Europe have just saved themselves from slavery by the exercise of their strength organized in separate distinct nations. These nations are far from perfect organizations, but they are the best working systems yet devised by man for making his life, liberty and welfare reasonably secure. By grouping themselves in nations, peoples of the same blood and sympathy are able to combine their individual strength in fairly effective co-operation. Autocracy decreed that there should be only one nation; bolshevism decrees that there shall be no nations. The free and civilized peoples beat one of their assailants by sticking to the plan of fighting by nations. The fight with the other assailant is now beginning.

The logical deductions from the foregoing facts are these: Governments organized and maintained by free peoples are effective barriers against the tyranny of both autocrats and anarchists. Any project which aims at weakening free nations is therefore dangerous, if not fatal, to liberty. A league of nations acting as a substitute for free nations is an experiment. If not powerful, it cannot prevail; and if powerful, it most derive its power from free nations, thereby weakening their individual strength. Free peoples co-operate within a nation, but whether they would co-operate in a universal league of nations is doubtful, for this reason: In a nation all treason is purged, but in a league there may be traitor nations. Racial differences form barriers which are not removed by formal compacts, and different standards of living form economic obstacles which no league can surmount.

Nations must determine their own standards of living according to their ability. In a certain sense every nation is perpetually at war with other nations, with offensive and defensive economic weapons. Since the proposed league of nations was essentially a project to deprive individual nations of these weapons, it was an attack upon them. They resisted the destructive effect of direct attack by autocracy. They are resisting the destructive effect of indirect attack which would disarm them. They will resist the destructive effect of direct attack by bolshevism, or go down in universal anarchy.

In the coming war between liberty and anarchy there is no other plan which takes the place of organized nations acting in harmony according to the exigencies of the hour. If civilization is to be saved, it will be saved by free nations, not by a substitute.—Washington Post

MORE EVIDENCE

Every day that passes on our calendar presents numerous evidences arguing for the establishment of a public hitching ground and stables in Clanton for the benefit of people who come here from the country to trade.

Last Saturday Mr. George Jones, who runs a saw mill up near Jemison, came to town with his mill hands to pay them off as he does every two weeks. With them they brought a number of teams. He paid his men over two hundred dollars which they spent for supplies and provisions while they were here.

Mr. Jones came to The Union-Banner office and told the editor that he was glad of the plan that had been started to secure a place for people to hitch their teams while they are in Clanton to do their buying. He stated that while his men were in town spending their money their mules were standing by the side of the street some place hitched to the wagon wheels.

Now suppose it had been a bad rainy day as it often is. The teams would have been out in the weather with no protection at all.

Yet with all these inconveniences for the men and their teams the merchants of the town were taking their money across their counters.

This is one of the many instances that occur every day, and they all place an added obligation on the business men of our town to show the country people that they appreciate their business and are willing to provide some conveniences for them when they come here to trade.

The jury docket of Circuit court for this week was completed Wednesday, and the jury was dismissed to return to their homes. Next week a jury will dispose of the criminal cases now pending on the court register.

Keep Well

Do not allow the poisons of undigested food to accumulate in your bowels, where they are absorbed into your system. Indigestion, constipation, headache, bad blood, and numerous other troubles are bound to follow. Keep your system clean, as thousands of others do, by taking an occasional dose of the old, reliable, vegetable, family liver medicine.

Thedford's

Black-Draught

Mrs. W. F. Pickle, of Rising Fawn, Ga., writes: "We have used Thedford's Black-Draught as a family medicine. My mother-in-law could not take calomel as it seemed too strong for her, so she used Black-Draught as a mild laxative and liver regulator . . . We use it in the family and believe it is the best medicine for the liver made." Try it. Insist on the genuine—Thedford's. 25c a package. E-75

DECEASED EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS LAUDED ON TWO HEMISPHERES

Paris and London Join the U. S. in Paying Tribute to Theodore Roosevelt Whom They Call "The American."

Washington, Feb. 9.—In solemn services within the House chamber today the nation's leaders and representatives of foreign governments paid tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt. Members of Congress, Supreme Court justices. members of the cabinet, army and navy officers, and diplomats of many nations heard Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, praise Roosevelt as a statesman and as a man.

Crowded galleries and the throng of men and women who could not gain admission testified to the personal feeling for the man whose death shocked the world. It was this to which Senator Lodge, a close friend of the man he eulogized, referred when he spoke these words in the stillness of the House chamber:

"A tower is fallen, a star is set! Alas! Alas! for Celin.

"The words of lamentation from the old Moorish ballad, which in boyhood we used to recite, must, I think, have risen to many lips when the world was told that Theodore Roosevelt was dead. But whatever the phrase the thought was instant and everywhere.

"Variously expressed, you heard it in the crowds about the bulletin boards, from the man in the street and the man on the railroads, from the farmer in the fields, the women in the shops, in the factories, and in the homes. The pulpit found in his life a text for sermons. The judge on the bench, the child at school alike paused for a moment conscious of a loss. The cry of sorrow came from men and women of all conditions, high and low, rich and poor, from the learned and the ignorant, from the multitude who had loved and followed him, and from those who had opposed and resisted him. The newspapers pushed aside the absorbing reports of the events of these fateful days and gave pages to the man who had died.

"Flashed beneath the ocean and through the air went the announcement of Theodore Roosevelt's death, and back came a world-wide response from courts and cabinets, from press and people, in other far-distant lands. Through it all ran a golden thread of personal feeling which gleams so rarely in the somber formalism of public grief. It would seem that here was a man, a private citizen, conspicious by no office, with no glitter of power about him, no ability to reward or punish, gone from earthly life, who must have been unusual even among the leaders of men, and who thus demands our serious consideration."

Senator Lodge was the only speaker and the services were simple. Prayers by the Senate and House chaplains and anthems and patriotic hymns by the Marine Band added to the stirring spiritual nature of the services.

MINOOKA

As it has been some time since Minooka has been heard from and thanking The Union-Banner for a column, we appreciate it very much, enough to write a few sketches, and hope by another week we will have a better correspondent. We will have the teachers and pupils to report all the news.

Our school is progressing very nicely under the careful management of Mrs. Myrtle Virgin.

The health of our community is very good. The "flu" has about died out. We haven't any new cases.

Sunday School has been closed on account of influenza and bad weather, but hope to see everybody out next Sunday and revive our Sunday School up again.

We see some new buildings around Minooka which we feel proud of.

Mr. W. H. Clements, of West End, will soon be ready to move down in his new house which is being erected by Mr. Hoover.

C. A. McGee and J. T. Brown of Birmingham, motored down Sunday.

Mr. Brown was looking after his new farm which he has just purchased from Mr. C. A. McGee. He intends mostly for stock raising. We hope he will have much success.

Mr. Brown said he would be down in a few days to put out 100 fruit trees which will be a good investment on his farm.

W. A. Howard has got moved to his new home.

Mr. Champion will soon be ready for moving in his new house.

Mr. Henry Virgins has moved to South Calera.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Glass's baby died with pneumonia. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved ones.

TICK LAW IN CHILTON TO BE PUT IN OPERATION

The new state wide tick eradication law of Alabama recently passed by the legislature, will soon be put in operation in Chilton county.

We are informed that Dr. R. E. Jackson, of Birmingham, Inspector in charge of tick eradication work in Alabama, will meet the Commissioners of Chilton county next Saturday for the purpose of getting the new law in operation right soon.

Every farmer and cattle raiser in the county should be present at this meeting and learn what is to be done in connection with the operation of the new law.

I is hoped that a big crowd will be here to attend the meeting. It will be at the Court House next Saturday.

Red Cedar Shingles

We are expecting to receive a car load of "TITE-HOLD" Cedar Shingles this week. They are GUARANTEED for FORTY YEARS, and will cover from 15 to 20 per cent more space than other shingles, and are therefore cheaper.

Factory says they will not warp or curl on a roof.

Do not buy other Shingles or roofing until you have seen and examined these shingles. We believe it is economy to invest in these Red Cedar Shingles rather than use other cheaper coverings.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

The main object of the meeting on last Sunday morning was to hear the report of the Building Committee, and if possible, to decide upon the best location for the new house. These things were only partly accomplished. The Committee made only a partial report of what they wish to present to the Church, and owing to the inclement weather the membership attendance was not as full as it should be. On next Sunday morning the adjourned Conference will be resumed after a short sermon.

TIME TO BUY NITRATE OF SODA IS EXTENDED TO FEBRUARY 15,1919

Anyone Desiring Nitrate of Soda Can File Their Orders With J. N. Dennis, Clanton; J. H. Gulledge, Verbena, or R. M. Hubbard, Jemison.

Clanton, Ala., February 7, 1919.
Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to say to all farmers wishing to purchase Nitrate of Soda from the United States Government that the time allowed for making applications has been extended to February the 15th, and to advise as many farmers as have not already filed their orders to be sure and do so on or before the above date.

Any farmer wishing to take advantage of the above extension of time allowed to file application for Nitrate of Soda may see J. N. Dennis at Clanton, J. H. Gulledge at Verbena, or R. M. Hubbard at Jemison, either of whom will assist you in making your application to the Government for Nitrate of Soda.

The Nitrate of Soda will cost $8.10 per 200 pound sack at the port making it cost about $8.50 per sack delivered when shipped in car lots.

If some of it should have to be shipped locally it would probably cost about 10c more per sack to cover local freight.

Each application is to be accompanied by a deposit of $8.50 per sack to cover cost and freight.

DON'T FORGET the date as the application must be filed not later than Saturday, February the 15th, 1919.

If you need Nitrate of Soda this is your chance to get it at a saving of at least $10.00 per ton.

WAR SAVING WORK MADE PERMANENT

IT WILL BE PART OF THE GOVERNMENT'S ACTIVITIES HEREAFTER.

ALABAMA'S NEW HEAD

Is Arthur C. Crowder—Work in the Schools Will Be a Big Feature—Warning Against Scalpers.

The new State Director of the War Savings Campaign for 1919 in Alabama is Arthur C. Crowder, Manager of the Prudential Life Insurance Company for the State of Alabama and Mississippi J. J. Bowers, who was chief clerk of the state organization last year, has been made assistant state director Mrs. Richard F. Johnston has been re appointed state chairman of the woman's organization and John Sparrow, as state publicity chairman.

The most important fact in connection with this work is that the United States Government has decided to make it permanent. Consequently, systematic effort will be made, year in and year out, to induce the people to buy War Savings Stamps, which are first-class government securities and to educate Americans to an appreciation of the value and the pleasure of thrift This purpose is impressively emphasized by Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, in a message outlining the plan and scope of the 1919 campaign. Mr. Glass says:

The Ultimate Aim.

"The ultimate aim is to make investment in Government securities an every-day matter with us as it has become with the people of France and England. Most Frenchmen and French women look forward very early in youth to the day when they will be the proud possessors of "rentes," as their bonds are called. Rich and poor buy them for income, for old age protection, to provide education and dowries for children and to add to family business security and happiness.

"Twenty million Americans through interest in Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps have begun to gain a similar taste for saving through government interest-yielding securities. To perpetuate this valuable habit acquired as a war measure, it is planned, especially in connection with the sale of War Savings Stamps, to aid in meeting war obligations, to emphasize new arguments of every day patriotism, and of individual self-denial for saving and purchase of stamps, which will be equally compelling after the peace terms are signed."

Patriotism Still Needed.

Commenting on this announcement State Director Crowder says:

"The people of Alabama should remember that while the war is over, the obligations incurred in the winning of the war are by no means ended. Every individual, therefore, who calls himself or herself a patriot will not only continue to buy War Savings Stamps, but to hold them until maturity, unless forced by relentless necessity to cash them. In doing this they will also learn to practice thrift, and will soon find that they are getting ahead of life."

A Big Feature.

Work among the schools will be one of the big features of the 1919 campaign in Alabama. Professor J. H. Jackson, a well known educator, has resigned as principal of the Lakeview (Birmingham) High School, and will travel over the State organizing War Savings Societies in the schools. From the schools, the double idea of helping the government and learning to save will be spread by the children into the home; and great results are anticipated.

Warning Against Scalpers.

The State Director is in receipt of information that unscrupulous persons are endeavoring to induce holders of War Savings Stamps to sell them at a discount. The fact is that a War Savings Stamp is the only security that continually appreciates in value and consequently cannot go below par. The State Director warns the people to pay no attention to these "scalpers," but to hold their stamps, if possible, until maturity. If owners of stamps have to sell on account of sickness death or other calamity, they should take their stamps to a postoffice, and get the cash for them. Ten day's notice is required by postmasters but in cases of pressing necessity this is waived and the holder is paid, on the spot, the market price of his or her stamps, plus 3 per cent. interest.

Howard L. Foshee, of Cross Roads, was here last Saturday.

ARCHIE JONES WRITES LETTER FROM FRANCE

Somewhere in France, Jan. 16.
My Dear Father and Mother:

I will drop you all a few lines to let you hear from me. This leaves me in the best of health, and enjoying myself just fine.

I hope this will find you all in good health and enjoying life.

I am still in Marseillie, France. You ought to be here and you wouldn't be dreading all that cold weather "over there." We sure have nice weather here, but still I can't learn to talk this French language. You would laugh at me trying if you could only hear me once, but yet I get by.

I have been here quite awhile and haven't gone to Paris yet, but think I will some time soon. All of us that come here ought to go. I have been near Paris but that's not like being in the city.

Say, I guess everybody around old Corinth is getting very busy by this time; in fact, they have been busy all the while, but getting busier than ever.

Mama, you think, don't you, that I'll never come home again? But I'll fool you some time. About the time you quit looking for me I will step up; so don't worry in the least for I have got the big pond to cross yet. I don't know when I will get to sail for the U. S. A., but think it will be soon, or at least I hope so.

You can tell Papa that I have found him a good looking French widow over here, but if he wants her he will have to come after her, for I can't bring her to him, ha, ha.

Tell Alpheus and Lola to have some sausage ready for I expect to board with them when I get there, ha, ha.

I guess I had better close for this time, so be good till I see you all.

Your son, as ever,
ARCHIE JONES.

WORKERS BUSY ON PLANS FOR VICTORY LOAN NEXT SPRING

"Let's Finish the Job," Will be Appeal to Subscribers and Volunteers in Last Bond Campaign.

Atlanta.—Forces are being lined up throughout the country to put over America's fifth war loan—the last the public will be called upon to absorb—the early part of April.

The decision of the Treasury Department to designate the new bond issue as the "Victory Liberty Loan," seems to be meeting with general favor. The name carries the thought of the victory of America and her allies on the battlefields of France for the cause of freedom and democracy.

The amount of the loan will be determined by the needs of the Treasury Department when the issue is authorized. It is believed, however, it will be about six Billion Dollars—the same as the Fourth Liberty Loan. The interest rate of the securities has not been decided but assurances have been given that it will be attractive from the investory's point of view.

"Let's finish the job" is the appeal made by officials of the War Loan organization to purchasers of bonds of the previous issues and to workers. The county organizations are being reassembled for the last great effort.

In a statement just made public, Governor Joseph A. McCord, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, chairman of the Sixth District War Loan Organization, emphasizes the need of another loan.

"It was not alone the achievement of our soldiers in breaking the Hindenburg line that made Germany beg for an armistice though I would not rob the fighters of any of the glory, he said. It was the gigantic scale of preparation in America, behind the army; our huge production of arms, ammunition and ships; our greater army in training behind the firing line, that convinced Germany it was useless to fight any longer."

"By going into it as we did, a vast sum was spent, but it brought a saving in the lives of thousands of our young men. Critics have charged the Government with "extravagance" in handling war contracts. It was this determination to "win at any cost" that brought the Hun to his knees. It was economy, not only in lives but in money we would have been compelled to spend had the war lasted another year or two years longer."

The obligations now outstanding for this enormous production of material must be met. That is the reason it is necessary to raise more money through bonds even though the armistice has been signed. American soldiers still are in Europe and until they have been brought back and the bills paid, the public's duty to the Government will not be fulfilled—the job will not be finished.

SUBSCRIBER IN MISSISSIPPI

The Union-Banner has received a letter from Mr. Moses L. Childress of Tyro, Mississippi, enclosing a subscription to The Union-Banner. Mr. Childress says he lived in Chilton county when he was a boy. He left here in 1874. His father was Joel B. Childress who lived near Pleasant Grove church. He has several half brothers in this county now.

HOW UNCLE SAM WILL DEAL WITH THE TAX DODGERS OF COUNTRY

Commissioner Daniel C. Roper Makes Frank Statement as to the Internal Revenue's Attitude toward Taxevaders

Washington, Feb. 16.—How does Uncle Sam deal with tax-dodgers? This inquiry, which was prompted by the severe penalties provided in the new revenue bill, has brought from Commissioner Daniel C. Roper a frank statement as to the Internal Revenue Bureau's attitude toward those who attempt to evade taxation.

"Any person who deliberately conceals tax liability, or who falsifies a return in order to reduce or evade any internal revenue tax, or who deliberately abets such concealment or fraud, finds arrayed against him the entire strength of this Bureau pressing for the full civil and criminal penalties. That is the attitude toward the taxdodger, expressed in one sentence. Whether he is a moonshiner, a stealthy trafficker in habit-forming drugs, a juggler of income figures, a delinquent in making the sworn return the law requires, or a revenue violator of any other kind, the Bureau is charged with the duty of hunting him out and exacting the full punishment provided in the law.

"Toward the taxpayer who means to comply with the internal revenue laws, fully and honestly, the Bureau extends a helping hand. Co-operation with the taxpayer is our watchword and objective.

"One of the most difficult of many problems in tax collecting is to classify those who fail to fulfill the obligations imposed by law. The Bureau is obliged to maintain a large staff and to use the utmost discretion in properly labeling these cases. Even-handed justice is a heavy responsibility, and only through a careful sifting can delinquents be classified.

"There are three distinct classes of delinquency with which we have to deal. First, the taxpayer who had reasonable cause, brought about by exeptional conditions beyond his control; secondly, the fellow who didn't look up or didn't realize his obligations; and thirdly, the person who wilfully evaded compliance with the law.

"As for the man who shows a reasonable cause within certain lines established by the Bureau, no penalties are asserted. All other delinquents are more carefully investigated before prosecution is begun. Many of these offenses are caused by ignorance and negligence. Failure to make the reports required by law may in some cases warrant severe penalty, as where the delinquent continues his delinquency, after being warned of the penalty for failure to make return. However, if the delinquent takes immediate corrective action, and it is clearly established through investigation that he did not wilfully violate the law, the Bureau allows him to compromise his liability to specific penalty by tending a nominal sum of money. In such instances the money is not really in compromise but assessed to impress the taxpayer against future violations.

"But there is no relief, no compromise, for the man who wilfully evades, wilfully neglects, or wilfully falsifies. He is classed with other lawbreakers in the eyes of the Bureau, and is vigorously prosecuted in the courts. No other course is open to the Bureau, in meeting fairly and squarely the demand of the willing taxpayer "I will—the other man must." There is a solemn responsibility thus existing between the honest taxpayer and the Bureau to locate and punish the dishonest tax-dodger.

"For a decade the drift of Federal taxation has been from the direct tax toward direct payment by each citizen and resident of his just share of the cost of government. Gradually the circle of direct taxpeyers has been increased, and under the new revenue law extension will include hundreds of thousands who never before filed declarations with the Government.

"We are therefore now come to another milestone in national progress. We approach a new test of the soundness of American ideals of government of, by and for the people. The test is whether our wonderful victory of liberty is worth the cost as apportioned to the private pocket-book by the people's representatives.

"It is such a big thing, this collection of taxes directly from private funds and business funds, that nothing short of our best American co-operative effort can make it successful and hence just. The Bureau seeks this co-operation of the people in collecting the revenues. It has never been denied or stinted; anything less than the great, voluntary outpouring of shares in the national assessment is unthinkable.

"And it is such a big thing that the willing taxpayer must have the guarantee of this Bureau that the laggards, the jugglers and the violators will not escape taxation and penalties. The Bureau is fulfilling its part of this contract with the people—this contract that means so much in the practical, effective and just administration

INCOME TAX MUST BE PAID NOT LATER THAN MARCH 15TH, 1919

You must "File and pay by March 15th" is the new slogan of the Revenue Bureau. —This is New Revenue Law.

Income tax payments this year are due earlier than ever before. The first payment date is March 15th, simultaneous with the final due date of the return required by the new Revenue Law.

"File and pay by March 15" is the new slogan of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Collector John D. McNeel is preparing to handle the flood of income tax payments that will reach him between now and the close of business on Saturday, March 15th.

"Early payment of Income Taxes is of the utmost importance in meeting the Treasury's debts brought about by the war," explains Collector John D. McNeel. "The new law names March 15th as the first payment date because there are large obligations outstanding in the form of certificates of in debtedness that must be met on that date.

"The arly payment this year should cause no hardship to tax-payers, who, generally speaking, have anticipated the enactment of the new law and have set aside a reserve from 1918 income to meet the government tax.

"What is need now is another practical display of that great spirit of co-operation which has carried over the top every big governmental objective that had to do with the winning of the war. The persons and corporations who are called upon by the new law to pay income and war excess taxes on 1918 income have a great vital duty to perform. That it will be done in the thorough American way is a foregone conclusion.

"Every taxpayer who can possibly do so is urged to pay his entire tax when filing his return, on or before March 15. The installment method, by which one-quarter of the amount may be paid at that time, followed by quarterly payments on June 15th, September 15th, and December 15th, is intended for taxpayers whose financing of the tax at one time would tend to upset local financial conditions.

"Don't wait, until the final date, March 15th, for filing your return or paying your tax. Let us eliminate the last minute rush, so far as possible. By evenly distributing the load, between now and March 15th, every taxpayer will have a chance to get any needed advice and aid in determining his liability and preparing his return. The Internal Revenue Bureau has placed its entire energies into meeting the needs of taxpayers in this respect. Also, by distributing the load, the government machinery will be better able to stand the strain that this great effort entails.

"Co-operation is the spirit of the time. It is vital to the Income Tax. Let us all get together and establish another record for Americanism."

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY OF CHILTON CO. IN SESSION LAST WEEK

All Records of County Officials Found in Good Shape; Roads Of County Criticized and Recommendations made.

Circuit Court, Chilton County, Spring Term, 1919.

To the Hon. Judges of the 15th Judicial Circuit:

We, the Grand Jury, duly empaneled and sworn for the February term, 1919, of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, by the Hon. Judge Foster, beg leave to submit to your Honor our report as follows:

We have investigated 30 alleged violations of the law and return herewith to your honor 15 true bills.

The work of this Grand Jury has been very slow owing to the fact that we could not get witnesses summoned to report and give evidence concerning the alleged violations of law.

We have investigated the books of the officers of the various county officers and find them as far as we are able to see and determine in good shape. We found the books of the County Treasurer in exceptionally good shape, and they were easily understood even by the common layman. The books of the County Treasurer showed that in all the different funds the aggregate amount to the county's credit is $24,589.95.

We found the county jail in good condition, it being kept in a neat and sanitary condition. Since the meeting of the last Grand Jury our County Court House has been burned and the county officers have their offices in the J. P. Hayes building and it appears the work of the different officers is being carried on as usual. We recommend to the Court of County Commissioners that the new County Court House be completed as soon as possible, and that every step be taken in its construction with a view of taking care of the Records of all the officers of the county.

We have investigated the conditions at the County Poor House. While there was some complaint among some of the old inmates, we are of the opinion that the inmates are being well cared for. We found that there were 22 inmates, 8 males and 14 females, and the condition of the premises about the Poor House showed that the inmates were well cared for. We, however, recommend that the Judge of this Court appoint a committee of three from this Grand Jury to visit the Poor House of the County between this and the time the next Grand Jury of the County meets again and report the conditions they find upon this investigation.

We have the information from the reports that have come to this Grand Jury that the roads of the county are in bad shape, and we as a Grand Jury know this to be a fact. We do not say in this report that the Court of County Commissioners are faiing to do their duty, but we do say that the roads built with the money received from the bonds floated by the county will soon be gone and the county will have no roads at all. The Maplesville-Clanton Highway is now impassible and the money spent there appears to have done no good, therefore we call attention to this and hope the Court of County Commissioners will take some steps to improve the road condition in the county. We also recommend that all persons be required to put the full time of 10 days on the roads each year, and men above the age of 45 and those under the age of 18 work or help work the roads in their community when occasion demands it.

Feeling that we have accomplished all that could be required of us at this term of the Court, we respectfully ask that we be discharged with the thanks of the Court and the County officials for their valuable assistance in our work, subject to the further orders of this Court.

TOM KEMP, Foreman.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Last Sunday we had a snappy, bright and interesting Sunday school. A large proportion were present at the opening hour and the duet by Messrs. Littlejohn and Martin was greatly enjoyed. The classes were full and several absent teachers were greatly missed.

At a short church conference after the morning sermon the Building Committee reported progress, which report was received and endorsed by a unanimous standing vote.

At the night service Rev. S. B. Culpepper, a new comer in Clanton, preached a most helpful sermon to an interested and appreciative congregation. At the close the preacher remarked that he had never had better attention anywhere.

The Ladies Aid Society met with Mrs. W. A. Kemp last Monday and had a large attendance. Three new members were received. Mrs. Hester made an interesting report of the recent W. M. U. meeting at Marbury. At the close delightful refreshments were served. The next monthly meeting will be entertained by Mesdames E. E. Upchurch and J. P. Crumpton.

The subjects at the Baptist Churh on next Sunday will be: "Christ's First Advent and its Mission." At 7 p.m., "The Second Advent and its Manner."

HERFF TO HOLD BIG CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Herff Motor Corporation will be held next week at Jackson, Mich., where the factory for Briscoe cars is located. H. Honeycutt, of Calera Motor Co. local dealer, will attend. Other dealers from all parts of the South will attend the convention, which promises to be the largest of its kind ever held.

The Herff Corporation is very optimistic over the outlook for the automobile industry for the coming season. With war restrictions removed, they expect to be able to supply the heavy demand for cars, owing to the enormous capacity of their forty-three-acre plant. Ad

100-GALLON STILL IS CAPTURED IN BIRMINGHAM ON TUESDAY

Purity Squad Arrests Nicholas Colias Candy Company, 2227 Second Ave., and Confiscates $7500 worth of Property.

A whiskey still said by revenue officers to be the largest still ever operated in the South, located on the second floor of the Colias Candy Company, at 2227 Second Avenue, was yesterday afternoon seized by Detectives Patton and McGill of the local purity squad. Eight hundred gallons of mash and 10 gallons of whiskey was confiscated and Nicholas Colias, proprietor of the company, was placed in the county jail by the officers.

Upon receiving a tip that whiskey was being made there the officers Tuesday afternoon raided the place and found the still in operation, the whiskey being found running out of the cooling worms into five-gallon jugs. They immediately called Government Officers Robertson and Allison, who were at the government building, and upon arrival the experienced revenue officers declared that the still was the largest they had ever seen, and believed it to be the largest ever operated in the South.

The boiler for the still was located in the basement of the building 20 feet below the sidewalk and pipes through which steam was run to operate the still were run thru the floors of the building to the second story in which the still was stationed.

When the detectives arrived steam was flying in every direction and the still was running in full blast. When the officers reached the second floor, where the 800 gallons of mash was found, they state that Colias grabbed the 5-gallon jug in which whiskey was running, cut off the stream and ran to the first floor, where he concealed himself in a closet.

The offiers followed the proprietor of the candy company and placed him under arrest, which was the only arrest they made.

The confiscation includes $50,000 worth of real estate, the contents of the building, which will amount to several thousand dollars, and the revenue officers state that the copper still, which was of 100 gallons capacity when junked will net $200. Of the total amount of the property confiscated and sold, the detectives will receive one-fourth each, the sheriff of Jefferson county one-fourth and the other one-fourth will go to the city and county.

TUMULTY MAKES US "COUGH UP"

It nauseates us protestants when we think back only a few weeks when we had to dig down in our jeans and pay the Knights of Columbus, thirty million dollars in order to get to give our boys some money.

Yet, on orders from Washington we had it to do.

Mr. Wilson ordered us to do it.

Do you know the Knights of Columbus is a secret organization—secret like the Masons and Odd Fellows?

Did you ever hear of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Baker ordering you to give anything to any of the other secret orders in order to build them up?

You most assuredly did not. Mr. Tumulty would see to it that no such an order came from the White House. But on the other hand he saw to it that all secret orders except the one to which he belongs—the Knights of Columbus, were ordered off the Government reservations.

This is along the same lines pursued by Gen. Funston in Mexico when he chased all the protestant preachers out of the camps in Mexico and left the field clear to the Catholics.

This is along the same line of action that allows the Stars and Stripes on our battleships lowered and the dirty rag representing the pope and his murderous gang, hauled above it, during "divine" service on the battleships.

In the sight of a Catholic priest there is no divine worship unless conducted by a Catholic.

It the sight of a Catholic there is no legal marriage unless it is performed by a pot-bellied priest of the Roman church.

In their sight nothing is right unless sanctioned by the pope, yet this is the same bunch to whom we had to donate thirty million dollars. Don't you like it? What are you going to do about it?—Collinsville Courier.

HERE'S WHAT WE'LL DO

The average American citizen has been slow to realize or admit the possibility of such abuse of liberty and free opportunity as is so forcibly related in the article above from the Collinsville Courier. Our people have sat unconsciously idle while Rome has wound her serpent firmly about our free institutions and sank its poisonous fangs deep in the vitals of our government.

It is just this lethargy and incredulity that has given Rome her opportunity, and she has seized it, and in this country as everywhere through all her history, made the most of her opportunity by cunning, trickery, deceit and Jesuitry.

Now there is no need and no further excuse to misinterpret and disregard Rome in her crusade to "make America Catholic," with her war cry—"God wills it, because the Pope has declared it."

Here is the exact truth. We are in a life and death struggle! The responsibility for victory rests on you, my reader! What do you say: Is it to be victory or defeat? Is it to be America and the free institutions and liberties for which our forefathers stained the new England hills with their precious blood? Or on the other hand is it to be Rome and the treacherous domination of our public institutions by the foreign influence of this most gigantic so-called religious fraud?

We will line up for victory!

The Courier asks what will we do about it? There is to be something done about it, and it is going to be done, even if it must call us again to the point of a bayonet and the muzzle of a flint and steel rifle.

There is a vigorous organization working zealously in this country now to oppose the efforts of Rome to make America Catholic. Some of the things to be done are these:

The liberty-loving and patriotic American people must take part in elections to such an extent as to insure the defeat of all candidates who are Catholic or the least wise inclined favorably to the Catholics. In every state and county in the country a solid mass must move on the ballot box and crush the life out of any candidate, regardless of party, who aspires to advance the Roman dogma through the prestige of holding a public office.

In prosecuting a plan along the above lines in regard to the ballot the people will nip in the bud all such schemes as that one which placed Pat Tumulty, the Roman Catholic and Knight of Columbus, between President Wilson and the millions of people whose president he was supposed to be.

This plan would save protestant preachers from such treatment as was accorded them by General Funston in Mexico, and it would give all other secret orders the same privilege that was given the Knights of Columbus in the army camps.

The voter with his ballot will be taught to wield it in the interest of that greatest of all our great noble institutions, the public school. This unlimited freedom ingrained in the youth of our land through a clean American public school in which the open Bible is read will produce a generation of men who will defy the pope even as they have defied the Kaiser, and chase every pot-bellied priest of the Roman Church out of the country.

Would you dream of men brought up under the freedom of a wholesome American educational system and the precepts of a goodly protestant religion, being flaunted in the face with such a blasted pronouncement as that in which Rome declares the "Civil marriags in the United States is the flimsiest and most transparent form of legalized concubinage in the world."

Do you think that honest liberty-loving and God-fearing American boys will through all time to come have to stand for being called bastards by bald-headed wine-soaked numbskulls who are not even fathers to a man-sized thought much less a man-sized man?

We say no. A thousand times no. The process of education against this gigantic evil has already begun. Our men of today are erecting a danger-signal that will warn our boys of tomorrow, and before very many more generations of Americans shall have passed this way the battle that is to oust Rome from participation and meddling in free American government and institutions of citizenship will have been well fought. It will be fought at the ballot box first, and if not successful there it will again be fought on the hills and valleys in hand-to-hand conflict of battle at the point of bayonets and in the face of cannons.

The battle is coming and victory for America and Americanism over Rome and Romanism will be the verdict of the American people.

That is what we believe is going to be done about it, Mr. Smith.

Now, we will bring this question to a close by quoting from Rev. C. H. Parkhurst, as follows:

"We are not antagonizing anyone's religion, but religion is one thing and politics is another. Grasping for the salvation of souls is one thing and grasping for power to shape the politics of a city or state to rule the destinies of a nation is something else."

ATKINSON PROMOTED

Attorney J. B. Atkinson has received another promotion in his work with the State Draft Board at Montgomery. In regard to the latest recognition of his services and ability we find the following in The Montgomery Advertiser last Saturday:

The delinquent and deserter section of the State Draft Executive's offices at the capitol has been moved to suite 1025 Bell building, and placed in charge of J. B. Atkinson, chief clerk in the office of the Draft Executive.

Mr. Atkinson will be remembered as having won the commendation of Provost Marshal Crowder for saving the records of the Chilton county draft board when the county court house was destroyed by fire in 1918.

Uncle Sam gave the Germans a sound thrashing in less than no time. Now comes a report that they want to borrow money in this country. What do you think of that? It quite often happens that if you treat a "friend" real nice he will pop up and invite you to part with a couple of beans. But we never heard of a fellow getting a good whipping and then trying to borrow money from his adversary before he even got recovered from the combat.

IT WAS NOT ROBERT

It was not Robert Bean who had a fight in Clanton on Monday of last week. Through misinformation he was given credit for the fight in last weeks paper, but we are glad to state that Bob was not guilty of the charge. It was Elbert.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

We are all at a danger point. On the use of good common sense in our 1919 farm and garden operations, depends prosperity or our "going broke."

Even at present high prices no one can plant all or nearly all cotton, buy food and grain at present prices from supply merchant on credit, and make money. Food and grain are higher in proportion than are present cotton prices.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to furnish nearly half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best two or three acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1919 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the farm crops as well and shows you the clear road to real and regular farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

WILL SELL

"PATSY"

The Iron-grey Horse

Being impressed with the idea that we can operate a truck for draying purposes cheaper than we can feed a horse, we have decided to sell "Patsy", the iron-grey horse you have seen on the streets of Clanton for some time. She would be a valuable farm animal.

If you are interested, come in and see us.

MR. AVERAGE CITIZEN TO BUMP INTO FEDERAL TAX EVERYWHERE HE GOES

Washington.—'Twill be a cold day in 1919 when Mr. Average Citizen doesn't pay a federal tax of some sort.

If you are not hit daily by an income tax, then you may contribute to tobacco revenue. Or, perhaps a dish of ice cream. If you don't use either, then there is the movie ante.

Or you may take a little train trip, and donate to the treasury both on ticket and Pullman. And if you change your mind and phone long distance to say you won't be there, there's the tax on the telephone call.

And if you pay your insurance premium—more taxes.

Perhaps your thirst calls for nearbeer—more tax. Even real liquor can get in on this thirst tax yet awhile.

And there's your club dues tax. Elimination of the nineteenth hole, however, may equalize that item for you.

But cheer up, the symphony orchestra can still "symp" untaxed. The high-brow stuff gets by even if common movies don't.

And there's the excise taxes—on everything you can think of. Take a joy ride in a taxed auto. Step off a little rag accompanied by a taxed piano, your lady chewing taxed gum wearing taxed clothing. Then cool off by a taxed electric fan. And take a little drink out of a taxed thermos bottle.

And when your wife goes shopping—then's when you'll pay the war bill. That luxury tax certainly draws the line. You can't very well ask friend wife not to go above those luxury prices. She couldn't then tell her friends about the awful tax.

That there will be no general extensions of time beyond March 15th. for the filing of returns and for the payment of Income and Excess profits taxes due on that date, is the decision of Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The announcement was made today by Collector John D. McNeel, immediately following the approval by the Senate and House of the report of the conferees on the new Revenue Bill.

"It is necessary to get the initial tax payment in by March 15th, says Commissioner Roper. No other course is possible. Some months ago, the Treasury issued certificates of indebtedness to an amount approximating $800,000,000, maturing March 15th. The first payment of the Income and Excess Profits Taxes for 1918 was planned for that date, to meet this huge obligation.

"The American people have proven that there is no emergency too great to be met and solved by co-operation. This present situation is another emergency which can be overcome by co-operative effort. The Bureau extends its every force toward this end, and I am relying upon the people to meet the situation whole-heartedly.

"The Internal Revenue Bureau must carry out the programme prescribed in the new law, which requires all returns for 1918 to be filed on of before March 15th, 1919, and requires the first quarterly payment or the entire payment to be made on or before that date.

"Every taxpayer who can possibly do so is urged to make full payment of his income on or before March 15th. The quarterly payment method is intended for taxpayers whose financing of the tax at one time would tend to upset local financial conditions."

LEGAL NOTICE

According to an order passed by the Commisioners Court on February 10, 1919, I, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, will proceed to sell the vacant lot which belongs to Chilton county and which is situated directly in front of the Court House which recently burned, to the highest and best bidder for cash at 12 o'clock M., March 12, 1919; said sale to be held at the said vacant lot.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

CORRESPONDENTS NOTICE

Some writers to the Union-Banner continue to send long obituaries to the paper in spite of the announcement carried in every issue of the paper that we do not publish such articles unless cash accompanies the manuscript to the amount of one cent per word. All correspondents to the paper will please take notice of this policy of the paper and not go to the trouble and expense of writing them unless they expect to pay to get them printed.

G.W. Marcus has sold his restaurant and meat market in Clanton and gone to Thorsby to engage in the Produce business. He has a large motor truct to operate his business with and promises the farmers some good service in handling their produce.

IN MEMORY

Miss Zelma Stitt was born June 18, 1882, at Wehadkee, Ala., became a member of Hillabohatcha primitive Baptist church in the year 1900, and in 1903 she became a member of the Missionary Baptist church at Livingston, Ala., and June 25th, 1907, she was married to M. Manning. She taught several schools in various communities and gave almost perfect satisfaction in every school she taught; was in the publicschool at Thorsby in 1915, and owing to declining health she left off teaching and since has been living three miles west of Thorsby. In July last she had a partial stroke of paralysis and suffered most all the time, but she bore her suffering with patience till death Feb. 5, 1919.

I have been personally acquainted with her for the past two years and found her to be a devoted Christian in her home helping her sister to rear her 4 children, a devoted companion, a Christian worker wherever found. She was a tireless worker in her church and Sunday school at Pates Chapel, and was conected with the County S. S. work till her health forced her to retire. And I learn that even on her death bed she did mission work, talking and praying with friends and relatives and was conscious of her serious illness, but was resigned to the will of the Lord and died full triumph of a living faith.

Her remains were carried to Roanoke, Ala., and met by relatives and friends and conveyed to Hillabahatchee church and laid to rest after funeral services conducted by Rev. J. D. O'Keefe. The news of her death was received with sorrow by every one who knew her because of the loss of her devoted husband, 5 sisters, 2 brothers, and a host of relatives and friends in this and other communities and also our church and Sunday school. But weep not dear ones for our loss is heaven's gain.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

BACK ON THE JOB

I am glad to announce that, after having put the Kaiser to flight, I am now back at my same old post with The Union-Banner. As most of my readers know, I was denied the chance to go to France, but after all I know I was engaged in one of the fiercest battles of this awful conflict, namely the battle of Camp Pike. I come back home knowing about as little about real warfare as I did before I left, however I believe I am about as proud to get back home as any of those who saw the whole thing done.

The many friends of the paper are due lots of thanks for the noble way they have stood by the Banner during these trying times, and it is due to their help that we are now able to give you one of the best weekly papers in the State.

The work which Mr. E. C. Powell did for the paper while my brother and I were away has been invaluable, and we are deeply indebted to him for it.

We shall be glad to see and talk with any of our old friends who may have the time and chance to call on us. Come around when you are in town.

Very Sincerely Yours,
Thos. E. WYATT.

THEIR ABILITY NOTICED

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country." These words were spoken many centuries ago by Him whose wisdom and foresight no man has ever questioned. It is one of the many everlasting truths that were handed to mankind from the lips of the lowly Nazarene.

The statement says that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country; but it is just as true of any other person of honor and proven ability. The man of worth, the man of great character, the man who is in every sense truly a man, is recognized as such more by other people than he is by his closest neighbors.

Christ's own people would not accept his great teachings. He found more favor among strangers than he did among the Jews; and so it is with every great mind.

The great character of Lincoln is better understood and more highly honored by people in this country today than it was by his own people who lived when he lived.

And now in our own span of knowledge and experience we find instances that bear proof of the statement with which we began this discussion. Our purpose is to point you to an instance with which all are acquainted that proves the truth of the assertion.

Just only last summer you remember that some designing enemies of his neighbors, fellow citizens too, by their public assertions, spread the untruthful impression abroad that Sheriff Harris had been arrested and placed in jail on account of some crookedness that was said to have been found in the records and actions of the county draft board of which he was Chairman. The wild assertion was taken up by other malicious persons and blown bigger and bigger as they traveled further and further. An attempt was made by some of his own people in the county to prove him crooked, unworthy and without honor. To do this they resorted to the spreading of very base and unfounded lies.

As proof of the good record that was really and truly made in the management of the affairs of the Chilton County Draft Board we call your attention to the way Sheriff Harris and his clerk, Mr. Atkinson are recognized by the authorities in charge of the draft machinery of the State.

Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Harris have been placed in charge of the Deserter and Delinquent department of the State draft board by the State Draft Executive, and they are now at work in tracing up records of over thirty thousand men in the state who are delinquent in their duties to the military establishment of the country in the recent great war.

So you see, even in spite of the fact that some of their neighbors had them already in jail for inefficiency and crookedness, the state officials recognize their ability and have placed them in charge of a very important part of Alabama's draft machinery.

It is often your next-door neighbor whom you possibly have pulled out of the ditch many a time, who thinks you are a rascal and not to be trusted.

Chilton County should be proud of the way her draft board did its work. They sent lots of us boys to the army, and it was their duty to do it. They were always fair and square about it. As proof of which we present the manner in which Mr. Harris and Mr. Atkinson are complimented by the state authorities.

Is it just natural for Alabama's legislature to be "plum wild" on some subject? That one at Montgomery now seems to be raving just about as bad as all the others have done in the past.—Clanton Union-Banner.

They seem to be determined to save the state the few dollars that has been paid to printers heretofore, if it bankrupts the state. They are going to pay that purchasing committee a salary of $18,500.00 per year in order to save the state a few dollars that is now being paid to the printing corporations like the Collinsville Courier, Union-Banner, Ashville, Aegis and the Punkin Center News. —Collinsville Courier.

B. L. Cobb of Jemison was in Clanton Tuesday and made a visit to the Union-Banner office which was much enjoyed by the editor. Berney used to be Deputy Sheriff in his end of the county and he was "all right and a plum good one."

REAL REVOLUTION MAY BREAK OUT IN GERMANY

Imminent Upheavel of Workmen, Not Political, but Economic.

The real revolution threatens to break out in Germany at any hour. This imminent upheaval is not political, but economic and it is being organized by the workmen themselves.

For the past few days delegates from the workers council of the Essen region have been serving ultimatums on the new German cabinet insisting upon socialization of industries, minimum wages higher than the present maximum wages, recognition of all workmen's councils and abolition of capitalism. The workman's program borders on communionism but they declared against violent methods "unless absolutely necessary."

More than half the cabinet members are devoting their entire time to dealing with the workmen's representatives, who are headed by Theodor Will of Essen. Chancellor Scheideman is attempting to compromise by promising socialization 'as soon as possible." This does not satisfy the distrustful workmen, who are utilizing every hour of delay to extend their organization, increase their supplies and infect government troops with the spirit of non-resistence against the workers when the break comes.

Will, who is a clear-minded practical labor leader, about forty years of age, said:

"We do not want violence; we simply demand fulfilment of the revolution, which, so far has not been a revolution, but merely a change in the form of government."

"The same upper classes who ruled before are grabbing control of the republic. If the cabinet refuses our demands, I have authority to start the general strike in the Krupps and other factories and seize the mines and railways within 24 hours. Thirty thousand armed workmen are organized under my command in Central Germany alone. The Berlin and Hamburg regions are equally organized and armed Dusseldorf, Essen, Leipzig and other cities are under control of the workmen's councils, the administration of whom is entirely orderly.

"We are not Sparticans nor Communists. We are simply workmen demanding a genuine revolution. I have talked with most of the cabinet members. They are simply trying to put us off. I told Noske (military governor) what would happen if they ordered the troops out against us. He stormed and tore his hair. He knows we have the majority of his troops with us. Inside of a day we can tie up all means of communication in Germany."

Scheidman blames the new armistice terms for the present situation.

"Suppression of bolshevism depends on whether we are able to provide the country with sufficient food," said the chancellor.

"Only after this is done can the new cabinet take up its duties of rebuilding the nation's economic life. Socialiaztion can be applied to only such industries as mines and electrical systems. We cannot socialize where productivity will be decreased and individual initiative lessened. Everything depends on our connections with the world's markets, enabling the lowering of both food prices and abnormal wages."

Arthur Tippett of the U. S. Navy is here this week.

Mr. P. D. Wilson has had a demonstrator with him several days this week demonstrating a large truck for his saw mill west of Jemison.

CORN, PIG AND TOMATO CLUBS WILL ORGANIZE

We must help feed the hungry world; a hungry world is calling on us for food. England, France, Belgium, Italy, Turkey and other countries are exhausted. This nation alone retains intact the resources and energies of a rich continent and we must employ our boys and girls to help feed the hungry multitude. We are going to do this by having corn clubs, pig clubs, poultry clubs and tomato clubs.

First, we must organize; second, we must have money; third we must pay the prizes; fourth we must stand together; fifth, we must work, work, work.

To parents: Have your child to join the club he or she is just fitted for, then go to work and win the prize which will be announced at an early date.

We are taking this privilege of asking each and every one to help in this great work. We have the boys and girls and we have cash, so let us get busy and show our neighbor counties that we are doing things in old Chilton that are worth while to the farmers. Give what cash you can, for you want your child to be the winner of this prize.

To the Merchant: Give something worth while—money, new hats, shoes, suits. Anything you can give will be appreciated highly.

Remember we claim Chilton to be the garden spot of Alabama. We can prove this by standing to each other. You help my child and I help yours, then by and by when the harvest is reaped we can sit by our firesides and appreciate our dear boys and girls for whom we are all living, working and spending our money.

If you want to enlist your boy or girl see or write your county agent, W. H. Conway, Jemison. If you have money or merchandise to help in this great cause see or write,

INDIAN PRINCESS GOES OVERSEAS AS Y. M. C. A. WORKER

Princess Galilohi, Descended From Cherokee Chieftain, Joins Canteen Forces in France.

A real, sure-enough Indian princess, is going to France to help entertain the American soldiers and sailors until the last one of them has been returned to the United States.

She is Princess Galilohi, great granddaughter of the famous King Cooweeskowee, chief of the Cherokees, and her mission in France will be in connection with the canteen work of the Y. M. C. A. Her Americanized name is Miss Anne Ross and for two years or more she has appeared as a lecturer, singer, dancer and exponent of the tribal life of her chosen people. She was chosen to pose for the Zolnay statue of Sequoia, an ancestor of the Cherokee nation and inventor of the tribal alphabet. This statute stands in the Hall of Fame at Washington, D. C.

The princess will have a rather diversified program. She will sing Indian songs and dance Indian dances for the American soldiers and sailors and between times will dispense the dozens of different articles that are part of the stock of every Y. M. C. A. canteen. She is highly educated and has several times acted as a mediator between her people and the white residents of Oklahoma, her native state.

FRENCH HONOR Y. M. C. A. EXECUTIVE

Dr. John P. Mott Is Made Chevalier of Legion of Honor—Extensive Work of "Y" Among Poilus.

DR. JOHN R. MOTT

General Secretary of National War Work Council, Y. M. C. A., Who Has Been Accorded High Honors by French Government.

As a mark of recognition and appreciation of the work done for the French soldiers by the American Y. M. C. A. forces abroad, the French government has conferred the signal honor of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon General Secretary John R. Mott, of the National War Work Council of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A.

Telegraphic advices from Washington conveyed the news of the distinction granted Dr. Mott, whose home is in New York City. The telegram, signed by Edouard deBilly, Deputy High Commissioner, was as follows: "I take pleasure in notifying you that the French government has conferred upon you the title of Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur. Please accept my heartiest congratulations."

The National War Work Council, under Dr. Mott's supervision, in addition to its labors among the American Expeditionary Forces, has maintained more than 1,500 foyers du soldats, as the Red Triangle huts are known by the French poilu. Up to the month of October, 1918, close to eight million dollars had been expended in "Y" work among the French and other allied soldiers served by the huts.

"Y" ENTERTAINERS NEEDED IN FRANCE

While certain branches of the work the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. has been doing for some time are being curtailed, one type of service is being called upon for more co-operation than ever before. Although for some time there have been approximately 400 to 500 entertainers in France, many difficulties have surrounded this type of service and the thousands of shows which have been given in France have only been put over in spite of almost superhuman difficulties. Now, however, with the period of demobilization forcing upon the Army new problems has a real spirit of co-operation been shown by the Army authorities. Therefore, General Pershing has detailed Colonel Kelly, from his own Staff, to act as entertainment officer for the A. E. F., which position places him as the liaison officer between the Army and the "Y" Entertainment Bureau in Paris.

Theatres and large buildings are being taken over, mechanics supplied by the Army are putting them into operation and the "Y" is producing shows, given by soldier talent alone, and also dramatic and vaudeville performances and miscellaneous musical programs, the personnel of all of which must be recruited from this country.

Owing to the large number of men in the Army with entertainment ability, no effort is being made to send men from this side. Women, however, are wanted for these positions in large numbers. 125 must be sent out from this country every month, which will require the co-operation of every recruiting agency throughout the country. All entertainers are supplied with uniforms, Life, Accident and Health Insurance, transportation, and allow $150.00 per month for living expenses in France.

The women should be preferably between the ages of 23 and 30, neat and attractive and possessed of a pronounced ability in their particular line. The field for entertainment now reaches from the coast towns in France right up and into Germany, for while the "Y" cannot do much with the Army of Occupation in the way of Canteen, it can supply entertainment and is doing so on an increasingly large scale. Information may be obtained from W. C. King, Peters Building, Atlanta, Ga.

DOUGHBOYS INVADE HISTORIC RESORTS

Haunts of Napoleon Are Home to A. E. F. Troops Through Efforts of Y. M. C. A. Forces to Better "Leave" Facilities.

Paris.—Where Napoleon III and King Edward VII of England spent many leisure hours the American enlisted men are now at play. The famous yacht club at Cannes, founded and patronized by King Edward, and St. Sauveur, where the third Napoleon was wont to go with his court, indicate the variety of attractions offered by the Y. M. C. A. in the leave area system operated in co-operation with the military authorities. From the Alps to the Pyrennes and from the Brittany coast to the Riviera, there are seven "Y" leave areas in which 50,000 soldiers can be entertained at one time. Preparations are now under way to increase these much-appreciated facilities to double their present capacity.

Representatives of the army and of the Y. M. C. A. are now traveling from one end of France to the other seeking new spots in which to set up leave areas. The experiment at Aix-les-Bains has been successful from the start, as America now knows pretty well from first-hand information carried home by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who organized the woman's canteen work at Aix.

"Aches and Pains" was an ideal spot for the experiment, but six others have been found and put in operation, each equally satisfactory as the original model. Consequently it is with optimism that the army and the "Y" seek to increase the centres where sure cures have been found for homesick doughboys.

Location, climate, hotel accommodations, opportunities for entertainment and sight-seeing and the moral and physical cleanliness of the area are all-important in the selection of a leave resort. As soon as a site is selected the largest available is obtained by the Y. M. C. A. as its main center of operations, men and women are assigned to service and negotiations are begun to secure reduced prices from such entertainment enterprises as cannot be duplicated by the Y. M. C. A. and every effort is made to give as much service as possible. The army provides transportation and pays the hotel bills, thereby enabling the soldier to enjoy all the attractions formerly restricted to kings and emperors and malefactors of great wealth.

The Jetty Casino at Nice and the Municipal Casino at Cannes are the centres of attraction in the Riviera for the 8,500 men who can be accommodated in this area. Many officers favor this Mediterranean section and there is a "Y" club for them. Everything except the gambling that was stopped by the government at the beginning of the war is at the disposal of the Americans. Golf and tennis and other athletic sports, bathing, boating and the companionship of the local population are the most popular attractions.

VICTORY LOAN WILL PUT COUNTRY BACK ON PEACE BASIS

Billions Needed To Pay Producers And Teach Maimed Soldiers New Trades.

Once in a while someone asks: "What's the need of another Liberty Loan now that the war's over?"

Officials of the War Loan organization in this district have replied by outlining some of the purposes for which money will be needed by the Government next spring.

It is shown that the amount raised by the Fourth Liberty Loan lasted only until December first. Expenditures are going on now at the rate of nearly two billion dollars a month. There will be a gradual reduction of treasury disbursements as the war debts are wiped out. The revenue from taxes will not be sufficient to pay all the bills, so the people will be called upon to provide the money by subscribing to Government bonds. The issue will be for not more than six billion dollars.

Pay Day at Home.

This enormous outlay of money is going to pay off the army of producers at home—the farmers, merchants, manufacturers and others. America had just begun to fight when the Hun decided it was time to quit. Allied leaders expected the war to last another year and the United States Government was turning out ships, arms, ammunition and food with a view to overwhelming Germany next fall.

Treasury officials have revealed that America would have had a tank at the front for every seventy-five feet of the line in 1919—thirty thousand tanks! We would have had ten tons of mustard gas ready for shipment for every ton Germany could produce. Thousands of batteries of guns would have been in action for every one America had in 1918. Everything else was being produced in proportion.

This gigantic preparation brought an early end to the war and saved thousands of lives. Victory Bonds will pay for this work which had been contracted for and was being delivered when the armistice was signed.

Army Being Demobilized.

There are other purposes for which money is needed.

Part of our army of two million men must be kept in Europe until the peace treaty is signed. These soldiers must be fed, clothed and otherwise maintained. Then they must be brought home. The sick and wounded must be cared for in hospitals. The army must be demobilized. There are thousands of maimed soldiers, heroes of the great war, who must be taught self-supporting trades and given an opportunity to earn their living.

This reconstruction work at home must be carried on. The job must be finished. The American people who furnished the money to win the war must supply it also to bring the nation back to a peace basis.

Gadsden Woman Chosen To Name "Victory Vessel"

Mrs. Alexander Greet.

Mrs. Alexander Greet of Gadsden, Ala., will be sponsor at the launching of one of the vessels of America's new merchant marine. Gadsden was one of ten cities in the Sixth Federal Reserve District which won the honor of selecting the name for a ship by its large over-subscription to the Fourth Liberty Loan. Mrs. Greet was chosen by the committee in appreciation of her work in Liberty Loan campaigns. She has been active in all war work and has four sons in the army. Gadsden expects to live up to its record in the Victory Loan.

Bonds For Reconstruction.

Four Liberty Loans have been floated by the Government to provide weapons of destruction. The Victory has been won; the country is turning from war to peace. Now the nation is called upon to subscribe once more; to buy Victory Bonds to settle the war debts and provide the means of carrying through the work of reconstruction. Peace must be financed as well as war.

LITTLE VIEWER.

FARMERS BUY NITRATE

Farmers are still buying nitrate of soda from the government.

Mr. J. N. Dennis informs us that the first order for nitrate aggregated 247.3 tons for the county, which amount has already been delivered to the farmers.

An extension of time to buy nitrate was made giving a second chance to the farmers to buy. Then 40.7 tons more was bought and will be shipped in right away.

COTTON ACREAGE IS TO BE REDUCED

Farmers and Business Men Advocate Holding Present Crop

Reduction of the 1919 acreage of cotton, as compared with 1918, was urged at the closing session Tuesday of the conference of growers, bankers merchants and farmers from all parts of the cotton producing states. The meeting also advocated holding the present crop.

Under plans formulated, state cotton acreage reduction associations will be formed to secure written pledge to the above principles from every cotton producer in the country.

Another conference is planned at which reports of the progress of the program will be made. Any man who refuses to cooperate will be branded as lacking in public spirit as to forfeit the confidence of the community in which he is

TO MAKE THRIFT A HAPPY HABIT

THAT IS WHAT UNCLE SAM SAYS HE IS GOING TO DO IN ALABAMA

THRU W. S. S. WAR WORKERS

A Great Educational Campaign Now On—Buying War Savings Stamps to Be Made Easier and Easier

Birmingham, February 17.—Uncle Sam—that is to say our great government—announces he is going to make thrift a happy habit with his people. That's some job, but Uncle Sam has never failed yet in what he has undertaken.

The treasury department and the postoffice department are both standing behind the War Savings Campaign in Alabama, and all other states of the Union in this good year of 1919, and will stand behind it in the years to come. Here is the official announcement by Secretary Glass, of the treasury department, of the Government's War Savings Campaign.

The War Taught Thrift

"To make war taught thrift and the practice of saving through lending to the government a permanent and happy habit of the American people, the United States treasury will conduct during 1919 an intensive movement to promote wise spending, intelligent saving and safe investment.

"The immediate and concrete objective of the campaign is to encourage the public to continue buying War Savings Stamps and Liberty Bonds and thus supply funds for meeting Government obligations arising from the war. It is essential to a sound economic program that smaller savings, as well as larger capital, share in financing government operations.

"The fact that 30,000,000 people—men, women and children—through ownership of Government securities now have a direct personal share and interest in the government, whereas before the war only 300,000 people had such direct participation, also constitutes a civic asset too valuable to lose.

Let's Learn the Valuable Lesson

"The ultimate objective is so to popularize thrift that one of the most valuable lessons taught by the war will become a happy everyday national habit. The result would be a people who spend freely but who think before they spend in order that they may get full value.

"Wise spending involves weighing present needs and desires against future needs and desires, while intelligent saving and investment provide for future spending, whether to cope with rainy-day emergencies or to take advantage of sunny opportunities.

"Practice of these principles will clearly make for family stability, increase individual credit and buying power, and will directly and necessarily contribute to community and national wealth and prosperity.

"To accomplish these several objects, there must be added to the war appeals which were such potent factors in the sale of $1,000,000,000 of War Savings Stamps in 1918, motives of post-armistice and everyday peaceful patriotism, and especially practical motives of self-interest in saving."

Patriotism Still Imperative

While the treasury department and the Alabama War Savings Committee will endeavor to impress upon the people of our State the value and the joy of thrift, they tell us that we must not lose sight of the fact that the government requires immense sums of money with which to meet the obligations incurred in winning the war. Therefore, every War Savings Stamp bought and held until maturity is a direct help to the government in this great task. The trouble with our people is that we think the war is a thing of the past. We should all read this ringing declaration of Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury, take it to heart and act on it:

"The war will not be over until the United States Government has honorably met every commitment made in order to win the war."

Stamp Buying Made Easy

The War Savings Committee in this State will soon make it as easy for the individual in Alabama to buy War Savings Stamps as he or she can get a cigar or a spool of thread. Such being the case, there is no reason why Alabama should not be among the leading states in the purchase of War Savings Stamps.

Remember, every War Savings Stamp you buy is helping your government, your state and yourself.

CITIZEN LEAVES CHILTON

Mr. W. M. Price of Plantersville was in Clanton Wednesda. We are sorry to learn that he is no longer a citizen of Chilton County. He now lives in Dallas. He said he saw he was going to get rich if he kept on farming, and as there is no heaven for a rich man he chose to retire. After selling his fine farm at Stanton he bought a home at Plantersville to spend his time in ease for himself and his wife.

NOTICE OF BIDS FOR BRIDGE WORK

By virtue of an order of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, Alabama, dated February 10, 1919, notice is hereby given that D. H. Gentry and T. J. Dorminey, Commissioners of Chilton County, will will be at the bridge over Mulberry Creek near Mulberry Church, on the Tuscaloosa and Montevallo Road, on Saturday, March 15, 1919, for the purpose of receiving bids and letting contract for building one 48-foot span and one 36-foot span of said bridge; and also for repairing 370 feet of said bridge. Such bids to be received between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock on the aforesaid date.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved to the said D. H. Gentry and T. J. Dorminey, Commissioners.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

J. R. Martin of Thorsby was in Clanton Wednesday attending circuit court.

R. L. Clark, a friend of the Union-Banner from Mt. Creek, was in to see us Tuesday. Mr. Clark is on the jury at Circuit Court this week.

MRS. W. H. DENTON HELD FOR MURDER

The grand jury last week indicted Mrs. W. H. Denton of Ensley for murder in the first degree, in connection with the death of Ethel Northcutt, a 14 year old girl, at Jemison a few weeks ago.

At a preliminary trial in the county court the first of this month the woman was bound over to the grand jury under bond, and she made the bond and went back to her home in Ensley. When the case was investigated by the grand jury and the indictment found Sheriff Gore went to Birmingham Tuesday and brought Mrs. Denton to Clanton and placed here in jail to await the action of the court here.

It is not known yet whether the trial of her case will come up at this term of the circuit court.

TICK DAY

We call the attention of the farmers of the county again to the fact that on next Saturday, Feb. 22, the commissioners of Chilton County will take up the matter of putting into practice the new state-wide tick eradication law as it is to apply to our county.

The commissioners have requested all who are interested to meet with them and learn what is to be done about building vats and carrying out the provisions of the law.

Dr. R. E. Jackson, the state inspector in charge of tick eradication work will be here to tell you anything you may want to know about the law.

A number of citizens have issued a call for a mass meeting in regard to the proposition, and with all that is to be done here Saturday you have ample assurance of finding something going on that will interest you if you will just come to town.

The 52 Biggest Farm Problems

How Farmers Can Get Useful Information At the Time They Need it Most

What would it be worth to you to have the South's greatest authorities advise you on important farm questions? You can have them help you each week in solving problems like these:

—How to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions—how to tell the fertilizer needs of your soil—how to get rid of Bermuda grass and wild onions—how to make straw and stover into fattening feed—how to succeed with farm tractors—how tenant and landlord can work together to best advantage—relative value of different methods of arranging and erecting fences—how to get more profit from the sale of surplus eggs, poultry, vegetables, fruits and meat.

The Progressive Farmer—the South's great farm paper—will bring you each week advice on questions like these—advice from men who are recognized as the greatest authorities on producing crops and marketing them.

The 52 Things Which Perplexed 170,000 Farmers

Before we planned our editorial program for 1919, we read the thousands of letters received from farmers each month. The 52 things about which we received the most correspondence we singled out and made the subject of leading articles. One of these articles will appear each week. Yet they will be but one among scores of features contained in every issue. Mrs. Hutt will continue her helpful articles and help solve the twelve big problems of the farmer's wife.

Do You Know

Do you know how to furnish almost twelve months good grazing for hogs? Doctor Tait Butler tells how. Do you know the pounds of plant-food that seed and root crops or hay and roughage extract from your soil? The Progressive Farmer tells you. Here are the subjects of other helpful talks:

—the cost of different fence posts compared with their average life
—acre capacity per hour of different farm machinery
—when to spray and what to use to destroy insects—control fungus diseases
—how to preven corn weevil
—how to save clover seed
—how much fodder-pulling cuts the yield of corn
—the loss when cover crops are not plowed under
—how to give new life to old fruit trees
—how to detect, prevent and cure poultry diseases
—how to organize a mutual fire insurance company
—how the Farm Loan System works and how to borrow money
—why silage sometimes keeps poorly
—the rate at which silage should be fed
—who is in charge of tick eradication—the State pig clubs, corn clubs, demonstration agents, experiment stations

All of this information and much more was contained in a single issue of the Progressive Farmer last year—"The Reference Special." The Reference Special this year will be even better. It alone is worth $10 to any farmer.

52 Experience Meetings Attend Them on Your Farm

Our 170,000 subscribers are asked to write on these 52 subjects as well. Cash prizes paid for the best letters. Thus you receive the cream of the experience of 170,000 practical farmers. They shed new light on every phase of farming. You attend these experience meetings sitting in your easy chair.

9 Special Issues Personal Advice Free

Nine of these fifty-two issues will be "specials" treating exhaustively of the most important subjects: Farm Implements and Machinery, Reference, Fertilizers, Dairy, Trucks and Tractors, Rich Lands, Farm Buildings and Equipment, Paint, Lights and Waterworks, Neighborhood Improvement and Co-operation.

The editors welcome correspondence from all subscribers about any vital subject of farm life. When you become a subscriber you literally hire them to help you make more money.

It may cost you ten times the price of a subscription not to have the information that a single issue contains. The Progressive Farmer is published weekly. You receive 52 issues a year for only $1. The information in any one issue, if applied, will pay for the cost many times over. You receive the help of these great editors (which costs us tens of thousands of dollars) and the experience of 170,000 farmers at a cost of only 2c. a week.

Fill out the coupon and hand it to a Progressive Farmer subscription agent or mail it to us with a dollar, and receive the 52 issues crammed with money-making plans and money-saving "wrinkles." Act now. Let your subscription start with the next issue. It contains one of the 52 biggest farm problems. Don't miss a single copy. It might be the one you need most.

LEGAL NOTICE

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 12, 1919.
The Commissioners Court will be in session February the 22nd, 1919, to consider the Compulsory Tick Eradication Law. Will be glad for all concerned in building Vats to meet the Court.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Last Saturday the news reached Clanton by some means that Bryant McKee, a former well known citizen and business man of this place had died suddenly at Sylacauga. Many of his friends here were sad over the news and were making anxious inquiries. His son, G. O. McKee, was shocked at the news and at once went to the long distance phone and called the family at Sylacauga to find out the particulars. To his most pleasant surprise the voice that answered him at the other end of the wire was that of his father, who stated that he was glad to inform him that the report was a mistake, and he was as well as ever and not dead at all.

Attorney F. B. Collier says he is mighty well fixed now since he has got out of the army and fixed up in his office once more. He is attorney for the Chilton County Abstract Co., with offices in the Wilson building. The abstract business was purchased by Mr. Collier and associates from Mr. J. P. VanDerveer, and they are owners of the only abstract land books now in the county.

On account of so much interruption in school this year we have let our news not be up to the standard we would like it to be but we hope to improve from time to time. School is progressing nicely now.

The Websterian Literary Society met last Thursday night and rendered the following program:

Song.....Any Selection
Prayer .....Fonza Cunningham
Clanton News.....Claudie Pipes
Current Events....Herbert Davis
Jokes .....Emmett Popwell
Mock Trial:

State of Alabama vs. Harold Marlar, alleging Mr. Marlar to have robbed the home of Mr. Leon Evans on the night of Jan. 3, 1919, and obtained valuables amounting to 2000 dollars.

Attorneys for State:
Flem Higgins
Isador Kanjutzky.

Attorneys for Defendant:
Otto Jones
Leon Mullins.

Judge .....Fonza Cunningham.

State Witnesses:
John Gable
K. C. Foshee
Jack Wade
Wesley Veaezy.

Defendant's Witnesses:
Earl Gore
Frank Mullins
Eugene Driver
Emmett Popwell.

Jury: Mr. A. H. Bowers, Dr. W. L. Parrish, Mr. G. C. Walker, Wallace Jones, R. Q. Hayes and Herbert Davis.

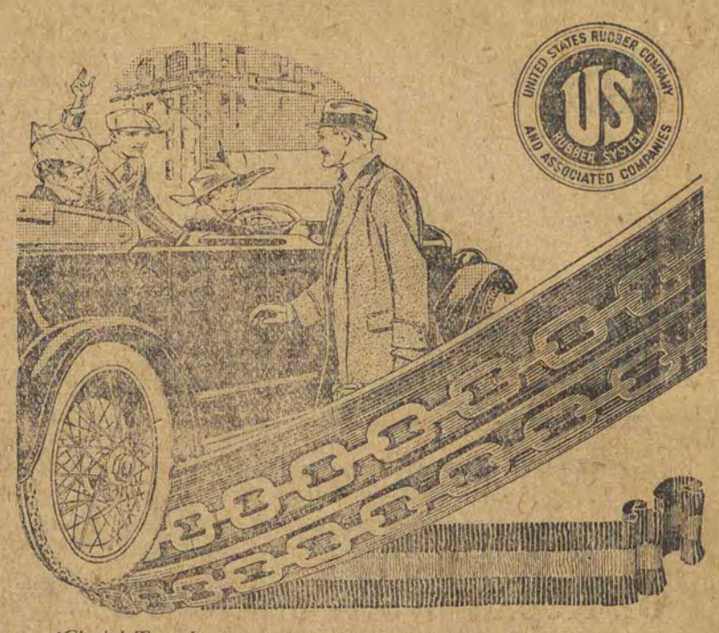
The following verdict is self-explanatory:

We, the Jury, find the defendant guilty and fix his punishment at 20 years in the penitentiary, and that Mr. Evans is insane and be he confined in the hospital for the insane at Tuscaloosa, Ala., for the period of his natural life.

G. C. Walker, Foreman.

On next Thursday afternoon the Chilton County High school and the Thorsby Institute Basketball Teams will play on the former's court here.

The line-up for Chilton is as follows: Forwards, Sartor and Jones; Centers, Robinson and Mullins; Guards, Edwards and McClain. Everybody come. It promises to be a good game.



There will be a minstrel at the C. C. H. S. given by a group of handsome High school boys. This minstrel is given for the benefit of the high school library and for this reason, if for no other, a large crowd will be expected. A small admission of 15c will be charged. Everybody come and laugh with us and enjoy a 25 cent show for 15 cents.

A GOOD FARM PAPER

This week we are carrying a big advertisement for The Progressive Farmer and we want to urge our readers to subscribe for that paper if you want a farm paper that will do you some good. Let these fakes alone when they corner you and try to sell you some little old worthless sheet that you never heard of before. Give your dollar to one of the local agents of the Progressive Farmer and you will get your money's worth.

Every farmer in the county should first of all take his local county paper and then Alabama's only worth-while farm paper. For this requirement we recommend The Union-Banner and The Progressive Farmer.

'Chain' Tread

The Economy of Buying Good Tires

It's mighty poor economy to put cheap tires on your car.

If you can't depend on your tires, you can't depend on your car,

—and you can't get the high grade of service it ought to give you.

It pays to buy good tires—United States Tires.

They represent the highest value it is possible to build into tires.

There are five different passenger car treads—the only complete line built by any tire manufacturer.

Each has the built-in strength that means your money back in extra miles.

Among them are exactly the tires you want for your car, and your driving conditions.

Our nearest Sales and Service Depot Dealer will gladly help you.

United States Tires are Good Tires

Put Slacker Acres to Work

Our Country is calling for bigger yields of all crops. The world needs every pound of farm products the South can furnish, and is ready to pay handsome prices for them. Never before has the Southern farmer had such a golden opportunity to serve his country and at the same time build his own fortune.

Intelligent fertilization of every acre in cultivation is more necessary now than ever before, because each acre should be made to yield its utmost. This cannot be done unless the proper class and quantities of fertilizers are used. Low producing acres and inferior fertilizers constitute an inexcusable and unpatriotic waste.

The MORRIS BRANDS resist leaching, prevent shedding, and hasten fruitful maturity of the crop. Only the best class of materials enter into their manufacture. That's why they always give universal satisfaction.

CHILTON COUNTY'S JAIL IS FOUND IN GOOD CONDITION

J. D. Adams Inspected Prison on February 5, and Found things In good Condition; County Officials Praised.

The report of the state prison inspector relative to the condition of the Chilton County jail as it was found recently is very commendable to our sheriff.

The inspection was made on Feb. 5 by Mr. J. D. Adams of the Prison Inspection Department of the State Board of Health. It covered both the county jail and the county poor farm giving both these institutions a very favorable report.

It is very gratifying to our county to have our sheriff held up by the prison inspector of the State as an example worthy of the imitation of other sheriffs of the State.

Below we publish the communication of the State Prison Inspector to our county commissioners court relative to the report on the jail, and also the report in full as it was made to Governor Kilby:

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 10, 1919.
Hon. Court of County Commis.,
Chilton County, Clanton, Ala.
Genalemen:

I am enclosing herewith a report as the result of an inspection made by Mr. J. D. Adams, Deputy Inspector of this department, of your jail on the 5th inst., which today is filed with the governor of the State.

I congratulate you and the sheriff of your county upon the excellent condition oy your jail which is indicated by this report and I hope that future investigations will find it in a like condition.

If this department can be of service to you at any time, please commend me.

Yours very truly,
GLENN ANDREWS,
State Prison Inspector.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 8, 1919.
Hon. Thomas E. Kilby,
Governor of Alabama, Capitol.
Dear Sir:

On Feb. 5, 1919, the jail and almshouse of Chilton County were inspected by Mr. J. D. Adams, deputy inspector of this department, who reports as follows:

JAIL.—

There were three prisoners, viz: one white man, one negro man and one white woman, all in apparently good health and expressed themselves as being well fed and properly cared for.

This is one of the few jails in the State where the prisoners are given three meals daily. Upon inquiry as to what constituted their meals on that day the prisoners gave the following: breakfast-fried country ham, ham-gravy, rice, biscuit, butter, coffee; dinner—boiled Irish potatoes, turnips, corn-bread, biscuit, rice pudding; supper (the night before)—rice, turnips, light bread, corn bread, boiled bacon

The county employs a janitor at $35 a month, who divides his time between the courthouse and jail.

The jail was in a clean and sanitary condition throughout, with all fixtures and appliances in good condition

There were only three apartments in this jail for prisoners, and the sheriff was instructed as to the law relating to the mixing of prisoners of different classes. The Montgomery County jail was designated for the confinement of a part of the prisoners at any time there should be ty provides clothes for the inmates

ALMSHOUSE.—

The almshouse is located five miles from the county seat. The keeper, Mr. W. A. Huckabee, is paid $10 a month per capita for feeding and caring for the inmates. He also has the use of the small farm. The county propides clothes fort he inmates and furnishings for the houses. The only help besides the keeper's family is a white woman to whom the keeper pays $5.00 a month for cooking for the inmates. Four ordinary frame houses shelter the inmates but no conveniences are provided. Since the last inspection was made, two small shed-rooms have been added to one of the houses.

On February 5, the inmates included seven white men, fourteen white women, and one negro man.

It is a pleasure to note the report of Mr. Adams regarding conditions prevailing in this jail and to see that the sheriff has not succumbed to the violation of the Lord's prayer which the law of the state invites in its present provision for feeding prisoners, and that he evidently regards seriously the position which he occupies and treats humanly those under his protection and care. I trust that the other sheriffs throughout the State, who are just entering upon their duties, will emulate his worthy example.

Yours respectfully,
GLENN ANDREWS, M.D.,
State Prison Inspector.

TICK ERADICATION LAW OF STATE OF ALABAMA

An Act

No. 29.) (H. 39—Dunaway.

To establish and provide for statewide eradication of the cattle fever tick (margaropus annulatus) and any other tick that shall be found to carry a disease-producing infection to cattle or any other domestic animals

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama.

1. That state-wide tick eradication shall be taken up in all counties that shall be at any time partially or completely tick infested, under the state live stock sanitary board as hereafter provided in this act and as provided in all other laws or parts of laws of Alabama not in conflict with this act.

2. That the county commissioners or county board of revenue of each county in Alabama shall provide or install or build, in their respective counties, the necessary number of concrete dipping vats and also provide the necessary chemicals, solutions and all other materials required for making, filling, replenishing and operating the required number of dipping vats. Each county shall furnish all the materials required for keeping the required vats filled with a standard tick-killing arsenical dip having the composition and strength required by the regulations of the Alabama Live Stock Sanitary board and of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

3. That the required number of dipping vats in a county shall be determined by the state veterinarian and the state and federal inspectors in charge of tick eradication in that county. The required number of dipping vats shall be based upon the extent of area infested or exposed to tick infestation in a county. As a rule, vats shall be four miles apart, unless unforseen emergencies require them to be otherwise. Provided that any person who already has a dipping vat be allowed to use the same for dipping his own or neighbor's cattle under the supervision of the regular authorities.

4. That the county commissioners or county board of revenue in each county shall pay a reasonable salary to as many inspectors as shall be required in the county. An inspector shall have at least 12 vats and the required number of guard county lines, look after isolated vats, quarantined ranges, and premises quarantined cattle. The inspectors paid by the county shall be commissioned as state inspectors and work under the direction of the state veterinarian or the state or federal inspector in charge of the county.

5. That every person, firm or corporation having in possession or in charge as owner, agent or otherwise one or more cattle in a tick infested or quarantined county or on a tick infested or quarantined premise, or range, farm or pasture, that has not been released from state and federal quarantine, shall dip the cattle regularly once every two weeks on the day and at the vat specified by the inspector in charge of the vat most convenient or nearest the cattle. One printed or written dipping notice given by the inspector to the person or persons in charge of or in possession of the cattle, shall be legally sufficient to require the owner, agent or person in charge to dip the cattle regularly every two weeks until released from quarantine.

6. That all horses, mules and asses kept in tick infested lots, pens, pastures or ranges shall be dipped regularly every two weeks, in the same way and under the same requirements as for cattle, until released from state or federal quarantine.

7. That all stray cattle, horses, mules and asses running at large on quarantined or tick infested ranges, commons, pastures or fields shall, if such cattle, horses, mules and asses were not dipped as provided herein, shall be taken up by the sheriff, quarantined and dipped regularly once every two weeks, and fed and cared for at the expense and risk of the owner of the animals. The sheriff shall apply to a justice of the peace or to the county court to have the animals condemned as strays and sold at public auction. The justice of the peace or the county court shall post notices of the sale of the animals in three public places in the precincts where the stock is taken up, and in one county paper, giving the time and place of the sale. The sale shall not be made until ten days after the notices have been posted and printed. The proceeds of the sale shall go to pay all costs of taking up, feeding, confining, selling and dipping, and if there be a balance it shall go into the county treasury to be applied on tick eradication. Every one of the animals mentioned in this section whose owner cannot be found by the inspector shall be regarded as a legal stray and subject to the provisions of this act. The owner may redeem the animal within thirty days after the sale by proving ownership to the court and paying all costs.

8. That no ticky cattle, horses, mules or asses shall be driven, moved or transported in any way into Alabama.

9. That the county commissioners or county board of revenue in a county released from state or federal quarantine shall provide and pay a reasonable salary to one or more inspectors or as many inspectors as shall be required to guard exposed county boundary lines, to look after local quarantined premises, ranges, pens, lots, pastures or fields, and, when necessary, supervise the filling and replinishing of dipping vats, the dipping of quarantined cattle, mules, or asses. When a county becomes reinfested with ticks, that county shall pay the expenses of disinfection of all infested places, premises, ranges and cattle under the direction of the state veterinarian or a state inspector, according to law and the regulations of the State Live Sock Sanitary board.

10. That if any section of this act shall be legally found invalid or unconstitutional the remaining sections shall not be unconstitutional or invalid.

11. That all cars in which animals are transported in Alabama shall be cleaned and disinfected at the expense of the railroad company after each time of use or before the cars are used to transport other animals.

12. That if a county court of commissioners or a county board of revenue shall fail or refuse to comply with the requirements of sections 2, 4 and 9 of this act each member of same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction, each member shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than one thousand dollars ($1000.)

13. That if any court of county commissioners or board of revenue of a county shall fail or refuse to make adequate appropriations, or provision to execute in good faith this law, any state inspector or owner of cattle may apply to a circuit judge for a writ or mandamus to compel a faithful compliance with this and all other laws cognate hereto, and the judge shall hear the application at any time or place where he may be after one day's notice to the members of the court or board, and a failure to obey promptly the command of the writ shall be a misdemeanor as well as a contempt.

14. That all laws and parts of laws not in conflict with this act shall remain in full force and effect and all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

15. That each failure to dip quarantined animals after receiving legal notice shall be a misdemeanor. Each movement of quarantined animals without a permit from an inspector shall be a misdemeanor. That it is not required to establish the ownership of quarantined animals in order to convict a person in charge of the animals for failure to bring the animals to the vat for dipping them.

16. That any person or persons, firm, corporation or company violating the provisions of this act except as provided in sections 12 and 13, shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) for each and every violation.

17. That this act shall become effective immediately after approval by the governor.

Approved February 7, 1919.
Official, Wm. P. Cobb,
Secretary of State.

KEEP THIS COPY OF THE UNION-BANNER---IT IS VERY VALUABLE

Put this copy of The Union-Banner away and keep it for future reference.

2. The New Tick Law.

Preserve these two documents as you will need them for reference in the future.

WEST CHILTON

Dullness prevails in West Chilton. The "flu" is still here.

Schools are small and churches and Sunday Schools are in winter quarters. The "flu" has just about got everything blocaded except tick eradication and that is a live wire not welcomed by anyone in this part.

Miss Norere Atchison has been spending several days in Anniston with her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Smith spent Sunday with their son.

Mrs. Napoleon Posey who has been sick a long time has passed away.

We note that some of the farmers across the county line are having their land broken with a tractor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Waldrup of Randolph visited relatives here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. O Crumpton motored to Clanton Thursday After experiencing break-downs galore they reached Chilton's capital about 3 p.m., reaching home by night happy in the fact that all is well that ends well.

Corporal Newt Atchison having returned from the army cantonments, has now gone to Ensley and secured a position with his former employers.

Our public roads are bad—seems there is no remedy but to work them. We have thought if more overseers were appointed thus giving them all shorter divisions, it might arouse more interest. If people living on the public highways would look after the roads near their residences, it would take but little time and would speak well for the individuals.

We surely do extend a hearty welcome to the publishers and proprietors of the Union-Banner, and congratulated them on their safe return from the cantonments to heir home.

We were pleased to note in a recent issue of the Banner that Mr. M. L. Childress of Mississippi was numbered among the Banner readers. His name produced in our mind a train of thought reaching back to Pleasant Grove in the seventies when a tower of spiritual strength prevailed there; when the leaders of that institution and community were the words—Smithermans, Thomases, Gothards, Franklins, Davenports, Childresses, Maddoxes and Pattersons; when many happy young hearts beat as one as Cupid's old story was repeated, whose memory of the sweet long ago lingers still. A letter from Mr. Childress to the Banner would be appreciated.

Business at the turpentine camp seems to be picking up as new leases of timber have been secured.

Public and private dances are not uncommon entertainments here. Randolph has opened a dancing hall.

Emmett Waldrup has returned from over seas to the delight of his friends.

Herbert and Isaac Freeman, sons of G. W. Freeman, real heroes on the Western front, have been visiting here. They carry on their bodies the scars of battle.

ABOUT BUILDING VATS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to building dipping vats in this county. I want to say to the people of the county that we do not have to build the vats. The county commissioners are required by law to build the vats, and I say, let them build them. We will have enough to dip our cows when the commissioners get them built. Some of the county officers may tell you that the people will have to build the vats, but that is not the law. Elsewhere in this paper is the State Tick Eradication law in full, and I refer you to Section 2 thereof which plainly states the duty of the commissioners in regard to building vats; and also I refer you to Section 12 which sets out the penalty for these officers failing to build the vats.

People, you voted on this dipping question a few months ago, and showed by your vote that you did not want it. Now, are you going to let some county officers fool you and make you spend your time and money to build vats that will cause you to lose time out of your crop taking your cattle to the vat and dipping them. I am not asking anyone to disobey the law; but let the couny commissioners conply with the law and build the dipping vats that they are required to build. Then when they get them built we will dip our cattle. I say again, don't let anyone fool you and lose time and money enough when we go to dipping our cattle.

THORSBY ITEMS

The Helen Keller Literary Society gave a most enjoyable patriotic program last Saturday evening in Bates Hall. The student body is divided, one side the "army" the other the "navy." The "army" had charge of the program on this occasion.

The Misses Simpson are visiting relatives and friends in Montevallo. The special occasion of their visit at this time is to welcome home a nephew just returned from France.

A series of special meetings will begin at the Congregational Church on Wednesday evening, March 5th. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Davenport, will conduct the services.

The Ladies Guild will meet Thursday of this week with Mrs. Charles Howard. The ladies are requested to bring a thimble and needle.

Preaching both morning and evening at the Baptist and Congregational churches next Sunday. Young Peo- at all three churches.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will meet Thursday of this week with Mrs. Eiland. All members are urged to be present.

A "Penny Social" is to be given in Bates Hall, Thorsby Institute, Saturday night, March 1st. The boys and girls in the "Earn and Give" campaign have charge of the social and the proceeds are to help meet the pledges they have made. Come and bring your friends. Big doin's.

March 23rd will be observed as Visitor's Day in Sunday Schools in the 2nd Sunday School District. The district president, Mr. Eiland, plans to secure an official visitor for each school in the district.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

(By Fonza Cunningham)

The negro minstrel Friday night was just fine, I guess, as everyone seemed to enjoy it. We had quite a large crowd and lots of fun. We were glad to have with us Rastus Jenkins, a political orator, and Bro. White Cotton, Rector of the Morning Star Church.

On next Thursday evening we will have a basketball game on our court, between C. C. H. S. and Thorsby Institute. Everybody come. We guarantee a clean game. Admission 10c.

On last Friday afternoon we had a game with Wilsonville High School team on our court. They at first had us beaten but refused to abide by the rules thereby giving the game to us. Our team played them clean ball and treated them with courtesy, but we cannot say as much for them.

On next Friday night 'The Handsome Boys Minstrels"will play in the Thorsby Institute auditorium at Thorsby. We would like quite a crowd from here to be there. We are going to have just as good a show there as we had in Clanton.

Read our news every week as we might put something in it that would interest you. Remember, it is not long till school will be out.

LETTER FROM KIN VINSON

The editor of the Union-Banner has received a letter from Kin Vinson, with the U. S. army in France. Kin is now on the military police force and says he is having a good time. He is on duty 8 hours and off 24. During his idle time he can get a pass to town (a good French town is near his station.) But his letter contains one thing that is found in all the ltters from boys over there. They all want to come back to the states.

REGARDING W. M. PRICE

Mr. W. M. Price was in Clanton Feruary 19, and informs me that he has moved to Plantersville, Dallas County, and having known "Billie" since we were boys, I feel that Chilton county has lost one of her best citizens and that Dallas has added a valuable citizen. I have lways found Mr. Price to be honest and true as a man and as a boy.

MOVING SOME

Mrs. Morgan's household goods were loaded on Henley's big motor truch in Clanton the other day and in 4 hours they were unloaded at her new residence in the city of Montgomery. Henley says that is quick moving, and he is right.

METHODISTS OF CLANTON TO BUILD A NEW CHURCH

Get-Together Meeting held at the Methodist Parsonage Last Thursday Evening; New Church Planned.

The get-together meeting held at the Methodist parsonage last Thursday evening proved to be one of the wisest and most fitting occasions ever having been held in Clanton in its history. Beautiful invitations were sent out calling the membership and friends together. Under the wise direction of the ladies of the church a most splendid dinner was served, after which Dr. E. C. Maye, the wide-awake, beloved and up-to-date pastor, made a splendid speech setting forth some plans looking to the erection of a modern church in Clanton; one in keeping with the splendid type of Methodist people in the city of Clanton.

Dr. Maye stated that the women of the church would raise one thousand dollars to start on, and then and there one of our "big brethren," Methodist, Bro. J. C. Jones, asked for the floor which was cheerfully granted him. Bro. Jones made a most catching speech along the financial line and soon got into the subject of subscribing. Dr. Maye then appointted Mr. Jones chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Jones then appointed as helpers, Dr. Herbert Neighbors, treasurer, with Mr. Eric Hart secretary. After the appointments were made Mr. Jones launched into the "big part of the occasion" in his usual successful manner, and in a short while the secretary gladly announced that the list of liberal and generous subscribers amounted up in several thousands of dollars. The optimistic note could be heard all over the house—not one pessimist wis heard. The only pause recognized was reaching an agreement as to the amount to be decided upon. It was a majority wish and conclusion reached to erect a beautiful modern brick and stone structure with up-to-date equipments throughout.

The finance committee was appointed which was composed of the leading citizens of Clanton, for the purpose of soliciting funds for this worthy enterprise. The names composing this soliciting and financial committee will be announced in a few days, at which time they will enter upon the work of getting funds and plans in hand.

FREE SPRINGS

We are having some windy weather in February this year, and we hope for a calm March.

We have the pleasure to state that there is no "flu" here now. There have been a few cases but they are well now. Those on the sick list at present are Mr. H. Z. Barnes, Mrs. U. R. Evans, Myrtle Prim and Mrs. C. L. Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brown are the happy parents of a baby girl.

C. C. Hayes made a short trip to Selma recently.

Mrs. Oden of Birmingham was a late visitor to her daughter, Lizzie.

Walter Carlee is moving to this community.

Miss Ethel Posey and Irene McGraw visited the Freeman school the 22nd. The entertainment was given in honor of George Washington, every recitation pertaining to the life of the wonderful man. The teachers and pupils are certainly due credit for the nice way in which the program was carried ou, and they did not take but little time from their regular studies to prepare the exercises.

Uncle Tom Watson made an afternoon trip to this place last Sunday in spite of the fact that he has already passed his ninety-seventh birthday. He did his own driving and traveled at a lively speed.

Uncle Tom is probably the oldest man in the county.

We saw an item in last weeks paper that makes us think that some of us in this county have not lived by the commandment, "Thou shalt nove thy Neighbor as thyself," for ex-sheriff Harris is yet a true neighbor to the people of Chilton.

Miss Hattie Cofer gladly entertained a few of her friends Saturday night.

Our Views Regardmg Clanton's Electric Light Service.

The good-natured and long-suffering people of Clanton have for lo, these many years been mercilessly outraged by an institution, that, in a proper application of its service, would be our greatest boon toward civic and commercial progress. And continuing now, day after day, this supposed to be uplifting enterprise is holding us up and gagging us with the greatest hoax at decent service that has ever been perperated on a people living in an age of great commercial opportunity.

How long. O, how long, must we submit to the injustice that is being meted out to us by this concern that is so wildly missing the mark which it should be aiming at? How long will we sit still, bound by our own indifference, and suffer a careless concern in our midst to wilfully deny us what is our obvious desserts? How long will we sit in the light of our own progress and not make a fight for the recognition of our rights?

If the people who are supposed to be furnishing our town with electric light service are determined to force us to resort to some other means of getting service, why don' we get busy and tear loose from the moorings and start some where? If they have calculated that they will not give the town better service and that they can force us into some other action that will in the end play into their hands after all, why let's play the game any way. We must have service and better service at whatever cost if we are ever to have a town of opportunity. If they have got us sewed up so we can't get away at all, why that is just bad luck for us. But be that as it may; we must make a start.

And the only hope we have is the bringing of the Alabama Power Company lines into Clanton. That may be so fixed that it would be to the advantage of Wade, and if so, let it be. We must have better light service even if we must pay for Wade's plant a few more times to get it.

If the people of Clanton have been asleep while Wade wound his wires about us so that we are hopelessly unable to get away from his web, that is just one more of the many instances where we have lost golden opportunities. You know Nero fiddled while Rome burned; many people of Clanton have fiddled while scores of opportunities passed out of their reach.

We must make a move, people, even if we must move into a trap that is set to catch us. We can't possibly make things worse for ourselves than they already are.

The owners and managers of our local light plant are our fellow-citizens, it is true, and they are good people. But their way of running a light plant as a public utility is not right. It is not productive of the right kind of service, and therefore we are fighting their methods of operation.

They can surely see as everybody else does, that the service they are giving is not adequate. And then if it does not serve, why don't they make it serviceable? And if they can't make it serviceable why don't they get out of the way and let the people have a free hand at getting service from some other source?

Clanton Should Have a Hospital; Doctors, Come Across.

One of the direst needs of Clanton at the present time is a hospital where sick people can be taken and cared for without having to be carried to Birmingham or Montgomery.

This need is imperative upon us, not that we have an undue amount of sickness. Quite to the contrary in this respect, for Clanton has as few inexcusable cases of sickness and disease as any town you can mention.

But you know there are some troubles that will occur even in the best regulated families. Likewise with sickness and disease. No matter how good our health record, there will always be the sick and afflicted among us. Bill Smith will eat too many blackberries in the summer time and get appendicitis. John Jones will take a notion to cut some stovewood for the old lady to cook dinner with on Sunday and accidentally cut a few of his toes off; some other good citizen will get careless with the carbuncle on his neck and allow blood poison to set in; any one of these things might reach such a dangerous stage of affliction as to demand the reparation of the patient to a hospital for a few days where he could be constantly under the eyes of a doctor.

What does a man here now have to do when such a misfortune comes his way? Why he has to be hauled to the railroad on a cot, put in a smutty baggage car with a lot of loud smelling fish and cabbage and carried fifty miles to Birmingham or Montgomery to an infirmary. If he were not sick enough to hardly need a doctor before he left home, he would neccessarily be in a bad fix by the time he got to his destination.

We need a place in Clanton where such people can be cared for, and be saved the ill-convenience of traveling away to the city. Our doctors in Clanton are as good as many whom you find rolling pills and amputating limbs in the city hospitals.

The reason you fare better under the treatment of the doctor in the city hospital is because he has you right under his eye all the time, and not because he is a better doctor. If our home doctors here had a place to accommodate patients where they could care for them constantly they can be trusted as well as the doctors in the city.

We need such a hospital in just as great a sense as we need electric lights, waterworks and other valuable things that would tend to lighten the burdens of our every day exisence, and make it easier for us to pursue our courses in the search of health, wealth, and happiness.

Help Enforce the Tick Law; it is The Best Way Out.

Some individuals seem to be trying to instill a spirit of stubbornness into the people regarding the compliance with the law regarding the tick eradication process that has been imposed upon us by the State Legislature.

It would seem from the attitude of some that they would have the people withhold their co-operation in the matter from the county officials, leaving our county commissioners with the burden of the law on their hands. We believe that such a spirit among the people is not right.

Let us look into the conditions attendant to the enactment of the law and to the subsequent enforcement of it and see what reasoning we can deduce.

The people of the county recently voted a majority saying that they did not want to dip their cattle, and we believe that they should be granted what the majority voted for. And so far as we know, not a single man in the county has raised his hand against the expressed wishes of the people.

But now comes a power through the state legislature—a power beyond the control of the people of Chilton County—and tells us that we must dip our cattle. We know of no one in the county who is to blame for this imposition upon the people of something they don't want. The county officers did not encourage the enactment of the law against the majority of the people. The Probate Judge and commissioners are not to blame for it.

The burden of this law rests upon the law-abiding people of our county to carry out its mandates.

While its execution is placed first in the hands of the commissioners, it is a very wrong impression for the people generally to think that they are to sit still and let the commissioners do all the work of carrying out the law. Any citizen of the county should feel a pride in our county that would cause him to help carry out the laws of our land. And just because the law does not suit him personally is no excuse for him to impede the operations of the law either by action or negligence.

Our county officers did not force this law on the people. It is going to be a bigger burden for them to carry out their part of it than it is for the individual citizen to do his part.

And it is the unmistakable duty of every citizen, whether he is in favor of dipping or not to put his efforts behind the movement and get our county through with the thing as quick as possible and without any trouble.

Nobody is kicking at the price we pay for the electricity we get in Clanton. What we want is just more of it and better service. We should have an all-day and an all-night light and power service and there is not a reason under the sun why we should not have it. We can get it if the people will buck up and go after it. If Wade can't give us what we need, there is somebody else who can. What do you say? Are you ready to go your part? The Union-Banner is with you for adequate light and power service for Clanton, no matter if it comes from Wade, the Alabama Power Company or anybody else, just so we get it.

GET BEHIND THE VICTORY LOAN.

Recent news dispatches from Washington seem to have created the impression in some quarters that the Treasury Department has decided NOT to float anoher Liberty Loan.

These reports were based upon the proceedings of the House Ways and Means committees when Treasury Representatives appeared to lay before that body plans for future war finances. The Secretary asked for authority to issue short time securities instead of bonds which would matue in ten, twenty or thirty years.

Judge Reynolds is being besieged on every turn now by people who want to know something about building vats and the dipping law. The Judge says that even the blind are trying to see how to build vats. Those who want full information in regard to this proposition can get it from reading The Union-Banner. From week to week we will publish all the information available on the subject. This week we have a letter from Judge Reynolds on the subject and also we are publishing in full the state law as it was recently passed by the Legislature. It will pay you to keep in touch with the paper on this proposition.

The statute of Liberty will look mighty good to the boys who come back from France, even if the United States has gone dry since they went across. It would have gone dry just the same if they had stayed here; so what is the difference? They just got a little beer while they were over there that they would not have got if they had stayed over here.

While we realize that it is right provoking for a people to have laws thrust upon them contrary to their expressed wishes, yet it shows a broad spirit of loyalty to government when they take their medicine with a smile. We hope to see the farmers dip their cattle with a smile. Better do it that way than with a grin, for the powers beyond our control have said we must, and they can force us to do it if we don't do it of our own free will.

What has become of that petition by the business men of Clanton, made to the Alabama Power Company to build lines to Clanton and furnish us with electric lights and power? If anybody has any light on the subject, why not let it be known. Why not add other efforts to what has already been done, and get out of this rotten business of depending on the uncertainties of Wade's wood pile for our light and power?

Such a public utility as a light plant should be operated in such a way as to give the public the best service possible. We ask frankly, is Clanton getting justice in this respect?

PROHIBITION LAWS AS ENACTED BY ALABAMA'S LEGISLATURE OF 1919

COMPLETE STATE STATUTE REGULATING USE OF ALCOHOLICS AND ALL PROHIBITED SPIRITS.

AN ACT to further suppress the evils of intemperance; to restrict the receipt, possession and delivery of spiritsuous, vinous, malted, fermented or other intoxicating or prohibited liquors and beverages and fixing punishment and penalties.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama:

Section 1. That in addition to the liquors, liquids, drinks and beverages already embraced in the term "prohibited liquors and beverages," as defined by the existing laws of the State of Alabama enacted in 1915, the said term shall hereafter be deemed also to include and embrace the following: (6) All liquors, liquids, drinks or beverages, made in imitation of or intended as a substitute for beer, ale, rum, gin, whiskey or for any other alcoholic, vinous or malt whiskey; and further, that any liquor, drink or liquid made or used for beverage puposes containing any alcohol, shall be deemed an alcoholic liquor, within the meaning of the term "prohibited liquors and beverages" as defined in this act in connection with the existing prohibition laws of Alabama.

Sec. 2. That it shall be unlawful (1) for any common or other carrier, or any person, corporation or association or combination of persons, to carry, bring or introduce into this State or to deliver to any person whomsoever in this State, any of the prohibited liquors and beverages as defined by this act and by the existing laws of the State of Alabama, in any quantity whatsoever, whether original packages or otherwise, and although brought from a point without the State of Alabama, or (2) to accept the delivery of or to receive, have in possession, or possess in this State, any of said prohibited liquors and beverages as defined by this act or the existing laws of the State of Alabama, in any quantity whatsoever; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to the possession of wine or cordial made from grapes or other fruit when the grapes or other fruit are grown by the person making the same for his own domestic use, upon his own premises in this State, and when such person keeps such wine or cordial for his own domestic use on his own premises in any quantity not exceeding five gallons for one family in 12 months. Nor shall this section apply to the receipt or possession of pure or grain alcohol in non-prohibited quantities by persons who are permitted to buy, sell, use or possess the same under existing laws of the State, nor to the receipt or possession of wine for sacremental purposes, when received and possessed by an authorized person in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by law, and when not exceeding the quantity so prescribed.

Sec. 3. That no prohibited liquors and beverages shall be kept or be permitted to be kept by members or others in any locker or room of, or on the premises of any social club or of any other association or organization of persons, whether of a fraternal or social nature or otherwise, and such club or club room shall not be deemed to be the home or private premises of any member thereof. And it shall be the duty of all officers of any such club or association of persons, and especially of the secretary, manager or other officer in charge of the premises, to prevent the violation of this section by the members or by others resorting to the same. The presence of prohibited liquor in any locker or any other place on the premises or about the rooms of any such club or association of persons, shall constitute prima facie evidence that the said officers in charge and the officers and directors of the club or of the organization, are unlawfully permitting the possession of said prohibited liquors and beverages at such place, and are guilty of violation of this section.

Sec. 4. That no judge of any court shall have authority to suspend sentence in whole or in part upon the conviction of any person or persons in his court, of any offense against this act or other laws of the State of Alabama, for the promotion of temperance or for the suppression of the evils of intemperance, except in cases authorized and presribed by existing laws. And it shall be the duty of such judge, upon the conviction of any such offense of any person or persons to pronounce and have enforced and executed the sentence of the law to a convicted person in such cases. Any action upon the part of a trial judge of any court for the purpose of preventing or delaying the execution of the penalty of the law, by suspending sentence or withholding sentence for the purpose of preventing its execution, shall be null and void and shall constitute a high misdemeanor in office.

Sec. 5. That no sale of pure alcohol for medicinal purposes shall be made by any person authorized by the law under proper circumstances to make sale of such liquor for medicinal purposes, except upon the prescription of a regularly authorized, practicing physician of this State, who before writing such prescription shall make an actual examination of the person for whom the prescription is issued, and said prescription shall state the disease or ailment from which the patient is suffering and shall prescribe the method of the use or administration of said alcohol and the quantity of the dose or doses to be taken and the intervals between doses, or the time when the same are to be administered, and the prescription shall state and certify that the use of such alcohol, in the opinion of the physician is necessary to alleviate or cure the illness or disease from which such patient is suffering. Every such prescription and the name and address of the person for whom the alcohol is prescribed, also the date on which the prescription is written and shall state the number of prescriptions for alcohol which the physician has written for said patient within twelve months, or that he has not written any with that period for said patient. And no physician shall prescribe alcohol for any patient simply upon the affirmation or statement or promise of said patient that he will use the same for medicinal purposes, but the said prescription must be based upon the professional opinion of the physician after a careful examination of the person seeking the prescription and upon his opinion derived from such examination that the said party is bona fide applying for said alcohol to be used as a medicine and not as a drink or beverage. The following form of prescription shall be used: ("State of Alabama, ... County.) I, ..., a regularly licensed and practicing physician under the laws of said State, do hereby certify that I have examined ..... a patient under my charge, and I do hereby prescribe for the use of said patient, ... of alcohol (not exceeding one-half pint), and I further certify that the said patient is suffering from the following illness, sickness or disease....., and that in my opinion the use of such alcohol is necessary to alleviate or cure the illness or disease or sickness from which such patient is suffering, and that I believe that the patient is seeking said prescription in good faith, to use said alcohal for medicinal purposes and not as a beverage, and in writing this prescription I am not relying upon his promises or affirmation that he or she will use the alcohol for medicinal purposes, but upon my own opinion, based upon an examination, that the alcohol is necessary to alleviate or cure the sickness of which he or she is suffering. And I further certify that he or she has been suffering from said sickness as far as I can ascertain for the following period of time (to be stated in months, weeks or days) ..... The alcohol is to be administered or used as follows: (Here state dose, etc., as above directed.) Then state address of patient and doctor. (Signed) ....., M. D." Date .....

No physician shall prescribe whisky, rum, gin or brandy or any prohibited liquor for medicinal purposes except alcohol as provided by law. The physician shall immediately file a copy of the prescription, signed by himself in the office of the probate judge who shall preserve the same and deliver all such prescriptions to the next grand jury for examination.

Sec. 6. No person shall receive or accept any prohibited liquors or beverages from a common carrier or other carrier, except alcohol in accordance with regulations and restrictions of the existing laws of Alabama, and of this act, and for the purposes prescribed by said laws, and except wine for sacramental or religious purposes as permitted under existing laws, and then only if there is permanently pasted or attached to the container a copy of the prescription or affidavit, upon authority of which it was prescribed or obtained, and any person desiring to have shipped to him under the law of Alabama alcohol or wine for sacramental use, shall make an affidavit before an officer in Alabama authorized to administer oaths, stating the quantity of such alcohol or such wine that the said party desires to receive; the use to which either the wine or the alcohol is to be put, and that the person seeking the shipment is authorized under the laws of Alabama to have, receive and possess such quantity of alcohol or wine as is shipped and that the shipment is sought of a legal quantity and for a bona fide legal purpose, permitted under the laws of Alabama and for no other purpose, and a copy of said affidavit shall be pasted or permanently attached to the container of the alcohol or wine, when the same is shipped into the State of Alabama and is received by said applicant from the carrier. The common carrier delivering such wine or alcohol shall keep a record thereof and shall file within ten days after the receipt in the office of the probate judge of the county, a certificate stating the name of the shipper, the name of the receiver, the quantity and the character of the alcohol or wine, and the purposes for which shipped and received, and that it conforms to the requirements of law as to its preparation and as to the presence of the affidavit. The books and records of the carrier shall at all times be open during office hours to any prosecuting attorney, or the sheriff or chief of police of a city, or any other officer with the proper duty to enforce the execution of the law and to require conformity to the statutory regulations. Any physician, individual, shipper, carrier, or its agent or employee, violating any provision of the law regulating the receipt and possession of such wine and alcohol, or failing to comply with the requirements of the law in respect to the mode and manner of obtaining same, shall be deemed guilty, and be punished in the same way as he might be punished under existing laws for an unlawful sale of said wine or alcohol. And for a second or subsequent offense, shall receive the greater punishmnt prscribed in other cases for persons who commit a second or subsequent offense in relation to the sale of prohibited liquors and beverages under the laws of this State.

Sec. 7. That before any physician shall be authorized to prescribe alcohol for medicinal purposes, he shall first file with the probate judge of the county in which he practices, an affidavit in the following form, to-wit: "I, ..., a regularly authorized practicing physician, do solemnly swear or affirm that I am such regularly practicing physician in ..... county, and that I will not prescribe or furnish alcohol to any one except it be in my judgment a necessity in the alleviation or cure of the disease with which the patient shall be at the time afflicted, and I will strictly comply with all the legal requirements pertaining to the furnishing of said prescriptions, and will give no prescription for an amount exceeding one-half pint of alcohol. And I will comply with all the laws of the State of Alabama with respect to the giving of prescriptions for alcohol for sickness; that I will not prescribe alcohol to one who is afflicted with the habit of taking narcotics or who is a person of intemperate habits, nor will I prescribe alcohol merely upon the promise or statement of the patient that the same will be used for medicinal purposes, but it shall be prescribed only upon my judgment as a physician that the same is necessary in the treatment of a disease or sickness which I shall find upon personal examination of the patient to exist in his case." For the filing and recording of said affidavitt by the probate judge in a book kept for that purpose, he may receive twenty-five cents for each affidavit from the physician filing the same.

Sec. 8. That on the outside of each package or container of alcohol or of wine shipped or sold for sacramental or religious purposes to be shipped, carried or delivered to any person in this State, there shall be printed or written the name and address of the consignee or purchaser, and the name and address of the consignor or seller, the kind and quantity of liquor, whether alcohol or wine for sacramental use, all written in the English language. All carriers shall keep in the office at the place of delivery a separate record book in which shall be entered the information provided for by this section, of all shipments and deliveries of such alcohol or wine for said purposes, which record shall be open to inspection of any State, county, city or beat official, for law enforcement. Some agent, servant or officer of the carrier, within ten days after the delivery of the wine or alcohol, shall file with the probate judge of the county, a statement on strong paper, giving the information as above specified, to be shown on said record, with date of delivery and name and address of person to whom delivered, and the said delivery shall be made by the carrier to the consignee only, who shall sign and receipt therefor on the record.

Sec. 9. That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, possess, operate or locate on his prem- to permit or allow any one to have, ises, any apparatus, plant or structure, for the distilling or manufacturing of prohibited liquors or beverages, or any of them. And when such apparatus, plant or structure is found upon said premises, the fact shall be prima facie evidence that the tenant or owner in actual possession of the premises has knowledge of the existence of the same, and of the purpose for which the same were to be used, and upon conviction of permitting or allowing the same to be upon his premises, such tenant or owner shall be punished as prescribed for the first and subsequent offenses in the general penal section 20 of this act—the burden of proof being upon the tenant or owner in possession to show his want of knowledge of such apparatus on his premises.

Sec. 10. That whenever any person is convicted in the circuit court of unlawfully distilling or manufacturing or making any of said prohibited liquors and beverages, there shall be charged in the bill of costs to be paid and collected as other items of cost, the sum of $50.00 to be allowed the sheriff or other officer or person who furnished the evidence and brought about the conviction, and who shall satisfy the presiding judge that he is the person entitled to said sum, and shall receive from the judge a certificate to that effect.

Sec. 11. That whenever prohibited liquors and beverages or any of them, are seized and are held for use as evidence before any court on the trial of any person for a violation of the prohibitory laws of the State, or the prohibitory ordinance of any city, and the persn is convicted for violating such law or ordinance in any way by his connection with or possession or ownership of the liquors, then, within ten days after conviction without any order of the court to that effect, the custodian of the liquor is authorized to proceed and shall proceed to destroy the same as contraband and forfeited to the State, and any custodian of such contraband liquors that have been seized in the enforcement of the law, who may now hold them in possession after the conviction of a party or parties from whom they were taken, or of a party charged with the crime in respect thereto, the custodain shall at once after the passage of this bill proceed to destroy said contraband liquors without other or further authority or order. And any custodian of seized contraband liquor who shall permit the same to be improperly and unlawfully removed from his possession or shall give the same away to any person, shall be punished on conviction by a fine of not less than $50.00 and by imprisonment at hard labor for the county for six months.

Sec. 12. That all appliances which have been used or are used or ready to be used for the purpose of distilling or manufacturing any prohibited liquors or beverages, are hereby declared to be contraband and no person, firm or corporation or association of persons shall have any property rights in or to the same, and when said appliances or apparatus so used and ready to be used or that have been used for the manufacture of any prohibited liquors and beverages, be found by any sheriff or other officer of the State or of any county in the effort to enforce the prohibition laws of the State, the same shall be by said officer at once summarily destroyed and rendered useless for service. And the officer shall also summarily destroy any liquor or liquids the product of a distillery or plant for the making of a prohibited liquor which he may find on the premises, and the owner of said distillery or plant or any person permiting the same to exist on the premises shall forfeit to the State of Alabama all property used in connection with said illegal plant, together with the buildings and lots or parcels of ground constituing the premises on which the unlawful act is performed or permitted to be performed. The said forfeiture may be enforced by a bill filed on the equity side of the circuit court of the county in which the property is located, the bill to be filed in the name of the State of Alabama by the attorney general or by a solicitor or other prosecuting attorney or official in the county, where the bill is filed, or by others as provided in the law for the filing of bills for abatement of liquor nuisances, and the property may be ordered sold and the proceeds applied after paying the costs and expenses of the seizure and of the suit, to a fund for law enforcement to enable the governor to exercise the powers conferred by section 14 of this act, after paying out of the proceeds the sum of $50.00 to the sheriff or other officer or other person who secured the seizure and whose efforts resulted in obtaining the decree of condemnation, the proceeds shall be paid into the State treasury as a law enforcement fund and the governor may draw on same or employ same to bear expenses of enforcing laws as authorized by this act.

Sec. 13. That all conveyances and vehicles of transportation of any kind, whether on the waters of the State, under the water, on land or in the air, which have been or are used for the illegal conveying of any prohibited liquors or beverages, into this State, or from one point in the State to another point within the State, including any animals that may be hitched to any vehicle so illegally used, together with all harness and other accessories employed in such illegal transportation, shall be contraband and be forfeited to the State of Alabama, and shall be seized by any sheriff or other arresting officer or any other person acting under authority of law in the enforcement of the prohibition laws of the State, who becomes cognizant of the facts or who finds liquor in such conveyance or vehicle being illegally transported as aforesaid. And such officer or person shall report the seizure and the facts connected therewith to the solicitor or any proseeuting official in the county where seizure is made or in default thereof to the attorney general of the State. And it shall be the duty of such officer in the county, or the attorney general of the State to at once institute or cause to be instituted condemnaion proceedings in the circuit court by petition in equity in the name of the State against the property seized describing the same, or against the person or persons in possession of said vehicles of transportation, if known, to obtain a decree enforcing the forfeiture. No replevin or detinue writ may be employed to re-take posession of such seized property pending the forfeiture suit, but any party claiming a superior right may intervene by petition in said suit and have his claim adjudicated. The judge presiding in said circuit court, or any division thereof may superintend and make all proper orders and orders of publication of notice to be published for all parties claiming the said vehicles to come in and assert their right thereto. And the said court shall have authority to frame all orders of procedure so as to regulate the proceedings that persons may have an opportunity to come in and propound their claim to the vehicles and conveyances sought to be condemned. Any sheriff or other officer who seizes or comes into possession of such vehicle, animal or property illegally used for the transportation of liquor within or into the State and does not know or cannot ascertain the possessor or owner thereof, shall advertise and sell the same according to the rules for selling personal property under execution, and both the court in condemnation proceedings and the said officer on advertisement shall sell the right of all interested persons in and to said conveyances, vehicles and other property who aided or assisted in the illegal transportation or who had knowledge or notice thereof, or could by reasonable diligence have obtained knowledge or notice thereof. The proceeds of the sale of any such property forfeited to the State, whether sold by court decree or by an officer under advertisement, shall after paying all expenses in the cause, and of advertisement, as the case may be, including the costs of seizure and of keeping the property pending the proceedings, shall be applied as follows: One-fourth to the officer making the seizure and furnishing the proof, but if proof be furnished by another person than the officer making the seizure, one-eighth of the proceeds shall go to the furnisher of the proof and one-eighth to the officer making the seizure, and assisting in the condemnation case, or who makes the sale under advertisement. (2). The remainder of the proceeds shall be paid into the treasury of the State as a law enforcement fund to be used and applied for the enforcement of State laws under the supervision and control of the governor, same to be paid out on warrant of the auditor on a bill against the State approved by the attorney general and the governor. That any contraband vehicles, including automobiles, heretofore seized under existing laws, as having been used in the unlawful transportation of any prohibitive liquor, may be condemned and sold, or may be otherwise disposed of under the procedure prescribed by this act as the case may require, and tne proceeds of sale be distributed and applied to and for the purpose herein prescribed; all receptacles of prohibitive liquor such as hand bags, suit cases, or trunks, which have been seized in law enforcement, and which are in the custody of any person or officer, after conviction of parties from whom seized of the violation of the law in respect thereto, shall be sold, after notice of sale by advertisement in a newspaper published in the county for ten days in a daily paper, or for two issues in a weekly paper, and the proceeds of the sale be paid into the city treasury, if sale is made by a city officer or custodian of such contraband seized by city officers, or to the law enforcement fund in the State treasury created by this act, if made by any other officer or custodian. In cases of all contraband property, under the laws of Alabama, growing out of prohibitory laws or their enforcement, there shall be a remedy by bill filed in the name of the State by the officer or other person in accordance with any provisions of this or other prohibitory acts in the name of the

ADMINISTRATRIX NOTICE

STATE OF ALABAMA,]
Chilton County.]

Estate of Corrine L. Reid, Deceased.

Letters testamentary upon the last will and testament (or letters of adminisration upon the estate) of said decedent, having been granted to the undersigned, on the 18th day of November, 1918, by the Honorable L. H. Reynolds, Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton County; notice is hereby given that all persons having claims against said estate will be required to present the same within the time allowed by law, or that the same will be barred.

MARY SMITH, Administratrix.
Reynolds, Bondurant and Riggins, Attorneys for Administratrix. 2-6-4t

Captain Rich, with his splendid company of Boy Scouts, worshiped in a body at the First Methodist Churchlast Sunday night, and heard a very forceful and helpful sermon by Dr. Maye, the pastor, on the subject "The Value ofCo-operation in God's work." The Dr. referred to the value of co-operation in civic affairs and how much the boys could render along these lines. The sermon was very helpful as well as encouraging to the large congregation.

PROHIBITION LAWS

State, to secure a decree, sale and distribution of the proceeds in accordance with the provisions of this act. This clause being adopted to provide a remedy in all cases, to secure the disposition, sale or destruction of contraband property, because of a violation of any prohibitory laws. Provided, however, if the arrest and seizure of such property is made by an officer or employee of any municipality of this State, that such municipality shall receive one-half of the remainder of the proceeds derived from the sale of such property, after the cost and expenses (including payment to officers and informers hereinabove provided for) are paid. The said portion of the monies derived from such proceeds shall be paid into the treasury of such municipality, and used and applied as a law enforcement fund, under the supervision and control of the governing body of such municipality, and the remaining half shall be paid to the law enforcement fund in the State treasury.

Sec. 13½. It shall be unlawful for any person to give away the essence, extract or tincture of Jamaica ginger for beverage purposes, or for any person, except a druggist or proprietor of a drug store, who is entitled under existing laws to sell alcohol for medicinal purposes upon prescription of a physician, to sell or dispense the essence, extract or tincture of Jamaica ginger, and the said druggist or proprietor of a drug store shall act only upon the prescription of a regular authorized practicing physician, all in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by law for the furnishing of prescriptions of alcohol for medicinal purposes, with the same limitations and restrictions in all details and particulars.

Sec. 14. That in order for the governor to perform the duties imposed upon him by the Constitution, that he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed he is hereby made the executive head of the law enforcement machinery of the State and is charged with supervising and directing the enforcement of the laws of the State for the promotion of temperance and the suppression of the evils of intemperance, and he is authorized to supervise, direct and give orders to any and all officers of the State or of any county in the State, in regard to the exercise of their powers in the performance of their duties in respect to the enforcement of said laws. And the governor may, as he deems desirable, call upon said officers for reports to be made directly to him, concerning any action they may have or may not have taken in enforcing said laws, and for reports concerning conditions that may exist, calling for increased diligence in reference to said law enforcement, and all such officers shall strictly obey his orders and directions and make any reports called for, and in the event of a failure to do so, or to carry out any instructions of the governor in respect to the enforcement of said laws, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor in office and may be punished, on conviction, by a fine of not exceeding $50.00 and by imprisonment not exceeding twelve months at hard labor for the county, to be fixed in the discretion of the court or judge trying the case. The governor is also authorized to appoint and employ inspectors or secret service men, or such other persons as he may deem necessary for the purpose of detecting and reporting upon violations of said laws, or any of them, and to contract with them for reasonable conpensation to be paid by the State for their services. He is also authorized to offer a reward to all sheriffs, constables or other persons in his discretion, who will bring about the conviction of any person for the violation of said laws and particularly for the violation of the laws against the manufacture of prohibited liquors, and may state the amount that will be paid out of the State treasury to any officer or person who may secure the conviction of any one guilty of the offense of illicit distilling or other violation of said laws to be made by the governor, and in the event such reward or rewards are earned, the same shall be paid by the warrant, drawn by the auditor upon the State treasury or the law enforcement fund therein, provided by this act as the governor decides upon a bill presented against the State for the reward, stating the facts and circumstances which the claimant puts forward as entitling him to the reward, when the said bill is certified and approved as being correct by the attorney general of the State and is also approved by the governor. The governor may require the attorney general in his discretion to prepare instructions to the officers of the State, counties, or municipalities to aid them in enforcing this and other prohibitory acts to be published and distributed at the expense of the state, as directed by the governor.

Sec. 15. That any person, firm or corporation who shall within this State distill, make or manufacture any alcoholic, spirituous, malted or mixed liquors or beverages, any part of which is alcohol, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof, be punished by confinement at hard labor in the penitentiary for not less than one year or longer than five years, to be fixed within these limits by the court or judge trying the case.

Sec. 16. The provisions of this act in respect to the transportation of said liquors into the State, shall not apply to shipments transported by any railroad company as a common carrier of unbroken packages in sealed cars in continuous transit through the State from one point outside of the State to another point outside of the State; but this act shall be construed to prohibit any person operating an automobile or other vehicle of transportation or any other agency from bringing into or transporting through this State any prohibited liquors or beverages except by a railroad company under conditions above stated.

Sec. 17. If, for any reason any section, paragraph, provision, clause or part of this act shall be held unconstitutionl or invalid, that fact shall not affect or destroy any other section, paragraph, provision, clause or part of the act not in and of itself invalid, but the remaining provisions shall be enforced without regard to that so invalidated.

Sec. 18. That no repeal or superceding or modification of any existing law or provision thereof resulting from this act shall effect any existing right, remedy, defense or liability incurred or any action or prosecution, civil or criminal already commenced or which may hereafter be commenced for any offense already committed, or any action or prosecution enforcing a right, penalty or punishment under such repealed modified or superseded law, and as to all such cases the law in force at the time of the taking effect of this act shall continue in force.

Sec. 19. That this is a supplemental act and does not constitute a complete revision of the laws upon the subject matter involved, and that all acts or parts of acts for the promotion of temperance and the suppression of the evils of intemperance in conflict with this act are repealed and, modified only to the extent of such conflict; and all the provisions of this act are by the Legislature deemed necessary to prevent evasions of the law against manufacture and sale of prohibited liquors and beverages.

Sec. 20. That any person who violates any provision of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor when not otherwise expressed, and shall be punished as prescribed in this section, if not otherwise expressed herein Any physician who issues any prescription containing any false statement, or who fails to comply with any requirement of the law in regard to the giving of prescription for alcohol to patients, or who uses alcohol except for authorized purposes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be by the judgment of the court disbarred from the practice of his profession for one year in this State upon conviction, in addition to the other penalties prescribed. Any person who shall sell any wine or alcohol in this State for any purpose other than allowed by law, or who shall fail to comply with any regulation respecting tthe sale, delivery or use of alcohol or wine, or who shall receive, NO 6 ..... have in possession, or possess, any alcohol or wine, except as authorized by law, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and any other person who offends under any section of this act, except in cases where other punishment is prescribed shall on conviction be punished by a fine of not less than $50.00 or more than $500.00 and they may also be imprisoned in the county jail or sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than six months for the first conviction, at the discretion of the court or judge trying the case, and on the second and every subsequent conviction in addition to the fine which may be imposed, the convicted party shall be confined to hard labor for not less than three, nor more than six months, to be fixed by the judge or county trying the case.

Sec. 21. That all the existing remedies for enforcement of existing laws for the promotion of temperance shall apply to enforcement of this act and that this act shall take effect from and after its passage and final enactment into law, the public welfare requiring it

LOYD RAY IN FEDERAL COURT

United States Marshall Gus Wall carried Loyd Ray, of Chilton County before the Federal Court in Montgomery last Thursday on a charge of illicit distilling of dhiskey. Ray was bound over to the Federal Grand Jury March 3rd, under bond of $500.

This action by the federal authorities was taken after Ray had been convicted on the same charge in Chilton County circuit court. and fined $250 and sentenced to four months hard labor.

POTASH $100 A BALL

Last week in the trial of a case in the circuit court wherein a man was charged with making moonshine whiskey, the jury assessed a fine of $50 against the defendant for making whiskey.

Further evidence showed that the distiller used one ball of potash in each barrel of beer he made into whiskey; the jury assessed him $100 for each ball of the potash; and they decided too that he told a little crooked tale in testifying before the jury and they gave him $50 extra for that.

The total fine assessed against the man amounted to $300.

RAILWAY OFFICIAL WARNS FARMERS TO ORDER FERTILIZERS AT ONCE

Regional Director Winchell Finds Situation Is Becoming Precarious and Urges Farmers Not to Delay Till Last Moment.

The following statement has been issued to the press by the United States Regional Director of Railways, about the fertilizer movement:

"Please let me say a word to our farmer patrons.

"The normal yearly movement of fertilizers in this region runs from three million to five million tons. This means, in round figures, 160,000 carloads to be handled.

"Ordinarily most of this very large item of traffic is thrown on the railroads in the months of January, February and March. Great activity on their part is necessary to handle the same well.

"By February 10 at least 40 per cent of the whole fertilizer tonnage has usually been shipped, but this year less than 15 per cent has moved so far; that is to say, the movement up to date is about 50,000 cars short of what it should have been.

"It is easy for you to see what I fear.

"A flood of business at the last moment cannot be moved to the satisfaction of our patrons and complaints will surely follow. We are anxious to avoid complaints, but it is obvious that we cannot move all of this tonnage at one time. In order to do the job right it is necessary that it be well distributed throughout the whole three months.

"During the past four or five weeks car conditions and weather have been favorable, but the fertilizers have not moved freely and immediate activity is now necessary to avoid a condition which will be serious alike to the farmers and the railroads."

The 52 Biggest Farm Problems

How Farmers Can Get Useful Information At the Time They Need it Most

What would it be worth to you to have the South's greatest authorities advise you on important farm questions? You can have them help you each week in solving problems like these:

—How to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions—how to tell the fertilizer needs of your soil—how to get rid of Bermuda grass and wild onions—how to make straw and stover into fattening feed—how to succeed with farm tractors—how tenant and landlord can work together to best advantage—relative value of different methods of arranging and erecting fences—how to get more profit from the sale of surplus eggs, poultry, vegetables, fruits and meat.

The Progressive Farmer—the South's great farm paper—will bring you each week advice on questions like these—advice from men who are recognized as the greatest authorities on producing crops and marketing them.

The 52 Things Which Perplexed 170,000 Farmers

Before we planned our editorial program for 1919, we read the thousands of letters received from farmers each month. The 52 things about which we received the most correspondence we singled out and made the subject of leading articles. One of these articles will appear each week. Yet they will be but one among scores of features contained in every issue. Mrs. Hutt will continue her helpful articles and help solve the twelve big problems of the farmer's wife.

Do You Know

Do you know how to furnish almost twelve months good grazing for hogs? Doctor Tait Butler tells how. Do you know the pounds of plant-food that seed and root crops or hay and roughage extract from your soil? The Progressive Farmer tells you. Here are the subjects of other helpful talks:

—the cost of different fence posts compared with their average life
—acre capacity per hour of different farm machinery
—when to spray and what to use to destroy insects—control fungus diseases
—how to preven corn weevil
—how to save clover seed
—how much fodder-pulling cuts the yield of corn
—the loss when cover crops are not plowed under
—how to give new life to old fruit trees
—how to detect, prevent and cure poultry diseases
—how to organize a mutual fire insurance company
—how the Farm Loan System works and how to borrow money
—why silage sometimes keeps poorly
—the rate at which silage should be fed
—who is in charge of tick eradication—the State pig clubs, corn clubs, demonstration agents, experiment stations

All of this information and much more was contained in a single issue of the Progressive Farmer last year—"The Reference Special." The Reference Special this year will be even better. It alone is worth $10 to any farmer.

52 Experience Meetings Attend Them on Your Farm

Our 170,000 subscribers are asked to write on these 52 subjects as well. Cash prizes paid for the best letters. Thus you receive the cream of the experience of 170,000 practical farmers. They shed new light on every phase of farming. You attend these experience meetings sitting in your easy chair.

9 Special Issues Personal Advice Free

Nine of these fifty-two issues will be "specials" treating exhaustively of the most important subjects: Farm Implements and Machinery, Reference, Fertilizers, Dairy, Trucks and Tractors, Rich Lands, Farm Buildings and Equipment, Paint, Lights and Waterworks, Neighborhood Improvement and Cooperation.

The editors welcome correspondence from all subscribers about any vital subject of farm life. When you become a subscriber you literally hire them to help you make more money.

It may cost you ten times the price of a subscription not to have the information that a single issue contains. The Progressive Farmer is published weekly. You receive 52 issues a year for only $1. The information in any one issue, if applied, will pay for the cost many times over. You receive the help of these great editors (which costs us tens of thousands of dollars) and the experience of 170,000 farmers at a cost of only 2c. a week.

Fill out the coupon and hand it to a Progressive Farmer subscription agent or mail it to us with a dollar, and receive the 52 issues crammed with money-making plans and money-saving "wrinkles." MARBURY VS. THORSBY

In a one-sided but nevertheless interesting game, the Marbury basketball five went down in defeat before the Thorsby Institute quintet on the latter's court last Friday afternoon.

The locals started the game like a flash and when the first quarter was over the Institute boys regis-e.ed 17 tallies to Marbury's lone 2 points. Thorsby kept up her aggressiveness adding several points each quarter until time was called, when the final score was announced thus: Marbury 14, Thorsby 42.

The special features of the game were the splendid pass work and the accuracy in ringing the baskets by the Thosby boys The suppot given the team by the students and other spectators was wonderful. It showed that the same school spirit prevailed in the students who come and go.

Thorsby meets Clanton next Friday on Clanton soil.

The individual score for the Marbury-Thorsby game is:

Thorsby—
O. Larsen, F—9 points;
L. Lefstead, F—26 points;
T. Larsen, C—7 points;
W. Lefstead, G—0;
Bruner, G—0.

Marbury—
Glenn, F—4 points;
Champion, F—8 points;

DO NOT RELAX IN PATRIOTISM

THAT'S THE MESSAGE OF SECRETARY GLASS TO THE PEOPLE OF ALABAMA.

PEACE NOT SIGNED YET

Alabama War Savings Committee Making Splendid Progress With Its Work—Thrift in the Schools.

The big message to the people of Alabama as well as those of all other states in the Union, is put impressively in these few words from Hon. Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury:

"The war will not be over," says Mr. Glass, "until the United States has honorably met every commitment made in order to win the war."

This means that we should continue to buy government securities, including War Savings Stamps, which never go below par, but are always worth what the purchaser pays for them, with their value increasing all the time we hold them. It also means that we should not sell our Stamps unless compelled to do so by pressing necessity. And under no circumstances should we sell them to scalpers. If forced to sell, we should take our Stamps to the postoffice, and there get full value for them. It should be borne in mind, however, that every Stamp sold back, whether to the scalper or the postoffice, sets the government back that much, as the government spends the money as fast as received from the sale of Stamps, in meeting the obligations incurred in winning the war.

As a matter of fact, the war will not be over until peace is actually signed, and that may not be done for some months yet, if then.

The armistice simply means a cessation of hostilities until the conditions of peace have been agreed upon by the Allies. Here of late Germany has shown a disposition to haggle over the terms of the armistice, to say nothing of peace terms, and we are beginning to awaken to the fact that the Hun may be planing a "come back" that will cause more American blood to be shed and more American money to be spent.

Such being the case, it is foolish and unpatriotic to think that peace is absolutely assured and that we can relax in our duty to support the government in all ways. If we are not alive to that fact now, we may have to pay for a rude awakening later, with blood, tears and money.

Let's keep our armor on and our lights burning.

Big meeting of Farmers at State Capitol March 5th.

Farmers, merchants and business men of Alabama are urged to meet at the capitol at Montgomery, March 5th, to consider the cotton siutation. This meeting is called by the Farmers Protective League and is in line with the movement throughout the whole South to hold the present cotton crop, reduce the acreage in 1919, and diversify.

Every ctton grower should make it a point to attend this conference and every business man interested in the prosperity of Alabama should be present. Make sure of a strong delegation from your section.

WAR SAVINGS NEWS.

The Alabama War Savings Committee is now well organized and in splendid shape for an active, result-producing campaign. Able men have accepted the call to serve as County War Savings Chairmen, and equally able and devoted women have accepted similar positions with the Woman's Division of the State Committee.

The appointment of Mr. James D. Dickson to work among the banks completes an organization of four field representatives, who are going all over Alabama, preaching and teaching the doctrine of thrift and giving our people the vision of the new independence which is coming to them, freedom from debt, and the sense of getting ahead in life. J. H. Jackson is doing similar work in the schools to that being done in the banks by Mr. Jackson; Z. E. Bellah has the postoffices and Thomas Cobb has the industrial and commercial plants. While these four field representatives will specialize in their individual work, none will neglect any opportunity to place War Savings Stamps and thrift before gatherings of the people. Wake up, Alabama! is their slogan.

Teaching Thrift in the Schools.

It is not at all improbable that thrift will be taught in the schools of this country, as a part of the regular course, and with a specially prepared series of text books.

Alabama and Mississippi are taking the lead in this matter in the South. The War Savings Committees of both states have put it up to the State Superintendents of Education, who are giving the suggestion their earnest consideration, and are at work on plans to make it practicable.

Certainly there can be no argument against the teaching of thrift in the schools. Such an educational course could be made very attractive to children of all ages, and the effects upon the plastic minds of the growing generation would be incalculable. In a few years a nation of spendthrifts would be changed into a nation of savers and wise spenders—and that is, after all, the grand objective of the government in this War Savings work.

The parents of the children would also be benefitted by the teaching of Thrift in the schools. The saving idea would spread from the schools into the homes, for children are the greatest missionaries on earth, and in a little while we would have happier and more prosperous homes.

But whether Thrift shall be taught in the schools—sooner or later—or not, the fact remains that the formation and maintenance of War Savings Societies in the schools is second in importance to no branch of War Savings work. If the children are at work on Thrift their parents and uncles and aunts will have to take hold, too. There is no escape for them.

FARMERS SEEKING BETTER TREATMENT

Protective League to Take Steps to Care for the Cotton Crop.

Joseph O. Thompson, president of the Farmers' Protective League of Alabama, has issued a ringing call for a mass meeting of the league to be held in Montgomery on March 5, where steps will be taken to get a true price for cotton, and other plans made for legislation and organization that should be of benefit to the farmer.

Mr. Thompson in his preamble calls attention to the wondrous strides that the southern farmers have made by reason of crop diversification, and earnestly calls for a continuance of that sort. He advises holding cotton now on hand both for its sake and for the sake of the cotton that is to be produced. In his call for the meeting, which is addressed to the farmers of Alabama, Mr. Thompson says in part:

Mr. Thompson's Call.

To the Farmers of Alabama:

One of the most serious situations now confront the farmers of Alabama within the history of the state. Decision day is fast approaching; the day when every individual farmer must determine for himself whether he is going to continue diversification or lapse back into the semi-slavery of the all-cotton system. We have in the past four years made cotton subject instead of king, and within that time have become more independent and made more progress as a whole than in many previous 10 years of our agricultural life in the South. Shall we criminally continue to destroy the value of cotton to ourselves? By doing away with diversification, and growing such an abundance of cotton that the England and New England cotton spinners shall name the price instead of ourselves?

The Legislature of Alabama meets again in July; the Legislature belongs to the people. We think we have a good Legislature; we believe they will give us such laws as we will present to them to correct the evils which now exist against the farmer in this State. Unless the farmers themselves, the men who have cattle, hogs, peanuts, corn, velvet beans, etc., to sell, organize and stand by their organization, all the progress we have made in the past four years will be lost to us.

The most important thing for us to consider at this moment is the cutting down of the cotton acreage, keeping up diversification, and driving throughout the South a propaganda for the holding of the present stocks of cotton in the hands of its present owners until the cost of production can be realized. Under the high cost of everything that entered into the making of the 1918 crop, 30 cents is the minimum price a producer can sell his cotton and come out with a profit. A determination to reduce this year's areage will enhance tremendously the value of the stocks on hand.

Therefore, I, Joseph O. Thompson, president of the Farmers' Protective League of Alabama, hereby call a meeting of the members of the league in the City of Montgomery, in the House of Representatives at the state capitol, Wednesday, March 5, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of more thoroughly organizing and devising ways and means that the farmers may be able to get a true price for their cotton, and to further formulate plans of organiaztions by which the farmers of Alabama may protect themselves from open and notorious robbery that is at this time going on in many ways; and I further suggest that all farmers who may be interested in protecting themselves against unlawful speculation and unjust methods of that class of people who have always taken advantage of the farmers in the day of their great need, meet with us in Montgomery on the above named date, and come to work and plan and organize in our own interest. We shall have a full and free meeting in session for two days.

JOSEPH O. THOMPSON,
President Farmers' Protective League of Alabama.
SAMUEL M. ADAMS,
Secretary and Treasurer.

NOTICE TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

The Chilton County Board of Education hereby requests the white people of each school district in Chilton county to meet at their respective school houses at 2 o'clock P. M., on March 15, 1919, and elect three persons as school trustees of each school in the county. The Board of Education will meet at Clanton on Marh 28th, 1919, for the purpose of making the legal appointment for a term of two years of the persons so recommended, and notice is hereby given that the term of the present trustees has been extended until April 15th, 1919, when the new term of trustees will begin.

It is hereby made the duty of the chairman and secretary of the meeting held on March 15th to notify the County Superintendent of Education in writing within five days after said meeting of the names of the persons elected so that the Board of Education may know the voice of the people.

W. T. BEAN,

When Payne Wrote "Home, Sweet Home"

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

It is said when John Howard Payne wrote "Home, Sweet Home," he himself was a homeless wanderer in the streets. It took a man who had no home to make the spirit of home immortal.

The reason why we of today do not appreciate a home more is that it is too easy to have one. The place that our grandfathers called home was little more than a shelter. They knew no comforts such as we have. They had few luxuries, but the thing that they called home had been fought for, and so it was dear to them.

Today anyone can have a home almost for the asking. He can fill it with big, comfortable furniture that will give him as much comfort as used to belong only to royalty. He can have beautiful draperies in his windows and fine pictures on his walls. He can have a piano or a talking machine. He can have rugs that are copies of the patterns in palaces. And he can do all this on the most moderate, the most ordinary of salaries or wages.

Day by day this paper is filled with advertising that offers every facility for the furnishing of the home. Not only can the man with ready cash furnish his home on a moderate basis, but even the man without cash can have all the comforts and luxuries he desires through a system of credit on home furnishings which has now become almost national in its scope.

This is the season when new homes are springing up on every hand and the season when old homes are being remodeled and refurnished for another year. Therefore it is the season for home furnishing opportunities which every live advertising merchant is offering at this time.

Do not hold these home-making opportunities too lightly. Give these advertisers a hearing. What they are saying is real, and what they are doing is making history. There has never been a time in the history of the world when comfort and luxury were as widespread amongst the people as they are today.

Look over this advertising today. See if you cannot add the comfort of a home to the pleasure of your life, or see if you cannot put more luxury and more material happiness into the home you have.

Think of what you need most about your home and then look for the advertising of those things in this paper today.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

On last Friday afternoon the Thorsby Institute played the C. C. H. S. a very interesting game of basket ball on the latter's court. The following are the players and the score of each:

Thorsby Institute:
Right forward, Lefstead L. 12
Left forward, Larson O 4.
Center guard, Lefstead W. 0.

A total of 22 points was made by Thorsby.

C. C. H. S.:
Right forward, Lee Sartor 4.
Left Forward, Otto Jones 0.
Center, Tom Robinson 10.

A total of 14 points was made by C. C. H. S.

This was not nearly so bad as C. C. H. S. beat Thorsby once this season. The score being 30 to 18.

The Handsome Boys Minstrel will play at Verbena school house Friday night. We wish to thank the people of Verbena for their kind invitation to us. They seem to think we will give them a good show and we would not have them to be mistaken for anything, so if you want to see as good show as we had here be at Verbena next Friday night. I beg you to excuse me for saying the Minstrel would play at Thorsby last Friday night. I wish to correct that statement now and I don't think I will be guilty again.

We hope that school next year will not be bothered with the flu as it has been this year. We hope to see the school grow. It is already one among the best schools in the state but not half the boys and girls who ought to be in high school are here. So, parents, wake up and send those boys and girls of yours who ought to be in high school here and see the difference.

We would take up more space if we were to have all the jokes printed but we decided that they might not be very interesting to the readers, especially so, as they are the little silly sayings of us students.

YOU MAY DATE LETTERS 'YEAR 1'

Paris.—The peace conference is to be called upon to reform the calendar.

The request is to be filed by the French Academy of Science with the technical authority of N. Deslandres, director of the French Observatory at Meudon.

If the Academy plan is accepted, next year probably will be the year 1.

Time will be reckoned, not from the birth of Christ, but from the signing of the peace treaty creating the new world.

Most of the world now accepts the Gregorian calendar, but much international confusion arises from the fact that Russia and the Balkans use the Julian calendar, in which the year differs from the Gregorian year by about 10 days. The peace conference will be asked to make one calendar compulsory or official throughout the world.

The French Academy plan proposes a year of 13 months, each month having 28 days. The 365th day in ordinary years and 365th and 366th days in leap years would be holidays, not included in any month.

Under this plan a given day of the month always would fall on the same day of the week.

Another scheme proposes a year composed of four equal quarters, each quarter composed of one month of 31 days and two months of 30 days each.

NOTICE

The next Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Chilton County Baptist Association will meet with Shiloh Church, 8 miles southwest of Clanton. AN UNDIGNIFIED REMARK

Washington, March 1, 1919.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington Headquarters:

"To the statement of ex-President Taft that among the men who are opposing the League of Nations are "those he would not trust with the constitution over night," there is the obviously pertinent reply that his confidence is neither requested nor requisite. Under our system of government, the men in the Senate, who are now the chief spokesmen against the suggested constitution for a league of nations, get their credentials in the form of a vote of trust from the people of their several states—people who know them best. Those constituents are willing to trust them not only over night but for a period of six years. Mr. Taft's flippant innuendo would be less impertinent if the records of the election of 1912 did not disclose the pronounced determination of the country not to trust him in the White House for another four years.

"Not only by his advocacy of surrender of national ideals, individuality and independence, but by his assumption of the autocratic right to dictate to members of Congress, Mr. Taft has inked himself in very close association with President Wilson. The arrogance of his assumption of personal superiority of mind and patriotism is excelled only by the docility with which he would surrender the dignity and power of the nation to the selfish interests and uncertain changes in the politics of Europe and Asia.

"Most of those who have discussed the project for a league of nations have done it upon a broad consideration of principles involved, conceding to all others rectitude of purpose and patriotic motives. Mr. Taft enjoys the distinction of being the second to question the right of others to a free expression and a fair hearing. He has been preceded in his attitude only by the President, who had the temerity to ask that all discussion be postponed until he had returned and submitted his own views.

"Since Mr. Taft has deemed it proper to dismiss opponents of the league plan with the sweeping declaration that he would not trust them with the constitution over night, it should be suffiient to reply in kind."

NUNNALLY MARTIN DIED EARLY LAST SATURDAY

Early last Saturday morning at his home in Jemison, Mr. Nunnally Martin, a well-known citizen and business man of that town died from illness resulting from a severe attack of influenza. He had been seriously sick for several days and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Martin was a splendid citizen. He had been in the hardware business at Jemison for a long time and had gained a wide acquaintance and numbers of friends. He was the son of Mr. B. N. Martin.

Mr. Martin was married some years ago to Miss Ola Murrah, who, with three small children survives him. He was buried Sunday.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO BE VISITED ON THE 23

Sunday, March 23rd, Official Visiting Day for All the Sunday Schools in the County.

Visitors representing the Sunday Schools of the District, County, State, National and World Sunday School Associations will pay a visit to every Sunday School in Chilton County on Sunday, March 23rd.

The Chilton County Sunday School Association, of which D. J. Flummer of Thorsby is President, has at the instance of the State Association, organized all its forces and will send a visitor to all the schools on the above date for the purpose of bringing about a closer fraternal cooperation between all the schools in the county, thereby aiding each other in putting in operation the very best methods of the day in the conduct of the Schools and to properly organize classes and departments, and secure better attendance.

Disease, war and bad weather has for the past several months caused a falling off in the attendance and has, to a certain extent caused many persons to lose all interest in this great work, but now that those things have passed, the earnest and faithful Sunday School workers of the county have determined to see that Chilton County remains no longer in the back ground in the matter of Religious training for its children. The children of Chilton are as good as the best and as such they are entitled to the best methods of religious training.

Every school superintendent and teacher in the county is earnestly requested and urged to use their best efforts to have a full attendance at their respective schools on that date to greet these visitors. Each Sunday school secretary is urged to have a full statistical report of its school to hand to the visitor on that day.

These vistors are going for the purpose of assisting the school they visit in whatever manner they can and to carry back with them a completrer knowledge of Sunday school work for the benfit of his or her own school, thereby making the visit mutually profitable to both the visitor and the visited.

All District Presidents and Secretaries are urged to see that official visitors are assigned and that they go to every school in their district. It is hoped that there will not be a single school, however small or remote, without a visitor on that date.

Every Father, and Mother in the county is urged to take every child, grand-child, and all their kin folks, however young or old, to Sunday Shool on March 23rd. Don't forget the date, and above all don't forget to go.

Fraternally, yours for the best cause on earth, the Sunday Shool.

D. J. FLUMMER,
County President.

The Pope Says: "Well Done, Thou Good and Faithful Servant."

Guess you have not overlooked the fact that President Wilson's league of nations idea is pleasing to the Pope. Well anyway, don't miss that phase of it, for it is a very important part of the scheme.

You also remember that when Mr. Wilson first went to Europe, he made a beeline for the vatican; and as to what took place on his visit there the faithful and unsuspecting Protestant people of the United States know nothing at all.

But the result of that visit is now clearly to be seen.and since the result has panned out as it has, we are led to believe that the main purpose of Mr. Wilson's seeing the Pope right at first was in order to gain a tip as to how the Catholic dignitaries wished the league of nations plan drafted.

The following dispatch has come from Rome this week: "The Pope will deliver a peace spech at the next Consistory, supporting the ideas of President Wilson, and claiming that the American executive is working along the lines the vatican has always advocated to ensure a permanent world peace."

Since the Pope has come out with such a pleasing endorsement of the Wilsonian idea of a league of nations, it looks to us very much like Mr. Wilson made the thing in the moulds that the Pope gave him to make it in when he visited him a few weeks ago at the vatican. It must be made just the way the Pope said make it or else he would not endorse it. You never in your life heard of this great divine thing called the Pope endorsing anything that was done by somebody else without first consulting him.

We wonder, gentlemen, if President Wilson actually thinks little enough of the United States and the World to deliver the whole thing, done up brown, over into the hands of the Catholics.

How can such a thing be?

"Beware of Any Entangling Alliances With European Countries."

George Washington, the honored and most revered father of our great and glorious country, said in his Farewell Address before Congress: "Beware of any entang ling alliances between this country and any European power."

When these wise words were spoken America had just suceeded in freeing herself from the deadly clutch of Great Britain's oppression and tyranny. Every patriotic man of that day knew in reality how important it was for this country to steer clear of Europe's continental quarels. They had just been, for the period of their lifetime, tied up in such muddles, and they certainly were in a position to know, not guess, what a danger and menace it was.

Washington's wisdom was handed down from year to year, and from generatio to generation, and this country was blessed by taking his advice. President James Monroe reaffirmed confidence in Washington's assertions when he enunciated that wise and lasting document, the Monroe Doctrine, which has shielded us and protected us up to this good day.

But just look about us now and see what is going on in the world. Shake the brush a little and see what a stir is within. You find America so mixed and mingled with foreign European powers that you actually can't tell which one is the other.

Under the league of nations idea that is confronting us at present, Uncle Sam is to stand guard over certain territories in Europe in the future, so we will be sure to have spattered upon us the blood of every Duke, Lord, Earl and Princess that is assasinated in the old world in the future. And the blood being upon our garments, no matter how it came there, either thru innocent assistance to the attacked, or otherwise, it will be upon us, and therefore we will have to stand a party to the affair. We will be in the fight, for there will be no way out of it.

Beware of entangling aliances between this country and any European power!

How sad it is for America that our leaders do not see, or else do not regard the wisdom of our noble and ilustrious father, warrior, and first President. We will pay the price for this breach of our faith in what he cautioned us to guard with jealous care.

Will somebody please tell us what became of the petition the people of Clanton made to the Alabama Power Company to bring their lines into Clanton? Now we do not care a rap for somebody's idea about what went with it. We want to hear somebody talk who KNOWS. There is somebody in Clanton who does know where it went, and knows what the parties to whom it went said in return. Won't they who know about it please let it leak out to the public in some way? The people made the petition in good faith, hoping thereby to arrive at something that would give them better light and power service. They are now entitled to know what was the result of their petition so they can follow the first effort up with another in the same direction. Or if that first one did not serve the purpose intended, try it over again.

The sensible thing for the average farmer to do is to reduce his acreage in cotton, practice a systematic rotation of crops, including legumes, and raise some poultry, hogs, and other live stock. Plant fewer ares in cotton, thoroughly prepare the soil, fertilize liberally, plant the most prolific seed, give the growing crops frequent and shallow cultivation, and obtain much larger yield per acre.—Progressive Farmer.

Many people of Clanton read our criticism of the public light system last week, and were hearty in their "Amen" to what we said. But remember it does not get us anywhere to simply clap our hands while somebody else does the kicking. Our only salvation is clearly obvious now to everyone. Then why sit still and do nothing.

Never order seed corn from a distant state. In fact it is not advisable to send far away from your farm for seed corn. Seed corn should be grown under climatic conditions, and on soil very similar to that surrounding the purchaser. If you want to plant a few acres of corn for early feed, Iowa-grown seed will be satisfactory.—Progresive Farmer.

THORSBY INSTITUTE VS. CHILTON BASKETEERS

The Thorsby Institute boys captured a very hotly contested game of football from the Chilton County basketeers on Friday afternoon on Clanton's court. The score was Clanton 14, Thorsby 20.

Thorsby was well represented by the time the game was ready to begin as several enthusiastic rooters were unloaded from the cars that brought them. The game was begun at four o'clock.

The first half ended with Thorsby in the lead with 13 points while Clanton made 9. During the first part of the second half it appeared as if Clanton would walk away with the game, as they rung two field goals and one foul goal in rapid succession and made it one point ahead for Clanton High. Then Thorsby woke up to the situation and threw three fields and one foul before the period was called.

Both teams played cleanly and fairly, handling the ball instead of playing the man. Good defensive and offensive strength was shown by both factions.

Red Triangle Man Tells Of Serving At Chateau Thierry

The Y. M. C. A. has been criticized because it was said that it had no one at the fighting in the region of Chateau Thierry. The other day, Ernest C. Bardwell, a New York man, came back from France, broken in health because of his strenuous work in that region.

Mr. Bardwell was one of a party of Y. M. C. A. men who entered Chateau Thierry village with supplies at 10 o'clock on the morning of July 22 and worked all day and far into the night serving the boys who were beating back the German counter-attacks. The last German prisoners, he said, were taken out of Chateau Thierry at 8:30 o'clock on the same morning.

LETTER FROM W. E. VINSON SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

A. E. F ., Jan. 26, 1919.

Dear Friends and Relatives:

I will try tonight to write you a few lines. I am sitting in the cozy writing room of the big Y. M. C. A. The boys around me s eem to be as happy as if they were sitting around their own fireside at home far across the sea. Some of them are playing cards or checkers. Others are smoking and talking about the interesting things they have seen while traveling over France and England. Many of them are writing to their sweetheart or mother and thinking of the glorious times that were and will be again when the big engine slows down and they step out in their home town.

Now as I glance around over by the big warm stove, I see many of the boys reading the papers trying to get some dope on when Uncle Sam is going to say: "Soldier, your work is done. You have fought a good fight. You have kept the faith. You have finished the task required of you. So bid farewell to France and return to your homes and your loved ones who are watching and waiting for you."

At seven tonight we have a big show and we know it is going to be very good. We have some kind of entertainment every night. Last night we had movies. Tonight Show and tomorrow night concert or band. My company is on the road most of the time now, supplying the horses needed up on or near the front. I have just returned from a long trip over France. The scenery was very interesting. We rode for a long distance over level land and down beautiful river valleys. Then at last another big American engine was connected on the rear of our train and we started over the mountains and through the long tunnels. We returned by way of Paris. Spent 15 hours in the grand old city. I walked across the Seine River on the big bridge and visited most all the historical monuments and scenery in the city. I know it would be interesting to you all to see us boys riding in the passenger coaches with a bunch of the French soldiers. talking, smoking cigarettes and exchanging souvenirs. Now just imagine how we smile when we pass them the good old U. S. A. cigarettes or cigars and we see them reach for their canteens and glass and fill her up with sparkling red wine. Oh we are a happy bunch together, or at least we try to make each other believe we are happy. Discouragement and homesickness is something we fight with all our power. I always look at the bright side of life over here, for the bright side is not very bright and I am sure the dark side is indeed very dark.

I guess we Q. M. C. boys are having it soft to what some of the men have been through. We have a nice camp here, well-fixed every way. We have an exceptionally good company. Every man is true, honest and trustworthy. Each and every one a friend to the other. Our officers from Captain down to Sergeants and Corporals have proven themselves gentlemen, indeed—worthy of the honor and rank conferred upon them. They are loved and honored by every one with whom they come in contact.

We do not know yet when we are going to start for home. But we feel that the time is near in the future. We are looking forward to the time when we can walk out on deck and see the Statute of Liberty as she looks out across the harbor, proclaiming liberty to the whole world. When we land in New York and march down Broadway, then we can realize that home and loved ones are not so far away, and that we will soon be there to receive the joyous welcome.

There are several of us Alabama boys here in the organization together. We have been together ever since we entered the service and took our course at the University of Alabama. One of the fellows especially is as fine a chum as I ever had, Corporal Hutchins from North Alabama. Where you see one of us you see the other. When one of us get something good to eat or drink he will not touch it until the other can share it with him. Just like two kids you see. He is going to visit me when we get back home and I hope some of you will get to meet him.

Well, I must bring my letter to an end. I am afraid this will not be very interesting to you. As you know, I cannot write just anything for it must pass the censors. I am going to send my address and ask all of you who read this to please write to me. If you only knew how your letters would be appreiated and the pleasure they would afford me I am sure I would receive a great many. It doesn't matter even if you never knew me personally. I feel that you all back in dear old Chilton are friends to me, and just a few lines would help so much to cheer me over here. Will answer every letter I receive. Try me.

I think the show is here now from the way the boys are cheering in the show room.

Wishing you all over there in God's country the best of health, good luck and happiness, good night.

W. E. VINSON.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. T. H. Neighbors delightfully entertained the E. C. Maye Sunday School Class on Friday afternoon. The president, Mrs. B. M. Roberts presided in her usual charming manner. After the business of the class had been transacted a very interesting program was carried out. The subject for the afternoon was Mexico. Readings by Mrs. Eric Hart, Mrs. John VanDerveer, and Mrs. Maye. Solo by Mrs. John Armstrong. Prawyer by Mrs. Maye. Song by class. After the program a delicious plate luncheon was served by the hostess.

Bob Farley has moved back to Clanton from Ensley. His many friends here are glad to see his family come back here to live.

* * *

Leonard Farley of the U. S. Navy is at home on a short visit this week.

* * *

Frank Thomas has returned home from the army; and he is at home "sho nuff." He is at work with the Jones Hardware Co., where he first got him a job when he was a boy.

* * *

Gaby Deslys, the incomparable star, most popular dancer and most talked of woman in the world, will be seen in INFATUATION at the Ideal Theatre, Friday and Saturday.

* * *

John Thompson's house in the eastern part of town caught fire Sunday afternoon but it was discovered and extinguished before any serious damage was done.

* * *

We want all who possibly can, to see INFATUATION at the Ideal Theatre, Friday afternoon and night, so we won't be so crowded Saturday.

* * *

Judge S. M. Adams is in Montgomery attending the meeting of the Farmers Protective League. He is on the program to make a speech to that body today (Thursday.)

NEGROES TO HOLD MASS MEETING IN CLANTON

The negroes of Clanton will hold a mass meeting Saturday, March 8th, 1919. Rev. R. W. Edwards, a member of the U.S. Production Committee and one of the Four Minute Speakers is to address the colored people on sanitary conditions, food conservation, reconstruction among the negroes, and their part after the war. The speaking will be in the open air near the old court house, and reserved seats will be provided for the white people.

A committee of prominent negro citizens of Clanton are behind the movement and they should have the co-operation of both races, for the purpose is to create harmony and peace among us.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

We are all at a danger point. On the use of good common sense in our 1919 farm and garden operations, depends prosperity or our "going broke."

Even at present high prices no one can plant all or nearly all cotton, buy food and grain at present prices from supply merchant on credit, and make money. Food and grain are higher in proportion than are present cotton prices.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to furnish nearly half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best two or three acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1919 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the farm crops as well and shows you the clear road to real and regular farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

PASTOR TENDERS THANKS

As I have recently moved from Birmingham, and located in Clanton, Mr. Editor, will you please allow me space in your paper for a card of thanks to Samaria Baptist Church.

I was greatly surprised Tuesday a.m., March 4th, when the people of Samaria church gathered at our home and filled our pantry with groceries, which also filled our hearts with joy.

"As much as ye did it unto one of the least, ye did it unto me."

Yours for service,
(Pastor) B. C. HUGHES.

SHOULD FERTILIZERS FOR COTTON BE REDUCED?

C. A. Whittle, Soil Improvement Committee, Atlanta, Ga.

Fertilizers should be applied in kind and quantity that experience has taught will bring the largest profits to the farmer. No more, no less.

Profits in cotton production largely depend upon two factors, labor and fertilizers. Both are now high in price.

Cotton requires a large amount of labor, more labor than any other general field crop. Therefore, when the cost of labor increases, the profits of cotton production decrease rapidly and are easily wiped out.

Because cotton is so burdened with labor cost, it follows that profits in producing it depend upon increasing the yield per acre; it depends upon it more than most other crops. As a matter of fact, a great deal of the cotton lands of the South are hardly fertile enough to pay the labor cost of producing a crop of cotton. Therefore, fertilizers have been depended upon to give the farmer the only profit he could expect to get out of producing the crop. It is plain, then, that to cut down fertilizer applications would mean simply cutting down the farmers' profits. It also seems to be clear that any farmer having any kind of land can not afford to let high labor cost sweep away his profits through a failure to use the necessary amount of fertilizers.

Fertilizers are high priced, it is true. But, after all, it is not so much the price as the profit-producing power of the fertilizers that should be a guide. Fertilizers increase yields at the lowest possible labor cost. In other words, they save labor, and since labor is the biggest and most expensive factor in making a crop of cotton, then fertilizers save expense and make profits more certain.

VETERAN H. S. ROBERTS DIED TUESDAY NIGHT

Confederate Veteran Henry S. Roberts died at Clanton last Tuesday night after quite a long illness.

He was one of the oldest citizens of Clanton, and one of the few men of today who went through the Civil War.

He was the father of Mr. J. H. Roberts, prominent business man of Clanton.

Cleaning the System of Poisons

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, digest well, work well, sleep well and finally—and to some peope most essentially—to—look well. What a glorious condition to attain and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul breath, nasty tongue, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the slucies of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

A glass of hot water each morning with one-half laxcarin tablet with it, before breakfast keeps us looking and feeling fit.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick, or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water, and take one-half or one whole laxcarin with it, to wash from the stomah, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and laxcarin is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While enjoying your breakfast the hot water and the laxcarin is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, biliousness, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a box of laxcarin, which costs almost nothing, or if desired 6 boxes which in the majority of cases is enough for the whole treatment, is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced rank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Laxcarin is sold by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. No. E 171,Pittsburgh, Penna. Price per box one dollar, full treatment six boxes five dollars. Will be sent postpaid upon receipt of cash, money orders or stamps. Substitutes must be refused.

REV. F. A. ELLISON'S BARN BURNED TUESDAY NIGHT

Rev. F. A. Ellison, who lives three or four miles out on the Lock 12 road, informs The Union-Banner, that his barn with all contents was destroyed by fire Tuesday night at midnight. The origin of the blaze is a mystery, he says.

His total loss is reckoned at $500 or more. All his fodder, hay, peas, beans and cotton seed were completely destroyed. His corn was not burned as it was stored in a crib which did not burn. He found the fire just in time to rescue the horses mules and other stock. All his harness and gear was burned.

WEST CHILTON.

The aerial songsters are beginning to cheer us with their advance spring melodies, harbingers, we trust, of nearby bright spring weather.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith visited relatives in Beat 4 last Saturday.

The physician was called to Mr. J. S. Atchison's Saturday night to se Mr. Atchison's little son, Joe.

Miss Georgia Armstrong, one of West Chilton's fairest belles, visited near Freeman Saturday afternoon.

Pleasant Grove had a dipping vat meeting last week and we learn that times were just a little squally.

Messrs. Green and Marion Cofer and families visited relatives here Sunday.

O. M. Bearden and family have moved to Searles, Ala.

That reproduction last week from The Banner 25 years ago we know looked good to many of the Banner readers.

Miss Bevie Smith has been sick for the past week, but is now reported better.

One of our young men was relieved of his lap robe at a recent dance. Another one of them had a full size buggy cushion, and it was removed and a little short one left in place.

John Crumpton has moved a short distance south of his old home. His son will occupy the old residence.

1918 was surely an eventful year. It witnessed the cessation of the great war; the disintegration of kingdoms; the death of thousands of brave Americans; and as prophetic students tell us, the beginning of the settling down of the night on us "when no man can work." We can't say for 1919, but it seems a good time for prospective candidates to trim their sails and get their bearings.

W. R. Dawson, just newly married, has added to his home a fine buggy, a fine cooking range, and a Hampshire hog. Brother Dawson is all right.

Jones Smith was out driving last Sunday.

Monroe Atchison has moved into his new residence.

We believe the editor was right in telling the people to beware of early gardening, as the ground hog pointed to adverse weather.

"Rabbit Drives" is fine fun for the boys here; but Bunny is not seemingly decreasing.

That was a fine boquet handed to Sheriff Gore by the State Prison Inspector.

Cleveland Martin has a position with Lon Brown. We learn that he was quite sucessful at Camp Pike.

Uncle Green Hays and Uncle Dock Tucker were musical performers at a recent entertainment. They are both well-known in musical circles.

Perhaps the most popular booth was where Ike and Tike, the great magicians showed their marvelous skill. The "Walk Through the Jungle," "Mrs. Tom Thumb," and moving pictures, etc., made the evening one of delightful and pleasant surprises to all.

THORSBY DEFEATED BY CHILTON COUNTY HIGH

The Chilton County High School triumphed over Thorsby Institute on the latter's court by five points on last Tuesday afternoon. The official scores gave Clanton 14, Thorsby 9.

Chilton County High scored most of her points in the first half. Thorsby showed poor team work in the first period. Clanton made eleven of their points in this half. Thorsby did not register.

The Thorsby lads knew they were far behind, but that did not destroy their courage for they played doggedly on and no doubt if time had not been called so soon, a much closer score would have resulted and probably in the locals' favor. Clanton only made three points in the last half.

The features of the game were the splendid guarding of W. Lefstead and Bruner. It might be said that Clanton's guards also played well, but they winded in the second period.

This game closes the basketball season for both schools. Both schools intend to organize baseball teams and play the other in the near future.

Pershing Thanks Y. M. C. A. For Its Canteen Service

NOW THAT FIGHTING IS OVER, GENERAL RELIEVES RED TRIANGLE, AT ITS OWN REQUEST, OF POST EXCHANGE WORK

Chaumont, France, Feb. 23.—The American Y. M. C. A., at its own request, has been relieved of its work in maintaining the post exchanges with the American army. Correspondence has been exchanged between General Pershing and E. C. Carter, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. with the army, resulting in this decision. On Jan. 29 Mr. Carter wrote to General Pershing saying that duties of the Y. M. C. A. in promoting athletics and entertainments were so heavy that he thought it should be relieved of the exchange work.

General Pershing, in his reply, said:

"As you correctly state, the Y. M. C. A. undertook the management of the post exchanges at my request at a time when it was of the greatest importance that no available soldier should be taken away from the vital military functions of training and fighting. As the reasons which impelled me at that time to request you to undertake this work no longer exist, I am glad to approve of your suggestion.

"In making this change, permit me to thank you for the very valuable services and assistance which the Y. M. C. A. has rendered to the American Expeditionary Force in handling these exchanges. Handicapped by a shortage of tonnage and land transportation, the Y. M. C. A. has by extra exertion served the army better than could have been expected, and you may be assured that its aid has been a large factor in the final great accomplishment of the American army."

Dept. No. E171

GOVERNOR CALLS THE FARMERS TO MEETING

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

Governor Thos, E. Kilby has issued a proclamation, calling all the people of the state, including farmers, merchants, bankers, business and professional men, to come together in school houses, community centers, public halls or other usual places of assembly, for the purpose of considering the reduction of cotton acreage, the holding of the present unsold supply for profitable and renumerative prices, and particularly to consider plans for a campaign for better diversification of crops with special reference to an increase of food production in Alabama.

We are therefore appealing to the citizens of Chilton county to come together at their respective places of meeting at10 o'clock, Saturday, Marh 8th, for the purpose of carrying out the program called for in the Governor's proclamation.

A state wide Convention of the Farmers Protective League of Alabama will convene at Montgomery on Wednesday, March 5th for the purpose of carrying forward the movement set forth in the Governor's proclamation published this week, as well as the suggestions set forth in the call of Chairman J. O. Thompson for the Convention.

It is therefore urged that every farmer attend these metings and pass such resolutions upon the questions as the respective meetings may see fit.

W. M. Adams, Chairman of Chilton County Council of Defense.

S. M. Adams, Secretary and Treasurer of the Farmers Protective League of Alabama.

MEDICINE vs. FOOD.

Do not buy something which you already have. You have food which you feed your horses, cattle and sheep, but when you want medicine, buy only medicine. That is what you get in B. A. Thomas' Stock Remedy. We sell it and guarantee it to be medicine. We tell you that it will tone up the entire system of your stock and aid digestion, thereby causing them to get all the food value out of the grain that you fed them. CORINTH NEWS.

Health here is good with the exception of Mrs. Beula Pierce and her son, Joe Pierce.

The farmers are very busy preparing their land for the new crop of 1919.

We thank the many visitors for attending our Sunday school and preaching Sunday. Those who came for good surely received it, for that was a splendid sermon our pastor, Rev. J. D. Hughes preached. His text was, "Eat, drink, and be merry."

The singing at C. P. Jones's was well atended Saturday night. We also had a nice singing at Corinth church last Sunday, the first, and thank the people of Floyd church for the help they gave us.

People around here are getting interested in the dipping vat question.

There wil be a singing at Corinth church the next Fifth Sunday. Everybody come and bring your 1919 song books.

The singing school here will start the first Monday in April with Prof. H. C. Collins teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Jones received a letter from their son, Archie Jones, in France, saying that he is all right and in the best of health. He said it snowed there in January and that it was about five inches deep when he wrote.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT.

Whereas, it has pleased God in His infinite wisdom, to remove from our Eastern Star our beloved Sister, Zelma Manning,

That in the death of Sister Manning we have lost an earnest worker and Christian character,

Therefore, be it resolved, that we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be printed in our county paper, a copy sent to the husband of the deceased, and a copy spread on our minute book.

Resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days.

"GET RICH QUICK" HOT AFTER YOUR LIBERTY BONDS

Secretary Glass Warns Bond Holders To Keep Bonds Or Sell Only To Some Reputable Bank Or Trust Company

The farmer—or any other American citizen—who desires to get rich quick is offered plenty of opportunity these days to accumulate stock in everything from Oklahoma oil to African rubber. There never were quite so many agents going round helping others to make their fortunes overnight. Their prey is the Liberty bonds held by almost every loyal citizen in the country. They do not ask for money—they will swap anything for bonds.

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass has just issued a statement warning the public against the unscrupulous persons who offer to trade worthless stocks for Liberty bonds, and against those "sharks" who attempt to persuade bondholders to part with their bonds at a price far below par. Every business man knows that with an adjustment of business conditions, Liberty bonds will be worth full face value on the open market, and nobody should sell a bond for less than its full value except in case of absolute necessity. Even then, he should take it to a reputable bank, consult a banker in whom he has confidence, and take his advice. Usually it is possible to borrow money on Liberty bonds at a low rate of interest. The interest coupons will pay a large part of this, making the loan cost the bond-owner very little, and he will still retain ownership in his bonds.

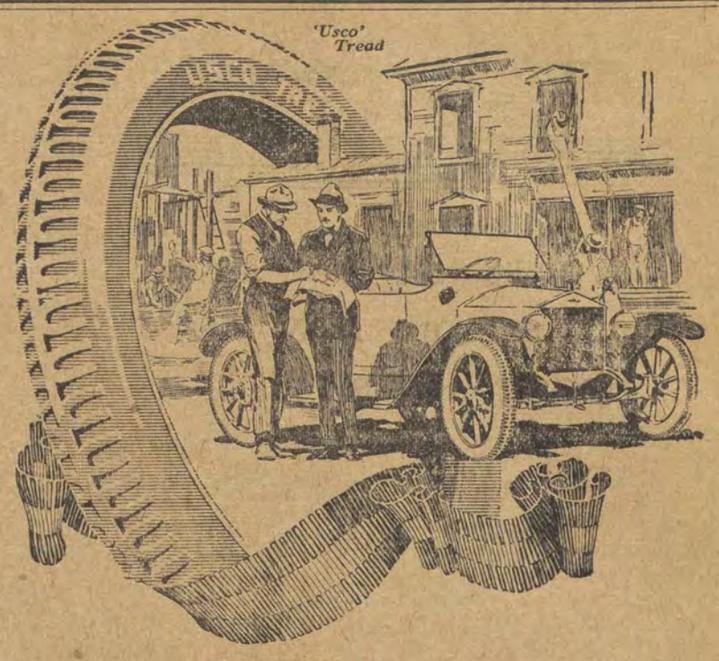
The Treasury Department is taking every possible step to protect the interests of Liberty bond owners and expects to bring to justice those persons who seek to defraud patriotic Americans of their investments.

BEST WAR PICTURE EVER MADE IS FREE FOR VICTORY LOAN

Five Reel Film Made By United States Signal Corps To Be Shown All Over The United States

"New Glory for Old" is the title of a wonderful motion picture to be presented all over the United States soon by the United States Treasury Department for impressing upon the American people the need of the Victory Liberty loan for which the campaign is to start this spring. It will be presented in public auditoriums, without charge to the public, and the schedules will permit almost every city and important town to have a showing of the big film.

This is to be, without doubt, the greatest war picture ever presented anywhere, five reels of real pictures taken in France. It was made for the pictorial history of the world by the United States Signal Corps, and one of the operators was killed while cranking his camera. It is a story of the American soldier from the day of his enlistment to the day he reaches Berlin. It shows him in the training camp; in the act of embarkation; enjoying his soldier amusements on shipboard; his landing at Brest; his training in France, and about 3,000 feet of the hottest fighting known in the great conflict.



The prints are to be distributed through the district headquarters of the Sixth Federal Reserve District at Atlanta. It is expected there will be an immediate demand for the films, and that big patriotic meetings will be arranged for the showing of the picture in every town. Eloquent speakers will be engaged to tell the story of the Victory Loan and the necessity of "finishing the job," and it is expected that "New Glory for Old" will be an important factor in selling the issue of Victory bonds.

Busy At Work On Plans For Great Victory Loan

Atlanta, Feb. ...—Headquarters of the Sixth Federal Reserve District in Atlanta is almost as busy as though the campaign were actually under way. A vast amount of preliminary work has been made necessary by the individual quota system to be tried out for the first time in the South. The "fair and square" idea is to be carried out in this, every citizen being assigned a quota based on his tax returns and income. If he regards the quota as unjust, he has the right of appeal to an adjustment committee.

The fifth, or "Victory" Loan will be necessary if the United States is to finish the job it started. The war did not end with the signing of the armistice. It will not end even with the conclusion of the peace terms. The war will not be over until the bills are paid, and it is up to the people of the United States to pay them—to feed the soldiers and bring them home.

The United States had barely begun to fight when the armistice was signed, but it had prepared for war on an enormous scale. This was probably one of the reasons Germany quit so suddenly—she saw that Uncle Sam was going to war on a big scale. And now the bills must be paid, either by taxation or investment. A Victory bond will be of much more value to all of us than a stack of tax receipts.

The More You Use Your Car The More You Need Good Tires

Your car's usefulness is increasing every day.

It is becoming more and more of a real necessity to you—both in your business and home life.

For that very reason you need good tires, now, more than ever.

The out-and-out dependability that created so tremendous a demand for United States Tires in times of war is just as desirable today.

It reduces tire troubles to the vanishing point—multiplying the usefulness of your car and putting the cost of operation on a real thrift basis.

United States 'Nobby', 'Chain', 'Usco', and 'Plain' are the most popular fabric tires built. They have all the strength and stamina our years of experience have taught us to put into tires.

There is also the United States 'Royal Cord', the finest cord built for passenger car use.

Our nearest Sales and Service Depot dealer has exactly the treads you need for your car and the roads you travel.

He will gladly help you pick them out.

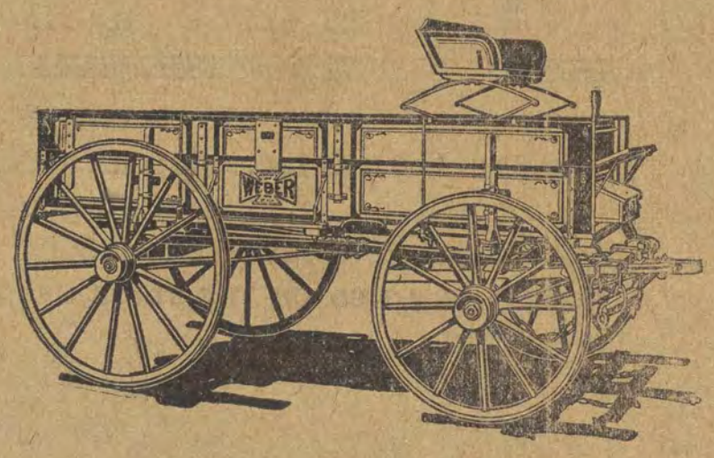
ALABAMA NEGRO "HERO" PLAYED FAKE IN ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18.—Posing as Henry Johnson, a negro hero who is said to have killed 36 Germans single handed with a bolo knife, Albert Parker, of Mobile, Ala., last night was arrested when he appeared at the coliseum to tell 12,000 negroes of his experiences while under fire.



The arrest was made after detectives had read an Associated Press dispatch from New York saying that Johnson had arrived from overseas yesterday.

The welcome was the greatest celebration ever held by negroes here. Thousands were turned away although prices of admission ranged from 25c to $2.00. Mayor Henry W. Kiel made the address of welcome.

Parker's left leg is severed and he carries many "battle scars." Detectives say he admitted his leg had been cut off by a train and he received his "battle scars" in various affairs

According to the police, Parker admitted having duped audiences in Montgomery, Ala., Savannah, Ga., Charleston, S. C. and other southern cities, where he had made war talks. He was said to have received $500 for his address.

Weber Wagons

The car of Wagons the factory promised to ship us in December did not arrive until this week; and judging from the number we have already sold we will be out of wagons very soon.

This is your last opportunity to get the usual width wagons (sixty inches) from us. It is our information that all manufacturers of wagons have agreed to make only fifty-six inch wagons in the future, and the car we have just received completes our contract for wide-gauge wagons.

REPUBLICANS READY FOR NEXT CONGRESS

Mondell Selected Floor Leader, Knutson Named Whip, Longworth, Madden and Dunn Steering Committee.

Washington, March 11.—Republican organization for the majority control of the next House was completed today with the selection of Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming as floor leader, Representative Harold Knutson of Minnesota as whip, and Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, Moore of Pennsylvania, Longworth of Ohio, Madden of Illinois and Dunn of New York as the steering committee to have charge of the legislative programme. Mr. Mondell will be chairman of this committee.

Selection of Mr. Mondell was made after Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, republican leader in the last House, had refused to accept the post when elected by the committee. As Mr. Mann has not been appointed to any of the House committees he will be left without a place in the republican organization unless he accepts appointment to one or two vacancies existing in a few of the important committees.

Representative Longworth of Ohio vainly sought to prevent the committee taking up the floor leadership selection at this time and after Mr. Mann's nomination he refused to vote the Ohio delegation, which he represented. The representatives from Indiana, Idaho and West Virginia also refrained from voting, but the only ballots cast against Mr. Mann were those of the 12 Massachusetts republicans, represented by Represenettive Winslow who was campaign manager for Representative Gillett in the recent speakership contest.

Expect Ratification.

Committee members generally said they expected the party conference to be called a few days before the congress meets in special session, would ratify the selections made by the committee. They regarded it as possible however that Representative Longworth may call the conference's attention to the strict application of seniority in committee selections and seek to upset some of them.

Mr. Mondell, who seconded the nomination of Mr. Mann for leader, was elected easily receiving 140 votes with 23 votes cast as present and the remainder as absent. On the preceding ballot, Mann received 154 votes with Representative Longworth of Ohio, whose name was not formally presented to the committee, receiving two votes.

Three candidates were nominated for whip, but Mr. Knutson received 118 votes against 41 for Representative McArthur of Oregon and 23 for Representative Vestal of Indiana. Representatives Anderson of Minnesota, Reavis of Nebraska, and Scott of Michigan were unsuccessful nominees for places on the steering committee, the votes for the successful candidates being Winslow 191, Moore 175, Longworth 175, Madden 168, and Dunn 157.

Final approval of committee assignments will be made by the committee on committees at a meeting next Thursday. Representative Mann and Moore of Indiana were named to check the assignments and fill any vacancies that remain in the republican roster. A few important assignments including appointment of a member of the appropriations committee to fill the vacancy that will result from Mr. Mondell's election as floor leader, remain to be filled.

MRS. WALTER L. SANFORD DIED MONDAY MORNING

HERE IS GOOD NEWS; PRICES COMING DOWN

New Industrial Board says Slump Coming Within 90 Days.

Washington, March 11.—Prices on most of the basic commodities, including food, will be brought down within 60 to 90 days, Geo. N. Peek, chairman of the new industrial board of the Commerce department predicted today.

The new board plans to call representatives of each of the industries to Washington, agree with them on price schedules that will be fair and relieve the business stagnation. Then the board will recommend these prices to the public.

Steel men will submit their schedules of after war prices tomorrow and they will be followed by brick, cement, fuel, lumber, food and textiles probably in the order named.

Price Schedules Prepared.

"The board hopes to establish price schedules that will stand until the normal law of supply and demand can take effect again," Peek said. "Our whole aim is to establish prices that will relieve the present business stagnation and send us into what all agree will be an era of prosperity."

One of the things the board intends to do is to talk lower prices all the time, members said today. They were frank in their criticism of the policy of some government agencies in predicting much higher figures for some commodities.

The statement of the food administration that pork will go much higher with the discontinuance of the $17.50 price has immediately brought increased hog prices with more pork in storage in the country today than ever before. one member declared.

Herbert Hoover's statement predicting $3.50 wheat also was followed by a boost on the Chicago grain market yesterday, he added.

Efforts of the board will also be directed toward removing some irregularities in price schedules of the various industries. For instance, while the average increase of steel and its products is about 115 per cent over pre-war prices, building hardware has increased 180 per cent. Efforts will be made to bring all down to a fair level.

Congress is Blamed.

The steel outlook would be brighter if congress had voted the $750,000,000 fund to the railroads, chairman Peek said today. Thirty-five per cent of all the steel production is normally taken over by the railroads. He believes, however, money can be obtained to make a large proportion of these purchases through plans of Director General Hines.

Complete co-operation between the board and the railroad administration has been promised and this may mean that some of the high freight rates may be lowered, particularly in building and road materials as requested by the recent conference of governors and mayors.

Tables of the board show that food has gone up 105 per cent over the pre-war figures, with milk and eggs showing the highest increase. Building materials average a 100 per cent increase.

INSPECTORS APPOINTED FOR CATTLE DIPPING WORK

The following men have been appointed as the inspectors for the dipping of cattle under the operations of the state-wide law as it affects the county, and which will go into operation as soon as the necessary vats can be constructed.

The names of the inspectors are:

J. L. Easterling, Clanton;
H. O. Bean, Clanton;
J. F. Poole, Clanton;
J. B. Hicks, Maplesville;
W. A. Barnett, Jemison;
J. Z. Mims, Clanton;
H. N. Smith, Cooper;
S. E. Waldrup, Jemison;

Each of these men will have charge of twelve vats and will be present on certain days to superintend dipping of cattle at the vats.

DO YOU TAKE YOUR OWN COUNTY PAPER?

I heard some women laughing at their county paper the other day and say that it used to be bad enough but that now it was worse every issue. And it made me feel badly for I knew the editor and some of the difficulties under which he had worked to produce even as good a paper as he had. I knew too that he had been offered a good position on a large city daily but a short time before, and his reason for refusing was this, "No, I cannot go. I feel that the people here need me. I am not doing anything wonderful, and perhaps not as much as I should, but at least, there is a newspaper here and there is no prospect of one if I should give up this little sheet. The school teacher, the minister, the farm demonstration agent, the home demonstration agent and the court officials are not always popular but they are great factors in the upbuilding of the community and I feel that my paper ranks with them. When someone comes to take my place I shall be free to accept your offer, but not until then."

Many of us do not realize the wonderful benefits a county derives from its paper—that is, we do not unless it fails and we have to do without one for a while. And this applies to those who read the paper and those who do not. Many a woman has given her reason for a poor Red Cross chapter that there was no local paper. We women like the local news but the greatest benefit is through the sales and advertising columns. One day a friend laughingly said, "I begged for a new roof for two years but my husband put me off. The other day he said, 'I'm tired of reading this advertisement that says "Does your house leak when it rains?" Tomorrow I go to town and order new shingles.' And he did."

No matter how poor the paper is, it justifies its existence, for as the editor of whom we spoke insinuated, the county paper is an institution that ranks with the best. It is as great a force in the average community as is the church, school, farm paper or demonstration agent, and perhaps as much as all together in some counties. Just let something of especial interest happen and see all the old fellows too stingy to subscribe for the paper sidle up to the postmaster and ask for the loan of Smith's paper, "Jest while ye're putting up the mail."

This story which I am abut to tell happened about ten years ago and may have happened in every county in the South. It shows how great and indirect may be the influences of a paper on the destinies of families. A woman ran away from home and children with a man who had been her respected neighbor. The local paper published the story. Distant relatives and friends learned of it and blamed everybody concerned; neighbors all overt he county raised their hands in horror. The children of each family became so conspicuous that they left school. Growing up ignorant and sensative, they soon began to associate with the rougher elements of the neighborhood and two of them have been in jail many times; one of the girls is in a reform school.

Shortly after this the very same thing happened in another part of the county, and the editor said, "I feel that I injured those people by publishing that story last June. I am not going to let this item get into the paper." And he did not. In a few days both man and woman saw the error of their act and came back, were forgiven and today they are both living wiser lives in their own families. And only the editor and a few friends ever knew that there was anything but a "vicious rumor started by some untruthful person."

Considering the fact that the country editor touches every phase of farm life—the educational, social, religious, commercial, political, personal, family and community—and that his influence can be for the upbuilding of it all, does it not behoove us to support the county paper by subscribing for it and by doing that which is even greater, upholding the hands of the editor when he stands out for that which is good? The paper may be crude, the news scant, but remit your little dollar or two, send in your little item of news when your husband goes for a visit in the next county or buys a pure-bred breeding animal—do your part—and see your influence spread and the paper grow better.

Yes, watch the paper grow better, but also watch for better homes, healthier babies, lower death rates, better farming, better schools, better churches, better roads, better government, more telephones, more recreation, more care of the down-and out, more contempt for the bad, more appreciation of the good—all this when you and I and others like us do our part toward the county paper. —Progressive Farmer.

ECLECTIC CITIZENS WANT DR. KNOTT TO BE HANGED

LARGE DELEGATION URGES THE GOVERNOR TO LET KNOTT DIE

Montgomery, March 11.—One of the largest delegations that has yet called upon Governor Thomas E. Kilby upon any matter since he was made Governor of Alabama came to him from Eclectic in Elmore County yesterday afternoon to urge the governor not to give further consideration to the appeals of the friends of Dr. H. E. Knott, who is to be hanged at Wetumpka March 14, unless the governor grants a further respite or commutation.

Knott killed Emory Oaks by shooting him on the streets of Wetumpka more than a year ago and was to have been hanged some months ago, but Governor Henderson granted a respite and the time for the end of Knott's earthly career will come on Friday of this week, unless Governor Kilby takes further action in the matter.

This is one of the most noted cases in the criminal causes of Alabama for many years and it has been fought stubbornly through all the courts and has been before the pardoning board and then up to the chief executive of the state and now is back before that personage for final consideration and determination.

Dr. Knott has many friends and they have been untiring in their work in his behalf. The delegation which came down from Eclectic yesterday and called upon Governor Kilby between the hours of 3 and 4 p.m., was the first direct appeal of the citizenship of any part of Elmore County urging that the death of their friend Oaks be avenged by the law of the state on Friday of this week. The delegation was so large that it filled the Governor's office and overflowed the corridors of the state capitol during the time of the interview.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

On last Thursday afternoon the Chilton County High School played the Thorsby Institute a game of basket ball on the latter's court and defeated them by a score of 14 to 9.

The features of the game were the clean playing of both teams. This makes twice the C. C. H. S. has beaten the Institute this season.

The Minstrel at Verbena was a success. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. We wish to thank the people for the large crowd. We are to play again next Friday night at Jemison, having been invited by the principal of the school to do so.

The public is cordially invited to attend a piano recital given by eight pupils from the department of music of the school in the high school auditorium on Sunday afternoon, March 16, at 3, p.m..

Otto Jones is back in school after a brief illness. School is progressing nicely. The campus is not so hard packed as it has been on account of our professional walkers being let off on account of the bad weather. But now as we are having some good weather, I think the campus will get back its original firmness.

CORINTH NEWS

Dear Editor:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to this place.

Health of this community is very good at present. The farmers are rather busy getting started on their crops.

There is going to be an all day singing here the Fifth Sunday in March. Everybody is invited to come and bring a well filled basked with something good to eat. And bring your 1919 song books.

Our singing school will start July 7. Prof. Collins will teach it.

With best wishes, will close.

RESULT OF EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER DECLARED

The result of a recent examination of applicants for the position of postmaster at Clanton has been declared.

Mr. J. L. Wilson made the highest mark topping anyone of the other applicants by ten per cent.

Among those who took the examination were J. J. Pickens, John M. Parrish, C. R. Mullins, B. J. Sessions.

It is hoped the ability of Mr. Wilson as shown by the high mark he made on the examination will win him the appointment as our postmaster. He is a good man and would make us a good official.

ARCHIE JONES WRITES TO PARENTS FROM FRANCE

Marseille, France, Feb. 9, 1919.

Dear Father and Mother:

I will drop you a few lines to let you know that I haven't forgotten you yet and to let you hear from me. This leaves me in the best of health except a little cold; but we pay colds no attention. I hope this will find you all in good health and enjoying life fine.

I am still in Marseille, France working every day with the sick boys. There are not so many sick now as there were a week ago, so I believe we will be relieved in a few weeks. I hope so any way.

You ought to have been with me day before yesterday. I got a pass and went to town—I and one of my buddies. We got a street car that went to the Mediterranean Sea, and from there we went out to some of the highest mountain peaks in France I never enjoyed a trip so since I have been here. I would give anything if you all could see what what little I've seen since I have been in Europe. It has been worth a lot to me. You get to meet all classes of people and learn their ways. Don't understand me to say that you can talk to them all for you can't. You would laugh at me trying to carry on a conversation with them.

We had another snow last week. It was about five inches deep.

I guess you all are very busy by this time for it is time of the year for farmers to think something about going to work. How are Lola and Alpheus getting along, fine I hope? Tell them all I said helo and be good till I come home.

Guess everybody around Corinth is well and gay for spring is almost here. But still it is a little cold here from the snow we had a few days ago.

Well guess I had better close for this time, so be good till I see you all again. Your son,

Pvt. Archie Jones,

COUNTY PROPERTY BRINGS A BIG PRICE

DR. GOWAN OUTRUN BAPTIST CHURCH IN BIDDING ON THE LOT.

The vacant lot belonging to Chilton County which lies across Second Avenue from the old court house and next to the Baptist Church, was purchased at auction Wednesday at noon by Dr. J. Earl Gowan.

The price paid was $2730. The lot fronts 70 feet on Second Avenue and 75 feet on Sixth Street.

Dr. Gowan was the only person bidding against the Clanton Baptist Church.

The church wanted the lot to build the proposed new church on, and Mr. Guy Higgins bid at the auction for the church.

When Mr. Fox sounded his bell and opened the sale the first bid by Dr. Hayes was $1000. Mr. Higgins bid $1500 for the church and the sale was closed with the lot going to the church for $1500.

Then Dr. Gowan raised objection that he had raised the $1500 bid which was not heard by the auctioneer. Whereupon bidding was again opened and the price was run into high thin air. Dr. Gowan stuck to his game and took the lot at the enormous price of $2730.

Judge Reynolds says this sum will aid the county considerably in rebuilding the court house now in process of construction.

The commissioners court will meet in April to confirm the sale of the property. But it is not likely that they will see fit to refuse the price which Dr. Gowan made.

Mr. H. B. Oliver of Verbena and others present stated that they would like to bid on the property but refrained from doing so because the Clanton Church was bidding for it.

The price of $5.20 per square foot for property in Clanton must make real estate owners feel good, unless the equalization board gets in after them. A square foot of this lot brought as much as many an acre of land has brought in times past.

FREE SPRINGS

Rev. Skelleton filled his regular appointment Sunday at Free Springs. His text was "In a Nut Shell," and he made it plain to all.

Health of this community is very good at present.

Jamie Brown and family have moved back to Birmingham. Sorry to see them go.

Mr. L. R. Prim of Nitro, W. Va. is visiting at his father and mother.

Misses Lexa Brawn, Meggie Litus and Milton Brown were at J.C. Prim's Sunday night, also Avington Day of Ashby.

Misses Thelma and Myrtle Coffer were visiting at L. A. Brown's Sunday.

Miss Ethel Prim is down on a visit. It seems like home again now that Ethel is here. Her mother and father are going back with her for an extended visit with Mrs. P. D. Killingsworth of Lipscomb, Ala. Ethel spent the week end at Mrs. Maud Day's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGraw spent Sunday evening at J. C. Prim's.

Charley Brantley paid C. C. Hayes a pop call Sunday.

Walter Carlee has moved back into our community again.

Emmett Carlee and family spent Saturday night and Sunday with Wesley Smith.

Edna Rayborn received a letter from her Uncle Hugh Prim in France one day last week. Hugh said he was well, but didn't know when he would be home.

W. H. Compton and wife have moved back to his old home.

Percy Freeman of Oak Grove community were in this community yesterday.

Mrs. M. J. Prim and Ethel spent Monday with Mrs. W. H. Rayborn.

A Plea In Behalf of Those Who Will Not Plead For Themselves.

There are some merchants in Clanton who are too stingy, lazy or something to spend a dollar in asking the people of the county to trade with them; and at the same time they see Kress advertising in the paper trying to take their trade away from them. They sit on the proverbial soap box and whittle as the mail carrier goes out to the rural people with a load of Sears and Roebuck catalogs one day and comes back the next day with a pocket full of cash and sends it off to New York or Chicago, never to do us any more good here. Such a merchant as that is a peculiar species indeed. But like the poor, we have them with us always.

In spite of their adversity to advertising The Union-Banner feels constrained to urge the people to trade with them. We could not do it if our heart were not charitable toward our home town and county. Many a man would say, if the home merchant won't advertise and ask the people to trade with him he ought not to have a cent of patronage. But we are sorry for his narrow and perverted vision and urge the people to save the poor wreth from bankruptcy by trading with him. Such a merchant is to be pitied. He is deceived in himself and knoweth not what he wants.

Good people, let us keep our money at home and not put it in the coffers of the rich Jews and Catholics of the North and East never to profit us any more.

Let's give it to the home merchant whether he asks us to or not. We know that this is the best thing to do.

Maybe we can some day rouse him from his soap box and make him thank us for forcing the money on him.

Maybe he will wake up some day and ask us to trade with him when he sees we are going to do it anyhow.

Trade at home, Mr. Farmer. You will be better off in the long run.

Why should Wilson and the Democrats in Congress worry about doing anything to help the southern farmer with his cotton? They know the South will vote the Democratic ticket in spite of h—— and high water. That's what we get for holding to "the solid South," which you hear boasted of so much.

The Republicans are fully organized for weilding their majority in the next Congress and we hopefully look forward to a rattling of dry bones of the Democratic party at the hands of the Republican majority.

Twenty-five Years Ago

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

Bethel Bits.—Mr. H. L. Davis, our esteemed professor, is the happiest man of our community. A big boy. (Horace).

Mr. J.N. Dennis' school at MapleSprings losed Friday with a picnic and examination. From all reports Mr. Dennis gave good satisfaction in his school work.

Mrs. Leroy Moore, age 58, died on Feb. 14, 1894. She retired in usual health and the next morning was found in her bed cold in death.

Mrs. G. N. Honeycutt of Providence is visiting Judge Honeycutt's family in Clanton.

Mr. Wilson is tearing down the old store that stands on the Randolph place, Mr. Wilson's new home.

Mr. George Patrick has lately been appointed postmaster at Ruddick.

West Chilton.—A little son of James Furgeson died recently.

West Chilton.—Died near Macedonia, Mrs. Parlee Waldrup, Sr.

Dr. C. L. Woolley of Randolph on his way to visit a patient in this county was thrown from his horse on a barb wire fence, but not seriously hurt.

An Effort to Prove An Axiom:—"The Value of Advertising."

Again we shall attempt to show the local business man that it is necessary for them to advertise their own stock of goods and pull for home trade if he expects to reap full measure of successful returns from his business.

As the first step of the argument we point you to the advertisement of Kress Mail Order Stores, which appears in this issue. There is no use for us to try to guess at what you, the local merchant, say and think, when you read that advertisement of the big shoe bargains Kress is offering. We know what you think.

You think of the many dollars that such advertisements and catalogues as Kresses and Sears Roebuck and Company are taking away from this county every year; and you wish that you had that money instead of them.

We wish you could get it too, friend, but we are here to tell you that you will never get it until you begin to employ the same methods against the mail order houses that they are employing against you—make attractive offerings of goods to the buyers and advertise their opportunities to them. While you are sitting on your soap box whittling a pine stick, chewing Star Navy and spitting ham gravy, a slick duck at the business game is writing catchy advertisements for Sears Roebuck and printing fancy catalogues with all sorts of deceiving pictures in them to be sent right to the people in Chilton County whom you are waiting for to come in and buy something which they don't know whether you have or not. What is the result?

You just sit still while the mail carrier goes out and gets the cash and sends it up to your friend Roebuck.

Why don't you advertise Mr. Merchant? Don't you believe it pays?. Do you think you could ever sell anything if the people did not know where your store is nor what you have got in it to sell?

Well then, do you know it is a fact that half the people who come to Clanton regularly can't tell you where your store is unless you advertise constantly and keep your business before them.

You can ask most anybody who lives anywhere around here where the Downs Hardware Store or Jones Hardware Store, or Clanton Mercantile Co., or Joe Littlejohn, or W. A. Kemp, or Mullins & Moore, or Wiley Littlejohn, or Tom Kemp are, and they can tell you the very door to go in to get there. Why? The answer is very plain. Every week when the paper goes out to the farmers home he sees in it something about the business of these men. It may not be much but it is enough to keep in his mind the fact that he is invited to spend his money at these stores, and when he gets ready to spend it he goes there to spend it too. Then you fellows who have worn out the rear end of your pants against the top of your soap box, wonder why Jim Jones or Doll Downs or Fenn Jones or Will and Tom Kemp or Bill Sartor or Littlejohn or the Candy Store, are doing so much business and you are not doing any.

Well, they advertise and you don't, that is the reason.

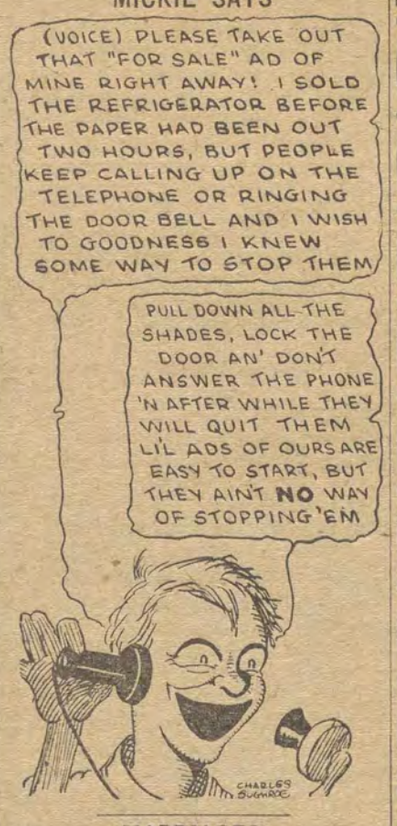
What else besides advertising has a merchant got to depend on in selling his goods?

Has he got enough personal friends who are especially anxious for him to have their money and will bring it and give it to him just through sympathy?

No, you know that won't work. Business is not run on sympathy any more and no live merchant would be so foolish as to edpend on it for his meat and bread.

Well, are people going to put themselves to any extra trouble to come to your store to find out what you have got if they know of some other merchant that has got what they want?

No, you know they are not. People are too busy these days to waste time that way.



Here is the whole story now in a nut shell.

If you get a man's trade you have got to beat the other fellow to him. You have got to get him into your store and show him your goods first. There aren't but two chances under the sun for you to get him there. One is just wait till he happens to find where your store is and stumbles into it some time. The other is to go out to where he lives, show him your store and your goods and your bargains and make him want to see your store the next time he comes to town. Which had you rather risk?

The best way we know for you to present your business to the most people of this county is to put an advertisement in The Union-Banner.

There are mercrants in Clanton who get good results from advertising in this paper, and any merchant can do it if he will.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

METHODIST LEADERS RETURN FROM FRANCE

Three prominent leaders of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have just landed in America, after spending two months in Europe, where they went for the purpose of investigating actual conditions and deciding upon a program for the expenditure of $5,000,000, which sum will be allotted to European upbuilding by the Centenary Commission of the denomination. The three returning church leaders are Bishop James Atkins, Chairman of the Centenary Commission; Bishop Walter Lambuth, who has been in Europe for nearly a year in the interest of his church; and Dr. W. W. Pinson, General Secretary of the Mission Board.

Dr. Pinson and Bishop Atkins returned to the headquarters of the denomination at Nashville the latter part of the week, and Bishop Lambuth went directly to his home at Oakdale, California.

While the plans for the European work have not been announced as yet, the returning members of the commission say that they have mapped out a very satisfactory program and that five million dollars of the Centenary fund will be expended in upbuilding schools and churches in the devastated lands of Belgium, Italy and France.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF ILLITERATES

Bill Introduced In Senate and House In Their Behalf---The Church Organization Will Also Give Practical Aid.

WILL PROMOTE EDUCATION

The Significant Movement of the Times Is That of the Centenary of the Methodist Episcopal Church South---Will Spend Millions Among the Uneducated.

The fact that several thousand soldiers were unable to understand the orders given them from their superiors and that many, many thousands could not sign their own names to their questionnaires brought to light a condition so serious that two Southern representatives at Washington are now introducing bills to promote the education of illiterates throughout the length and breadth of America. Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, has introduced a bill in the Senate "to promote the education of illiterates, of persons unable to understand and use the English language, and other resident persons of foreign birth," and the same measure has been introduced in the House by Hon. William B. Bankhead of Alabama.

The introduction of this important bill means a great deal to the South which, because of its negroes and mountain whites, has long borne a reputation for illiteracy out of proportion to that of the rest of the country. Just what steps will be immediately taken as the result of the passage of the education of illiterates bill at Washington cannot be stated at this time, but, certainly, practical measures will be put into operation for the establishment of schools in both rural districts and cities.

Other organizations besides that of the government are at work on the same problem—the establishment of schools in the heart of tenement districts and rural communities being a matter of first importance with all of them. One of the most significant movements of the times in this connection is that of the Centenary of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, because that denomination will expend within the next five years over $3,000,000 among the uneducated classes in the Southern and Western States. The church is to raise a fund of $35,000,000 in an eight-day drive in April, the financial campaign being a part of the Centenary Celebration of the denomination. The money is being raised with a view to putting the work of the church on a business basis, the church considering its duty to the illiterates here in America to be among the matters of first importance which it should undertake. A survey has been made and the result of the campaign will be the apportionment of $3,000,000 among the various illiterate population as follows: Mountain population, $750,000; immigrant, $900,000; negroes, $500,000; Indians, $150,000; cotton mill population, $150,000; Christian literature for all of them, $100,000.

With the definite step undertaken at Washington, with one denomination already completing its plans for furthering the work among them, and with other churches and organizations getting ready to join hands in their behalf, it is more than possible that the illiterates of the South are in a fair way to soon become educated citizens of the United States.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. F. Gable, Pastor

"I was glad when they said unto me, 'Let us go into the house of the Lord.' Our feet shall stand within thy paths, O, Jerusalem."

Every teacher was present in Sunday school last Sunday.

Though the state is dry the classes were full, probably due to the rain. Bro. J. J. Pickens is Superintendent and is doing excellent work. School opens promptly at 10:00, a.m.

Bro. Johnson is leader of the B. Y. P. U. and is having excellent results. The attendance is good, and will have charge of a Sunday night service in the near future.

Mrs. H. C. McDonald's Sun Beam Band is flourishing and recently brought in good returns on an investment for the orphanage.

Mr. Gilvie McKee and baby, Mrs. Hodges, and Mrs. Clint Rasberry, have all had influenza. Mrs. Eliza Jones is still quite feeble.

The pastor's subject next Sunday will be, in the morning "The Covenant of Grace," at night, "The Second Coming of Christ," a third discussion.

MINOOKA

There was a singing at Mrs. Herman Sanders' Sunday afternoon and at Mr. M. T. Busby's Sunday evening.

Miss Jessie Belle Williams spent the week end with her grandmother, Mrs. Bristow, of Jemison.

Mrs. Jessie Cox and daughter, visit to Cax andfiflhre xzfifle vbgkq Hazel, have returned from their visit to Cox and Maplesville, Ala.

W. M. Rachels, one of our most respected citizens, died last Thursday of pneumonia, following the flu.

He leaves a father, wife and four children.

The infant daughter of Mrs. Sarah Crim is seriously ill.

Mr. J. L. Pilgreen of Birmingham visited here Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Valera Armstrong is ill with the flu.

Miss Willie Mae Pilgreen spent Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. R. L. Crim.

Mr. P. N. Ousley and Leamon Barefield went to Birmingham Saturday.

The family of W. H. Conway is having the flu.

MT. PLEASANT

Health here is not very good. There has been quite a bit of flu, but it seems to be getting some better. Farmers are moving on nicely.

We are beginning work on our dipping vats; but listen, all are not smiles. I guess all that are up on acting the hypocrit can smile.

The singing at Union Grove Sunday evening was enjoyed by all present. There were a number of young people out; among them were Misses Gracie and Elcie Robinson, who were welcome by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Guss Glass returned home Sunday from South Alabama.

Mr. W. Davis and wife were visitors at the home of E. W. Hunnicutt Sunday evening.

MONEY SENT HOME BEFORE BIG BATTLE

Doughboys "Cleaned Pockets" for Home Folks, When Return From Fight Was Uncertain. Y. M. C. A. Has Delivered Millions of Dollars For Amex.

Paris, Feb. ...—The steady unselfishness of the American soldier, shown by the way he "cleaned his pockets' of money before going into action, to be sent home if he didn't come back, is told by W. J. Baker of Portchester, N. Y., who served eleven months as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the 26th Division. His particular charge was the third battalion of the 103rd infantry. He joined that unit on the St. Mihiel front, went with them to Chateau Thierry, and later was in the famous St. Mihiel clean-up and the drive before Verdun.

"It was just before that action began," said Baker, "that I saw the finest example of the characteristic unselfishness of the boys. They 'cleaned their pockets' for the folks at home. They knew they were going up against the real thing, and they wanted all their money to go home in case they never came back. In all, I was entrusted with 8,000,000 francs — upwards of $1,500,000 — before that attack. We handled such funds through the regular Y. M. C. A. service established for sending money from soldiers to relatives in America."

Baker lived with his battalion, and saw lively times, as the "Yankee Division," as it was called, was kept on the fighting front almost continuously.

LONDON GLOBE SAYS WILSON RETURNS WITH LESS PRESTIGE

London, March 5.—Referring to the report that Senator Lodge and 36 other Republican senators were determined to oppose the league of nations as now constituted, the Daily Globe says:

"President Wilson returns to Europe with greatly diminished prestige as a result of the action on an important representative section of his own countrymen and with his boasted league of nations treated precisely as a scrap of paper, which we have always told it to be."

SOUTHERN AVIATOR DIGS FROM PRISON AND SWIMS RHINE

Calls "Y" Work In German Prison Camp "Life Saver," While Confined At Villingen.

New York, Feb. ...—Lieutenant George Puryear, of Memphis, Tenn., an aviator, was one of a trio of hardy American adventurers who were successful in a wild dash for liberty from the Villingen prison camp on October 6. Sixteen men made the attempt, but only Puryear, Lieutenant Harold Willis of Boston, and Naval Lieutenant Isaacs of Portsmouth, Va., got away. Word has just been received at Y. M. C. A. headquarters here concerning their almost hopeless escapade.

The men brought back remarkable accounts of Y. M. C. A. work even at Villingen.

"The 'Y' sent us books of all kinds and even sporting goods," said Lieut. Puryear. "We played basketball and volley ball incessantly—our space was too small for baseball and football. I tell you, those games were life savers to us, and they kept us in fair physical condition."

It is reported that Puryear and his comrades slipped out of the camp through a tunnel under the wire. All but the three named were headed off before they reached the river Rhine, but the intrepid trio swam the river—a terrible feat in itself—and made their way into Holland.

PRICES HIGH? LOOK AT THESE

Constantinople—As you go east prices rise.

Turkey, as usual, carries the thing to a fantastic extreme. In Constantinople bread is 80 cents a pound, eggs 30 cents each (when they can be obtained), milk 90 cents a pint, butter $4.40 a pound, sugar $2.10 a pound, and soap $1.35 o pound. As to clothing, a pair of poor quality shoes cost $28.00, a poor native-made laboring man's suit costs $87.50; a shirt and a suit of underslothing cost $22.75 and a pair of socks at $1.75, bringing the cost of an outfit for a working man to $148.80.

SOUTHERN "Y" MAN BLINDED IN SERVICE

Says It Will Take Time For Public To Realize Value Of The Red Triangle Service To American Fighters.

DeRoy R. Fonville.

New York, Feb. ...—So unusual was the service rendered by DeRoy R. Fonville of Burlington, N. C., in his Y. M. C. A. work overseas that Major General L. S. Upton has written him a personal letter in appreciation of his efforts.

Mr. Fonville has returned to his home after ten months service with the Y. M. C. A. He was with the Fifth and Sixth Marines and Ninth and Twenty-third infantry at Chateau Thierry, Soissons and St. Mihiel. It was while he was in a trench waiting to serve the Marines when they "pushed off," that a high explosive shell blew particles of rock into his eye, blinding it. The same shellfire killed James A. Birchby, a Y. M. C. A. secretary from Pasadena, Cal., and wounded another Red Triangle worker, Thomas W. Wilbut, Jr., of New Britain, Conn.

The letter of appreciation that was sent to Mr. Fonville by General Upton read as follows: "I have observed your work as Y. M. C. A. representative of the Ninth infantry for some time and wish to convey to you my appreciation of the uncomplaining and soldier-like manner in which you have undergone all without the glory that is attached to the profession of arms. The work which you have done had added greatly to the contentment of the men and thus to the efficiency of the command."

"My experience gave me an appreciation of American men and what they can go through," said Mr. Fonville. "Our division was a shock unit. It never went any way but forward. Our division alone captured 12,000 prisoners. Those men appreciated the Y. M. C. A. and understood the difficulties it had to contend with in getting supplies up to the front. I have no complaint to make about losing the sight of one eye, that is war, but it bewilders me to have known what I do of the work of the 'Y' in France and then come home to learn of the criticisms being circulated here. I believe that in due time the full appreciation of the Y. M. C. A.'s work for victory will be general."

A Little Talk on

Trading at Home

People around Clanton should learn and keep in mind the fact that the home merchant is their friend. The home merchant is your neighbor, and has staked his money in order to give his home people the right service.

The dollar spent at home stays at home; the dollar sent to the mail order house is forever gone from our county.

Show to the home merchant that you appreciate him. You can't do without him. Buy from him rather than send your money away to a man who don't know you and don't care anything about you.

DUDLEY SMITH DIED ON SUNDAY NIGHT

J. Dudley Smith, a prominent citizen and farmer, who lived a few miles north of Clanton, died at his home on Sunday night about nine o'clock.

Mr. Smith had been suffering for several days with a serious carbuncle on his neck. It was this ailment that caused his death.

L. E. Diefenderfer of Ensley, was in Clanton Monday.

Consulting The Farmer About Fertilizing Practices

REPRESENTATIVE SOUTHERN FARMERS SELECTED BY COUNTY AGENTS, TELL WHAT THEY ARE DOING THROUGH THE USE OF FERTILIZERS—VALUABLE DATA OF PRACTICAL SORT

By J. N. Harper, Director, Soil Improvement Committee, Atlanta, Ga.

What do the farmers themselves say about the use of fertilizers? Certainly no one is more qualified to speak as to their value than they. This question has been asked of a great many farmers in the Southeast, and their answers are most enlightening.

The writer obtained through the County Demonstration Agents the names of more than a thousand of the most representative farmers living in the states of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. To these were sent a questionnaire asking for information as to the yields obtained from cotton and corn, and the formula and amount of fertilizer used. They were also asked to give the soil type. Several hundred answers were received and these have been carefully classified according to crop yields.

Results on Cotton Yields.

Grouping the reports of the farmers from the Coastal Plain Region, the following results were shown:

Average Yield Lint Cotton Per Acre	Average Amt. Of Fertilizer Used Per Acre.
186 Lbs.	.300 Lbs.
250 Lbs.	.375 Lbs.
375 Lbs.	.518 Lbs.
500 Lbs.	.645 Lbs.
625 Lbs.	.780 Lbs.
750 Lbs.	.840 Lbs.
1,000 Lbs.	.950 Lbs.

The average formula of the fertilizer used was 8.6 per cent phosphoric acid, 3.8 per cent nitrogen, and 3.2 per cent potash.

Grouping the reports of the farmers of the Piedmont Region according to the yields obtained, the following facts are shown:

Average Yield Lint Cotton Per Acre.	Average Amt. Of Fertilizer Used Per Acre.
320 Lbs.	.200 to 300 Lbs.
385 Lbs.	.400 to 500 Lbs.
438 Lbs.	.600 to 700 Lbs.
540 Lbs.	.800 Lbs.

The fertilizer formula for cotton used on the sandy clay loams of this region averaged 8.6 per cent phosphoric acid, 2.65 per cent nitrogen, and 2.11 per cent potash.

Quite a number of farmers in both regions reported the use of nitrate of soda as a side application in addition to the fertilizer. The quantity used ranged from 40 to 100 lbs. per acre.

Results On Corn Yields.

The average yield of corn from all those reporting from the Coastal Plains Region was 36.8 bushels per acre and the average amount of fertilizer used was 444 pounds.

The average formula of this fertilizer was 8.4 per cent phosphoric acid, 3.1 per cent nitrogen, and 2.6 per cent potash.

After classifying the reports according to yields, the following results were obtained:

Average Yield Of Corn Per Acre.	Average Amt. Of Fertilizer Used Per Acre.
20 Bushels	.310 Lbs.
25 Bushels	.355 Lbs.
30 Bushels	.404 Lbs.
35 Bushels	.450 Lbs.
40 Bushels	.469 Lbs.
45 Bushels	.566 Lbs.

The reports from the Piedmont Region showed the average yield from all reporting as 38.2 bushels of corn per acre with the average amount of fertilizer 330 pounds.

The formula averaged 8.7 per cent phosphoric acid, 2.5 per cent nitrogen, and 1.9 per cent potash. The formula reported for both cotton and corn was given as used prior to the World War.

Classifying the reports into groups according to yields, the following results are shown:

Average Yield Of Corn Per Acre.	Average Amt. Of Fertilizer Used Per Acre.
16 Bushels	183 Lbs.
25 Bushels	.281 Lbs.
30 Bushels	350 Lbs.
45 Bushels	.500 Lbs.

The above results from the farmers themselves strikingly coincide with the results obtained at the southern experiment stations, and these figures show that as the use of fertilizers is increased, so is agricultural production increased.

Many thousands of acres of land in the Coastal Plains of the South, when first cleared, did not produce more than 10 bushels of corn per acre. Today, they are producing from 40 to 80 bushels, by the liberal use of fertilizers.

Crop yields must be greatly increased to meet the constantly growing demand for foodstuffs and other agricultural products. The most economical way to produce crops is by increasing the acre yield, and there are but two ways of doing this—by better cultural methods and by the more liberal use of plant food.

EVERYBODY IS NOW FIGURING INCOME TAX

In Order to Be Helpful to Public, Internal Revenue Bureau Has Every Available Officer in Field.

SEVERE PENALTIES IF YOU DELAY BEYOND MARCH 15

With the due date for Income Taxes only a few weeks away, the collection of this far-reaching tax on 1918 incomes has started off with a bang. Everybody is figuring income tax.

Payments and sworn statements of income must reach Internal Revenue offices on or before March 15, and there are severe penalties for delinquency.

Residents of Alabama and Mississippi are required to make their returns and pay their taxes to John D. McNeel, Collector of Internal Revenue, Birmingham, Ala., or to any of his deputy collectors who are now doing free advisory work on Income Tax.

"Pay your Income Tax by March 15," is the slogan of the Internal Revenue Bureau, which has sent every available officer into the field to help the public to understand the requirements and to prepare the returns.

Who Must Make Return.

It is estimated that many thousands of single and married persons in this section of the Unted States who have never before made annual returns are required to do so this year.

Income tax returns must be made between now and March 15 by persons who come under the following classifications:

Any unmarried person whose 1918 net income was $1,000 or over. Widows and widowers, divorcees and married persons who are living apart from their husbands or wives, are for the purposes of the Income Tax classed as unmarried.

Any married person living with wife or husband whose 1918 net income was $2,000 or over. The income of both husband and wife must be considered, together with the earnings of minor children, if any.

Revenue Bureau Offers Aid.

Each person in the United States who is in either of these classifications must get busy at once if penalties are to be avoided. He should secure a blank Form 1040 A for reporting net income up to $5,000, or Form 1040 if his net income exceeded that amount. Forms are being distributed by Collectors and their Deputies, also by banks. By following the instructions on the forms a correct return can be prepared at home. If a person needs advice or aid, the Deputy Collectors in the field will furnish this without charge.

The new Revenue law places the Income Tax duty on citizens and residents. The Internal Revenue Bureau is sending its men to work right with the public to get the tax and the returns in. With active co-operation every tax due March 15 will be paid and every return required by law will be in the Revenue offices on time.

Exemptions Allowed.

A single person is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000. If he is supporting in his household relatives who are dependent upon him he may claim the status of the head of a family who has the same exemption as if married.

A married person who lives with wife or husband is allowed a personal exemption of $2,000. The head of a family is entitled to claim a similar personal exemption.

An additional exemption of $200 is allowed for each person under eighteen or incapable of self support who was dependent upon and received his chief support from the taxpayer.

A husband and wife living together are entitled to but one personal exemption of $2,000. If they make separate returns the exemption may be claimed by either or divided.

Accuracy Required.

Absolute accuracy is necessary in making up income figures. Any person who is working for wages should find out exactly how much he received during the whole year 1918. Fees, bank interest, bond interest, dividends, rents received and all other items must be reported correctly. Mere guesses are not accepted, for they are unjust alike to the taxpayer and the Government and defeat the proper administration of the law.

INCOME TAX IS TRULY POPULAR.

"The payment of Income taxes takes on a new significance which should be understood by every citizen. The taxation system of this country is truly popular, of the people, by the people and for the people. Every citizen is liable to tax, and the amount of the tax is graduated according to the success and fortune attained by each individual in availing himself of the opportunities created and preserved by our free institutions. The method and degree of the tax is determined by no favored class, but by the representatives of the people. The proceeds of the tax should be regarded as a national investment."—Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

PAY AND FILE INCOME TAX BEFORE MAR. 15

U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau Gives Warning That Severe Penalties Will Be Enforced.

WOMEN WITHIN LAW'S SCOPE: HOW THEY REPORT INCOME

The Income Tax drive comes to a close on Saturday night, March 15.

The payments and returns due on that date under the provisions of the new Revenue Law must be in the hands of local Internal Revenue Collectors before their offices close that night.

The Income Tax is being collected to meet the war expenses. Every person who shouted and tooted his horn on Armistice Day is now called upon to contribute his share of the cost of winning the war.

The laggards and the dodgers will face severe fines and jail sentences. The Internal Revenue Bureau announces that its officers will check us all up to see that every person who comes within the scope of the Income Tax law did his share.

Where to Pay and File.

Residents of Alabama and Mississippi are required to make their returns and pay their taxes to John D. McNeel, Collector of Internal Revenue, Birmingham, Ala., or to any of his deputy collectors who are now doing free advisory work on Income Tax.

Payments sent by mail should be attached to the returns and should be in the form of check, money order or draft. Cash payments by mail are sent at the taxpayer's risk of loss.

If you are unable to make your return personally because of illness, absence or incapacity an agent or legal representative may make your return.

If there are any doubtful points as to your items of income or allowable deductions you should get in touch at once with a Revenue officer or a banker for advice.

Women Pay Tax.

Women are subject to all the requirements of the Income Tax. Whether single or married, a woman's income from all sources must be considered.

If unmarried or if living apart from her husband she must make her return for 1918 if her net income was $1,000 or over.

If married and living with her husband her income must be considered with the husband's in determining the liability for a return. Their joint income, less the credits allowed by law, is subject to normal tax. The wife's net income is considered separately in computing any surtax that may be due. Husband and wife file jointly, as a rule. If the husband does not include his wife's income in his return the wife must file a separate return.

Severe Penalties.

The new Revenue Law places severe penalties on a person who fails to make return on time, refuses to make return or renders a fraudulent return. For failure to make return and pay tax on time a fine of not more than $1,000 is named and 25 per cent of the tax due is added to the assessment. For refusing willfully to make return or for making a false or fraudulent return there is a fine of not exceeding $10,000 and imprisonment of not exceeding one year, or both.

Farmers' Income Taxable.

Every farmer and ranchman who had a fair or a good year in 1918 must heed the Income Tax this year. He must consider all his income as taxable. He is entitled to deduct from his gross income all amounts expended in carrying on his farm. The cost of farm machinery, farm buildings and improvements cannot be deducted. The cost of live stock, either for resale or for breeding purposes, is also regarded as investment.

Overtime and Bonuses Taxed.

Salary and wage earners must consider as taxable every item received from employers and from other sources. Bonuses and overtime pay are to be reported as well as the regular payments.

Allowances for Losses.

Losses sustained in 1918 and not covered by insurance are deductible items if incurred in the taxpayer's business or trade, in any transaction undertaken for profit or arising from fire, storm, shipwreck or other casualty or from theft.

SQUARE DEAL FOR EVERY INCOME TAX PAYER.

Washington, D. C. — "The rights of all persons now filing Income Tax returns are amply protected by provisions for abatements, refunds and appeals," says Commissioner Daniel C. Roper.

"Every person can be sure of a square deal. No person is expected to pay more than his share of tax. His share is determined solely by the amount and nature of his net income for 1918, as defined in the law.

"Abatement petitions are dealt with open-mindedly. Refunds will be made in every case where too much tax is erroneously collected.

"The Income Tax is 'on the level' all the way through."

LETTER FROM AN OLD CHILTON CO. CITIZEN

Henderson, Texas, R.F.D. 5.
March 4, 1919.

The Union-Banner, Clanton, Ala.
Dear Editor:

Your paper, which is a great welcome, reaches me in the far away western world on Monday or Tuesday of eachweek, which I sure do read with pleasure. As I am an old Chilton County man it is like getting a letter fromeverybody in my dear old home county at once, as I know everybody and everybody knows me. How I come to get your paper is a mystery to me.

Health in and around Henderson is very good. The "flu" is a thing of the past, seems to be. We are having plenty of rain. I think Texas will be on top for a crop this year, although the farmers are badly behind with their work now.

Success to you boys.

A GRANDFATHER'S SMILE

Ever since last Thursday Mr. A. C. Smith has been wearing a big broad smile the like of which he never wore before in spite of the fact that he is pretty well along in years and has worn many smiles in his life time, no doubt. But none he ever wore was like the one he is exhibiting now.

This new smile of his is one of those deep illuminating grandfather kind. It was produced by the announcement of his first grandchild last Thursday at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Hutson Williams in Birmingham.

Clanton needs some more houses for people to live in. There are several people needing residences here who can't get them.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

The editor of the Union-Banner visited the home of our old friend, Mr. W. L. House of Beat 1 the other day in company with Dr. Gragg. The doctor was going to see Mrs. House, who is in a very critical state of health. Many friends of the family hope that Mrs. House may soon recover her health.

J. C. Brown of Maplesville spent part of last week in Clanton. Mr. Brown is still engaged in the insurance business traveling over the state

B. McKee of Sylacauga was a visitor to Clanton the first of this week.

The county commissioners were in session last Friday in conference upon the enforcement of the cattle dipping law. A representative of the state and national agencies for the eradication of ticks was present with the county officials.

Rev. B. C. Hughes of Birmingham has come to Clanton to live. He is pastor of Samaria and Liberty Hill Baptist Churches. Rev. Hughes is a live wire in the preaching business.

Many Chilton County soldiers are sending in their applications to Washington for the $60 ponus that was voted them by a bill recently passed in congress. It is nothing but right that the men who served in the army should have this little extra pay. They should have been given it when they were discharged. If you have not sent in your application get busy and do it.

Mrs. Duncan of the L. J. Duncan Motor Co., and Lucian Duncan are pushing the Ford agency for this county. They have just finished selling a car load of new Fords recently and have another car load coming in a few days. With the coming of the summer season Mrs. Duncan expects a great increase in the volume of her already splendid business.

We will soon have a new court house. The work is moving along rapidly now and will be pushed to completion as quickly as possible.

ARMSTRONG SICK

Rev. W. J. Armstrong is suffering rather seriously this week with an attack of grippe. His many friends are anxious about his condition and are hopeful for his speedy recovery.

Thomas M. Parrish has got out of the army and is at home again. He has lots of friends who are glad to see him back here again.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to thank my friends and neighbors in Clanton for their kindness to me and my family during our recent sickness and bereavement.

Respectfully,
WALTER SANFORD.

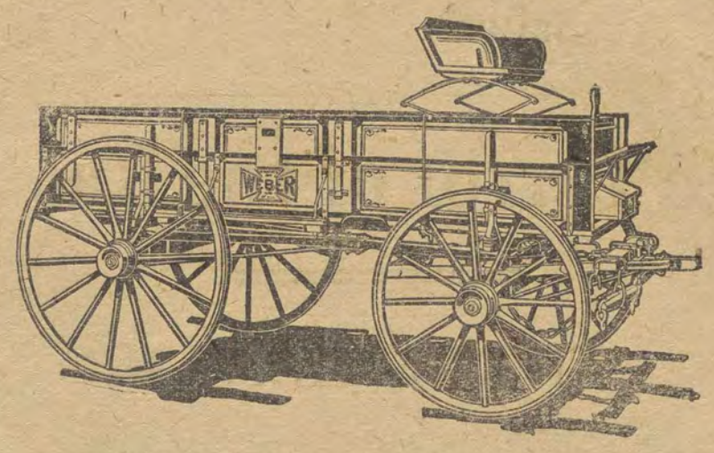
Joe Teel of Stewart, Ala., was in Clanton visiting old friends and relatives this week. Joe says he has just got out of the army where he spent six months of service at Camp Sevier.

L. M. Rowell of Route 4 was in Clanton Monday. Mr. Rowell is a new-comer to our county who lives on the Pierce place near Mt. Pleasant. He is raising some straw berries this season with prospects for a good crop.



Curtis Davidson, who has been working as a barber for Trotter's Barber Shop in Prattville for a few weeks, has left there and is now back at home near Clanton. He is going to farm this coming season.

DUDLEY SMITH MAKING GOOD IN GEORGIA

James Dudley Smith, a Clanton young man, went to Rome, Ga., a few years ago and engaged in the insurance business. Since that time he has met with commendable success rising to a splendid position with one of the oldest insurance companies in existence.

But his success is not confined to business advancement alone, as is proven by the announcement of the arrival of James Dudley Smith, Jr., at his home on March 3.

Weber Wagons

The car of Wagons the factory promised to ship us in December did not arrive until this week; and judging from the number we have already sold we will be out of wagons very soon.

This is your last opportunity to get the usual width wagons (sixty inches) from us. It is our information that all manufacturers of wagons have agreed to make only fifty-six inch wagons in the future, and the car we have just received completes our contract for wide-gauge wagons.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS ARE TO GET $60 BONUS

Send After Yours If You Have Not Already Sent Your Claim.

Hon. H. A. Harris, Chairman of the Local Board for Chilton County, has been instructed by the War Department at Washington, to make the following official announcement, concerning the $60.00 bonus to be paid to all discharged soldiers. This applies to all who have been discharged from the service since April 6, 1917.

Section 1406 of the Revenue Act approved February 24, 1919, authorizes the payment of a bonus of $60.00 to officers, soldiers fieldclerks and nurses of the Army upon honorable separation from active service by discharge, resignation or otherwise. This bonus is not payable to the heirs or representatives of any deceased soldier.

Those who are discharged hereafter will receive this bonus on the same roll or voucher upon which they are paid their final pay.

Those who have been discharged and have received their final pay without the $60.00 bonus, should write a letter to the Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C., stating their service since April 6, 1917, the date of last discharge and their present address to which they desire their bonus checks to be sent, and enclosing with this letter their discharge certificate or military order for discharge and both, if both were issued.,

Upon receipt by the Zone Finance Officer, Washington, D. C., of this information and the discharged soldier's certificate, this officer will cause checks to be drawn and mailed to the claimants in the order in which their claims were received by him. The discharge certificate will be returned to the soldier with the check.

It is estimated that at least one million and a quarter persons have been discharged from the service who are entitled to the benefits of this Act, and while payments will be made as expeditiously as practicable it will manifestly take considerable time to write and mail this many checks.

B. E. Jones and family have moved to Montgomery, and Bay Fiquette has moved into the Jones residence in Clanton.

C. E. Headley, an employee of the Flaketown Graphite Co., of Mt. Creek was in Clanton last Saturday.

Claud Marcus of the United States Navy has been discharged and returns to his home in Clanton.

Dear Editor:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words. The health of this community is very good at present only just a few cases of flu, but they are improving rapidly and we think they will be up soon.

Farming around here is going slow on account of so much rain.

Our Sunday School at Union is progressing nicely with the few attendance, but we hope after the flu is out we will have a better attendance under the superintendency of Mr. R. S. Chandler. We could not have any school last Sunday on account of the death of Mrs. Dorminey, mother of James E. Dorminey.

The funeral services of Mrs. Dorminey were conducted by Rev. Monroe Honelycutt.

SONG SERVICE AT CLANTON

There will be an all day singing in the high school auditorium in Clanton on the First Sunday in April.

Among the prominent musicians who will attend may be mentioned Prof. Samuel W. Beazley, formerly of Chicago but now of Atlanta, Prof. J. D. Patton, and Mrs. M. L. Flowers of Memphis, Tenn.

Prof. Beazley is a composer of international fame being considered by many to be the greatest living composer of gospel songs. Prof. Patton is a musician held in high esteem by the people of the South and West and is one of America's best singers. Mrs. Flowers is a pianist of national talent. Many other good singers will attend.

Carols of Praise and Crowns of Love will be the books principally used. All lovers of music are cordially invited to be present.

BREAK UP OF SOLID SOUTH IS COMING

CHAIRMAN HAYES POINTS OUT BETTER CONDITIONS—N. CAROLINA IN LEAD.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republicans throughout the country—and Democrats as well—are watching with interest the renewed activity of the Republican party in the South. It is seriously aserted in political circles that the break-up of the "solid south" is not far ahead; that the participation of thousands of the young men of the south in the world war, elbow to elbow with young men from every other sections of the United States broadened the viewpoint of the south to the extent it will no longer be content with being tied to one party; that the great problems of national reconstruction growing out of the war will touch, in like manner, the business interests of the South, and deliver them from the political isolation which they have endured for a generation.

In addition there is the increasing demand in the South for honest elections. If this demand makes itself heeded, confidence is expresed that the reform alone would break up the solid south.

Carolina Republicans Full of "Pep."

The latest tangible evidence of the leaven that is working in the South was the North Carolina Republican State Convention held at Greensboro February 15. That this convention was unusually enthusiastic and exceptionally well attended is best evidenced by the report of it given in the Grensboro Record, a Democratic daily paper, which opened its local account of the convention as follows:

"A theatre packed full of Republicans, with a great many finding difficulty in getting in, was the response to the call of the Republican State executive committee for the state convention here today. Competent critics say this meeting was the most cheerful gathering of Republican party leaders in this state in many years. Chairman Will H. Hays, of the Republican National Committee was present and was the chief speaker.

"The Republicans believe their own declaration that they will be able to break the solid South in the next election by carrying North Carolina into the Republican fold,and that Mr. Hays made the trip for this special meeting indicates that the Republican National Committee has hopes."

Chairman Hays returned to national headquarters very pleased over the North Carolina convention, and his satisfaction is echoed by Republican leaders. In addressing the North Carolina Republicans, Mr. Hays said:

"The Republican party is a national party. We have heard it suggested that the South needs the Republican party. This is true—but I say that the Republican party needs the South. The Republican party needs the South that we may fulfill our avowed purposes and function in our faithful performance as a real national party.

South Needs Self-Determination.

"I most earnestly urge everywhere, for the benefit subjectively and objectively that will come therefrom the honest registry of the freely expressed, intelligent political self-determination.

"In no place is this more important than in the South, for the good of those immediately concerned, for the good of all of our people, and for the ultimate preservation in the entirity of our institutions everywhere in the country. Republicans of the South, Democrats of the North, Democrats of the South and Republicans of the North are alike patriots. The time is no longer when the echoes of the past will deter the good of citizens of the South from acting for their own best interests, and with the now final amalgamation and nationalization of our people, brought out of the crucible of this war, we will move forward to the complete fulfillment of the destinies of the union. Most enthusiastically and with the fullest heart the nation honors the thirtieth and other southern divisions which have fought the country's battles in France in a manner so gallant as to have brought a most thorough mutual respect and regard for each other and the eternal gratitudes of the entire country. Most certainly has Dixie been in France.

"And to those splendid, loyal men who have made the Republican party of the South in the past, who have held the faith against the heaviest odds, I bring greetings and expressions of deepest regard, and asurances that most certainly their efforts shall not have been in vain.

No Geography in Patriotism.

"There has been no geography political of physical, in the patriotism of this country, and there will be no geography in our patriotism in these trying times of readjustment that are ahead.

This is no time for little things. Just as during the war period, so now as we approach these problems, we have no time for petty jealousies, carping criticisms, pulling and haulings, but fearlessly, in a spirit of patriotism, with our eyes solely on the country's welfare, the Republican party accepts the commission given it by the electorate of the people last November, and will proceed to solve the problem.

"We attribute honesty of purpose to the opposition. We urged during the war that each party strive to see which could aid most was support. Today we urge that each party make its business to see which can go the farthest in developing plans and executing purposes for the welfare of the people and the glory of the nation. Let this be the real effort between political parties in this country.

Back to Normal.

"Our duty is now ahead and that duty we will not shirk. We will bring this government back to the limitations of the constitution in time of peace; and well, indeed, may our party give its best thought to that matter, as it has been more apparent daily that the Republican party is the country's only salvation in this regard.

"We will esablish policies which will once again, bind up the wounds of war, which will renew our prosperity, and administer the affairs of this government with the greatest economy, on a sound basis of business, and which will enlarge our strength at home and abroad. With all our power we will strive to prevent the further spread of socialism, and set this nation's feet once more firmly on the path of progress, and along the ways which liberty and order must ever guard and preserve."

ONE FARMER'S RECORD ON AN ACRE OF LAND

How does this sound to you, Mr. Farmer? $160.00 worth of strawberries and 86 bushels of corn from one acre of land in one year. That seems like doing business to us. What do you say?

That is the record of Uncle Jim Mims of Collins Chapel last year. And that $160.00 was clear profit from the berries too—not gross receipts.

Mr. Mims says he put out the strawberries in the usual manner and without the use of any fertilizer realized $160 clear profit from the products of the acre. After the berries were off he prepared the ground in good shape and planted it in corn on May 10th. Under the corn a total of 300 pounds of fertilizer was used, 150 pounds of top dressing and 150 pounds of tankage and phosphate.

Mr. Mims is one of the most progressive farmers in the county and some of his methods and ways of doing things would be good for many others to copy and practice. He is one of those who has proved that money can be made at the farmers game and that it is possible for a farmer to come to town and be regarded by business men as a business man.

One interesting thing about Mr. Mims' farming is the variety of corn he grows. When asked what variety it was he said: "It is a corn that I have grown on my farms for over forty years. I have exercised the utmost care in the selection of seed every year and sought always to improve my corn. I have got now to where you can without any trouble find 50 ears in my crib that will shell a bushel. And it is a corn that takes the front seat when it comes to yield per acre."

Here is how this successful farmer gets his seed corn. He goes out into his field while the corn is growing and selects the stalks and ears he thinks will make the best seed. He ties a string to the stalks in order to find them when the corn is ripe. These seed ears are gathered separately and cared for and picked over carefully for seed to plant the next year. This is the only safe plan to improve corn by seed selection and every farmer would do well to put it into practice.

The success that Uncle Jim has made is undeniable proof of the good judgment of his methods of farming. The farmer who makes a living and some money besides is the successful one.

Dr. C. R. Lamar of Montgomery will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Church at Clanton next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, to discuss the world-wide Centenary movement. Everybody in Clanton and vicinity are invited and urged to be present. A great treat is in store for you. Come.

WILSON TO BE CANDIDATE AGAIN 1920

NORMAN E. MACK, THE FORMER DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CHAIRMAN MAKES PREDICTION.

If He Cannot Defend Mistakes of His Administration, No Other Democrat Can.

Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo, New York, member of the Democratic National committee and chairman of the committee in the last Bryan campaign, says from present indications President Wilson will be renominated by the Democrats in 1920.

"From present indications it looks like President Wilson will be a candidate to succeed himself in 1920," said Mr. Mack. "I do not know that he has any desire to continue. I do not wish to appear as booming him, for I am not doing so. I am merely discussing the trend of things political in the Democratic party as influenced by the war and reconstruction.

"The President now is in the midst of a great task—that of bringing to pass the dream of students and philosophers for decades—organization of a league of nations to keep peace among the great powers. The subject is sure to engage the attention of statesmen and thinkers for a long time. By the end of another year it doubtless still will be a great problem. I don't see how there can be any other candidate than the President himself. It seems to me the war and reconstruction will come pretty near eliminating the third term issue, and the Democrats will feel that in order to win they will have to renominate their champion.

"Quite naturally the Democrats are on the defensive. Grievances accumulate. Mistakes are made. Doubtless the voters will say we have made many mistakes, and many voters who were with us in 1916 will be against us in 1920. If we cannot win with President Wilson, I don't know how we could win at all. The Northern states are naturally Republican."

CAN BUSINESS MEN TITHE? CAN A FARMER MAN TITHE? CAN ALL OF US TITHE?

Why Should We?

The South's Amazing Prosperity.

The South's agricultural products in 1917, they say, reached more than six billions of dollars in value, a gain over 1916 of a billion and a half. Add to this the vast income derived from mining and manufacturing, and it will be seen that the South is speedily becoming one of the richest lands on the globe. Its people may well thank God for the providence that has cast their lot in this goodly land.

But gratitude that stops with words is not enough. We need to render to the Giver a substantial acknowledgment of blessings received. He has specified the proportion: "The tenth is holy unto the Lord," "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse." There are none who are exempt.

What proportion of God's tithe of our six billion dollar crop was paid last year and of the other billions that our people earned in various ways? Had it all been paid, there would today be not a half-paid pastor in the South, nor an underpaid apportionment, nor a church debt. Missions in full and over, foreign and home; evangelism at high tide; schools endowed; social service agencies equipped and multiplied; on every hand signs of the coming kingdom—such would have been some of the results.

What proportion of the tithe was paid, reader? Have you been honest with God, or have you robbed Him?

There is no better test whether the love of money or the love of God is stronger in a man's life than his willingness od unwillingness to give regularly to God at least a tithe of all his income.—J. Compbell White.

If any Christian who has never tried tithing will make the experiment, following it through to the end in prosperity and in adversity, we predict for him two surprises. First, he will be astonished at the increased amount which by this method he is enabled to give to the Lord; and, secondly, he will be astonished at the increased spiritual and temporal prosperity which the Lord will give him. —A. J. Gordon.

Political Slavery and Commercial Disorganization of the Southern Farmers.

Why should Wilson and the Democrats in Congress worry about doing anything to help the southern farmer with his cotton? They know the South will vote the Democratic ticket in spite of h—— and high water. That's what we get for holding to the "solid south," which you hear boasted of so much.

Last week The Union-Banner printed the above paragraph, which was clipped out of the paper by Mr. E. G. Caldwell of Pletcher and sent back to us with the following comment:

> Anyone with a particle of fairness knows very well that congress wanted to fix the price of cotton, and the figures would have been about 31 cents per pound, but we SOUTHERN people objected to it, our papers strongly kicked against it and we knocked it in the head. Therefore, we certainly have no one to bump except ourselves.
>
> Yours truly,
> E. G. CALDWELL.

The question which is the subject of this article involves many branches of thought and discussion. Among them is the question which we ask in the first paragraph, and the statement of the attitude of the Democratic administration toward South, and also the statements made by Mr. Caldwell are branches of the same subject—all directly in line, touching on difefrent phases of the same subject: "The Political Slavery and Commercial Disorganization of the Farmers of the South."

This is a big question, but we would like to discuss with our readers that phase of it which is mentioned in our first paragraph, and also that part which Mr. Caldwell states in his comment.

Everybody knows, but some are still such fools that they will not admit it, that the blind adherence of the majority of the people of the South to the old threadbare and worse than worthless partisan political hobby horse of the Democratic party, "the Solid South" has caused us to receive more burdens and miss more blessings in the past than anyone can ever be able to enumerate.

Concrete examples and facts are the best convincing arguments. So we will prove our contentions by the citation of two instances that show that a Democraic administration does not care anything about the Souhern farmer.

You remember last year the Western grain growers demanded of Congress that they receive a fixed prie for their wheat, don't you? Well, they got what they asked for didn't they? Sure they did. All right now, why did they get it? Answer: The Democratic administration knew that the grain growers of the middle west were not political slaves. They knew that those fellows sometimes vote a Democratic ticket, and sometimes a Republican ticket. And they knew that when neither party gave them what they demanded they would get them up a farmers independent league and turn the whole political family out and run things just as they wanted them run. North Dakota did that you remember, and today every official in that state is a farmer from Governor on down and not pledged to any political party.

Now don't you see how it behooves any party to gain favor with those independent farmers if they can? Those Democrats fell over themselves to give the grain growers what they wanted, in the hope that they would remember the kindness at the next election and vote for Democrats for officials.

Now don't you know it is a fact that the Democratic administration had that very thing in mind when they came so hurriedly to the assistance of the West?

And it was not just an empty promise they made the wheat growers. Just the other day Congress appropriated over a billion dollars out of the treasury as a fund to pay the grain growers the price they agreed upon. They saw that the market was not going to be as high as the price guaranteed the growers and they donated a billion of the nation's tax money to pay those farmers the difference between the market price and the price Congress told them they would see that they got.

Now that is the kind of favors the west gets for its political independence. Not only does the Democratic party sit up and listen to them—any other party would do the same thing. It is a practice common with all politicians and political parties to render service in return for support from the people, service for votes if you please.

In the West it is simply a case of the political party being the servant of the people instead of the master.

We have seen what the West gets for its political independence; now let's see what the South gets for its political slavery.

First, look where the price of cotton is to-day. Everybody knows that it is less than the actual cost of production. But what of the demand and supply of cotton? You recall that a few days ago "Cotton Tom" Heflin found upon investigation that the demand of the world for cotton right now is several million bales more than the amount of cotton actually in existence. Then according to the natural law of supply and demand we know the price of the staple should be good. But what is the matter?

The snag which we are hung on is the shipping conditions. Ocean commerce is all tied up by conditions of blockade that were put on as war measures. If cotton were freed from this blockade and put on the open markets of the world the great demand would at once run the price sky high, thereby bringing millions of dollars to the cotton growers.

Then if the blockade is the trouble, let's see what about removing it and giving cotton a free market throughout the world. The war is over and there is no use of the blockade. Every day that it stays on cotton is held down and the farmers are denied the money that their cotton is worth and would then bring them. But just the other day the Democratic administration at our capital deliberately blocked an effort that was being made to lift the blockade. President Wilson himself actually came out in open opposition to the plan that would have saved millions of dollars to southern farmers that instead will go to the cotton gamblers in Liverpool and New York.

That is a fair sample of many things the South gets for being solid for the Democratic party. But you may ask why this indolence of the administration leaders in regard to the welfare of the South.

You know it is just natural that if a man knows he is going to get the votes in a certain beat in the county, he will not spend muh worry about that beat. He will give his time and attention to some of the beats which are as apt to vote against him as for him. Aint that right, you little hill-billy politicians who know the game? We can prove that it is done just that way by any number of ex-Democratic candidates right here at home. And we all know that the big fish has about the same habits as the branch minnow. We know that the big politician at Washington does the same with reference to states as the little fellow does by beats. He keeps his ears wide open ready to hear the demands of the doubtful states, like the West—and he don't waste any time on the fellow whom he knows will vote for him anyhow, like the South.

Now who will deny the sense and sound judgment of this argument? If there be anyone, let him speak up, for we want to have a whack at him.

If President Wilson were not sure that the South will vote solid for him again in 1920 (he will again be a candidate then) he would be working for the farmers interests now instead of galloping around over Europe dancing to the music of the Papal grind organ. He would elect to give the Southern farmer that money he needs for his cotton instead of holding the blockade on for six months after there is any use of it, in order to give the British spinners tme to tie up the cotton supply of the world to their own satisfaction. But why should he worry about the needs of the South? When he gets the league of nations fixed like the Pope wants it and comes home to show it to the folks the southern farmers will be the first to shut their eyes and swallow the thing down without a question. They will be ready to proclaim it just anything he says it is just because it came of a Democrtaic daddy, and therefore, the South must go for it "SOLID."

Now we come to the other phase of our subject, that mentioned by Mr. Caldwell in regard to the South objecting to the fixing of the price of cotton last year.

The farmers might have acted very unwisely in not letting Congress fix the price, that is if the price they offered to guarantee was high enough. It is indeed a very strange and unfortunate thing that the South refused to accept the only favor that the Democrats in Congress ever offered them for their half a century of political slavery.

Now there is a multitude of things that are wrong and rotten with the farmers of the South. He needs so very many things that we hardly know which to mention first. But the thing he needs to save him from such blunders as Mr. Caldwell says were made is organization. And back of this organization more confidence in his fellow-farmer.

There have been many farmers organizations tried in the South and all of them have utterly failed because practically every farmer has got the idea that his brother farmer is crooked and not worthy of confidence. We heard of one local farmers Union in Chilton county thatwent to the bad because the members could not agree on a man among them whom they could all risk to handle the money of the local.

How can farmers who will not risk one another to come to Clanton and get him a sack of guano ever have confidene enough in somebody to go away up to Washington to represent him in a matter so great as his entire cotton crop (perhaps 3 bales?)

It was organization that got the Western farmer by with his wheat prices. Men from among them went to Washington with a carefully prepared program of demands. They had figured out what they needed, and were in shape to deliver their request in proper form upon the desk of those who had it in their power to give them what they asked for. Those who went to Washington were backed by the farmers at home, to a man. What was the result?

Forthwith and immediately those grain growers were assured that they should be given what they wanted, and they got it and are yet getting it this very day.

Ignorance of the farmers of the South causes them to commit many an error. Not one per cent of them know what their cotton cost them after they get it made, and therefore they do not know what they can afford to take for it. Proper organization would eliminate this state of ignorance.

It was pure hoggish greed that caused the cotton growers to refuse 35 cents when they could have gotten it. Nothing that we know of will excuse them for that piece of foolishness. But you might offer a farmer a gold mine for his cotton crop and he would hold it to see if the gold wouldn't turn to diamonds in a few days. By the time it got to diamonds, God only knows what he would want next. Proper organization would cure the farmer of this worst of all his ailments.

Now a final word in summary.

When the farmers of the South cut loose from party slavery and assert their political independence; when they go to Washington a united, organized and confident unit; when they come to know, realize and openly declare that they are as much to be respected as any other people on earth—then and not until then will the shackles fall from off their weary limbs, and they will be ready to begin the march toward better times.

Open Your Mouth, Shut Your Eyes, Hold Your Nose and Swallow it Down.

They have got it greased now and want the people to swallow it whole. They even demand that we shut our eyes so we will be sure not to see what it looks like. And if you are one of those who is fool enough to swallow it you had better hold your nose if you don't want to smell something awful.

The proposed league of nations is what we are talking about.

Here is what Mr. John R. Hornady, the Chairman of the Committee for the ratification of the league of nations as proposed by President Wilson writes to the editor of The Union-Banner:

Dear Mr. Editor:

The lack of enthusiasm on the part of a number of influential Senators, (including those from Alabama) over the proposal of President Wilson for a League of Nations, suggests that something should be done, and done now, to demonstrate that Alabamians are behind the President in his efforts to put an end forever to such frightful calamities as that through which the world has just passed.

We feel that we voice the sentiment of the great majority of Alabama Democrats in saying that the President should be supported in his League of Nations program. It appears that our Senators have not fully made up their minds upon this question and are in the attitude of waiting to learn what Alabamians think on the subject. In order to let them know the thoughts of our people, we would appreciate it very much if you would telegraph a fifty word night letter collect giving editorial expression of your views, and also saying what the people of your county think of standing behind the President, so that we can have the information before Friday, at which time Senator Underwood is to speak in Birmingham, on this subject. What you have to say will be given wide publicity by the Committee which I represent and which is solidly behind the President in his efforts to end the war.

Trusting that we may have your most earnest co-operation in this effort to demonstrate to the world that Alabama is with our great President on this fundamentally important proposition, I am,

Yours very truly,
JOHN R. HORNADY,
Chairman.

Be careful to notice now that they want it ratified AS PROPOSED BY PRESIDENT WILSON, and they should have added as approved by the Pope of Rome and the priests and prelates and hirelings of the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

So there you are. Mr. Wilson has got it all cut and dried; and his ratification committees think the people should swallow it whole without a question. They would not, if they could prevent it, allow the people to hear an open discussion of the objectionable parts of the constitution of the league. They would stop the mouths of men who see the dangers of the league and keep them from pointing them out to the innocent people.

We cannot send much endorsement of the league from Chilton county; and it would not require quite fifty words to tell how the Union-Banner feels toward the the proposition either.

But to say the least of it, we do not see how the people of this country can swallow much more of the rot which this administration has been dishing out to them. They have had things greased and handed to them from Rome and Washington, and swallowed them till they are swelled up most nigh ready to bust the hoops. And when a lot of them do bust it is going to create such a stink that even the vultures who fed them the rotten stuff will not have the guts to stand the racket.

Wheat and Cotton Prices—The Views of The Collinsville Courier.

It is known that wheat can be raised and sold at a dollar a bushel and leave a good profit; yet Congress has appropriated over a billion dollars to guarantee to the wheat growers $2.26 per bushel. In other words if the wheat is sold for one dollar a bushel Uncle Sam will pay the difference of one dollar and twenty-six cents as a bonus.

You remember that when cotton was selling for 34 cents a pound in Collinsville and other points in the South, Mr. Wilson proposed to fix the price at from 25 to 28 cents a pound. The result was that cotton tumbled down to nearly that figure and it was not necessary to fix the price. That threat fixed it!

You see Mr. Wilson with all the rest of them is looking to the wheat growers of the west for their vote in the next election and must give them what they want.

The cotton growing states will vote her straight anyway—no need of giving us anything. If you cut down the price of cotton then the favored wheat growers can buy clothing cheaper.

This is the penalty imposed on us for voting like our daddy did. — Collinsville Courier.

The Union-Banner respectfully refers Mr. Caldwell to the above article. It is on the very same subject which he "took us up" about last week.

Billy Bryan endorses the League of Nations but finds some serious objections to it. Very natural; everybody would like to endorse a plan to prevent future wars, but the rub comes on the method of attaining the desired end. Mr. Wilson's idea of preventing future wars is a good one but the way he goes about the thing is what is objectionable.

Commercial fertilizers pay well when rightly used, and it is the duty of every farmer to learn everything possible about them. Doing this will mean bigger crops and bigger profits. Now is the time to take hold of the job.—Progressive Farmer.

SHORT TERM BONDS AT HIGH INTEREST FOR VICTORY LOAN

Fifth Issue of Liberty Bonds Will Be Most Attractive Investment of All, in the Opinion of Financial Experts

The fifth issue of Liberty bonds, or "Victory Bonds" as they will be called, will offer the investor the most attractive opportunity of any issue made by the government, according to a tentative agreement made by Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass with the ways and means committee of the National House of Representatives.

It is considered probable that the bonds will pay a higher rate of interest than any of the previous issues, but they will be issued for shorter terms, maturing in from one to five years.

The government does not wish to assume the obligation of a high interest rate for a long period of years, but is willing to pay an attractive rate during the present unsettled conditions. It is expected that events will so shape themselves in the next few years that a holder of these short term bonds, after drawing a good interest rate until they mature, will then be able to "cash them in" and invest the returns in business or in other forms of securities at an advantageous time. For this reason it is expected that the new bonds will find a ready market.

Secretary Glass announces that an intensive popular campaign for the Victory loan will start not later than April 21. It is not expected that any definite statement as to interest tax exemptions or other details will be made much in advance of that date, as conditions are constantly changing. But that the new bonds will be made an attractive investment is considered certain.

Secretary Makes Statement

An official statement issued by Secretary Glass follows:

"The Victory Liberty Loan campaign will begin not later than April 21. The requirements of the treasury are imperative and cannot be financed without such a campaign. The form and terms of the securities to be issued remain to be determined. Whether they be bonds or notes, it is absolutely essential that the widest possible measure of distribution be realized. This will necessitate a campaign of the same character as that conducted in the past through the existing Liberty Loan organizations. They have pledged again their united support in order that the Victory Liberty Loan bonds or notes may be distributed as widely as possible among the American people."

This furnishes the first official notice of the date of the campaign, and disposes of the rumor that securities would be disposed of among the banks instead of being offered the general public.

Workers Are Busy

Reports received from chairmen and other members of the Liberty Loan organizations all over the country and especially in the Sixth Federal Reserve District, gives assurance that the faithful workers in former campaigns do not intend to quit until the job is finished. Organization is being perfected well in advance, and plans laid for a brief and effective campaign.

Four types of bonds are now being considered by the Treasury Department, to suit varying tastes in investments. Their principal features are:

One class of bonds at a low rate of interest, possibly four per cent, and exempt from all federal taxation; one at a comparatively high rate; possibly five per cent, and subject to all federal taxes; a third bearing a moderate rate of interest, perhaps 4¼ per cent, and exempt from normal income tax; and a fourth class, exempt from taxation up to a certain amount.

"Finish The Job" Motto Of Victory Loan Campaign

Everybody hates a quitter!

Uncle Sam is going to finish everything he has started.

He finished one job in France when he helped to drive the Huns back across the Rhine.

Uncle Sam and the Allies are finishing another now, at the peace table in Europe, where they propose to stop wars forever.

We are going to finish another at home, by paying the big bills this war cost us.

The Victory Loan will attend to that. The job is not finished until the bills are paid.

We went into this war on a big scale, which was the only way to win. We couldn't provide men and munitions and ships and food in a hand-to-mouth way. The big scale on which Uncle Sam went to work was one thing that made the Kaiser quit so quickly. He saw we were in the war to the finish.

There is to be just one more Liberty loan—the Victory loan, and that will wind up the job.

It will take around five billion dollars to pay the war bill. Uncle Sam proposes to borrow the money from his nephews, on short term bonds at a good interest rate.

Every man in the country is to be asked soon to do his share in finishing this job and wiping the slate clean.

PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

Copyright 1919 by R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

NEVER was such right-handed-two-fisted smokejoy as you puff out of a jimmy pipe packed with Prince Albert! That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't fool your taste apparatus any more than you can get five aces out of a family deck! So, when you hit Prince Albert, coming and going, and get up half an hour earlier just to start stoking your pipe or rolling cigarettes, you know you've got the big prize on the end of your line!

Prince Albert's quality alone puts it in a class of its own, but when you figure that P. A. is made by our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch—well—you feel like getting a flock of dictionaries to find enough words to express your happy days sentiments!

Toppy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and—that classy, practical pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION MET

The S. S. Convention met at Chestnut Creek (Cooper) on the Third Sunday afternoon, March 16, 1919, at 2 o'clock, p.m.

Devotional service was conducted by L. A. Calloway, followed by Rev. J. H. Lembrick, subject "Supply Teachers" which was ably rendered. After this Miss Mary C. Gibson spoke on the subject "Good Records," and she made an excellent speech. Teacher training was ably discussed by Prof. J. L. Johnson. Then came the report of the schools of which 7 were represented.

The Convention has planned for one visitor to attend each Sunday School March 23rd, 1919, and the visitors have already been appointed and notified. We urge all these visitors to be sure and attend.

W. A. Calloway, Pres.
Lee Robinson, Secy.

One good old man who has not taken the Union-Banner for several years got as mad as a March hare with us the other day because we would not publish a great long obituary written by his wife, free of charge. He must have been looking for a free-lunch counter instead of a newspaper. We are up on working for nothing. Nobody else is doing it and we are not either.

Will Duke carried one of his small children to a Birmingham hospital Sunday. The little one is suffering with pneumonia in a dangerous stage.

The Clanton Chapter of the Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. N. S. Johnson Tuesday afternoon to attend to matters of reorganiation for the coming year.

The Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met with Mrs. Alva Wade on Monday afternoon.

Sunday School under Bro. Pickens' leadership opens promptly at 10 a.m. Last Sunday it reached the high water mark of recent months.

The B. Y. P. U. under Bro. Johnson's leadership will have charge of the night service on the Fifth Sunday, the 30th instant.

Fifth Sunday meetings will be held in both Unity and Chilton County Associations this quarter. Unity representatives will meet with Marbury church beginning at 10:30 on Saturday morning containing until Sunday night. Chilton County will meet at Shiloh Church with a similar program.

Next Sunday's subject will be "The Covenant in the Church," and fourth in "The Second Coming of Christ."

MINOOKA I.O.O.F LODGE NO. 59

We the undersigned committee, wish to say that on March 6th God in His infinite love, saw fit to call home one of our beloved brothers and neighbors, W. M. Ratchels. He took sick with the flu and died of pneumonia. His body was laid to rest in Providence cemetery, services being conducted by Bro. Honeycutt and I. O. O. F. order. He was 39 years old, leaves a wife, four children, aged father, two sisters, and a number of distant relatives and friends to grieve his loss.

He was always ready to speak a cheering word to whomever he met. He will be greatly missed in our order and community.

A loved one from us is gone; the voice we loved is still a vacant place in his home which can never be filled.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

Last Friday night "The Handsome Boys Minstrel" put on a play at Jemison and had quite an audience. Everyone seemed to enjoy it to the fullest extent.

Preparations are under way for a great baseball season. We expect to put out a winning team and we are sure we will, as the boys seem to take a great interest in playing. Watch the News for the announcement of games.

Quite a number of high school girls from here were at the Minstrel at Jemison Friday night. Among them we saw the beaming countenance of Mary Mullins.

It is quite true that Mr. Otto Jones was there. If you doubt my word just ask ————, and she will tell you it is quite true. Mr. Tom Robinson was here alson.

School is drawing speedily to a close. The rats ,I am sure, will be glad to see the end, but the Seniors—well, we won't say what about them. We will wait and see.

Ask Howard McClain about the experiment in Chemistry last week. He or Miss Key either can tell you all about it.

This is all for this week. Probably we can have something more interesting neyt week.

W. H. Goodgame of Ensley, a former hotel operator and citizen of Clanton is here on a visit for a few days.

Miss Icelo Williams of the Grammar School had as her visitor last week her sister, Miss Cora Williams.

Rev. W. J. Armstrong is out again after a week of very serious sickness.

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

HEALTH DEPARTMENT
BY DR. WELLSMAN

Intestinal Parasites, The Nematodes Or Round Worms.

Of the many species of parasitic worms, it is fortunate that only a comparatively few varities are found in human beings. Of these the Round Worms and the Tape Worms are by far the commonest species. The round worms may be sub-divided into two families, the round worm or stomach worms, and thet hread or seat worms.

The first named species resemble closely in appearance the common earth worm, being pinkish white or red brown in color, and varies in length from 5 to 10 inches according to sex. Ordinarily, they inhabit the smaller intestine, but frequently they wander up into the stomach, where the disturbance due to their movements causes them to be vomited, hence they derive the familiar name stomach worms.

While most frequently found in choldren, they are often the unsuspected cause of obscure digestive disturbances in adults, and the possibility of their presence should always be taken into account when treating stomach disorders.

The eggs of the round worm gain access to the human system through contaminated food or water and are hatched out and the young worms develop to their full size in about five weeks.

The symptoms produced by Round Worms, while characteristic, are also sometimes similar to those caused by other digestive disturbances and for that reason are not always recognized as arising from intestinal worms.

It is believed by scientists that the mere presence of the worms is not the cause of the many disturbing symptoms that are observed, but that they are due to some poisonous secretion emitted by the worms which being absorbed into the system, cause a variety of more or less alarming results.

In the cose of children these may manifest themselves in severe nervous disturbances, such as eqileptiform convulsions, grinding the teeth and restless sleep, disturbances of vision, abdominal pains, capricious appetite, itching of the eyes, nose and fingers, and so forth. It is therefore well for the parent of a child suffering from any of the foregoing symptoms to determine, before jumping at the conclusion that the child has epilepsy or defective eyesfi or is just bad and irritable, whether or not it is suffering from some form of intestinal parasites.

If any of the above symptoms are noted, or if the child seems poorly and listness, without any apparent reason, or if it loses flesh in spite of a plentiful diet, notwithstanding that it seems otherwise quite normal then, make every effort tofindout of the child is not suffering from worms. This can usually be determined by one of three ways: The most positive is the discovery of the passage of a worm or worms, either alive or dead. Another indication is the presence of masses of mucus in the stools, which will usually be found upon minute examination under a magnifying glass to contain the tiny eggs of the worm. Another way the third, while not so conclusive, is nevertheless valuable: This consists in administering laxcarin. If worms existt he increased amount of mucus passed at first will be noted and the improved condition of the child, will be the best indication of the efficiency of the treatment.

In correcting hyper-seidity, in assisting in the assimilation of the nutritive alements of the food eaten, and in the general toning up of the digestive agents and processes, laxcarin will be found most valuable.

Laxcarin is sold by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept, E 171, Pittsburgh, Penna. Price per box one dollar, full treatment six boxes five dollars. Will be sent postpaid upon receipt of cash, money orders or stamps. Substitutes must be refused.

ALLGOOD'S FARM LETTER
Given out By M. C. Allgood, our Commissioner of Agr. & Ind.

The cotton question is our greatest problem. In 1914 when the world war came the South was the only section of the Union that was thrown in a financial panic. We lost four hundred million dollars as the difference in price of cotton in July and November. By comparison this amount equals the price of production on all crops grown in Alabama in the year 1918, and if the entire burden of this loss had been placed on our State instead of on all the Southern states, it would mean that all our lands, mules, horses, laborers and equipment would have been fed and maintained and operated last year without one dollar's income whatever.

We have had four crops since our sixteen million seven hundred thousand bale crop in 1914, that averaged twelve million four hundred thousand bales, and yet when the new crop goes on the market this year we will have a surplus of four million bales of unused cotton. Let the South produce another sixteen million bale crop and we will have twenty million bales to sell, and it is possible that we might wind up the war with a cotton panic similar to the one we experienced in 1914 when we were begging the world to "buy a bale."

The fact is that all farm machinery, fertilizer, mules and labor and what ever we had to buy with which to make this crop has been bought at war time prices. However when our cotton goes on the market it will be sold at peace time prices.

Throughout that belt where the boll weevil has not destroyed the crop you will find warehouses and in many instances streets full of cotton right now. A burnt child should fear the fire.

Every farmer in Alabama knows what he can do and knows his own condition better than anyone else knows them, and every farmer knows that to be the safe side it stands him in hand to first grow food crops and live stock, and then grow cotton, peanuts, syrup, and so forth as a surplus.

Velvet Beans.

Hundreds of bushels of velvet beans were damaged and are worthless as seed. Test by cutting them open with a knife, and if cream or clear colored, they are good, if dark streaks are found they will not germinate. It is an easy matter to test them and to do so is well worth your time.

Plant a Garden.

Do not forget the garden. Vegetables are cheaper food than groceries and meats and they will help keep sickness away.

M. C. ALLGOOD.

TOBE KENNEDY PLEAD GUILTY

On Wednesday Tobe Kennedy a negro of Clanton plead guilty in the County Court to a charge of violating prohibition law, and was fined $100 and costs. Tobe bought whiskey for another party and the case against him is one which was developed out of the raid made by the officers on Mike Foshee's place several days ago. This raid evidently got the nest of several whiskey dealers in Clanton and the bursting up of the place was worth a great deal toward stopping the whiskey traffic in Clanton.

KENNETH LANGSTON KILLED BY TRAIN ON WEDNESDAY

As we were printing our paper, we received very meagre details of the death of Kenneth Langston of Jemison, which occurred some time Wednesday morning. He was struck by the fast passenger train, No. 1, on the L. & N., and instantly killed.

We were unable to obtain full details of the accident..

The young man was the son of Jim Langston of Jemison. He was married not long ago to Miss Henry Lee Payne.

SOME RABBITS

A few days ago a party of six men from Clanton went to Yellow Leaf Creek rabbit hunting, and bafged sixty of them in one day. The must be plentiful.

SOME EDITORIAL COMMENT

PAVING THE WAY FOR WILSON'S THIRD TERM AS PRESIDENT.

It is indeed amazing to follow the manipulations of President Wilson's schemers and see just how carefully they are preparing the way for his third term as president of the United States of America. They are laying the track upon which he hopes to ride into the third term just as confidently and deliberately as it was laid for his second term and upon exactly the same foundation.

You remember in 1916 they told the country that we were in a devil of a fix, about to get into the war, and that Mr. Wilson had kept us out of it, and that we could not afford to swap him off for a man who would plunge us right into the great conflict.

Of course, it is fresh in your memory how all that stuff was so carefully prepared and handed out to us, and how it caught votes like molasses catching flies. The good women of the West were carried off their feet and voted for Mr. Wilson because they were made to believe that it would be ruinous to us to swap horses in the middle of the stream.

Now they are framing up another "stream" for us to be right in the middle of when the 1920 election comes off, so they can make us believe we ought not to swap horses again. They are going to try to make us believe that Mr. Wilson is the only one who can properly frame up the compact to insure peace to the world in the future, and they are actually delaying the game so that he will be in the middle of that job a year from now, when the campaign opens up.

In this connection it is enough for any thinking man to just read what Norman E. Mack, the ex-Chairman of the Democratic National Committee says about Mr. Wilson in 1920. Here it is:

> "The President now is in the midst of a great task—that of bringing to pass the dream of students and philosophers for decades — organization of a league of nations to keep peace among the great powers. The subject is sure to engage the attention of statesmen and thinkers for a long time. By the end of another year it doubtless still will be a great problem. I don't see how there can be any other candidate than the President himself. It seems to me the war and reconstruction will come pretty near eliminating the third term issue, and the Democrats will feel that in order to win they have to renominate their champion."

If you have not got thinking and reasoning faculties enough to see through this scheme which the Catholics and Democrats combined are laying you ought to get out your barlow and make you a wooden bill and go out in the back yard and dig worms with the chickens.

OUR HOPE IS IN THE SENATE

Whatever it is that has held the Senate of the United States in recent years in a state of partial paralysis, there are now various comforting indications of a speedy return to vigorous health.

The power which creates the president creates the Senate, and both receive orders from and are responsible to that power. But for a number of years the senate, as a body, has failed to assume its normal functions, standing back meekly from its duty, as if in doubt whether it is a legitimate child and heir, or only an unnamed foundling, left overnight on the nation's back doorstep.

The president who has been more often wrong than right since taking the office, seems to have awed the senate by the very audacity of his noisy and blundering misadventures. The beautiful but useless phrases offered to the country in lieu of real statesmanship might have been expected to fool a considerable number, but the multiplied failures of the chief executive should have warned the senate to watchful activity months ago.

Our country has come upon a most dangerous time; with the horror of the monstrous war fresh upon the consciousness of the world, there is an almost universal demand for some device which will make future wars impossible. And for such an hour there has come forward a man usurping the international leadership who is dangerously disqualified for such power; a man who has shown a complete lack of statesmanship and efficient leadership at every point where his office has touched the war.

The president knowing that the senate holds equal responsibility with him in the perfecting of any treaty or league of nations, ignored the senate thru the preliminary deliberations, and recently added insult by seeking to prevent discussion until a committee of that body had consulted with him.

If there is a satisfactory way to prevent wars, it should be found, but the constant Wilson blundering makes the country suspect any plan he may endorse, and the United States turns to its senate for guidance. In spite of the criminal inefficiency of its leadership, the raw man power of the United States saved the world from the cruel autocracy of Europe, and we now have a right to expect that the United States senate will save us from the scarcely less dangerous autocracy of America. — Sumner County (Kansas) Republican.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

By President James Monroe.

It is only when our rights are invaded, or seriously menaced, that we resent injuries, or make preparations for our defense. With the movements in this hemisphere, we are of necessity more immediately connected, and by causes which must be obvious to all enlightened and impartial observers. The political system of the allied powers is essentially different in this respect from that of America. This difference proceeds from that which exists in their respective governments; and to the defense of our own, which has been achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure, and matured by the wisdom of their most enlightened citizens, and under which we have enjoyed unexampled felicity, this whole nation is devoted.

We owe it, therefore, to candor, and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those European powers, to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety.

With the existing colonies and dependencies of any European power, we have not interfered, and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have, on great consideration and on just principles, acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any European power, in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States. — From the Message of President Monroe, December, 1823.

The Alabama Republican.

We are in receipt of a copy of "The Alabama Republican," a weekly paper published in Birmingham, and devoted to the maintenance and upbuilding of the Republican party in Alabama. An the Union-Banner, together with all other Republicans welcome The Alabama Republican into the field. We recognize that a state organ of our party is a vital necessity and with it we can maintain a standard of Republican principles and a loyalty to same among the people that otherwise could never be attained. Every Republican in the state should lend his assistance and support to our state organ. By so doing it will succeed and become one of our fixed institutions. By our support of that paper we can make the opposition party know that there is some backbone in Alabama Republicans. Take heed now, Republicans, and stand by your guns. Through the vigilent support of united people for the Republican party in Alabama, we shall at no far distant day witness the collapse of the already feeble structure of "solid Democracy" that is sheltering the discord of a dissatisfied and restless constituency.

We learn that the Alabama Power Company is favorably inclined toward the proposition of bringing their lines from Lock 12 to Clanton and furnishing us with light and power. The only thing that there is in the way, as we heard one fellow say, is that the Power Company is financially embarassed and have not got the money just at present to put up the lines and start the juice to flowing.

Mayor Stanfield has consulted the Power Company officials, and has gone over the proposition thoroughly; and from the best we can learn there is a very favorable probability that negotiations will soon be under way to give us our lights and power from the big electric plant that is operating in Clanton's back yard.

The Power Company says they want to come to Clanton; the citizens of the town say they want them to come. So if we all mean what we say and are willing to do our part, we will soon come out of the hole so far as this light business is concerned.

THE PROPOSED LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

From the Congressional Record. Senate of the United States.

The proposed constitution for a League of Nations would transfer the sovereignty of the United States to Europe.

If adopted, Europe would have control of our Army and Navy, of our foreign commerce and immigration laws. Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan, already united in an alliance, would by this constitution be given sovereign control over the United States, being four out of five of the first council of the League.

By this constitution every vital international controversy affecting our honor or safety would be decided by the League, and the constitution provides that any failure on our part to accept the decrees of the League be an act of war against every member of the Leauge.

This League would put upon us the colossal guardianship of various countries in Europe, Asia, and Africa, and would entail enormous sacrifices in men and money. It also obligates us to defend every other member of the League against attack.

At the same time it surrenders to the League the control of conflicts in the New World and sets aside the Monroe Doctrine.

We have lived in peace and amity with the world during the greater part of our career under the policies of Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Cleveland, McKinley and Roosevelt. This League proposes to abandon the ancient policies, under which we have been free, happy, prosperous and great and to subject our nation to the control of Europe, and make us a party to the quarrels of all the rest of the world.

It would bring wars, unhappiness, and misery upon us. In effect the adoption of this constitution would be the same as treason, because it would transfer to alien powers the allegiance of the Nation.

If this constitution is ratified without being submitted to the American people in a political campaign, where it shall have been made anissue, and upon which they will have had an opportunity to render judgment in an election, then self-government in America will have disappeared. We are facing an abyss and the American people should not be led into it blindfolded.—From the speech of Hon. Miles Poindexter, of Washington, in the Senate of the United States, February 19, 1919.

MINSTRELS AT JEMISON

The boys of the County High School carried their minstrel to Jemison last Friday night and realized the nice sum of $20 out of the performance. This goes to the library fund of the high school. In all these boys have made over a hundred dollars out of the minstrel for the school. It is a signal success which they should be proud of indeed.

HOBSON COMING BACK TO ALABAMA TO SPEAK ON WORLD WIDE PROHIBITION

Will Be in Montgomery on April 20th At Which Time a Big Mass Meeting is Planned.

Richmond Pearson Hobson, apostle of preparedness, an outstanding figure politically, and also in a military sense, and one of the most valiant supporters of prohibition in the entire country, will deliver an address in Montgomery April 20th. He will be accompanied to Montgomery by John C. Woolley, at one time the prohibition party's candidate for President, who will also deliver an address on the same date.

Both addresses will be made to stimulate interest in the movement for world wide prohibition. While in the city Captain Hobson and his distinguished colleague will speak at a number of local churches, and later in the evening on April 20th, will deliver addresses before a mass meeting in the city auditorium.

BOY LOST HIS ARM RESULT OF SHOT GUN ACCIDENT.

Monday afternoon as a result of the accidental discharge of a shot gun in the hands of Stanley Thornton a young son of Elijah Jones happened to the extreme misfortune of having his left arm blown completely from his body. Thornton had shot a mad dog and as he reloaded the gun it fired and the load struck the boy's left arm below the elbow. His arm had to be amputated at the elbow.

NOTICE.

All persons are hereby warned not to hire or employ my son, Ocie Williams, age 17, under any circumstances, without my consent.

Billingsley, Ala., March 25, 1919.

SONG SERVICE AT CLANTON

There will be an all day singing in the high school auditorium in Clanton on the First Sunday in April.

Among the prominent musicians who will attend may be mentioned Prof. Samuel W. Beazley, formerly of Chicago but now of Atlanta, Prof. J. D. Patton, and Mrs. M. L. Flowers of Memphis, Tenn.

Prof. Beazley is a composer of international fame being considered by many to be the greatest living composer of gospel songs. Prof. Patton is a musician held in high esteem by the people of the South and West and is one of America's best singers. Mrs. Flowers is a pianist of national talent. Many other good singers will attend.

Carols of Praise and Crowns of Love will be the books principally used. All lovers of music are cordially invited to be present.

A newly elected Justice of the peace in Indiana delivered the following charge to a jury the other day:

"Gentlemen of the Jury—Charging a jury is a new business to me, as this is my first case. You have heard all of the evidence in the case as well as myself; you have also heard what the learned counsel have said. If you believe what the counsel for the plaintiff has said, your verdict will be for the plaintiff; but if, on the other hand, you believe what the defendant's counsel has told you, then you will give a verdict for the defendant. But if you are like me, and don't believe what either of them said, then I'll be danged if I know what you will do! Constable, take charge of the jury."—Judge.

D. P. Garner, our watch-maker, went up to Birmingham Tuesday to transact some business.

FEDERAL AID FOR HIGHWAYS.

With the slogan, "A Complete Highway System for Every County in Alabama," the Alabama Highway Improvement Association will be organized in Birmingham April 3, and 4th, at the Tutwiler Hotel. Twenty delegates to this Convention have been appointed by Chilton county, with Judge L. H. Reynolds as the Chairman.

The government has allotted Alabama Five Million Six Hundred Thousand Dollars for building and maintaining highways for the next three years, provided the state appropriates a similar sum. The Birmingham Convention will devise ways and means to secure this money. An intelligent plan has been worked out and will be submitted to the Birmingham Convention.

Citizens of this county should take a lively interest in this meeting, as it will be unfortunate if our county is not represented by a large delegation.

KEEPS US OUT OF WAR AGAIN.

A Boston business man writes the Boston Herald that Senators Knox and Lodge are hard hearted men who care nothing for the sufferings of humanity which follow in the bloody wake of war. Sounds like a 1916 Democratic Campaign "argument," when the people were told that the wicked Republicans were just aching to plunge the country into war while Wilson, thank God for him, was the apostle and guarantor of peace. How many times do these bunk artists think that they can put that stuff over anyway?

ROCKYMOUNT.

There will be a school meeting at Rockymount School house Saturday night, the 29th, to consider applications and make arrangements for a summer school. All interested are requested to be present.

J. B. NORTHCUTT.

THORSBY ITEMS

Thorsby is to have a new mercantile store within a short time. Mr. Fate Foshee from near Liberty Hill is putting in a nice new stock of goods, a line that will bring many new customers to Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Condon left last Friday for a short visit with Mr. Condon's parents before going to Jacksonville, Fla., where they expect to make their home. Mrs. Condon is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Rogers, and her marriage to Mr. Condon on March 11 came as a surprise to her friends in Thorsby. Since coming to Thorsby more than two years ago, Mrs. Condon has been a student at Thorsby Institute, a very efficient and helpful member of the Congregational Church, and a popular and attractive member of the social life of Thorsby. Her many friends here regret that her marriage will take her away from Thorsby.

Miss Amy Winslow, of Ames, Iowa, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Winslow, is a welcome visitor in Thorsby at this time. Miss Ames, who formerly lived in Thorsby, is now Librarian for the State Agricultural College, which is located at Ames.

"Visitor's Day" was quite well observed in the second district last Sunday. It is felt that much good will result from this interchange of interest by our Sunday School workers, and that the spirit of brotherhood will be more strongly cemented.

Sunday, March 30th, at 2:30 P. M. the second district Convention of Sun day school workers will meet with Cedar Grove Church. A good program has been prepared for this meeting, and it is hoped that each Sunday School in the District will be well represented. The Sunday schools in the District are Pleasant Grove, Macedonia, Mt. Pleasant, Collins Chapel, Jackson Chapel, Pate's Chapel, New Salem, Cedar Grove, and the Baptist and Congregational, Thorsby. The District officers are, President, Felix Eiland, Thorsby; Secretary-Treasurer, Ida F. Lockwood, Thorsby; Assistant Secretary, Miss Lucile Adams, Thorsby.

Mrs. W. O. Watkins of Birmingham was a visitor in Thorsby the past week, the week-end guest of Miss Lucile Adams.

Our genial friend, Mr. Reuben Foss is wearing an unusually broad smile these days, the occasion for which is the arrival at his home of a new daughter, whom they will call Ruth.

An entertainment will ge given in Bates Hall, Thorsby Institute, Saturday night, March 29th, at which time the following program will be rendered:

Piano Duet, Blanche Aust, Inga Erdahl.

Solo by Mr. Wm. Rogers.

Song, "The Wanderer's Night Song," Olga Soberg, Agnes Gerald, Esther Berlin, Odie Lee Arthur, Ruth Gerald, Ruth Peterson.

One act play, "The Anybody Family on Sunday Morning." Cast of Characters: Mr. Anybody, Waldemar Lefstead; Mrs. Anybody, Bessie Hughes; Millicent, Lelia Hopkins; Gwendolin, Lake Erie Cochran; Robert, Earl Leary; Jane, Dorothy Rogers; Willie, Arnold Soberg. Tickets are on sale all this week. At the close of the program the young ladies of Miss Jenkins' Sunday school class will sell ice cream, cake, candy. Come and bring your friends.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

At 11 A. M. March 30th, Dr. E. C. Maye will preach on the subject of "How to Make a Prosperous Church." The public is cordially invited. There will be special music at 11 and 7:30.

At 7:30 P. M. the Pastor will preach a special sermon for the benefit of the young people of Clanton. Young ladies, young men, girls and boys all are requested to be present, as a part of the sermon will be directed to your future good. The Boy Scouts will be on hand and take part. The public is cordially invited. 7:30 P.M. Good music will be rendered.

Mr. DeWitt Easterling, who for the past two years has been in the service of the United States Navy, is now at home.

LEAGUE ENGLAND'S SCHEME.

Washington, March 26—Col. Geo. Harvey says that President Wilson in urging the acceptance without any amendment of the covenant of the league of nations, played entirely into the hands of England, and against the best interests of the United States:

"Surprise has been manifested at the readiness of England to join the combination and many compliments have been paid to the President for his success in 'converting' Lloyd George. But why should not England thankfully and gladly enter into such an agreement? In the first place it is her own scheme from top to bottom. There is a common supposition that it is an American scheme conceived by an American President. That is not the fact. For America is only a cat's paw in the business. The origin of everyone of the famous fourteen points enunciated by the President, barring that relating to the freedom of the seas, which originated in Germany, is absolutely and wholly British. SO TOO IS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS. There is not a thing American about it. Four plans were submitted, one by America, one by England, one by France and one by Italy, and the British plan was adopted—a scheme shrewdly devised by British statesmen for unloading many burdens upon the United States."

Cleve Headley, Red Mims, Marvin Mims, and E. P. Garner, made a business trip to Birmingham in a Ford Tuesday.

WILSON REVERSES HIMSELF

Washington, March 24.—"We cannot form alliances with those who are not going our way and in our might and majesty and in the confidence and definiteness of our purpose we need not and we should not form alliances with any nation in the world."

These are the words of President Wilson uttered in a speech in 1914 and now referred to by Senators opposed to his views in regard to the proposed league of nations. "What does the United States stand for, then that our hearts should be stirred by the memory of the men who set her constitution up?" he asked. "You can sum the whole thing up in that, that America had a right to her own self-determined life. There are just as vital things stirring now that concern the existence of the nation as were stirred then. Washington saw it when he wrote his farewell address. It was not merely because of passing and transient circumstances that Mr. Washington said we must keep free from entangling alliances. It was because he saw that no country had set its face in the same direction in which America had set her face. You need alliances only when you are not strong."

GUARDIAN'S SETTLEMENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.—Probate Court. Mar. 14, 1919 To Hon. L. H. Reynolds:

Whereas, on this, the 14th day of March, 1919, come Sallie E. Maddox, Guardian of Howard W. Cooley, and filed her account, vouchers, evidence, and statement for final settlement of her said guardianship, and the 5th day of April, 1919 has been appointed a day on which to make such settlement:

You are therefore hereby cited to appear before me at my office on the said day and contest the said settlement if you think proper.

L. H. Reynolds,
Judge of Probate.

MICKIE SAYS

NEW LEADER MONDELL URGES CO-OPERATION

Says Republicans Will Attempt to Act in Harmony With Executive in Framing Laws.

Washington, March 25.—Full co-operation of the Republican congress with the Democratic executive branch of the government in promoting legislation for the interests of the people, rather than aggressive bickering, will be the policy of those in control of the House in the next congress if Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, the newly chosen majority leader, can bring it about.

The Western man will also be chairman on the Steering Committee, composed of himself and Moore, of Pennsylvania, Madden of Illinois, Dunn of New York, Longworth of Ohio and Winslow of Massachusetts. This body will, with the Rules Committee, take over much of the general powers of shaping the course of legislation formerly held by the speaker. Though reared on a farm and left an orphan at six, Mondell became successful in mercantile pursuits, stock raising, mining and railway construction, and then was elected twelve times to the House. Personally he is unassuming and popular, but on the floor, where he will lead his colleagues, he is a vigorous debater.

"The Republican majority in congress," he said to your correspondent "was due to a considerable extent, at least, to the fact that the people have confidence that the Republicans can be trusted to meet in a practical and satisfactory way the problems which arose out of the war and the great changes which it produced. I am confident that the people will not be disappointed in their expectations in that regard, and that the party will prove the wisdom of the popular decision which placed legislative responsibility in its hands.

"The task is not an easy one. First, because the problems to be met and solved are of tremendous magnitude and are perplexing in their character. Second, because our legislative program must be carried out under an administration which can hardly be expected to fully acquiesce in our views. We trust, however, that we may be able to co-operate with those in executive power in a large measure in the settlement of all of the important questions we shall have to deal with.

"It is my desire and it will be my purpose to render every possible service to the Republican majority in the speedy enactment of the legislative program which may be determined upon. We shall have, I am confident, an earnest and harmonious Republican majority, actuated by the desire and the determination to work unitedly along sound and constructive lines.

"The problems before us are so highly important and the situation with regard to many of the activities of the nation are such that it is imperrative that an extra session be called at a reasonably early date to consider urgent matters of legislation and appropriation. The railroad situation is among those requiring prompt attention and consideration, and it is exceedingly necessary that we should make further provision for the early discharge of our soldiers and for their return as quickly as possible to favorable opportunities in civil life."

Representative Harold Nutson, of Minnesota, a former newspaper man, president of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association and a live wire, entering upon his second term, has been chosen partywhip in the House and will henceforth be in charge of rounding up his colleagues for roll calls. This is the office formerly held in the days of "Uncle Joe" Cannon's regime by now Senator Jim Watson of Indiana.

As the committee assignments have been equally and satisfactorily distributed, it is the belief of the Republican leaders that the machinery of the House for the 66th congress is now so perfected as to produce not only effective and progressive legislation for the solution of everypressing problem, but so as to make for celerity and ease in procedure.

WILLIAM PIERCE GOING INTO BUSINESS AT WETUMPKA

Mr. William Pierce, a prominent farmer and business man of Clanton, has sold out his interests of various kinds in this county, and is moving to Wetumpka to engage in business. He will operate a feed and grocery business in connection with a corn meal mill. Many friends of Mr. Pierce here regret to see him leave Chilton county, and hope he may be successful in his new locataion.

WILSON VETOES PEACE—WOULD FORCE WORLD CONSTITUTION FIRST.

In a Paris cablegram dated March 17, and published in the United States two days later, Frank H. Simonds, the most reliable of all American correspondents now in Europe, and not unfriendly to President Wilson, makes the astounding statement that when President Wilson returned to Paris, he found that an agreement had been unanimously made by all representatives at the peace conference, including his associates on the American delegation, to perfect a preliminary peace with Germany on March 21st. This preliminary peace was to include military, naval, economic and geographic terms. It was intended by the conference to be in substance the final peace treaty, exclusive of the league of nations constitution. There had been no difference of opinion in the peace conference in arriving at this conclusion, Mr. Simonds says, and there was no feeling on the part of the American delegates that this action was intended to defeat the league of nations by indirection or to evade the question even temporarily. The sole idea was to end the war, stop the growing unrest in Europe, enable the belligerent countries to demobilize their armies and get back to work at the earliest moment possible without awaiting the discussion and decision of features of the proposed world constitution.

Upon the arrival of President Wilson, Mr. Simonds says, he abruptly and imperatively vetoed the program, overruling the entire membership of the peace conference. He issued a denial of the statement authorized by M. Pichon that such an agreement had been reached and asserted that it would not be permitted. By so doing he assumed responsibillity for continuing a state of war for at least two months, possibly longer, and to that extent delayed the return of American troops to the United States and the cessation of the vast expenditure incident to keeping a huge American army in Europe. The preliminary peace treaty will be postponed until April, and President Wilson will not, if he can prevent it, prevent peace to be declared finally before the American Senate is forced to accept a final peace treaty into which the Cecil-Wilson league of nations plan is so interwoven that it will be impossible to separate the two.

It is evident that in so doing President Wilson made the peace and safety of Europe secondary to his desire for a triumph in his proposed battle with the American Senate, this in turn, according to Norman E. Mack, of the Democratic National Committee, to be made the basis of a third term candidacy for the Presidency. In other words President Wilson fears that the Cecil-Wilson scheme will not secure the approval of the American people on its own merits. He fears to permit it to stand alone. He is determined that the American people shall have no hand in the framing of the new world constitution, and he proposes to offer them the alternative of swallowing the scheme as he brings it home or permitting the continuance of a state of war. It is scarcely necessary to make comment upon such a situation, but if the old spirit of Americanism is not dead, it will find expression.

Somebody asked Senator Underwood when he came back to Birmingham from Washington the other day what he thought about politics in this country at the present time. He told them he felt like there is something wrong with politics; something that was not exactly clear to him. From which we draw the opinion that the Senator must have heard the rustling of the small wind that will be blowing a gale by the time the next election gets here. He must have heard the small voice that will result in the great wave of ballots that is to change the tide of our political affairs at no distant date. Yes, there is something wrong with politics, Senator. There is something dead up the branch "shore as you're born."

Determined as we are to avoid, if possible, wasting the energies of our people in war and destruction, we shall avoid implicating ourselves with the powers of Europe, even in the support of principles which we mean to pursue. They have so many other interests different from ours, that we must avoid being entangled in them.—Thomas Jefferson.

It is obvious that all powers of Europe will be continually maneuvering with us to work us into their real or imaginary balances of power. They will all wish to make of us a make-weight candle, when they are weighing out their pounds. Indeed it is not surprising; for we shall very often, if not always, be able to turn the scale. But I think it ought to be our rule not to meddle; and that of all the powers of Europe, not to desire us, or perhaps, even to permit us, to interfere, if they can help it. —John Adams, 1782.

I hope the United States of America will be able to keep disengaged from the labyrinth of European policies and wars. It should be the policy of the United States to administer to their wants without being engaged in their quarrels.—George Washington, 1788.

As nature hath separated her from Europe, and hath established her alone (as a sovereign) on a great continent, far removed from the old world and all its embroiled interests, it is contrary to the nature of her existence, and to her interests that she should have any connections of politics with Europe other than merely commercial.—Thomas Pownall.

SOME REASONS WHY THE PROPOSED LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS ATTACKED.

Beginning with the attacks that were made upon the proposed League of Nations by Senators in congress just before the close of the last session of that body, there has grown up an avalanche of criticism of the league constitution from the four corners of this country. Statesmen and public men and newspapers everywhere have found various faults with the proposed league. Their objections are numerous and of varied character.

The gist of all this opposition may be summed up in the following reasons:

Because it yields American sovereignty to an executive council in which it would be outvoted by nations whose interests might be diametrically different.

Because it is a clever plan, admitted by the President at the White House dinner to have been conceived by England, for maintaining the status quo established at Versailles.

Because it is incompatible with the competitive struggle of history and nature which necessitates change and development rather than fixity of condition.

Because it upholds kings and emperors and does not grant self-determination and liberty to Ireland, India, Korea or any other dependency.

Because it makes the United States, already overburdened with taxation, the almoner of the world and gives it tasks in Europe and Africa that would lead to conflict with the aims of other powers.

Because it makes complete our entanglement in foreign politics without giving the world more liberty or compensating us for loss of full nationality and individuality.

Because it invalidates the Monroe doctrine, which presupposes our non-interference in Europe just as we insist that Europe shall not interfere in this hemisphere.

Because it prevents the armed protection of our rights and interests in turbulent Mexico in the event of serious menace to our citizens there.

Because it would wear down the economic barriers erected by America to protect its standards of labor and of living.

Because, as admitted by the President at the dinner to the Foreign Affairs Committees, it does not actually prevent future wars.

Because it is in effect a continuation in perpetuity of the present alliance of the nations which fought against the Central Powers and binds us in the future to act together to control the world, something contrary to the warning of Washington and repugnant to the spirit of our institutions and the traditions of a century.

Because it restrains the United States in providing an army and a navy sufficient for its future protection.

There are a few "Big Roosters" in Clanton who stand around on the street corners and blow off such croaking noises as this: "The Catholics deserve all the credit for winning the war and these d——d Protestants who are raising such a kick against the Catholics have not got sense enough to know that to the Catholics belongs all the credit for saving the world from the domination of the Kaiser." And about the time the big rooster lets loose one of these noises and stretches up his neck and flops his wings, here comes one or two little "Bantams" who are in the habit of truckling to him, sidles up, and if you happen to be close by you can hear him crow, "That is exactly right." Clanton has not got any use for such human timber as those fellows. They are few in number, we are thankful, and they are just a useless ornament to the town—just about such an ornament as a disease breeding stagnant pool of muddy water would be in the middle of our main street, or a nasty pig pen in the back end of all our stores and offices. They are so useless that we could fare better without any of them at all.

The best argument in favor of our staying out of the league of nations is the fact that Europe wants us to get into it so very much.—Fool Killer.

Twenty-five Years Ago

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

T. A. Curry, Esq., from Livingston, Sumpter County, has been appointed County Solicitor, to succeed C. W. Hare, Esq. Something of a paucity of home material, we presume, led to this action.

The Peoples Party County Executive Committee met at the Court House Saturday, March 17th. The Chairman, O. M. Mastin, presided. The following Beats were represented: 1. J. W. Sorrell; 2. Ira Campbell; 3. Lee Hayes; 4. O. M. Mastin; 5. H. M. Strock; 6. E. H. Smith, John Edwards; 7. W. Y. Nix, W. A. Green. The following Campaign Committee was elected for each Beat: 1. T. J. Dorminy; 2. L. H. Reynolds; 3. R. J. Williams; 4. J. W. Littlejohn; 5. J. J. L Stewart; 6 Madison Popwell; 7 D. J. Holsomback; 8. Robert Gandy; 9. A. F. Childress.

Mrs. L. B. Pounds died at the family home near Jemison last Monday.

William Marcus has removed his family from Yellowleaf to Clanton. Mr. Marcus will engage in the meat market business in Clanton.

Mrs. Sarah Giles died on March 14th, age 74.

DR. MATTHEWS KILLED NEWTON CULP

On Saturday, March 17, Dr. E. A. Matthews and Mr. Newton Culp became involved in a fatal difficulty, the result of ill feeling which had existed for some time past. From thebest information we have at our command, it appears that shortly after noon Henry and Newton Culp, who were riding in a wagon at the time, met Dr. Matthews returning to town in his buggy close to the Tom Gullahorn residence. Newton hailed the doctor and threatened him with a pistol, telling him that he would not kill him then, but would when next he met him. Shortly after this, Dr. Matthews, on his way to make a professional call, having in the meantime armed himself, encountered the Culp brothers at a ford on the old Chandler place. What immediately ensued we do not know; but it resulted in the shooting of Newton Culp by Dr. Matthews, who claimed he shot in self defense. Culp died the following morning from the effect of the wound. Dr. Matthews, immediately after the shooting, returned to town, and gave himself up to Sheriff Moore.

JUST SOME FACTS.

Here's a suggestion for a Democratic national ticket in 1920: For President, George Creel; for Vice-President, George Herron. Platform: "Let George Do It."

While American free traders are twittering about the removal of all economic barriers, John Bull puts up a steer-high, hog-tight fence against the importation of nearly every article of American manufacture.

The administration organs which insist that all Republican members of the Senate should favor President Wilson's league of nations plan in order to avoid the charge of partisanship should make it fifty-fifty by insisting that in order to show themselves non-partisan all Democratic Senators should be against it. Yet one of these theories would be just as childish as the other.

THORSBY ITEMS

A recent wedding of much interest was that of Miss Elizabeth Rogers of Thorsby, to Mr. Richard Condon of Homeland, Ga., which occurred at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, Marche 11, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Chas. T. Rogers of Thorsby. Only the intimate friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony which was saind by the father of the bride using the beautiful ring service. The only attendants were Mr. Randall Rogers, a brother of the bride, as best man, and Mrs. Randall Rogers as matron of honor.

Since coming to Thorsby a little more than two years ago, Mrs. Condon has been a student of Thorsby Institute, an active member of the Congregational Church and Sunday School and a very popular and attractive member of the social life of Thorsby. Her many accomplishments and charming personality have won for her many friends who regret that her marriage will take her away from Thorsby.

A unique feature of the wedding was that the groom, his best man and Rev. Rogers, were all in uniform. Mr. Condon has been in the army for a little more than two years and his company was at Camp Mills ready for embarkation when the armistice was signed.

Mr. and Mrs. Condon will leave on Friday of this week for Jaksonville, Fla., where they will make their future home.

Mrs. Clarence Butler and daughter, Elizabeth, of Montgomery, are guests of Rev. and Mrs. Butler of Thorsby. Mrs. Butler will return to her home the latter part of this week.

Friends of Rev. S. H. Herbert will be interested to know that he is now stationed at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., doing hospital service for the Red Cross.

The series of meeting conducted by Rev. Mr. Davenport at the Congregational Church for the past ten days closed on Sunday night. The meetings were well attended each evening and much interest manifested. Several young people gave their hearts to God during the meetings and the active membership of the church was greatly strengthened by the services.

Rev. Mr. Shangran of Camp Sheridan preached at the Lutheran Church last Sunday. He was accompanied to Thorsby by Mr. Bruner, a soldier from camp. Rev. Shengran leaves Montgomery this week, as the camp is being disbanded.

Rev. Leaf from Tennessee Ridge, Tenn., will preach at the Lutheran Church Sunday, March 23.

Friends of Mrs. E. W. Butler will be glad to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness and is now able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Rogers returned to their home in Macon, Ga., Tuesday of last week. Mr. Rogers has been in active service in France for several months and his friends are glad to welcome him home again.

CLANTON GIRL IN MUSICAL CIRCLES AT THE BRENEAU.

Clanton music-lovers have been delighted many times by the part that Miss Roberta Curry has taken in various musical programs here. When as a mere tot she made her debut on the local stage as a soloist, her audiences readily conceded that the child had a wonderfully sweet voice. Appreciative friends have observed with interest the development of Miss Curry's voice.

Last fall she entered Breneau Conservatory of Music at Gainesville, Ga. That she won a place on the Breneau Glee Club is no wonder to the folks at home, although the fortunate ones for such positions of merit were selected from a group of many, and all splendid vocalists. The Glee Club has just returned to the college from its annual tour. The itinerary included Athens, Macon and a number of other Georgia towns.

Below we reproduce what was said of the Glee Club performanc from an Athens paper; and we doubt not that Miss Curry contributed largely in making the Breneau Glee Club entertainments a success.

"Last night there appeared at the Colonial one of the best Glee Clubs that ever came to Athens from an outside city. Pep, music, comedy and good looks went to make the show what it was, a real success. All Athens, including the University, theNormal School and Lucy Cobb feel that they have indeed received a treat from the Gainesville visitors. The Colonial was packed to the doors with an enthusiastic crowd composed of both young and old. Practically all of the members on the program brought encores and many of them were multiplied.

"There was one singular and unique feature about the program. For the most part it consisted of real music, which is indeed a novelty these days. And the audience showed its approval of a change from the ordinary by their hearty and spontaneous applause. The costumes of the club in the last act deserves special mention, some of them being rare in their beauty, and all of them making a stunning appearance as the curtain went up for the last time."

Miss Fannie Johnson of Sapulpa, Okla., arrive in Birmingham Thursday, where she will spend some time with her sister, Mrs. W. Z. Dennis. She will visit relatives and friends in Clanton and vicinity before her return to her home.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

We regret to learn of the death of Kenneth Langston. He was a former High School student.

The Websterian Literary Society met Thursday night and staged a big mock trial. The case was against Leon Mullins for assault with intent to murder Jack Wade. Attorneys for the state were Isador Kanjutzky and Otto Jones; for the defendant were Fonza Cunningham and Broadus Connatser. The defendant was found to be guilty and was sentenced to two years hard labor.

The boys have a tennis court on the campus now and we hope to have some star players.

The Juniors gave a picnic Saturday and enjoyed themselves fine, so the reports have it.

The other day someone in Senior class asked one of the girls: "What is the area of a trapezoid?" Her answer was: "The distance around it."

We are glad to have enrolled with us, Mr. Arthur Burnett. He started to school Monday and was promptly initiated.

Wanted—A cure for spring fever. Should anyone find a cure, send it to the High School pupils. They are badly in need of it.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH
Jno. F. Gable, Pastor.

Both Sunay Schools and young peoples meetings had the best attendance last Sunday of any time since last summer. Congregations are all doing well.

The church has received several additions to its fellowship recently, and there are a number of others who have promised to come in the near future. We welcome the newcomers and trust that they will both be helped and be a help to their new relationship. Baptists soon learn to make themselves at home in their new surroundings, for the whole church plant belongs just as much to them as to anyone else.

On next Sunday morning the Sunday school offering will go to Home and Foreign missions. Our work in other directions has kept us from doing much for missions so far this year.

At the 11 o'clock hour a song and praise service will be held led by some of the best singers in the community. The offering will be given to the Orphans Home.

The next service will be in charge of the young people who will carry out a program of their own. The B. Y. P. U., the Girls Auxiliary and the Sunbeam Band will all take part.

Mr. Lee Wilson of Montevallo Ala. is spending a few days with his Parents in Clanton this week.

SERVICES AT FRIENDSHIP

Sunday School and preaching service were held at Friendship Baptist Church in East Clanton last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. W. P. Lowery, preached an able sermon.

Judge S. M. Adams was the Sunday School visitor and made a very valuable talk on the work of the Sunday School. We are proud of the fact that we have a live church and Sunday School at Friendship.

Everybody is invited to visit us any time.

MT. NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo Singing Society met at Mt. Nebo Church last Sunday, March 23, with large class, and quite a number of visitors, all of whom we were very proud to see.

The singing was opened with song and prayer by the chairman, Mr. S. A. Henley who directed a short lesson while the pragram committee arranged the program.

We had a very fine male quartet rendered by Messrs S. A. Henley, C. C. Cobern, Clim Billingsley and F. I. Popwell; female quartett rendered by Misses Annie Culp, Nancy Dunlap, Maggie Traywick and Mrs. Eula Culp, Mrs. Zellie Scott and Mrs. Ollie Williams.

We also had a mixed quartett by Misses Nell Poole and Glennie Culp, Mrs. Zellie Scott and Mrs. Ollie Williams and Messrs William Cox, Blanco Durbin, Sam Henley and Clim Billingsley.

The directors for the afternoon were Messrs Sam Culp, Blanco Durbin, C. C. Cobern, F. I. Popwell, Jim Dunlap, Clim Billingsrey and S. A. Henley.

The singing was closed with song by the chairman and prayer by Mr. Popwell.

The society will meet again next second Sunday at 2:00 promptly. We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

Ollie Williams, Secy.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT BY DR. WELLSMAN

Liver Complaints.

Properly, every derangement of the liver or bilious system is a liver complaint; but the peculiar state now referred to is a CHRONIC AFFECTION, and it usually arises from torpid or congestive state of that important organ. Sometimes the bile is deficient in quantity or vitiated or both these states prevail at the same time. Sometimes the disease is caused by an obstruction in the duct or pipe which conveys the bile from the liver into the bowels.

This obstruction is very frequent and is usually caused by the pipe being clogged up by thick, tenacious slime or mucus, and sometimes by gall stones. The bile is then thrown back into the gall-bladdel where it is absorbed by numerous small vessels which convey it to the thoracic duct and from there the bile is conveyed to the heart and becomes mixed with the blood. The biles in this manner being diverted from its proper course and circulating in a part of the body where it was neves designed by nature, produces evil and often disastrous effects upon the health of the individual for want of healthy bile to mix with the half-digested food. As a result, costiveness or alteernately cistiveness and diarrhoea prevail together with wind in the stomach and bowels, andt he patient is often annoyed with worms and frequently with piles.

The coarse particles of the bile thus mixed with this blood, more or less obstruct the sores of the skin and small blood vessels and hence give rise to various diseases of the skin. It become more or les yellow, and sometimes there is a perfect jaundice. The white of the eyes also has a green or yellow tinge. More or less bile is strained off from the blood in its passage through the kidneys, and is mixed with the urine.

The tongue is usually coateed with a white or brown scuff. There is irritation and frequently chronic inflamation of the inner surface of the stomach and bowels. Sometimes there is a loathing of food and at other times there is a voracious appeetite.

There is a feeling of oppression across the stomach an chest, as if pressed down by a weight; troubleome and often frightful dreams, low spirits, languor and want of energy.

To sum up in a few words, a sensation of fullness and distention across the abdomen, with tenderness on pressure; lownes of spirits, billiousness, colics, and billious diarrhoea and dyenteries; obstinate costeveness, jaundice, etc., may all originate from the same cause a deranged state of the liver.

The most successful treatment is to give the patient every night on going to bed from one to twa laxcarin tablets, or enough of them to insure one evacuation from the bowels next morning. The doss of laxcarin can be increased or diminished at pleasure, so as to produce the above effect, and their use should be continued as long as needed. Usually three or four boxes of laxcarin, at the most six, are needed.

Laxcarin is sold by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. E171, Pittsburgh, Penna. Price per box one dollar, full treatment six boxes five dollars. Will be sent post paid upon receipt of cash, money orders or stamps. Substitutes must be refused.

RAISE CORN FOR MAXIMUM YIELD OF SOUND GRAIN

1. Select Weevil Resistant Seed Ears

Weevil resistance depends upon tightness of shuck covering, not upon hardness of grain.

Maximum yields are usually secured from best types of Prolific Varieties rather than from large, single eared kind.

Sound grain is found more in ears which hang downward when mature so that rains are shed, not held by the shucks.

Best seed selection is possible only from stalks in the field. Their height on stalk, number of ears and hanging characteristics, as well as shuck covering can be seen. Try it.

In the crib selection, take only the medium-sized ears that are absolutely free from weevils.

Weevil-infested kernels cause broken stands and barren stalks, thus reducing yields.

2. Protect Main Crop by Trap Plot.

Trap plots may best be planted as near as possible to the corn crib. They may attract weevils through a distance of half a mile.

Trap plots may best be planted as ahead of the main crop which it is to protect. Weevils are always attracted to the earliest maturing corn, whatever the variety, attacking open tipped ears first.

If a pure-bred variety is being grown we advise using seed of same variety for trap plot, but planting three of four weeks ahead of main crop. Otherwise an extra rapid maturing variety of same color as main crop may be used with less difference in planting dates. Early plot may be used for roasting ears. No weevil eggs are laid until corn begins to harden. Weevils then develop to adult stage in five weeks. Trap plot must be gathered completely within six weeks after roasting ear stage.

NOTICE

To my friends and patrons:

I have returned from the army and will be associated with Dr. N. S. Johnson. Arthur Johnson, M. D., Clanton, Ala. 1-16-3m.

MINOOKA.

W. H. Clements and family of West End visited W. A. Howard Sunday.

Howard Roper and S. J. Reynolds of Jemison visited Minooka Sunday afternoon. The lecture Mr. Roper gave on Sunday school work was enjoyed by all.

W. G. Conway is still very sick with the flu.

Miss Lula Crim spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Rhodes of Bessemer.

Mr. J. T. Brown of Birmingham visited home folks Saturday.

There was a singing at Shiloh on Sunday afternoon, March 16th. Prof. Woods led the singing. A large crowd was present and the occasion was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Akins Collins and Mr. Bean visited Shiloh Sunday, March 16th.

Thomas Busby, Jr. had the misfortune to lose his home by fire last Thursday.

The infant daughter of Mrs. Sarah Crim, which has been seriously ill, is improving rapidly.

Miss Maud Ellzey and sister Aleen of Montevallo, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ellzey. Mrs. Ellzey is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hucks have returned from their visit to Birmingham.

JONES HARDWARE COMPANY COMING OUT OF THE "KINKS"

Fenn Jones, in keeping with his long-established policy of the most progressive and up-to-date business methods in his hardware business, has taken a very decided step in that direction here of late. He has sold "Patsy" his big dray horse and has bought a Ford Truck from the L. J. Duncan Motor Company. In a few days you will see this truck on the streets of Clanton doing service for the Jones Hardware Company.

Miss Annie Gragg and Bessie Davis are at home from School for a few days.

DR. SAM JOHNSON NOW ON U. S. NAVY TRANSPORT

Mrs. Samuel E. Johnson has just returned to Clanton from Norfolk, Va., where she has been with her husband, Dr. Sam Johnson, who is in the service of the U. S. Navy. Mrs. Johnson informs us that the doctor has been placed with the Troopship Nansemond, which is engaged in bringing returning soldiers from across the seas. The vessel is now on its way to the port of St. Nazaire, France. The ship which Dr. Johnson is on is the second largest transport in the service, and its record during the war is very interesting. She has had two engagements with submarines, and is officially credited with sinking two of the under-sea craft by her gun fire.

Dr. Johnson has been in the Navy for about two years and has up to this time been stationed at navy yards in the States. Now he will have a chance to see much of the world by being on the transport.

READY FOR DIPPING VAT.

Lawley, Ala., March 25., 1919.

Editor Union-Banner—Please allow us to say to the Commissioners that it is not our intentions or will to violate any state or county law, an that there has been a place located for a dipping vat in our community, for which we are proud. We are now waiting for material to build it with so we can begin dipping as soon as possible.

THE REAL TEST OF PATRIOTISM

A day or two ago the writer dropped into a motion picture theatre. It was a holiday and the house was full; at least half of the spectators were children.

The pictures shown illustrated the career of General Pershing from boyhood days to the last scenes in the great war, in which he participated as Commander-in-Chief of the American Armies in France. Each picture was preceeded by descriptive lines which were full of patriotic fervor.

Now here's the point of this little story: As each picture was rolled from the reel the children—boys and girls alike—cheered wildly; the clapping of their hands resembled rifle fire; the stamping of their feet on the floor sounded like a regiment of calvary passing over a bridge. This enthusiasm should have been infectious.

Was it? I watched the grown-up folks to see whether they responded to the spirit of the occasion. Few of them did; most of them sat as still as stone images while the riot of enthusiasm raged around them. Without knowing it, the children were their judges. In their presence, the older people stood convicted of apathy and indifference.

What Is the Answer?

What will be the judgment of the children of the next generation on us as they read about us in their histories? Are we going to hold the same place in their love and reverence as they give to the patriots of the Revolution, of the war of 1812 and the other great periods of our national life, or will they read something like this in their school books, and ponder sorrowfully over it:

"Immediately after the United States of America entered the great world war in 1917, this country rose to heights of self-sacrifice never known before in our history. Every request from the Government was complied with cheerfully and universally. Our people denied themselves food in order that the starving people of Europe might be fed. Every war loan offered by the Government was tremendously oversubscribed, every call for the support of war agencies was obeyed. Men and women in all ranks of life put aside their private business and devoted themselves to war work. The world looked on and wondered. In the noble spirit shown by the people of the United States, all humanity read the dawn of a better era. We were at once their hope and their pride.

That Strange Spell.

"Immediately after the signing of the armistice, however, a curious thing happened. A strange spell of apathy fell upon our people. They said, 'The war is won and we are through with it.' They forgot that the obligations incurred by our Government in the winning of the war still remained to be discharged, and they went about their selfish ways, leaving the Government, in the language of those days, in the lurch, and compelling it to raise money for the payment of war debts by a system of taxation which Congress and the Treasury Department earnestly endeavored to avoid. That taxation is still in force at this date (1950) and will continue for years to come. It is our heritage of the unaccountable indifference of our people in 1919, to which we have already referred, an indifference which cost them much in money as it is costing their children today. But this money cost, STUPENDOUS as it is, shrinks into insignificance compared with the keen disgust and disappointment of the nations of the world at this mysterious change of feeling on the part of the people of the United States. It was as if a great light had gone out and left the universe in darkness."

The Test of Patriotism.

We have a very practical means of showing ourselves and the world today and our children and their children that we have not gone to sleep after the war and that we are the same alert Americans we were in 1917 and 1918. There is an old saying that money talks. When we are sincere we do express our earnestness with our money. The real Christian is not content with fervent prayers—he backs up his church and his pastor with his pocketbook. And so it is with the real patriot. The financial honor of his country is as dear to him as his own honor. The man who claimed to be a hundred per cent patriot during the war and who now refuses to help the Government by buying war loan securities, simply because the war pressure is over, has been deceiving himself, but he cannot deceive his fellow citizens.

Here in Alabama, as in all states, there is an all-year-round opportunity for every man, woman and child to prove up on patriotism every day in the year. War Savings Stamps are on sale at the postoffices and banks and in a great many stores. Thus the opportunity is present. The Government needs the money derived from the sale of these stamps. Every stamp bought is a distinct aid to the government. But there is a much higher thought than that. Every stamp sold carries with it the possibility of making the purchaser a permanent saver. The seller and the buyer of stamps are not only helping the Government but their own state and themselves.

How to Make a Church Prosper.

There is a sure way of prosperity. It has never failed and never can. The following rules observed by all the members of any church will insure good days. If the church is decaying, the decay will soon be arrested. If it is standing still, it will soon begin to grow. If it is already flourishing, it will grow more rapidly.

1. Attend all the services regularly. If possible, be in time; compose body and mind for the service.
2. Never miss a service needlessly. If you have visitors, invite them to go with you; they will respect you more as a Christian if you are faithful to your duty.
3. If it rains, make a special effort to go. Our churches stand much in need of storm-proof religion.
4. Take part in the service. You go to worship, not to be entertained.
5. Be devout. Find the hymn and sing it and share the book with your neighbor.
6. Speak to strangers and invite them to come again. A hearty hand-shake will add much weight to the invitation.
7. Be friendly. Remember hand-shaking has not gone out of style. A hearty Christian greeting means much comfort and encouragement.
8. Accept gladly any work asigned you. If pastor is struggling under a load, take hold and help. At least do not increase the burden.
9. Be a peacemaker. Peacemakers are the "children of God."
10. Avoid gossip. It is one of satan's best agents for starting troubles.
11. Give cheerfully, according to your ability. The Lord has dealt bountifully with you, hence, you should be liberal to His cause. Try this a while.
12. Take your church paper. Church members should.
13. Think of services through the week, speak of them to others.
14. Pay your church obligations.
15. Pray for the pastor. His usefulness will be greatly increased by the daily prayers of all the people.
16. Pray for unsaved souls—self especially.
17. Pray, pray, pay. Keep prayed up to date. No Christian should be behind in his pray accounts and pay accounts.
18. If you mean to help along, don't get in front and block the way. Get behind and push.
19. In short—pray, praise, push and pay.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Dr. E. C. Maye, the able pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, went down to Prattville Wednesday to deliver a speech in connection with the Methodist Centenary Movement. Dr. Maye is a preacher of recognized ability, hence the demand for his services in church movements from the different parts of the state.

Mr. Gerald Hubbard of Jemison brought his girl to the picture show in Clanton last Saturday night.

Mrs. Heath visited Thorsby last Thursday night.

Mack Broadhead is in the City of St. Louis, this week on business connected with his store in Clanton.

Misses Eula Shaw and Lummie Murrah of Jemison were visitors to relatives and friends in Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. H. A. Harris, and little daughter, Mabel, went to Montgomery on Sunday to spend a few days with relatives and friends.

Zeb Lockhartof Clanton, who was wounded in the battle of St. Miehl, and saw service in several of the big battles of the recent European War, is back at home now.

Sam Pate of Gorgas was in Clanton on Monday. Sam says he will return to Chilton County soon as the work at Gorgas is about completed.

Miss Lurline Harper and Mrs. Harris of Munford, Ala., spent the week end with friends and relatives in this city.

Frank Norris, the hustling editor of The Peoples Advocate of Columbiana, was in Clanton on business Mondey.

Calvin Moates of Billingsley was in town Saturday.

Squire Waldrup of Jemison was a visitor to Clanton Saturday. Mr. Waldrup is one of the inspectors in the cattle dipping business in his part of the county.

A. E. Wilkins of Billingsley has bought "Patsy," the big gray horse heretofore belonging to the Jones Hardware Company.

Sheriff Harris is still at work in Montgomery with the State Draft Board. He was in Clanton Sunday with his family.

The Jones Harware Company has purchased a large Ford Truck to take the place of their dray for hauling their freight, etc.

PEOPLE MUST TAKE VICTORY LOAN OR INJURE BUSINESS

If Banks Were Forced To Carry Whole Loan, They Would Have No Money To Lend To Public

That the Victory Loan, like its four predecessors, must be a "people's loan" is especially stressed by Carter Glass, secretary of the treasury, in a statement to the public. It is not to be a "bankers' loan." The nation's business situation depends upon as wide a distribution as possible of the Victory bonds.

The banks, it is pointed out, must be left free to advance money for business purposes; to the merchants and manufacturers and the farmers. If all the banks' money is tied up in loans to the government, it stands to reason that there will be none left to lend on crops. It would mean "tight money," which means high interest rates and refusals to extend notes and a general hardship upon the men who depend upon the banks to assist them in carrying on business and agriculture.

Don't Forget the Roof!

The need for the billions the Victory bonds will bring is plain to any man who stops to think. The war is not over, though the actual fighting has ceased. The bills are still running up. Millions of men are still in uniform, drawing pay and food and clothing. The Secretary of the Treasury declares:

"Government contracts cannot be repudiated. The goods must be paid for in full. Our shipbuilding activities must be carried out."

So, it can easily be seen that the job is not finished. What would you think of a farmer who built him a house, laying the foundations, putting up the walls, ceiling the rooms—and forgetting the roof?

The roof will not be put on our national house until the job is finished and the bills paid.

The campaign for Victory bonds will begin on April 21. The exact details of the issue have not yet been announced, but it is considered certain that the bonds will be made an unusually attractive investment.

THE UNION-BANNER

VOLUME VIII | CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., APRIL 3, 1919 | NUMBER 1

DICTATORSHIP MUST BE OVERTHROWN.

DANGEROUS CONDITIONS ARE GROWING UPON AMERICA BOTH AT HOME AND IN EUROPE.

Washington, April 2, 1919.—The Republican Publicity Association thru its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

This is a time for plain speaking, if individual liberty is to be maintained at home and national freedom maintained abroad. While the president of the United States is in Europe trying to bind this nation to a league which, in the form proposed by him, surrenders the independence of the United States in several vital particulars, his political master general is proceeding at home in the usurpation of powers never intended to be conferred upon him by law. If the league of nations shall be formed with this country a party, on the plan proposed by President Wilson, our national future will be at the mercy of the varying interests of other nations in Europe and Asia. If Mr. Burleson can succeed in his high-handed effort to commit this country to paternalism or worse, on the absurd theory that his present actions are essential to the winning of the war, then individual rights in this country are at the mercy of the varying political interests or whims of whosoever happens to be temporarily vested with official authority.

Many people have been won to the support of the league of nations scheme by the false assertion that we must choose between that league and chaos. Many people have been induced to look with complacency upon usurpation in the form of seizures of telephone, telegraph and cable properties because those properties happen to be owned by corporations and because it is falsely asserted that they can be operated more economically and efficiently by government officials than by private management.

According to the most plausiblle advices received from our secret representatives in Europe, it is apparently the plan to weave the league of nations into the peace treaty in such a way as to force its adoption without opportunity to consider it solely upon its own merits, thus practically nullifying that provision of the constitution which stipulates that treaties shall be made only upon the advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate. It is proposed to force adoption of an objectionable "rider" as an essential incident to a desirable peace treaty. It is proposed in our domestic business affairs to scramble public utility concerns and destroy their separate organizations in such a way as to make restitution difficult if not impossible, and thus force the country to a policy of government ownership without regard to the judgment or wishes of the people or their representatives in congress.

This is a plain statement of what is going on. It is subversion of that orderly procedure contemplated by the letter and spirit of the constitution and laws of the United States. The president and his political managergeneral have set their wills above the law and the constitution, and propose to commit this government and its destinies to certain policies vitally menacing to the future of the nation.

If the president places the league of nations question before the Senate in such form that it cannot be passed upon according to its own merits, aside from a question of peace with Germany, or if the postmaster general manipulates the property that has been committed to his control, under the guise of war necessity, in such a manner that the property cannot be returned to its owners, it will be the plain duty of the House of Representatives to present an impeachment against either or both to be tried by the Senate in accordance with the letter and spirit of the constitution.

The vital question now before the country is whether this is a government by law or a governmnet by men. Now is the time to settle it once and for all.

CIGARETTES AND SOFT DRINKS MAY FIGHT FOR EXISTENCE

Movement Said to be Under way to Get Subjects before Legislature When it Convenes again.

Montgomery, March 29—Cigarettes and soft drinks manufactured in Alabama will have to fight for existence when the legislature of Alabama meets in July, if reports in Montgomery are true. Reformers in Alabama, now that whiskey is gone, can see no good in cigarettes; and nothing but harm can they see in the drink that made Mr. Candler famous as a millionaire and Atlanta as well known as the soft drink manufacturer. During the past several weeks literature has been sent into Alabama showing the activities of associations opposed to cigarette smoking.

Cigarette smokers and those who take their "toddy" of Coca-Cola in the morning have made a joke of the agitation against the two "evils." It has been suggested by them that the legislature also abolish coffee, making it a severe penalty to drink it and also to serve it. They would have the Coca-Cola drinkers use nothing but tea.

It is remembered that at one recent session of the Alabama legislature a bill, prohibiting the sale of the soft drink "almost" got through the two houses. Whether the ill would have met with the approval of the governor or not, this was taken to mean the drink must have many enemies in the state.

It is known that about the easiest thing in the world to do is to get a bill introduced in the legislature of Alabama or any other state. Bills without merit are known to have been introduced in the legislature, and should the cigarette bill get on the calendar a strong speech or two for it would place cigarettes and Coca-Cola in a serious condition, as far as its existence in Alabama is concerned.

Sheriff Harris says he has about completed his work with the State Draft Board at Montgomery. Mr. Harris has been tied up in streneous work for the past five years, and he intends to take a little rest the remainder of the year.

HOWARD L. FOSHEE ELECTED COUNTY SUPT OF EDUCATION

By a unanimous vote of the members of the County School Board on last Friday, Prof. Howard L. Foshee was elected as the next County Superintendent of Education to succeed Prof. W. T. Bean, who was not an applicant to succeed himself.

The newly elected Superintendent will take up the duties of his office on October 1st, 1919, when the term of Prof. Bean expires.

Prof. Foshee needs no introduction to the people of Chilton County. He has been one of our most successful teachers for a number of years, and at one time was the first assistant teacher in the Chilton County High School. He has taken an active part in the educational uplift of our county for several years past and deserves the reward he has received for his efforts. The Union-Banner believes Mr. Foshee will make a worthy official in charge of our county schools, and we are glad to see him get the highest reward the county can give him for his services to our schools in the past.

MT PLEASANT

Sunday School is still going and promises to be a No. 1 Sunday School before long. There will be no Sunday School on next Sunday on account of the singing at Clanton, but will take it up the Second Sunday and go right on with it.

We are glad indeed to tell you that Miss Alvie Dozier, who has been down nearly seven weeks is now slowly improving. We hope she will soon be up again.

Mr. H. P. Headley of Wylam spent Sunday at L. M. Rowell's.

Mrs. Julizzie Foshee spent last week with friends and relatives.

J. A. Duncan went to Birmingham last week to have some dental work done.

Mrs. W. H. Foshee visited Mrs. Mary Jane Foshee near Baker School Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benion of Lomax ere callers at L. O. Vickers.

Miss Delene Watson recently visited Miss Pauline and Ruth Massey.

G. W. Robinson and daughter, Miss Flossie and Miss Gracie Duncan, attended the Singing at Jemison on Sunday.

We all note and read with pleasure the happenings of twenty-five years ago, especially those of us who remember that far back.

LITTLE VIEWER.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS INTOLERABLE SAYS CAPITOL'S SOLON

Poindexter Assails Covenant in his Address to the Cincinnati Club.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 26.—Senator Poindexter, of Washington, republican, addressing the Business Men's Club here tonight, declared that the proposed League of Nations plan was "utterly intolerable" in whatever form it may be developed and was unacceptable to the Senate and the American people. He said "union of action and co-operation" as highly desirable if it did not involve surrender of the independence and sovereignty of the free nations of the world.

"Under the constitution ofthe League of Nations or any constitution based upon similar principles," said Mr. Poindexter, "the autonomy and self-determination of the individual nations would, while pretending to preserve liberty, it would by this very act destroy the liberties of the world and set up a monstrous military despotism in its place.

U. S. Has paid Her Part.

"Europe, with its community of interests, may feel that it can control the proposed League of Nations and undoubtedly it can; the United States however, with a different set of interests, having paid the fearful cost of its entry into the war against Germany to preserve liberty, would make a monstrous mistake now to surrender that very liberty to a different form of world government in the shape of a League of Nations with authority and power to enforce its decrees upon the United States.

"The plan proposed of a League superior to the alien from the nations over which it is the rule with independent power, and authorized to use force is utterly intolerable in whatever form it may be developed. No arrangement containing the elements of a super-government of the world with sovereign and supreme power over the nations which is advocated with so much formal propganda throughout the country, will be acceptable to the Senate or to the people."

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS.

School is progressing nicely now. The campus has its original firmness after a good packing last Friday.

Tennis seems to be all the go now. They have even gotten the editor of the News playing. What do you think of that?

HUGHES SUGGESTS CHANGES IN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Terms of Covenant Reviewed by Former Presidential Candidate.

New York, March 17.—Suggesting seven changes in the covenant of the League of Nations to protect the United States against European aggression, Charles Evans Hughes, former candidate for the presidency, in an address before the Union League Club reviewed exhaustively the terms of the covenant.

The changes he suggested were:

1. Explicit provision as to the requirements of unanimity of decision.

2. Suitable limitation as to the field of the League's inquiries and action, so as to leave no doubt that the internal concerns of states such as immigration and tariff laws are not embraced.

3. By providing that no foreign power shall hereafter acquire by conquest, purchase, or in any other way, any possession on the American continent or the islands adjacent thereto.

4. Providing that the settlement of purely American questions shall be remitted primarily to the American nations, and that European nations shall not intervene unless requested to do so by the American nations.

5. Omitting the guaranty (of the existing independence of member nations) of Article X.

Providing that no member of the league without its consent, and no European or Asiatic power shall be constituted a mandatory of any American people.

7. Providing that any member of the league may withdraw at its pleasure on a specified notice.

Mr. Hughes criticized severely the 10th article of the covenant, under which the "high contracting parties" undertake to "respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all states members of the league."

Concluding the argument that this clause had been included to protect the nations born of the war, the speaker regarded it as a trouble-breeder," and not a "peacemaker."

If Senator Chamberlain's bill had been offered prior tohis discovery that the war department had utterly broken down some allowance might be made for his extraordinary and appalling proposition, but in view of the fact that he acted with his eyes open, there will be a division of sentiment as to whether he or Secretary Baker is most deserving of condemnation on the subject of the injustices and menace of the court-martial system.

It makes no allowance, he said, for changes in the make-up of member nations which may be found advisable and "ascribes a firmness of judgment to the Peace Conference in erecting states and defining boundaries nobody in the history of the world has ever possessed."

FAMOUS SINGERS TO BE HERE ON SUNDAY

Many Prominent Persone in Southern Musical Circles will be Among Directors of the Day.

Those persons in Chilton County who are interested in the advancement of music and who have given their time and thought to the work will find muchinterest in the meeting that is to be held at the County High School building in Clanton next Sunday. And all lovers of music as well as those actually engaged in the same will be highly interested too.

Some of the most famous musical composers of the South will be present including Prof. J. D. Patton and Prof. Beazley, and others.

The Union-Banner has the following letter from Prof. Dye of Thorsby, which seems as assuring news to those interested in the event for next Sunday.

Editor Union-Banner:

Inasmuch as there seems to be some doubt in the minds of some people as to whether or not Prof. Beazley and Prof. Patton will attend the singing next Sunday, I will state that I am in receipt of letters from Prof. Beazley and Patton, also Mrs. Flowers, stating that they are coming.

Prof. Patton is well known, personally, to the people of Chilton County, and Prof. Beazley is well known through his excellent music. Some of our people attended the big singing at Columbiana in 1916 and will recall the splendid playing of Mrs. Flowers. She is one of the best pianists in the South. I may also add that I am in receipt of a letter from my friend, Dr. A. W. Lane, a cornetist of ability, stating that he is coming.?

I hope to make this the best yet held in the State.

Yours musically,
John M. Dye.

SENATORS BORAH AND KELOGG COMINGTO ALABAMA TO SPEAK

Birmingham, March 26.—Frank S. Rea chairman of the Republican State Republican Campaign Committee, today announced that United States Senators Edgar Borah and Frank B. Kellogg, two of the leaders on the Republican side of the Senate in the fight against the ratification of the League of Nations, will deliver addresses here in the next 15 days.

Arrangements are being made for the visit to the State by the Republican leaders through the State Republican Execuive Committee, which Mr. Pope M. Long, of Cordova, Walker County, is chairman. It is expected the Republicans will visit other sections of Alabama.

The baseball practice is coming right along. We have not played any games as yet, but hope to have one in the near future. Watch for the announcement and come see the game when we do have it.

Leon Mullins, Lee Sartor, Cecil Smith and Willie Murphy sit in Mr. Bowers' room and hear No. 4 run while trying to teach him to understand Geometry the way they do.

On next Thursday night there will be a play in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the scouts.

On next Sunday there will be an all day singing in the high school building. There will be some great singers here and we hope to have a large crowd. I guess you have already seen the announcement in the paper, but for fear you had overlooked it I thought I would put it in the "News."

We, seniors, feel our importance, as we had a man call on us this week to see us on important business.

On account of the teachers having to be absent Thursday and Friday to go to the Alaama Educational Association, we will not have any school this week after Wednesday.

In last week's issue I put in an adv. for a remedy for spring fever, but from the way the weather is now I guess that we don't need it. It seems now that it may be quite a while before spring. So you may just keep your remedy till further notice.

Americans, Protestants, Patriots, Where Are We Drifting?

Numerous things, facts and figures of one kind and another have been published by various newspapers over the country in regard to the work and plans of the Catholics in America. There are many people though who are so dead asleep that they refuse to be waked up on the proposition and pass it up by saying that it is just a big fuss that some fool Protestant is making about a thing of which he knows less than nothing.

Now, just for a change of the view, let us take a look at the way the Catholics themselves view the situation. We have come into possession of an article that is credited to the National Catholic Register, a Catholic organ, and was made public about the time of the election last November. We cannot vouch for the authenticity of the article, but it looks like the Catholics and those concerned would offer a refutation if it were not true. The article has been published all over the country for three months or more and not one word of denial has been offered.

The following is a brief extract from which the general tone of the article can be ascertained:

"It is God's plan that the holy father of Rome should be the spiritual and temporal head of his kingdom on earth. It is the same today as in the time of the first Pope. The best way to accomplish this is through political power through religious education and service. God has doubly blessed the Catholic church of America by placing one of its most faithful sons at the right hand of President Wilson. Next to the President, Hon. Joseph Tumulty, Knight of Columbus, thirty-third degree, wields the greatest political power of any man in America, and as a true Catholic he is exercising the great trust which God has given his hands for the glory of the holy church. Through his tack and holy zeal he created a warm friendship between the Catholic church and President Wilson, together with the democratic party. Other presidents have feared the power of the holy church and have courted its support, politically, by granting it childish favors, which deceived no one. But this is the first time in the history of the country when the President and a great political party have openly sought an equal and honest alliance, the President and his party have shown their good faith by works. Through the efforts of Hon. Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson has practically granted that education in the Philippines (?) should be under control of the Catholic church; and that religious activity in the great American army shall be under the direction of Knights of Columbus. This means the addition to the church of one million of the country's best and bravest young men, or at least their strong preference and sympathy for the Catholic church. We must make the most of this opportunity."

Remember now you Baptist and Methodist preachers and you Protestant Democrats, who have been voting the ticket just because pa did, and not giving a rap about what it stood for—you fellows all remember that the above saying taken from the Catholic Register, show how the Catholics themselves are viewing the situation.

We leave it here without further comment. Words are entirely helpless in expressing our sentiment regarding the thing.

How about you?

What Would Teddy Say If He Were Alive This Day?

Is there any doubt as to just what Theodore Roosevelt would say about the league covenant were he alive today? Those on both sides of the question are attempting to state what his views would be. There is only one answer. Roosevelt was one of the greatest examples and exponents of Americanism the country ever knew. He practiced what he preached and preached what he practiced. He stood for America first, last and all the time and was a firm believer in the teachings of George Washington. Would he consent to the surrender of American rights as demanded in the covenant? Would he consent to the giving of one vote to the United States in a council containing nine? Would he allow the Monroe Doctrine to be relegated to the scrap of paper heap? Would he consent to the wholesale amending of our own constitution necessary to make it possible for the adoption of the league? Every man who knew Roosevelt in the slightest will answer "NO" to all these questions.

How Can We Compare Lincoln and President Wilson?

A year or so ago the Democratic party boosters took delight in likening Woodrow Wilson to Abraham Lincln. They overlooked, however, some very important distinctions. Lincoln did not assume to exercise the powers of both the executixe and legislative branches of the government. Having had some experience in congress himself, Lincoln recognized the probability that members of congress might have some opinions that were worth considering.

And another important difference was in their attitude toward the Roman Catholics. Lincoln saw the danger that was hanging over America from this menace to our civil institutions and liberty. He openly stated that Romansm was looming up even in his day, as a cloud on the horizon for the coming of which America would be much the worse. Lincoln opposed Catholic domination of American interests and stood for the rights of the common people. He could not forget the principles of loyalty to America that was bred in him when he was a sapling youth growing up in the hills of Illinos.

How is our friend, Mr. Wilson on this most vital of all propositions? Has he warned Americans against the threatening dangers of Romanism? Has he stood up for the freedom of American institutions? Has he held to the traditions of the little red school house on the hill? The answer is No, sadly No.

Mr. Wilson has delivered this country body and soul, into the clutches of the poisonous viper that coils in his lair on the Tiber, spreading the most poisonous principles of every kind over the four wings of earth.

Now, after having been swept off his feet by the dark cloud which Lincoln warned us was coming, Mr. Wilson is endeavoring to forever seal our doom by harnessing on us the Pope's league of nations scheme, which was no doubt conceived in the sin and debauchery of Roman Catholic councils and brought forth to the world in their iniquituous scheme to place America under the domination of the Roman hierarchy.

How then can one compare Lincoln, the incorruptible sturdy American martyr, with Woodrow Wilson?

Much safer now, would be these United States of we had a president of the Lincoln type, Roosevelt strength, or McKinley manhood.

When he average citizen who has been going along for all his life drinking the great volume of "canned" dope that is purveyed through the servile daily papers wakes up and sees the distressing stage to which good old America has driven up to it nearly knocks him off the roost. When he learns that the Roman Catholics have been binding Uncle Sam hand and foot while good citizens like him have been asleep, he can hardly realize just what has happened. But as soon as he takes time for a bit of sober thought and reflection he concludes that he must have been asleep "shore nuff" and furthermore that it is high time to wake up.

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

Early crops and vegetable gardens have been killed by cold weather. Wheat is utterly destroyed. This Eastertide will long be remembered for the severity of the weather.

The county medical board was organized with officers as follows:

President, Dr. W. E. Stewart;
Vice-President, Dr. J. P. Givhan;
Secy-Treas., Dr. E. A. Matthews;
Board of Censors, Dr. W. E. Stewart, J. P. Givhan, and J. S. Johnson, Jr.;
Health Officer, Dr. W. E. Stewart.

Mrs. Julia Mims, age 44, died near Collins Chapel on March 7th.

John Thomas Ruffin of Lily died on March 21.

Judge Callen has made a trade with Tax Collector B. M. Gentry to fence the cemetery with a galvanized wire fence.

Revenue Officer, J. A. Dudley captured a hundred gallon still near Coosa River. He arrested W. Mims and carried him to Montgomery charged with operating the still.

Dr. Matthews has waived action in the matter of killing Newton Culp till the grand jury meets.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ———about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

THE RIGHT LAXATIVE FOR THE LITTLE ONES

The natural condition of a child is to be happy and carfree. When the girl mopes and is indifferent to school and study, or the boy is sullen and refuses to go out and play, the child needs a laxative to empty the bowel and stir up the liver.

But something should be given that will produce the result in as simple and natural a way as possible. Harsh cathartics and physics are neiither necessary or desirable.

Many mothers have found that the combination of simple herbs produces a free movement of the bowels without gripping. This combination is sold in tablet form under the name of Laxcarin, and is universally being used. Only a few laxcarins aree required and it is very pleasant to take, in fact it is a doctor in candy form. That is why children like it so much. A few hours after its use the child will be its happy self again. It works like a clock.

It is an excellent remedy for the mother herself, and for the other members of the family, in obstinate or occasional constipation, for the relief of sick headaches and an aid to colds and fevers, minor skin eruptions and a disorders where the basis of the troube is constipation. It aids digestion, relieves fermentation, neutralizes over acidity, stops the bloating of gas, aids sour stomach.

Proce is always. In spite of greatly increased laboratory costs due to the war, by sacrificing profits and absorbing war taxes we have maintained the price at which this family laxative has een sold. It is safer, however, on account of the extraordinary demand we have had during the last few weeks to order enough Laxcarin for a full treatment which is six boxes for five dollars. One box costs only one dollar and ill be sent postage prepaid upon receipt of cash or money order. Send to the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. E 171, Pittsburch, Pa.

MR. POUNDS TAKES UP ARGUMENT FOR CALDWELL

Pletcher, Ala., March 29, 1919.

Editor Union-Banner:

Dear Sir:—

You may be surprised and even annoyed at this communication from me, but Mr. E. G. Caldwell handed me a copy of your paper in which you indulged in a somewhat lengthy article in reply to a little shot that he took at you.

So I hope that you will allow me to congratulate you to some extent, especially as to what you say in regard to the Democratic party and the Solid South.

As I see it, all your points were well taken and logically true as to the disadvantages to the South as to its being "solid" or blind with party prejudice, for it is a lamentable fact that a majority of its people, just swallow any old dope that is labeled "democratic."

But my dear sir, is it not a fact that while you make an able and gallant attack on the entrenchment of the Democratic party, that you are leaving your rear and flanks terribly exposed, not even providing for yourself a safe retreat. In other words, what is your remedy for curing the malady of which you complain.

By inference we naturally suppose that you would advise the people to vote the Republican ticket as an offset against the falacies of the Democrats. But had we not as well be in the frying pan as to jump in the fire? Has not this old thread-bare remedy been urged upon the people for half a century or more, and what have we as the result but a state of blind partizan, prejudice and political ignorance on the part of the masses, while the political bosses and bunco steerage committees, who are the minions of special interest and schemes of graft, gambling and general explitation. So then, can we not see that any kind of blind partyism only serves to divide the people into hostile camps, pits them against each other, thus blinding and fettering them so they become the easy prey of all manner of unscrupulous tricks and schemes. Now, honest John, can you honestly and conscientiously recommend the people to try the fire a while in order to get relief from the frying pan?

You gave us a contrast between the condition of the farmers of the West who graw wheat, and the farmers of the South who make cotton. Did the farmers of the West get relief or benefits by changing from one old party to another, or did they not gain those benefits by organization of the Non-Partisan League, building their own platforms regardless of the old party methods or policies, thus going directly after what they wanted? And they are getting them too. As you mentioned the West and incidentally the Non-Partisan League, are you ready to cut loose from the party crafts and launch forth on the political sea, hoisting the independent flag of the Non-Partisan League, unfurling to the breeze and enter a field of real work for humanity, a field in which you can give your talents full sway, where you will have room for explanation and development?

If you have the courage and patriotism to do this, then we are with you heart and soul, mind and strength on to the end, ah-men.

The time is now—conditions are ripening—the field is white unto the harvest—but reapers are few.

Now, if this escapes the waste basket, I will come again. Please find inclosed one dollar for your paper for a while.

Yours truly,
L. B. POUNDS.

SONG SERVICE AT CLANTON

There will be an all day singing in the high school auditorium in Clanton on the First Sunday in April.

Among the prominent musicians who will attend may be mentioned Prof. Samuel W. Beazley, formerly of Chicago but now of Atlanta, Prof. J. D. Patton, and Mrs. M. L. Flowers of Memphis, Tenn.

Prof. Beazley is a composer of international fame being considered by many to be the greatest living composer of gospel songs. Prof. Patton is a musician held in high esteem by the people of the South and West and is one of America's best singers. Mrs. Flowers is a pianist of national talent. Many other good singers will attend.

Carols of Praise and Crowns of Love will be the books principally used. All lovers of music are cordially invited to be present.

Afterwards a delicious ice course was served by the hostess.

SHERIFFGORE CAPTURED A WILD CAT STILL TUESDAY

On Tuesday Sheriff J. L. Gore, assisted by Joe Gore, captured a wild cat still in the north-western part of the county and arrested Joe Smitherman,who acknowledgedto being the sole owner and operator of the plant. The still was a well arranged affair about 250 yards from Smitherman's house. It was operated all day Monday and would have been in full swing again Tuesday butfor the fact that Sheriff Gore took charge of it Tuesday morning early.

From all indications about the place Sheriff Gore says it had been in operation at the same place for a year or two.

Three gallons of white lightning whiskey was found at the still and the sheriff says he burned ten large fermenters and laid wasteto the entire outfit. The copper still was brought to Clanton.

Smitherman made bond Tuesday evening and was released pending further action on his case by the court.

The sheriff says he has a line on some others which he expects to land before long.

The Clanton Boy Scouts have received their instruments for the band and are ready to begin practice right away.

Prof. J. L. Johnson carried his school children to Lock 12 Tuesday afternoon, the occasion being April 1.

Judge Reynolds went to Birmingham Tuesday.

C. L. Branch of Gorgas was at home with his family in Clanton Tuesday.

Sheriff Harris and wife spent Tuesday in Coopers.

COMMON SENSE RELIGION IN METHODIST SERVICES

We haven't taken the time to figure out what the theological term would be to describe the services that were held at the Clanton Methodist Church Sunday night; but we are going to tell it to you in terms that express the views of a plain citizen editor of a plain candid weekly newspaper.

To start out we'll call it a very valuable practical common-sense sort of meeting. That is what it as.

The program of the services was built around the Clanton Bay Scouts as a neucleus. The troop was there, a goodly number of them, and the young fellows occupied the front seats in the church. The force of the things that were said were in the main directed to the boys in an effort to impress upon them the importance of living upright, pure and honorable lives, and to help them to choose the way to clean wholesome manhood. But all the admonitions that were taught in the service did not stop at the front seats where the boys were sitting. Much of it went on to the back seats and armed the pews of fathers and mothers and big brothers and big sisters who were there also.

Judge Reynolds was first to speak to the boys and in his usual attractive way he held their attention riveted on some very fine thoughts for several minutes. His main effort was to impress boys to always figure the cost of an act or a transaction before they allowed them selves to commit it, and see what their gain or loss would be by it. If everybody who grows would gauge his actions by the means Judge Reynolds illustrated in his talk, that alone would guarantee the safety of the boy into the best character of manhood, morally, mentally, physically and financially. No man could do a greater service to rising generations than to impress upon the mind of a boy or girl something that will live and grow and produce in his or her life and character things worth while to the world and pleasing to Almighty God. This Judge Reynolds did in his talk Sunday night, and therefore, we are impressed that he could render to the boys who heard him no service greater than that which he rendered them in his splendid lecture.

Following Judge Reynolds came Dr. Maye who addressed his hearers on the subject of "Seeds." Dr. Maye did not merely read a dry topic or text and proceed to preach a long stereotyped sermon that put everybody to sleep. On the other hand, he chose a live vital subject of human cleanliness and personal morality and virtue and told some truths that get so close to some body's own self that they almost had to slide up on the other end of the bench to give more room. Dr. Maye showed the boys all kinds of seeds—corn, wheat, grass and thistle. He showed the boys how slowly good seed multiply and how fast evil seed will multiply in the course of plant nature. He impressed them thereby that evil seed in human character multiply so fast that they very soon outnumber the good so far that the whole life looks bad and is bad. He showed in a masterful simple way to the boys the great lesson he wished to teach them.

And right about here is where the part came in that warmed up big brother and big sister and papa and mama. Dr. May just simply called a shovel a shovel and a spade a spade. His warnings aganist the ever present vices that constantly threaten human character were made in the plainest words. He brought his hearers face to face with instances of fallen characters and hung out the waring we have seen in a long time, and could see plainly the red hot letters of the word Danger.

This was the most practical meeting e have seen in a long time, and Dr. Maye is to be congratulated on getting up such a program for the occasion. No greater battle confronts the present and coming generations than the battle for moral cleanliness. Parents need to wake up and give their children the warning. If it is not done they will surely be engulfed by the sweeping tide of vice and unrighteousness in the world. They stand a great chance of being lost to all decency, respect and honor in the world, and lost to the hope of life everlasting.

We hope the meeting Sunday night waked up some parents. We hope it put a seed in some boy's heart that will come forth a great plant and nourish his life into a mighty character.

WEST CHILTON

Tick eradication is all the talk now. It will be amusing to hear the candidates next year emphasizing the fact that they opposed the dipping vat. It looks now as if no others need apply.

Had a big singing Sunday at Freeman School house; big crowd, bountiful dinner also preaching by Rev. Hodgens, a free-will Baptist of Shelby. Books used were Christian Harmony and Crowns of Love. Messrs Hodgens, Gothard and Headley were directors.

Misses Modene and Minerva Waldrup visited Tempie and Bevie Smith Saturday night.

J. D. Atchison and family of Anniston have located here.

Isaac Waldrup, after a long time, has just heard from his son, Robert, in France.

Those news items in The Banner of Twenty Years Ago, look quite familiar to some of us, then under the reign of Populism.

Mrs. Ella Pate is visiting near Pletcher.

Some of our people visited the singing at Jemison Sunday.

Mr. Hayes of Randolph was here Sunday—just to see the girls.

The musical season is here again; the opening flowers and green livery of the forest all come so rapidly yet without noise; beautiful type of the resurrection of the dead, a gradual lifting up of perfection of life. So it will be in the beautiful approaching day preached of by the howling tempest and blasts followed by the beautiful Sabbath-to-be, the desire of all nations, the great Jubilee, earth's hope, the restitution of all things, all pictured by the cold winter and balmy spring, beautifully pointed out by Graves, Russell, Morison and other great writers.

Mr. White of South Alabama is in charge now at the Turpentine plant.

Rev. Waldrup visited Montgomery last week to consult a specialist for treatment.

M. F. Lett of Highland was in Clanton Tuesday.

Prof. McDonald and Judge Adams attended the Fifth Sunday meeting at Shiloh Sunday and made talks on subjects in connection with the work of Baptist churches in the Chilton County Association.

Mrs. Marshall Dozier of Elmore is visiting her son, W. A. Dozier.

MINOOKA

Our Sunday School is progressing very nicely, with regular attendance of four teachers and forty pupils.

Mr. John Lake of Denver, Colorado, stopped over for a few days last week with his sister, Mrs. W. M. Aldridge, who has now gone on to Mt. Creek to visit his mother.

Mr. Alvin Lowery of Siluria was a visitor to Minooka Sunday.

Mr. Elwood and Mr. Wilder Kinman of Helena visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Broadhead Sunday.

Mrs. W. R. Houlditch spent Saturday night with her mother, Mrs. Busby of South Calera.

The Junior Sunday School class No. 2., will meet with Miss Malene E. Howard Friday night to study Sunday School lesson.

Mr. W. F. Pilgreen of Bessemer spent Sunday with his Aunt, Mrs. R. L. Crim.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Broadhead spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Crim.

Rev. Powell preached at Shiloh church Sunday night. A large crowd was present and the sermon was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Stone of Birmingham gave a splendid talk on cemetery work, and also organized a missionary society with Mrs. Myrtle Virgin, Superintendent, Mrs. Sarah Crim assistant, Mr. Erman Seals, Secretary, Mr. Wilburn Busby, Treasurer.

Miss Annie Mae, J. D. and Willie Shaw, are confined at home with mumps.

Miss Maurice Anderson spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Anderson and we are glad to say her school will soon be out and she will be home to stay.

NITRATE OF SODA FOR CORN

Dear Editor:

Please allow me to say that farmers can secure one more car of nitrate of soda for use on corn in Chilton County to be delivered before May 1st. In order to secure this additional Nitrate of Soda it will be necessary for each farmer to file his application with W.H. Conway, County agent, at Jemison, or with J. N. Dennis, at the Tax assessor's office, Clanton.

The terms are the same as formerly. The farmer makes his application and accompanies same with a deposit of eight dollars and fifty cents a sack.

Please see that you get your application in as early as possible as the first applications will have preference on account of the limited amount available for further distribution. All orders must be in not later than April the 12th. W. H. Conway.

CLANTON BOY SCOUTS AND GRAMMAR SCHOOL PLAY

The Clanton Boy Scouts in combination with the Grammar School will put on a stage performance at the high school auditorium on Thursday night of this week, and the same play will be at Verbena Friday night.

The program consists of two plays, which promise to be very interesting. The titleof the plays are "How the Story Grew" and "The Dispelling of Big Jim."

Proceeds of the entertainment will be divided between the boy scouts and the Grammar School.

1698 ALABAMIANS DIED IN STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM

Montgomery, April 1.—Alabama's contribution to the European War in number of sons killed, compiled from the official bulletin of the United States by Dr. Thomas M. Owen, director of the Department of Archives and History, from January 1, 1918 to March 29, 1919 totaled 1698, representing those killed in action, died of wounds, diseases or in the prison camps.

Discussing the Alabama casualty report as released by himself, Dr. Owen stated that a complete record of Alabama and Alabamians in the war had been assembled, which with other material to be collected later will be preserved at the Capitol.

Tax Collector J. D. Collins, and Jessie A. Davis attended the meeting of pure bred hog growers, at Montgomery last Tuesday, March 25th, and report a good meeting.

Mr. Lincoln Harbold, Aberdeen, Miss., sold a load of 235 pound hogs at 20c per pound, which shows that we can sell hogs from the South for more in proportion than cotton. We are glad to see the interest in hog raising growing so rapidly in our county. We hope to see more pure bred sires another year.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS OF WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on the Stomach, Etc., Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an ecess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. "Chronic acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding the foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please, in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of Laxcarin tablets.

There is probably no etter, no safer or more reliale stomach antiacid than Laxcarin, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and it is not harmful by any means. Contains no habit forming drugs such as opium cocain, herion or alcohol. A few laxcarin tablets will remove the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully with out need of pepsin pills or anything.

Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this is not best advise you ever had on "what to eat."

It is safest to order Laxcarin from the distributors as there are many who substitute on account of its wonderful properties. There is also a very great demand and it is safest to order enough for a full treatment so that you may have enough without having to wait for the next box while you are in the course of recuperation. Six boxes only costs five dollars and this small amount is nothing in comparrison with the relief they offer. Or you may order by mail a box that is only one dollar. Send money by registered letter, or money orders by regular mail.—Laxcarin Products Co. Dept. E 171, Pittsburgh, Pa.

ALLGOOD'S FARM LETTER

Given out By M. C. Allgood, our Commissioner of Agr. & Ind.

Grow Corn, Corn, Corn.

The boll weevil and a world war forced Southern farmers into increased food production three years ago. Such a condition has helped to make the South self sustaining and increased its bank deposits many fold. As a concrete result of Alabama alone has almost doubled her corn production and more than doubled other food and feed crops, such as peanuts, velvet beans, peas and hay, and has developed her meat production in a one stride, stepped from dependence like proportion during that period, to independence and changed from a consuming to a producing State with her people living out of their own corn cribs and smoke houses.

Again, a new condition confronts our farmers which calls for immediate and censecrated action. The attractive price of wheat is causing the farmers in the great cereal states to increase the acreage of this crop and to discard corn acreage. They are going into wheat production on a mammouth scale. What does this mean? It simply means that the supply of corn and oats will be cut short this fall. It means a higher price for these products another season. It means also that the South will pay dearly for her breadstuffs and feed stuffs another year, if her farmers are not farseeing enough to poduce sufficient corn, oats, beans and peanuts to meet their own demands. If the farmer of the west discards everything for wheat and the southern farmer neglects everything for cotton it means a calamity to the country generally, but big money to the men that have corn for sale. Let's play safe this season and grow sufficient food and feed crops to meet the world-wide shortage of food and feed stuffs on account of the war.

ELECTED TO KEEP US OUT OF WAR; KEEPS US OUT OF PEACE TOO

"No League, No Peace" Is Attitude of Wilson at Peace Table.

(Harvey's Weekly Independent.)

"He kept us out of war," was the phrase under which the President's election was urged by his partisans.

"He kept us out of peace," may be the opprobrious verdice under which that second term will pass into history.

It is no longer possible to deny that it is because if his obstinacy that we are not now at peace with Germany under a treaty satisfactory to the Allies and justice. That testimony comes from many sources and is writ large and unmistakable in the records of the Peace Congress. It comes from French and British and Italian cources as well as from American. From the very beginning of that congress the president's attention has been given almost exclusively to other things than the peace treaty, and so far as it has been in his power to effect it, and it has been very largely in his power, the attention of the congress itself has been thus diverted from its most urgent and important business.

Preached League, Not Peace.

Indeed, that was true before the congress met. In that extraordinary campaign of speech-making, band-leading and kiss-throwing which the president conducted in various European countries just before the assembling of the congress, he had little or nothing to say about the treaty of peace. The burden of his harangues was the League of nations. The otherwise uninformed listener or reader might well have supposed that the formation of such a league was the president's prime object in visiting Europe and the prime object of the congress to meet in Paris, and the making of peace with Germany was merely an incident and negligible detail.

So it came to pass that so long as the president remained in Paris we heard little about the peace treaty. It was not until he started on his flying visit to the country which he should never have left that the congress got really at work on the peace treaty. We are told that while he was away, more was done on it than had been done in all the time before, so that upon his return the preliminary draft was practically completed for his inspection and approval.

Deliberately Vetoed Peace Without the League.

Then something happened. It does not appear that he greatly objected to the terms of the treaty. But he did immediately insist that his League of Nations scheme should be taken up again and interwoven with the peace treaty as he had threatened that it should be, so that it would be impossible for the United States Senate to separate them, but would be necessary for that body to accept or reject them both together. The statesmen of France and Great Britain objected to that, both on the principle that it would be illogical and incongruous and on practical ground that it would certainly cause delay and might perhaps result in the rejection of both measures. But the president is as stubborn and as wilful as he once described a little group of senators to be, and was insistent, under the protecting shield of a censorship which prevented the truth from being known, in declaring that there would be no delay and no rejection, since the overwhelming majority of the American people was behind him and only a few "pigmy-minded" senators like Messrs Lodge and Knox and Borah and Brandegee and Cummins and Chamberlain opposed him.

But the result of this action of the president's was more delay at Paris. The minor and neutral powers very rightly protested against being ignored in the formation of the league, and everything had to be halted until they could be heard from. Then the delegates to the congress laid the peace treaty on the shelf and set to work trying to transmogrify the Wilson-Smuts constitution into a form that would be acceptable to the Senate, or to enough senators to let its ratification squeeze through, and yet that would save the president's face and not, as he himself insisted, cause him to lose any tricks in the partisan political game which he was playing at Washington.

"No League, No Peace" Attitude of President Wilson.

So the work of peace-making drags, with the president himself applying the brakes with his sullen and strong insistence, "No League, No Peace."

France, glorious France, the savior of humanity, is suffering fiscal prostration and is restrained from the supreme work of restoration of her ravished provinces, because peace has not been made.

Great Britain is suffering an economic and industrial crisis of indescribable gravity, because peace has not yet been made.

Germany is suffering civil war and danger of general anarchy because peace has not yet been made; while Bolshevism has taken charge in Hungary and insolently challenges the Entente governments.

Even o ur own affairs are topsy-turvy and demoralized because peace has not yet been made. And clear as the writing on the wall, traced by a hand of flame, stands out the fact that peace has not yet been made because the president would not permit it to be made.

He stood in the way with something else which he insisted should be done first. The nations longed for peace, cried o ut for it; but he denied it to them. "No League, no Peace," he said. The pre-requisite of having peace was that they should denationalize themselves. Now it is at last intimated, presumably because the truth of American sentiment is beginning to get past the censorship and to be known in Europe, that he is willing to a ccept revision of the thing which he once declared to be insuspectible of improvement. But that is too late to avert the mischief which has aldeady been done through unreasonable and inexcusable delay; for which delay and for which mischief the president must be held accountable.

He kept us out of peace!

APPLICATION FOR PAROLE

Notice is hereby given that application will be made to the Board of Pardons of Alabama, for the pardon or parol of Alonzo Arledge, who was convicted at the Fall term 1916 of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, for the offense of an assault with intent to murder.

FIFTH SUNDAY AT MARBURY ON MARCH 29TH AND 30TH

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Unity Baptist Association met with the Baptist church at Marbury on March 29th and 30th. The meeting was organized by electing Mr. D. D. Head chairman and W. A. Goss Secretary.

The feature of the Saturday morning session was the introductory sermon by Rev. B. C. Hughes of Clanton, using Mark 2:1-4 as a text from which he preached a strong sermon.

Saturday afternoon, Womens Work and the B. Y. P. U. were discussed. Prof. H. C. McDonald of Clanton led the discussion on "Womens Work in the Kingdom." and W. A. Goss of Mountain Creek led that on "The Importance of B. Y. P. U. Work."

We were fortunate in having two state workers present in the person of Miss Clyde Metcolf, the State W.M.U. worker, and J. E. Lambdin, State B. Y. P. U. Secretary. Their address on their respective subjects were very much enjoyed.

At the evening session Rev. J. F. Gable of Clanton preached a strong sermon on "The Church of the Future."

Sunday morning, in connection with the regular Sunday School work, J.F. Gable spoke on "Evangelism in the Sunday School," making a special plea to the children. His address was very impressive and much enjoyed. This was followed at 11 o'clock by a strong missionary sermon by Dr. W. F. Yarbrough, Secretary of the State Baptist Executive Committee.

Sunday afternoon was given over to discussions on Church Finances, Chrustian Education and Sunday Schools. W. A. Goss and J. F. Gable spoke on "God's plan for Financing the Kingdom;" B. C. Hughes, W. F. Yarbrough and J. F. Gable on "The Needs for Christian Education;" and D. D. Head spoke on "The Place of the Sunday School in Church Work."

Sunday afternoon J. F. Gable preached a very interesting sermon using for his subject "The Baptist Scandal," which was most thoroughly baptistic from beginning to end.

One interesting feature just preceeding the sermon was the program of the local B.Y.P.U. on "The Life of Yates, the Missionary," which was a splendid program and rendered in good form.

The following pastors of the Association were in attendance: D.D. Head, J. F. Gable, W. A. Goss, J. D. Hughes, B. C. Hughes, E. A. Norris, J. L. Long, and quite a number of churches were represented.

This was the first Fifth Sunday meeting attempted in this Association in some years and was very successful from the standpoints of both interest and attendance. Another encouraging feature was the fact that every speaker on the program was present when their times came. Bro. Gable, Bro. Head and Bro. Hughes also gave some good talks on the subjects of the W.M.U. and B.Y.P.U. The program was strictly along denominational lines and it is believed that information was gathered and much good accomplished.

W. A. GOSS, Secy.

CHICAGO ELECTION PLEASES

Washington, April8.—Republican members of Congress now in the capitol are elated over the result of the mayorality election in Chicago last week in which William Hale Thompson was reelected for a second term by a majority of 17,500 votes.

It is conceded by the solons that this is not a big margin in a contest in which 700,000 votes were cast, but when it is considered that the country has just emerged from a war that Thompson refused an invitation to Marshal Joffre to visit his city when in this country and promised police protection t o a gathering of the peoples council for democracy and terms of peace, and that he made his appeal solely on the necessity of sustaining the national principles of the Republican party, including opposition to the covenant of the league of nations as now drawn, it is a greed by them that it is a triumph for their party and a striking defeat for President Wilson.

Another result, thought here to have special importance, is the small vote—about 50,000—given to John Fitzpatrick, candidate of the labor party, in spite of a union membership in the city of 240,000. This is taken to reveal the independence of the labor vote, whuch is expected to support a Republican protectionist candidate next year.

UNDERWOOD SEES DANGER OF GREAT WORLD CHAOS

Great Democratic Leader Says that Peace Delay Invites a General Ruin.

Birmingham, Ala., March 25.—Renewal of the war unless the peace treaty is signed soon was predicted to-day by Senator Underwood of Alabama in an address here. Mr. Underwood described Europe as a seething volcano which might break loose at any time.

"Every day we put off the signing of the treaty of peace," Senator Underwood said, "widens the chasm which the world may be unable to bridge successfully with the small scanting it has left o ver from the war. When we first signed the armistice the world was weary and the world was ready for us to dictate the terms of peace, but every hour's delay between the armistice and peace brings us further away from that psychological hour that struck on November 11.

"If this scantling which now bridges the ever growing chasm should break, it may mean a national debacle and financial disaster. But first let us have peace."

B. F. Higgins went to Birmingham last week.

A. C. Smith made a trip to Birmingham last Friday.

Osce McKee, who has been in Florida for the past several months is spending a few days with his mother here.

Miss Averitt, music teacher in the Clanton schools, attended the Grand Opera in Birmingham last week.

How is Your Complexion?

A woman should grow more beautiful as she grows older and she will with due regard to baths, diet and exercise, and by keeping her liver and bowels in good working order. If you are haggard and yellow, your eyes losing their lustre and whites becoming yellowish, your flesh flabby, it may be due to indigestion or to sluggish liver. Chamberlain's tablets correct these disorders.

DELAY IMPERILS ENTIRE PROGRAM OF WORLD PEACE

"League First" Insistence of Wilson Brings Up A Crisis

The Chicago Tribune under a copyright line, publishes a special cable from its Paris correspondent, Henry Wales, in which he says:

"The peace deliberations have reached an acute stage, precipitated through President Wilson's insistence on embodying the league of nations covenant in the peace treaty.

"Pessimists assert there is a strong chance of the negotiations among the allied associated powers being broken off and the various delegations returning home and making separate peace treaties.

"The delays which have resulted in letting nearly five months elapse since the armistice without any sign of peace and which it seems will further delay the signing of the treaty indefinitely, have strengthened the enemy's pasitions until today the Germans are arrogantly refusing to comply with the armistice demands.

Germans Showing Fangs.

"The Germans have ignored the order to cease hostilities on the Polish front and the German general commanding at Danzig has barred Gen. Haller's Polish divisions from passing through the port.

"The enemy is capitalizing the discord among the allies, which shows itself on every hand—Loyd George is receding from his original position indorsing the incorporation of the league covenant in the peace treaty and is now opposing it; Italy is threatening to withdraw from the conference and make a separate peace with Austria-Hungary, and an economic alliance with Germany; the French are holding out for a pooling of the war debts.

American Hopes Fail.

"The American commission's assurances, made when the president returned, that embodying the league covenant would not delay the drafting of the treaty undeniably seems to have proved a fallacy, and with new opposition springing up in various quarters it is positive that further delay is unavoidable, which the whole world cries for peace. "

Immediate Practical Problems Must Be Met and Solved by the Paris Conference.

The Paris correspondent of the New York Evening Sun, cabling his paper regarding the debacle in Hungary, says the general opinion among European statesmen, who are congregating in Paris is summarized as follows:

"The Peace Conference has wasted time and bungled enough. We are facing a crisis and unless the conference acts strongly and quickly the world will be facing chaos unmeasurable. It is a question now which shall rule—the world's democracies assembled in Paris or the world anarchy whose nest is at Moscow.

"Well informed French circles do not hesitate to say that from today the Peace Conference must forsake the idea that it can absolutely regulate the world's future.

"All western Europe is threatened with Bolshevism. The flood dam of the small buffer states, whereby it was hoped to isolate Russia, is broken in one place by the Hungarian outbreak and is threatened in another by the advance upon Odessa.

"Before such hard realities all rainbows melt. The present situation almost amounts to another war and it may become so momentarily. Poland must get the help of the Polish divisions now in France immediately. The allies must define the status of Germany and give Italy the long sought decision concerning the Adriatic. Above all they must decide upon a practical policy of dealing with Russia. The Prinkipo Island conference is now relegated to the limbo of discarded rainbows and the allies are facing the figure of the conquering Trotzky."

Upon the same day, the Philadelphia Public Ledger in a copyrighted article published the following from its Paris correspondent, Clinton W. Gilbert:

"As an example of the capacity of the League of Nations to prevent war the conference is not impressive. Every step it takes starts a new war or plants the seed of future war."

LIST OF QUALIFIED VOTERS PUBLISHED IN THIS ISSUE

Clanton, Ala., April 8, 1919.

I am having published in the Union-Banner this week a list of all the qualified voters of Chilton County. So many voters have moved and paid poll tax in other beats than where they registered, sometimes using their initials, sometimes their given names, and I am very anxious to as near as I can, get all on the list this year as next year there will be an election and all will want to vote.

Please look and see if you are on the list. If you want to be transferred to some other beat, write me, if you are not on the list and should be write or come to see me.

If you have paid a poll tax in some other county, you must get a certificate from the Probate Judge of that county and file with me, then I can put you on the list.

You must attend to this at once as I will publish the correct list after ten days.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

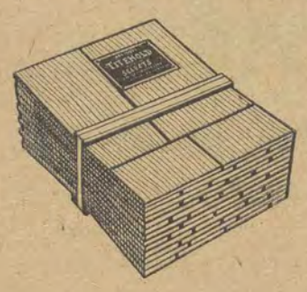
There was al all-day singing and dinner on the ground in Clanton last Sunday, nevertheless, our Sunday school held up to within a dozen or so of the past average, and a new class was installed. The congregation also was quite good, considering, both morning and evening.

The B. Y. P. U. is organizing for an all-summer campaign.

Don't forget the Reese Rowland Home Board evangelists, who will begin a meeting with us on the 25th of May.



Last Monday morning representative ministers of the Unity and Chilton County Associations met at the church and started a monthly Ministers and Deacons meeting. Rev. B. C. Hughes was elected chairman and some good meetings are in prospect.

Rev. F. W. C. Bice, chairman of the drive for the Howard College endowment, is getting his organization in shape in the county and hopes to "go over the top" for about $10,000.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will discuss "sharpening the ax" and at night, "What is sin?"

Miss Lake Jones went to Birmingham Tuesday.

Titehold Red Cedar Shingles

We are very much pleased with these Shingles, and the people who have bougdt them from us, and the carpenters who put them on the roof, all report most satisfactory results, in covering capacity, appearance, and in being easily applied. You should examine them before investing in any other kind of roofing.

Gentnlemen:

I have received your box of Laxcarin a few weeks ago, and while to tell you the truth I did not have much faith in it, as I have tried so many of these advertised medicines. I have followed your directions more carefully. How can I ever thank you for doing me so much good? Yes; I know how I will thank you. I am going to tell all your friends about your wonderful medicine. Because I want them to get just as good relief as I have received. God bless you for it. It is really a wonderful thing for constipation, and I have suffered so much that I really believed that the only relief I would get would be in the other world. Please send me immediately two dozen boxes, one doxen for me and one dozen for my brother immediately who is living in California. Rest assured sirs, I will do my part for the good you have done for me.

Please send the twenty-four boxes at once, as I am all out of the tablets.

Yours very truly,
A. VARAD,

Your health depends very much upon the ability of your system to get rid of the poisonous toxins which accumulate in the intestines in the stomach and in the liver and kidneys. With these poisons in your system you cannot possibly live. And while you can live with it in your system for a number of years, it is nothing else but a miserable wretched existence, full of worries, cares and troubles. If it is in your power to get relief, why don't you do it? Try Laxcarin, if you are suffering with indigestion, dizziness, sour stomach, sick headache, belching of gasses, hartburn, sleeplessness, constiuation yellowness of the skin or the white of the eyes, which are usually the signs of a bad working liver. Also if you have nodesire to eat and if you eat well and the meals stay in your stomach through over-acidity. Laxcarin will gently cleanse your stomach bowels, stimulate your liver and kidneys into action and thereby, not only cleanse your entire inside, but will gradually clean your blood as well. Six boxes usually is enough for a full treatment, costs but five dollars, or one box will be sent for a dollar post paid upon receipt of remittance by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. E 171, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Note—Laxcarin is not sold in drug stores, therefore, you will have to write to the Company direct to get it.

THE SINGING SUNDAY WAS A DECIDED SUCCESS

The singing at the county high school last Sunday was what one might call a most decided success from many ways.

About the biggest thing about it was the crowd of people in attendance, and the next biggest feature about it was the prominence of the figures that attracted the big crowd.

There were at least enough people here to fill the big school auditorium three times, and it looked as if every fellow who came must have brought his Ford along with him too. And we might add just here that "hot dogs" were in great demand on the streets about noon.

But those who came and were fortunate enough to get a piece of floor in the house big enough to stand on were fully satisfied with the deal and felt amply paid for their trouble. We have heard singers and heard of singers, all kinds of them time and again, but there has never before come anybody around here that can run the scale equal with that fellow Beazley. It is no wonder that the other singers are jealous of him. He has got them faded so far that they haven's got a look in around where he is. He is a wonder.

But Prof. Patton is right there with the goods, and there is not the least discount placed on his wonderful work and power in musical lines. Besides Prof. Patton and Prof. Beasley, the work of Mrs. Flowers as pianist added much to the success of the occasion. It is self-evident that she can touch the notes at a lively clip or else she could not keep up with Beazley in the lead.

Then too, there were numerous local leaders and teachers of music with out whom the affair would have been much marred. The big visiting singers did not do it all by any means. The class that supported them was made up of the best material our county affords and the music they rendered was splendid.

The secretary of the meeting furnishes us with the following as the program for the day:

Before noon—P. B. Shaw of Shelby sang 3 songs; Samuel W. Beasley sang 4 songs; and J. D. Patton rendered some selections. Prof. H. C. McDonald made an address which we know was splendid and well-received, although we did not have the pleasure of hearing it.

Afternoon—H. C. Collins of Coosa County directed 3 songs; J. D. Patton was given unlimited time and directed some half a dozen songs; Samuel W. Beazley again came before the house and held the audience spell bound for half an hour with several selections that were led by him in his most unique and highly attractive style; Mrs. Flowers rendered an instrumental selection while the hat was being passed around for collection, and many were so interested in hearing her play that they clear forgot to see the man as he came by with the hat.

The closing was done by a song from each Prof. Beazley and Prof. Patton, and benediction by N. J. Calloway. Judge R. L. Bradley made a speech to the audience just before the close, of which mention is made elsewhere.

Mrs. M. L. Flowers and Mrs. Carrie Shaw were pianists.

Joe Wells of Ensley was in Clanton Sunday.

Prof. H. C. Collins of Coosa County was in Clanton Sunday attending the singing at the high school.

Mr. P. B. Shaw of Shelby was here Sunday at the singing.

Uncle Jim Mims and family from Collins Chapel were in Clanton Sunday.

Mrs. Reynolds has spent several days recently at the hospital with her daughter.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Here is a Sample of How They Take the Bait.

We told our readers a few weeks ago how the committees and bureaus and administration agencies all in cahoots with the servile Democratic daily papers, had the League of Nations scheme greased and ready for the innocent and unsuspecting public to swallow it down with eyes closed. We knew that there were lots of poor "solid south" slaves who would apply a wet rag to their throats and take the dose. And we wish to point out to you just one or two instances of little fish who swallowed the thing, bait, hook, line, sinker, cork, pole and all. Here is Exhibit "A" from the Opp Messenger:

> Last week we were requested by a committee in Birmingham to wire a night letter stating our position in regard to President Wilson's proposal for a league of nations, and the attitude of the people of the county toward the proposal. Our reply was that we are standing squarely behind the president in the present crisis, and that the people of Covington County are doing the same. So far, we have heard but one man express himself as being opposed to the establishment of such a league, and upon questioning him we ascertained that he is not a subscriber to either of Covington County's three newspapers, and that he reads regularly a New York Republican sheet in preference to the daily papers of Alabama.—Opp Messenger.

So you see the Messenger is standing squarely behind the President, without asking one single question about the details of the League. The Messenger is doing what the "solid south" advocates generally do, that is, letting the big mucks do their thinking for them, and then they follow blindly in the path that is laid out for them. And the Messenger says the people of Covington County are with them too. Now, stop just for a moment and let us see how much thinking the common people have done on this question. How does the Messenger know what the people think? About the only sentiment they know on the proposition is what some few of their fellow political slaves have said without ever shaking up the seeds in their own gourd and trying to reason on the proposition at all.

And now for that fellow who does not read Covington County's newspapers, and chooses to read the New York Republican sheet rather than the Alabama dailies.

While the Messenger would indulge in bemeaning this man, we would not hesitate to acclaim him the most sensible citizen that the Messenger has run across in its great campaign to ascertain the sentiment of its people.

We do not blame him for not reading the Covington County papers. Those little Democratic hide-bound sheets have nothing worth reading for people who believe in free thinking and honest convictions. If people are to read them and accept without any other consideration the hand-me-down ideas of the administration bureaus and committees, what advantage does he get from reading them?

As for the New York Republican sheet and the Alabama dailies, that is another step to show the good sense of the man the Messenger is bemeaning. Just look at the political slavery of the people of the "solid south" and you can at once find the sad result of reading only such papers as the Democratic dailies in Alabama. These big dailies are tied hand and foot to two of the worst enemies a free people ever faced in the history of our country—the Democratic party and the Catholic Church.

Anyone who wouldn't rebel against having such papers do his thinking for him ought to go back to his mammy and let her fix him his "sugar tit" for him again. He is not strong enough mentally to venture outside the watchcare of his parents.

Shall our Public Schools be Used For Propaganda?

In the City of Washington, the capital of our country, there is a fight on to suspend from the school system a lady teacher who has been using her rostrum in the school room as a means through which to treat her pupils to radical political views. This brings up a very vital point in connection with the successful maintenance, operation and accomplishments of our public schools.

There is but one fact about the future of our public schools—if they are not to be completely wrecked and incapacitated, they must be made free from all political, economic and religious propaganda. And herein devolves upon the teacher a clear discriminatory knowledge of just how far to tread upon what might at the outset be perfectly legitimate field of thought, and gradually lead into dangerous ground upon which the minds of pupils should not be led to dwell.

The citizen who is required to pay taxes to support schools and then have some opinionated teacher thrust partisan arguments upon his children has a just cause for grievance. The big thing that has ruined Germany is the use of the public schools for instilling some sort of injurious propaganda into the children of the country. Let the propagandists go hire them a hall, start a newspaper or take to the proverbial soap box. We do not want them in our public schools to prostitute these institutions to their incendiary teachings and poison the minds of our young people with their unwarranted and dangerous ims. The spreading of propaganda of any sort through the medium of the public school is a fraud upon the public and cannot be tolrated without the most serious results.

There is a wide-spread, organized, powerful movement to prostitute the public schools of the country to economic, political and religious propaganda. It is reflected in text books, school papers, and in the partisan views handed out by many teachers. The Roman Catholics openly declare that if they can not destroy the public schools of our country they will control them by secretly placing teachers in the schools who are adherants of the Catholic faith. Their idea is to secure the teaching of Catholic propaganda to our rising generations to the exclusion of all other religious doctrines. They seek to deprive the children of the right to form their own ideas about the practice of religious devotions and the interpretation o f the scriptures as applied to the practice o f the same in their natural lives upon earth. This plan of the Catholics is many times well shrouded in screens of camouflage and deception so that their real purposes are hidden from view.

There has not been a history of the United States taught in the public schools of Alabama since the civil war that was a fair and square unbiased history of our great country. They all contain propaganda intended to poison the minds of the young in regard to the Civil War and Reconstruction, and maintain in their lives the perpetuation of those old prejudices between the parties of that period. The officials who select the text books have had their political prejudices handed down to them in a direct line from that dark period when envious propaganda well-nigh ruined the greatest country on earth. The men who write the histories of that period in like manner have had the same prejudices handed down to them. And their histories are the only ones which will be accepted by the prejudiced boards of officers who have the power of selecting the text books. Thus you see how the public schools are made the means of perpetuating the principles of party prejudice that existed in days before many of us were born.

The schools should not be used for Republican, Democratic, Socialist, Catholic, Methodist nor Baptist, or any other sort of propaganda. And we should demand of our teachers that they study their duty well and be able to steer clear of such mix-ups when they are directing the pure innocent minds of our children along the up hill road of learning and experience. The responsibility upon the teacher is a great one indeed, and how sorrowful it is when we see teachers who seem to have never realized what a serious thing is the destiny of even a single one of these little minds entrusted to his or her care.

The Bolshevist outbreak in Europe is the result of delay in making peace when peace was due and ready to have been made. The situation has developed into a race between peace and anarchy. And it looks now that anarchy is ahead in the race. The Paris Conference has been dominated by a policy which neglects essentials and reverses the logical order of procedure. The grim race has now extended to nearly five months and each day sees peace losing ground to its terrible contest ant, Bolshevism.

President Wilson cannot stamp out autocracy by practicing autocratic methods at Paris. He has taken unto himself the sole right to frame a peace league and sign the rights of his people away in the same without a particle of authorization from them. It is nothing more than a matter of course, so recognized by all fair minded men and satesmen, that the American people have a right to study and analyze the League proposal before anybody has the right to sign it for them. This, it seems, Mr. Wilson would deny them.

The necessity for peace in Europe to replace the ghastly mockery masquerading as peace under the existing armistice is everywhere apparent. There must be a treaty of peace at the earliest possible moment. Then there must be also, as soon as it can be established, a sound and enduring league of nations that will prevent the recurrence in future of the terrible hell thru which the world has just gone. It is, however, a sad mistake for the peace conference to delay peace now to settle the league problems. Every day delayed in attaining peace gives the anarchists that much more power.

The New York Times says the world cannot with safety put up with any further postponment of peace. Every bit of delay will give the enemies more power of resistance to make a refusal to sign the terms of the treaty.

FIFTH SUNDAY MEETING HELD AT SHILOH CHURCH 29 AND 30

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Chilton County Association was held at Shiloh March 29 and 30.

Devotional exercises were conducted by J. L. Deramus.

The meeting was organized, electing F. W. C. Bice Moderator and Sylvester Robinson, secretary. The first subject was taken up and ably discussed by W. P. Lowery and T. J. Deason. They expressed the idea that the object of these meetings was for the purpose of magnifying the kingdom work to a means of education.

1:20. Sermon by Dr. Smith, a very able sermon on Christian education.

The subjects of the afternoon were discussed by A. P. Oslin, J. L. Johnson, Dr. W. H. Smith and F.W.C. Bice.

The preachers present at the meeting were as follows:

J. L. Deramus, B. Dykes, E. B. Prickett, W. P. Lowery, Dr. W. H. Smith, S. M. Adams, W. S. Cox and I. Bice.

There were eight churches represented.

Sunday morning devotional exercises were conducted by B. Dykes. The subjects for the morning were discussed by S. M. Adams, T. L. Deason, Sylvester Rabinson and Prof. H. C. McDonald.

At 11:25, S. M. Adams preached from the subject, "The Great Teacher."

The next Fifth Sunday Meeting will be held at Pleasant Grove No. 2.

Sylvester Robinson.

MARTIN, McDONALD AND UPCHURCH BUY HARDWARE BUSINESS IN WETUMPKA

Elsewhere, in this paper we produce a clipping from the Wetumpka Herald relative to a deal by three of Clanton,s business men in that city, Messrs, J. D. Martin, H. C. McDonald, and E. E. Upchurch. These gentlemen have bought out the store and business of the Tullis-Gamble Hardware Company.

We are glad to learn of the commercial advancement of these good men of our town, but we are also mighty sorry that the deal will take away from our town two of our very best citizens, Mr. Martin and Prof. McDonald. Dr. Upchurch will not be actively engaged in the business at Wetumpka. He will remain in Clanton with his Drug busines.

Mr. Martin has been in Clanton for a number of years, engaged in the hardware business and has established a splendid record as a worthy citizen and an energetic business man; and we regret to see him leave here.

For the past four or five years, Prof. McDonald has been the principal of the Chilton County High School, and under his management that institution has prospered wonderfully. By the strengthening influence of Mr. McDonald, there have been planted in our young people, and older ones as well seeds of valuable ideals that will produce in future years much good to our county and town in the way og citizens of staunch character resulting from the precepts he has taught them. We could experience no keener loss than to have to giveu p this man, and we are frank to say that we will not soon find another who can fill his place in every respect.

The Union-Banner with hundreds of other friends of these men, wish them the highest success at Wetumpka, and we wish to commend the firm to the people of Wetumpka and Elmore County as one which has already proved itself worthy of a place in the highest esteem of their citizenship.

LAW REGARDING PENSIONS

All parties will have to come for their pension warrants in person or send someone from their beat, giving them the right to receipt for the Warrant.

I have been mailing out o few of the Warrants, when I knew the pensioners were still living, but the following letter explains itself and I cannot mail any more pensions.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Montgomery, Ala., April 4, 1919.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Probate Judge, Clanton, Ala. Dear Sir:

Your letter with reference to pensions requesting you to mail their warrants, has been received. In reply, I beg to advise that I see nothing in the law that gives you the authority to mail these pensions direct. However, you have the necessary blank form for receipt by a reliable person living in the precinct in which the pensioner draws, that could get the authority from the pensioner to receipt for pension, then give you a receipt for same.

Trusting that this is the information you desire, I am,

Yours very truly,
H. F. LEE, State Auditor.

SERIOUS LOSS WILL COME TO THE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

Although Prof. McDonald has made no definite public announcement, we learn from reliable sources that he will after this term, discontinue his services with the Chilton County High School and remove his family to Wetumpka to engage in hardware business. The loss of this man is going to be a most serious one for our splendid county institution, and we fear that it will be no easy matter to fill his place.

Under his leadership our county high school has taken a front seat among the educational institutions of the state, and we cannot afford to see its usefulness minimized. It means too much to the rising generations of our boys and girls.

MARRIAGE OF HOKE S. PIPES TO MISS FRALIN OF VIRGINIA

The 15th of last month Mr. Hoke S. Pipes of Clanton and Miss Margaret Buford Fralin of Glade Hill, Va., were married at Lynchburg, Va., the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Chas. P. Scott of the First Baptist Church of that City.

The bride was before the marriage a student in training as a nurse in the University of Virginia Hospital. Mr. Pipes was a student at the University of Virginia.

It was in that way that the young couple made an acquaintance which consumated in the romance of their marriage.

The groom has already returned to Clanton and is making active preparations to engage in business here. His bride will come here next week and they will make this city their future home.

J. W. Gore of Route 8 was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

Mr. Joe Poole has returned home from the army. He has been in the service for nearly two years, most of which time he was stationed at Norfolk, Va., although he spent some time in Texas and some in Georgia. He has been visiting with his relatives here since returning from the army, but left Tuesday for Birmingham, where he will go to work.

It has about been concluded to build the new Baptist church in Clanton on the same location as the old one. Plans are under way now to begin work on the new structure right soon.

Shoulders All Baking Cares

When CALUMET comes in, all baking troubles take quick leave. You go right ahead and mix up baking materials, for biscuits—cakes—anything without fear of uncertainty. Calumet makes you forget failure.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

is the most popular because it does give most perfect results. It has the biggest demand because it is the most dependable. The fact that it is the biggest seller proves that it is the best. A trial will convince you that there is "none" just as good." Buy a can—if you are not satisfied take it back and get your money back.

Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authorities.

You save when you buy it.
You save when you use it.

Dr. Gragg went to Birmingham last Saturday.

SIE FOSHEE BRINGS HOME A THRILLING WAR RECORD

Chilton County Boy in Rainbow Division, Went through all the Big Fights without a Wound.

When Sie Foshee, on his way home last week presented his discharge to the ticket window of the L. & N. passenger station in Birmingham to secure transportation on the last lap of his journey from the battle field in France to his home in Clanton, the ticket clerk noticed the record of his service written on the discharge and of course was interested by such a wonderful little piece of history of the great conflict.

"Let me take your discharge up stairs and show it to the boss. I know he would be glad to see you and know of your splendid record over there," said the clerk.

"All right," said Sie, "I would trust you with a million dollars of my money (if I had that much) just as quick as I would with that piece of paper. But you may show it to the boss if you like."

Sie shows you his discharge and his record written thereon and he feels proud of it—he has a right to be proud of it too. That piece of paper represents a chain of events covering a period of eighteen months of his life which no one can ever know save those of our boys who went through the ordeal as Sie did.

Sie enlisted in the old Fourth Alabama, and was a member of that outfit when it was made the 167 Infantry of the Rainbow Division. He landed in France on Nov. 6, 1917 and was in active service till March 1, 1919, on which date he sailed for home, excepting a few weeks in the hospital just prior to sailing. He was discharged at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., on April 4th and returned home.

During his service in France Sie took part in all the big battles, among them the following: Lorraine Front, Luneville Sector, Ancevillier, Bacaract Sector, Backville, Battle of Challons, the American Offensive north of Chateau Thierry, Reduction of St. Mahiel Salient, and the Battle of the Meuse and the Argonne Forest.

He went through all these hot engagements and never received a single wound. He was a truck-driver in the ammunition supply train.

Sie is the son of Mr. Joe Foshee of Clanton.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Ford Cars have become such a world utility that it would almost seem as if every family ought to have its Ford Car. Runabout, Touring Car, Coupe, Sedan, (the latter two have enclosed bodies), and the Truck Chasis, have really become a part and parcel of human life. You want one because its service will be profitable for you. We solicit your order at once because while production is limited, it will be, first come, first supplied.

L. J. Duncan Motor Co.
Clanton, Ala.

Money or Your Life

It is bad enough to be held up and robbed of your money and your watch. But to allow waste matter to be "held up" in your intestines may be far more serious. You can get more money; you can buy another watch. You may never be able to get your health back. Constipation is the "hold-up" man of the human system. The food waste it holds up in your lower intestines decays and generates poisons. A poisoned system is the result.

Over ninety per-cent of humanillness has its origin in the intestinal canal. Nature normally tries to get rid of this poisonous waste. But when she can't do the work single-handed, you must help her in her own way. The Laxcarin treatment is nature's way.

The oils, castor oils, mineral water habits are not nature's way. They play constipation's game — forging and upsetting the system.

Laxcarin acts easily, harmlessly, naturally makes you "regular as a clock-work.

WARNING! Laxcarin is sold only by the distributors and it may not be purchased in drug stores. Do not allow the druggists to persuade you into buying some cheap and perhaps harmful substitute. Write us direct. We will gladly mail you as much Laxcarin as you wish by return mail. You may suffer from substitutes.

It is the best to order enough for a full treatment if it is a case of long standing or if it is to be used as a family laxative. Six boxes only cost five dollars, but they are worth to the sufferer a million times as much. One dollar will bring you one box. Send money order or registered mail letter in plain letters. Address the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. E171, Pittsburgh, Pa.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
April 9, 1919. Judge of Probate.

PEOPLE SHOULD LEARN THE VALUE OF LAND ABSTRACTS

Property owners should begin to think about how necessary it is to have an abstract of title to their lands. A vast number of people have never stopped to think how necessary an abstract is. The day has come when you cannot sell your lands or make transactions involving your real estate without producing a chain of title which sets up your claim valid and bona fide to that land.

Many persons have gone along careless for years and finally come to find out that their titles to lands were worthless. The only way to know your property thoroughly is to have it abstracted. The cost is nominal compared with the value.

There are two abstract companies in Clanton, one operated by Circuit Clerk, M. D. Foshee and another operated by Attorney F. B. Collier. Either of them are reliable and it would pay you to have them prepare an abstract of your lands so you will know just what you have got.

Mr. Omar Reynolds, law student at the University of Alabama, is at home for a few days.

CLANTON MEN BUY OUT HARDWARE COMPANY

(From Wetumpka Herald.)

A business deal of importance to our town was consummated last week when the Tullis-Gamble Hardware Company sold their large hardware business here to Mr. J. D. Martin, Prof. H. C. McDonald, and Dr. E. E. Upchurch of Clanton. The name of the firm will be announced later and the business will be conducted in the same building, which was also purchased by the company.

The new owners of this popular hardware store are gentlemen of the highest integrity and sound financial judgment and the business will continue under a policy of progressiveness and the best possible service.

Mr. Martin needs no introduction to Wetumpka and Elmore County people—he was reared in our county near Central and was in business in Wetumpka for some years with the Gamble Hardware Co., afterward the Tullis-Gamble Hardware Co. He has many friends here, both in business and social circles, who welcome him back among us. Prof. McDonald is at this time President of the Chilton County High School, but at the close of this session he will remove with his family to Wetumpka and will be actively engaged in the business. Dr. Upchurch is proprietor of the Upchurch Drug Co., of Clanton, one of the prettiest and most up-to-date drug stores in the State, and he will not be actively engaged in the hardware store here.

The store is closed this week for the purpose of taking inventory, but the firm hopes to be ready for business next week and will send a message to the public in the next issue of the Herald.

CORINTH NEWS

Dear Editor:—Please allow me a space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

The farmers are very busy planting their crops.

Misses Irene and Vena Jones visited Mrs. Bulah Pierce last Fourth Sunday.

Mr. Sid Gibson visited our Sunday school last Fourth Sunday and gave us a good talk on Sunday School work, which we glad to hear. We were very pleased to have him visit our school.

Our public school is closed now, and we are sure sorry of it. Miss Amye Hand, our teacher, has gone home. We sure were sorry to see her leave.

The all-day singing was sure fine. Everybody enjoyed it.

Ophelia Jones.

County Commissioner T. J. Dorminey of Union Grove was in Clanton bright and early Monday morning ready to tackle the work that was before the commissioners.

NITRATE OF SODA

I HAVE SECURED SHIPMENT OF ONE CAR OF NITRATE OF SODA, AND YOUR ORDER WILL BE APPRECIATED.

THIS IS RESALE MATERIAL AND I SUGGEST THAT YOU SUPPLY YOUR WANTS NOW AND PREPARE YOUR CROP ACCORDING TO THE AMOUNT WHICH YOU CAN GET.

J. R. MULLINS.

JUDGE BRADLEY AT SINGING HERE ON LAST SUNDAY

People who were at the big singing last Sunday afternoon had the rare privilege of seeing a distinguished man, Judge R. L. Bradley of Lamar County, and at present our state treasurer. Judge Bradley made a very interesting short talk to the crowded house. The Judge besides having a long and honorable record as an official in his home county, is well known over the state as a worker among the Odd Fellows. And not the least of his interests and activities is that pertaining to music. He has been president of the Lamar County Singing Convention for 42 years. He is an old friend of Prof. Patton, and it was for the pleasure of meeting this old friend of his that he came up from Montgomery to Clanton on Sunday.

FORD CAR FOR SALE—I have a good two-passenger Ford for sale, with extra weather top. Have no use for it and will sell cheap for cash or on time. I am going to sell it right away. L. H. REYNOLDS.

Friends of Mrs. Bridges, daughter of Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds, will be glad to learn that she is favorably recovering after a serious surgical operation at a Birmingham infirmary.

T. J. Headley of Randolph was in Clanton Sunday taking in the singing at the high school.

J. C. Calloway of Verbena was in Clanton Sunday.

Prof. R. A. Smith of Wylam was in Clanton Saturday and Sunday. He attended the singing Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Witey Bean of Verbena were in Clanton Sunday.

W. J. Billingsley of Thorsby took in the singing in Clanton Sunday.

Z. J. Jones, a good friend of the Union-Banner, from West Chilton was in town on Monday, and brought us a couple of new subscriptions. Mr. Jones is what we call a friend indeed.

SPECIAL SESSION OF THE CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION

A special session of the Chilton County Singing Convention will be held at Shiloh church, South Calera, on the Third Sunday in this month, April 20. All members and others interested in sacred song are cordially invited to attend. Carols of Praise No. 2 and Crowns of Love will be the books used.

J. M. DYE, Pres.,
J. M. Smith, Secy.

MR. SID GIBSON TO ENTERTAIN WITH AN INVITATION DANCE

Quite a number of the younger set are planning a great time at the dance to be given by Sid Gibson at Verbena Friday night. Vito's orchestra of Montgomery will furnish the music for the occasion. This is the first invitation dance to be given since the country entered the war.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

We are back in school after a few days vacation. We are also studying hard for our monthly test which is to come the last of this week.

The play given here by Mr. Johnson was a very good success. We are hoping to have a play to be given by the Senior Class before long.

After seeing the crowd at the singing here Sunday, I was left wondering what was the reason why we could not have a good crowd at church once in a while.

We are glad to see Margie Murphy back in school after a few days illness.

We regret to lose one of our classmates, Chester Mims. We understand that he has quit us.

School will soon be out. I gues you know that, but thought I woul remind you of it. We hope to se as many if not more students enroll ed here next year.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS CHANGED HIS TUNE

.. Washington, April 1.—The Republican Publicity Association, today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

Senator Chamberlain's denunciation of the army courtmartial system is amazing in view of his own proposal less than a year ago to make the whole civilian population of the United States subject to trial by army court-martial, with the death penalty as a possible consequence of conviction. In his caustic letter to Secretary of War Baker, Senator Chamberlain said:

"The existing system does injustice—gross, terrible, spirit-crushing injustice. Evidence of it is on every hand. The records of the Judge Advocate General's department reek with it."

And yet it was only last April—several months after Chamberlain had publicly repeatedly denounced the war department as having utterly broken down—that he introduced Senate Bill 4364, to subject civilians to court-martial. That bill provided that any person, whether citizen or subject of the enemy country or otherwise, who shall attempt to endanger or interfere with, the good discipline, order, movements, health, safety, or successful operations of the land or naval forces of the United States, by causing or attempting to cause insubordination, by transmitting written or printed matter supporting or favoring the cause of the enemy, or opposing the cause of the United States, or containing false reports intended to interfere with the successful operation of such land or sea forces, or by violating the esponiage act, or injuring war material, etc., shall bedeemed to be a spy and be subject to trial by a general court-martial or by a military commission of the army, or by a court-martial of the navy, and on conviction thereof shall suffer death or such other punishment as said court-martial, etc., shall direct.

After there had come from the entire country a protest against this attempt to subject one hundred million American civilians to a trial by army court-martial instead of by civil jury, Senator Chamberlain said on the floor of the Senate April 23, 1918: "I will say frankly that notwithstanding the opposition of the chief executive, if I thought that this bill could go through by a substantial majority and could be carried over a veto, I would not hesitate to press it because I realy feel that it is absolutely necessary."

It was a Republican Senator, Brandegee of Connecticut, who voiced the views of the American people. Speaking in denunciation of this measure which "purposes to transfer the trial of one hundred million American citizens from the civil courts to the drumhead court-martial", he said:

"I certainly should oppose it to the death. I would die in my tracks; I would resign from the Senate or be defeated on the issue, before I would vote to subject the civilian population of America to the yoks of the army for speaking disrespectfully of the administration or committing one of the hienious offenses that we have defined in the Espionage Bill,' etc.

SINGING AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Quality Canned Goods

We protect our customers by handling only such brands of canned goods whose makers have high reputations to uphold.

There are numerous poorer grades marketed which we have carefully avoided in selecting for our trade, though we might profit more by stocking them.

The prices of these better grades are low enough to suit all.

STATEMENT OF THE UNION-BANNER, REQUIRED BY LAW

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, Etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912, of

THE UNION - BANNER,

Published Weekly at Clanton, Ala., For April 1st, 1919.

The State of Alabama]
Chilton County.]

Before me, a Clerk of the Circuit Court, in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared W. M. Wyatt, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor of The Union-Banner, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in Section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor and business managers, are: Publishers, W. M. Wyatt and T. E. Wyatt; Editor, W. M. Wyatt; Business Manager, T. E. Wyatt.

2. That the owners are: W. M. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.; T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or securities are: Merganthaler Linotype Co., New York, N.Y.; Peoples Savings Bank, Clanton, Ala.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

W. M. WYATT, Editor.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 31st day of March, 1919.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

The great benefit derived from the use of Chambarlain's Cough Remedy his been gratefully acknowledged by many. Mrs. Benjamin F. Blakeney, Decatur, Ills. writes, "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is by far the best medicine for colds and coughs we have ever used in our family. I gave it to my children when small for croup and have taken it myself."

NON-RESIDENTS NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Probat Court.
Present, the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate.

This day come Mahalie Lane and filed in this court her petition together with a paper purporting to be the Last Will and Testament of Nick Lane, deceased, late of said County, for probate; and it appearing from said petition that the following named persons, legatees named in said Will, are non-resident, to-wit: Nick Goolsby.

It is ordered by the Court, that the 25th day of April, 1919, be set apart for the hearing of said petition, and that notice thereof be given for three successive weeks in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in said county, notifying Nick Goolsby and all other persons to be and appear before me on that day and contest said application, if they think proper.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

GRADY REYNOLDS,
Attorney for Petitioner. 4-3-3t

How Diphtheria is Contracted.

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering germ of diphtheria. If your child has a cold when diphtheria is prevalent you should take him out of school and keep him off the street until fully recovered, as there is a hundred times more danger of his taking diphtheria when he has a cold. When Chambarlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted.

NON-RESIDENT NOTICE

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Circuit Court in Equity.
C. A. Foshee et als., Complainants;
S. M. Russ et als, Respondents.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of W. M. Adams, that the defendants, S. M. Russ, G. E. Russ, Ollie Russ, and Maud Russ are non-residents, and that the place of residence and post office address of G. E. Russ and Maud Russ is Woodville in the State of Florida, and that the place of residence of said S. M. Russ and Ollie Russ is unknown to affiant, and, further, that in the belief of said affiant, the defendants are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring the said S. M. Russ, G. E. Russ, Ollie Russ and Maud Russ to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 19th day of April, 1919, or, in thirty days thereafter a decree pro confesso may be taken against them.

Done in office in Clanton, Alabama this 19th day of March, 1919.

H. M. Simpson, Register.

Keep Well

Do not allow the poisons of undigested food to accumulate in your bowels, where they are absorbed into your system. Indigestion, constipation, headache, bad blood, and numerous other troubles are bound to follow. Keep your system clean, as thousands of others do, by taking an occasional dose of the old, reliable, vegetable, family liver medicine.

REPUBLICANS URGED TO SUPPORT 'V' LOAN

Appeal Made by National Chairman, Will H. Hays.

Washington, D. C., April 15.—Chm. Will H. Hays, of the Republican National Committee, today issued a call to all Republicans urging their united and effective support of the Victory Loan. While the call is publicly issued to all Republicans, it was also sent directly and personally to all Republican national committeemen, to state chairmen, all state organization workers, all county chairmen and all precinct committeemen and to all Republican newspapers, asking them to suspend all political activities until the success of the loan had been assured.

The text of the appeal reads:

To the Republicans of the Nation:

Again the call for the charge has sounded.

This is not for the fighting men at the fighting front. For them the war is over. Their part is accomplished to their own everlasting honor and the glory of the nation, and no additional burden should be theirs.

But to the rest the real test has come.

To those whose privilege it has been to form the second line, and to whose credit it is recorded that they, too, attained every objective; to those from every class, creed and political faith, who acted in that unselfish cooperation which brought to the fighting men the support that made so much for the complete vindication of our institutions; to the men and women of America, who do not fail, has this call come.

Let us show to these fighting men who have returned how commands have been obeyed here. Let us send to the fighting men still abroad the message of no weakness. Let us show to the world that our patriotism is not that born only of extremeties and stirred only by martial music, but the devotion which meets a duty in the firm determination of consecrated service, and performs it. And let us demonstrate to ourselves that we are worthy of the name Americans and the privileges of our citizenship.

Our first duty as Republicans today is that duty which we have never failed and never will fail to anticipate and discharge—our duty as Americans. Just as during the recent war we determined our every act by how we could do most for effective action, so now we will measure our every step by how we can contribute most to the nation's welfare.

To that end we will abandon all other activities to aid in the Victory Loan until its success has been accomplished.

For this purpose let the Republican press and every member of the Republican organization enlist in the drive. The national, state, county, city and precinct organization of loyal working Republicans will enroll to a man in this service.

This is the nation's next duty. It is our privilege to exhaust the possibilities in our same splendid support, with the knowledge that those who may oppose us in political strife are joining fully with us in this effort.

WILL H. HAYS,
Chm. Rep. Natl. Comm.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
By Fonza Cunningham

We had our test last week and have just now learned that somebody has got to go to work. Among them is the editor of the "News."

Miss Sewell has started her gardening class. You ought to see us kids work. I think I will make some gardener if I keep on like I have started.

We miss the beaming countenance of Chester Mims very much. He has deserted us and we sure hate it.

You might send that remedy for spring fever now. I think spring has come to stay.

School is one week nearer out and just think how some of the kids will have to work.

We are going to have some good plays for commencement. I think our baseball has about gone to the bad. The boys have about lost their interest in the game.

Miss Mary Mullins has returned after a pleasant visit to her sister, at Talladega.

WILSON SEEKING TO BARTER THE U. S. A.

Western World is His to Manipulate Peace Conference.

Washington, April 15—The Republican publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Johathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

What is it that gives Mr. Wilson the power that the press tells us he wields over the peace conference? It is not the personal appeal of Wilson himself. There are scores of other individuals throughout the world, some of them in Paris now, who, were they given the opportunity, could clothe in language as beautiful as that of Wilson glittering prospects for the future of mankind that he holds out as the natural result of the adoption of his league of nations.

Mr. Wilson's importance in the minds of the other negotiations at the peace table arises from the fact that he is the president of the United States, and the chief representative of the great republic across the seas. To their imagination he represents in his own person the might of the great nation of the West. That feeling is seemingly cultivated by Mr. Wilson himself. An evidence of that deduction is found in his cablegram to the House Naval Committee to authorize a huge naval program, patently for the sole purpose of demonstrating to his colleagues around the green table that he has individual power to make and break navies, to raise and demobilize armies, and to use the immense resources of this country according to his individual caprice. In short he has conducted a cunning campaign to impress upon the delegates of England, France, Italy and Japan that America, with her boundless wealth, is his, to all intents and purposes, to barter as he sees fit.

Neither Mr, Wilson nor the astounding economic policies that he has advocated during his regime in the White House have contributed a penny to toward that wealth; in fact he and his administration have placed a mortgage upon the country, entirely independent of the expenses necessary to the conduct of the war, that it will take years to liquidate. The wealth and position of the United States have been created and won through a period of 150 years by the ceaseless endeavor of her citizens, working under a constitution with its representative form of government that has proved itself to be the best ever devised for any peoples. With their industries protected from foreign invasion, with a labor standard the highest in the world, and with initiative and energy second to none, the American people, free from entangling foreign alliances, have achieved the commanding position they now hold. America is the key to the whole Western Hemisphere. Not only that but Europe recognizes that unless it has the co-operation of America no so-called league of nations can be made effective.

The more than 300 billions of national wealth, the untold natural resources of the country yet to be developed, and the strategic position the United States holds not only in the West but in the world, Mr. Wilson has taken to Paris with him as his stock in trade. He has not hesitated to offer such parts of it as he chose to further the interests of his constitution of a league of nations, inspected by him and pronounced perfect. The Monroe Doctrine that has given us the commanding position on this hemisphere he has not hesitated to throw into the trade, followed by control over our foreign commerce, by the surrender of our right to raise and support armies and navies, to secure our shores from the invasion of undesirable immigrants, and to declare war when we feel the grievance sufficient. All of these and more have gone into the pot and offered to Europe as the price for the league of nations, already condemned by the thinkers of this country as unworthy of our approval. Let the people ponder on such a trade, and see if it conforms to the Yankee standard of bargaining.

MT. NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo Singing Society held its regular meeting at Mt. Nebo Church last Sunday with an extra large class and quite a number of visitors, all of whom we were proud indeed to see.

The singing was opened in regular order with song and prayer by the chairman. We had a nice male quartett rendered by Messrs Calvin Parrish, F. I. Popwell, Sam Culp and Fred Cobern; also a female quartet by Mesdames Zellie Scott, Arrie Ramsey, Birdie Cox and Ollie Williams, and Mae Williams, Annie Culp, Maggie Traywick and Bell Popwell. The directors for the afternoon were Messrs F. I. Popwell, Calvin Parrish, Sam Culp, Blanco Durbin, Jim Dunlap and S. A. Henley.

The singing was closed with song and prayer by the chairman.

The society will meet again next Fourth Sunday, April 13, at 3:30, p.m., standard time. We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

THE "SHO NUFF" CONCERT HELD AT FAIRVIEW SCHOOL

For several weeks the people of Chilton County have been awaiting the time for the concert at Fairview Schoolhouse, and it was realy and truly "pulled off' last Saturday night.

A most interesting program was played and the crowded audience continuously gave proof of their absorbing entertainment.

The program consisted of comical stunts by the boys and girls, such as negro dialogues, declamations, quartet singing and the like.

Mr. E. C. Popwell, the principal of the Fairview School, should be proud of his success in his worthy undertaking; and it is evident that the preparations for the splendidly arranged program cost him, as well as his students, lots of time and patience.

The entertainment was a great success and quite a nice sum was raised for the improvement of the school.

NEWS FROM JEMISON

A crowd of young folks went flower hunting Sunday afternoon. Those who went were Misses Mirie Kilpatrick, Jewel Lowery, Sybil Ray, Bertha Crowson, Elsie Kilpatrick and Iowa Crowson; Messrs Lem Sims, Rufus Childress, Dock Sims, J. D. Martin, Ellis Crowson and Bernice Lowery.

Mr. Ernest Abbott and his new bride were out riding Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Crowson were visitors in Calera Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. E. W. Butches visited his wife and children Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Lee Crowson attended the singing at Clanton Sunday evening.

"When I am Gone to War"
(By W.A. Crowson.)

My mind is clean, my heart is pure;
My soul is white as snow;
My name as Andrew will endure
For all the world to know.

To me all men are brothers dear,
My nature knows no guile;
My heart aches for another tear
And laughs when others smile.

If on the bloody battle field
I give my life for right,
Then will you blazen on my shield
"He was your gentlest knight."

But if a nation's prayer avails
I will return some day
To lead the way thru sunshine trail
Back to the land of play.

HAYS RESTORING PARTY HARMONY AT WASHINGTON

Chairman's Handling of Present Situation Tactful—Talking Solidariay, Not Candidates.

Washington, April 14,—Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has come, has seen, and has gone away with the impression that the Republicans in the House are going to compose their differences and give the country an example of constructive legislation in the next session which will make the party "go over the top" in 1920 as it did in 1918.

Mr. Hays found a ticklish situation and handled himself, as usual, tactfully, lest the older heads in the party get the idea he was unduly meddling. Denials have been made that Mr. Hays sought to have the steering committee enlarged, but that's what is going to happen eventually, and on that steering committee will be representatives of labor and of the farming interests, as well as other elements from which the Republican party hopes to derive its strength in 1920.

Unquestionably Mr. Hays wants a liberalization of the House steering committee. These men are going to control the fortunes of the party in the next congress, and the Republican National Chairman has a very vital interest in whether the men who are selected have the capacity and the vision to deal with changing America.

Party solidarity is what Mr. Hays is trying suavaly and quietly to bring about and there is much significance in his trip to Washington, for with a special session beginning toward the end of May or thereabouts, there is little time for the Republicans to get together and agree upon programmes of legislation. In the meantime, Mr. Hayshimself is losing no time in making a systematic study through a body of experts of the various questions which the Republicans will endeavor to solve in the next congress, for every practical politician knows that the country in 1920 will judge the Republican party not by what it did in the days of Cannon or Aldrich but what it did in the two trying years of reconstruction which are ahead.

As for the League of Nations as an issue, Republicans are not disturbed. Mr. Taft's warm espousal of the League and the stand taken by men like Wickersham and Root will, they contend, prevent the Democrats from making it a party issue. Much satisfaction is derived especially from the letter sent by Elihu Root. Press dispatches from Paris saying the Root amendments are meeting with favor there will tend to strengthen the impression that the Republicans have, in a measure, assisted in making the League of Nations a vital international body. As for the signers of the "round robin," ratification of the treaty itself will be the answer to that, and no Republican of prominence is today predicting the failure of the Senate to ratify the compact that may be evenually presented to the upper house. This is largely due to the cables from abroad saying that the covenant is being rewritten to meet Republican objection.

Mr. Hays reveals on the whole, therefore, an optimism about the outlook of the Republican party. His talks with the various leaders there have been earnest and persuasive. His plans of campaign organization are meeting with favor. His hand is on the political pulse of the country constantly, and if the Republican leaders in Congress are indifferent to his observations of public sentiment and the trend of thought of the nation as it is brought to him thru thousands of political eyes and ears in various parts of the country, then they will court defeat.

The Republican National chairman doesn't talk candidates. He talks party solidarity. Unless the Republican party is a unit it will not be able to put through a constructive programme in the next two years because time will be lost in bickerings and squabbles. Unless there is harmony the Democratic party, which is united, will take advantage of the dissensions and divisions. As a party of opposition, the Republicans are inclined to be pleased with themselves. They claim to have been the real war party during the war, notwithstanding that the Democratic party controlled the Government. They insist that by persistently shouting about more vigorous prosecution of the war and enlargement of the army they blazed the way to victory and set the pace for the dominant party.

Now, as the peace treaty is being wrought, the suggestions of Mr. Knox and Mr. Root for compulsory arbitration and a preservation of het monroe Dictrine as looked upon as strategically sound moves to which the Republican party may hope to point with pride when the not far distant days of pointing with pride come to pass.

WHAT A DEMOCRAT THINKS OF WILSON

A Statement by Henry Watterson, Veteran Democrat.

I think events, helped along by the president himself, will verify my forecast that he is not merely a candidate for a third term in the White House, but that for a nomination of such he holds all the winning cards in his hands.

The Democratic party, so called, he long ago abolished, having previously much debauched it. Nothing of it survives except the tattered label, and he holds that betwixt his thumb and forefingers. I am inclined to believe, however, that he has eliminated the United States from his immediate activities as an established conquest and is now giving his mighty thought to the sublimation of the world.

A virtuous, right-minded man thus situate would emulate the humility of Washington and the humility of Lincoln. Mr. Wilson sees nothing but himself and his personal exaltation; lives for nothing except his own advantage; seeks nothing save power and authority, the concrete things of rulership represented by the regal splendors and feudal glories, which, tho somewhat frazzled and faded, still go on about him.

As a consequence of his maladroit tinkering Europe will find itself the middle of the coming summer in flames. Then we shall have him home again urging intervention. It has been his mission in life to make trouble wherever he appeared.

When the great Jehovah interjected such a sinister spirit into our affairs, it must have been to punish us for our manifold delinquencies as a nation and a people.

We should steer clear of European complications. Never has there been a time when the admonition of Washington, Jefferson and Monroe carried greater weight. Mr. Wilson's mediocre mind and colossal vanity have already carried him far to sea. It is ours to look to it that he does not carry the country to the shipwreck of its institutions. — Philadelphia North American.

The Matter of Employment for Returned American Fighting Men.

Back in the days when our American boys were knocking the "germ" out of Germany, when they were staining the hills and valleys of France with their blood to "make the world safe for democracy" and a fit place for decent people to live in, it was a matter of great elation to think of the days when the boys would turn their faces homeward to greet their loved ones again. It was openly asserted that when they did return they would get just anything they wanted. They would not have to seek a job; on the other hand, jobs would be verily thrust upon them.

Those ideas were rightly conceived, but we fear that in many instances they are falling short of expectations. The employing men of this country supported the boys at the front all right. They bought bonds and otherwise contributed toward backing the war. But now that it is all over some of them will want to manage their business affairs so as to make back the money invested in war activities. And it is a sad fact that many of them will indulge in a speculation upon the labor of our returned fighters in order to make their money. They will try to hire the soldier at a wage that will allow them a large margin between the cost of producing their manufactured articles and the price they get for them, thus making their profits large, and enriching their own treasury at the expense of the boy who helped make the world a safe place for such men as his stern employer to live in.

The Mississippi State Council of Defense has taken up the matter of securing employment for returned soldiers; and we have come into posession of an interesting letter addressed to the Council, by Mr. J. R. Webster, of Pearson, Miss. It relates to the matter of employment for these returned soldiers, and says in part as follows:

> Juse here, let me call your attention to the facts that have recently been developed by government investigation—that eight hours is a reasonable, humane and sufficient period of time for a day's work, and that 72 cents per hour is the least compensation upon which to maintain a decent standard of living. Assuming, then, that you are working in harmony with and along the lines laid down by our Government, may I conclude that it will be your earnest endeavor to obtain for these soldiers and workers these conditions?
>
> But what will you Gentlemen of the Council do in the matter of finding jobs for the gentlemen aforesaid? You will have to look to some employer to find jobs for these men, and then you will face a very astute, cold, bargain-hunting crowd, with all the patriotism and war features left out of any deliberations they have a mind to enter into you.
>
> Already these men have prophesied that labor would be cheaper after the war because there would be so many out of employment. They will have no hesitancy in putting Chinaman, Mexican, Portorican and dago against one another or the whole heterogenous mass against our American soldier boy in their mad scramble to get cheaper labor. So much for the typical American employer's patriotism.

These cold, bargain-hunting employers were patriotic all right. Yes sir, they helped back the boys in whipping the Kaiser. And now what is the reason they will not back them in in winning for their own selves a place in the world, and a little meat and bread for the wife, child, mother or aged father who gave their all in the great and most terrible crisis?

Here is a test of patriotism as burning as that which brought forth the millions of the money that went into Liberty Bonds to put an end to Kaiserism.

When You Catch the Catholics At Their Meanness.

Since the people of this country are beginning to get aroused to the perils that hang over their heads in the form of Roman Catholic domination of the affairs of our church and state, it is frequently the case that these usurpers of our freedom and liberties are tangled up in the web of their own mischieviousness. Protestants are so close in behind the old tiger in some places that it is getting mighty hot for him.

But the slick old scoundrel has got a score of ways to get out of the net. He has got so many poor innocent slaves everywhere who are always ready to rise up and declare that whatever is said against the Catholics is a lie, etc., etc. And it is always the same old canned dope that the ignorant Catholic adherents are made to believe in and worship, by the shrewd fellows who occupy the lordships of the Roman heirarchy.

Notice too that when you get the Catholics in a close place they do not lose any time looking for an honorable way out. They had as soon employ a means of lying and deception to get out of the hole as to base their arguments on the truth. They will not tell the truth when lies serve their purposes better. It is to carry the argument in their favor that they work for; and they use whatever means will serve them best even if it is a direct perversion and prostitution of the truth.

The Catholics have been caught bragging about what a cinch they have got on Uncle Sam through Wilson and Tumulty. They did not intend for the Protestants to hear their boastings. It was published in a Catholic paper which is supposed to be seen only by the eyes of those high up in the Roman councils. But somehow it got away from them and the Protestants saw what they had been boasting of among themselves.

Pretty soon the Catholics saw that the Protestants were going to use what they had said against them, and right away came out a great fabrication of loose-leaf tommy-rot purporting to save the face of the Catholics on this score. We imagine all the priests and nuns and bishops and Catholic propaganda howlers busying themselves to frame up some sort of a tale to smooth over this thing they had been caught in. They were getting the goods from Wilson and Tumulty all right but oh, what a fatal thing to let the Protestants on to their racket. Right soon they got it fixed up and here it goes out to all the poor ignorant dupes who have been letting those devils of Rome fool them by their lies and trickery. Then it was all right. Yes, perfectly well. Why, Tumulty and Wilson were not slipping the Catholics any favors out under the counter; the Catholics were not messing with politics in this country at all; the Catholics did not want any political favor or prestige; and last to make assurance doubly sure that the whole thing was a Protestant lie directed against the holy angels of the black gowns and white lined bonnets, they said there was not even such a paper as the National Catholic Register, which it was alleged had done this big bragging on Wilson and Tumulty and the ascendency of Romanism.

Mr. K. C. Mahan over at Brierfield is one of the little fellows out around the edges that has been led into the trap of Romanism unawares; and he is one of the kind whom the higher lights of Rome rely upon to help spread their waves of infamy that are cast out over the country at intervals selected to suit their convenience. And it was this time that Mr. Mahan was supplied with their cut and dried argument to answer the charge of bragging that they had been caught in. They poured the Catholic soothsayer out to Mahan through "Our Sunday Visitor" a Catholic sheet that is published some place in Ohio. He in turn decided he would try it on the Union-Banner, being as he had been seeing some purty hot things we had said about the Catholics. So he sends us "Our Sunday Visitor" which is as we would expect so full of Catholic lies and rot of one kind and another that there is not room in it for as much as one more letter. But somehow "Our Sunday Visitor" did not put us to sleep like Mahan wanted it to. It has fired our hatred of the infernal methods of Romanism more than ever. Our friend Mahan is awfully sympathetic with us, and calls us all sorts of lies, for what we have been saying against the Catholics, by which he does not surprise us one bit. We are sure we have not told him any bigger lies against the Catholics than the Catholics have told him themselves. Well, just for fun, we will give you the pleasure of reading the letter Mr. Mahan sent us the other day. Here it is, and we ask you, honestly, aint it a dandy?

Brierfield, Ala., April 7, 1919.

Mr. W. M. Wyatt, Editor Union-Banner,

Dear Sir:— Iwas surprised to say the least, when I read in your paper of April 3, 1919, an editorial quoted from The National Catholic Record as you charge. I wish to say there is no such publication. Hence your quotation is a lie and a forgery from beginning to end. As you doubtless know, when you give publication to the article as the lying and falsifying methods of the Guardians of Liberty, Pythian Temple, Dayton, Ohio, have been proven and exposed on many other occasions. I would suggest that after reading this statement in "Our Sunday Visitor" you look up the 26 Chapter of Exodus in any Protestant Bible and locate the positioin you are now holding as to lying and bearing false witness against your neighbors.

I am acquainted with the statements of the late Theodore Roosevelt on what constitutes an undesirable citizen, and there is little doubt in your or my mind as to what he would say after reading your editorial. You are in the undesirable class as marked out by that very great and very true American now gone to his reward, and I know there is little or no comfort for you and your methods in any word ever spoken by such men as Lincoln or McKinley. I did not believe there was a man in the whole State of Alabama so lost to honesty and to Christian Charity as to stand for lies so base, even when those lies were aimed against the Catholic church.

Now, my dear sir, I trust you will not fail to set yourself right before a good people by printing the whole truth of the basis of your editorial. Assuring you of my heartfelt sympathy for the condition of heart and mind of a man who is so blinded to truth and honor as to give publication to stuff so false, dirty and so wicked, I beg to remain, a Christian Gentleman and a Republican, K. C. MAHAN.

If the League of Nations will prevent war, it will of course foster and maintain peace. But at the outset the proposed league has been a stumbling block in the way of peace following the war that ended November the 11th, 1918. So it happens that the league that was intended to prevent war begins by also preventing peace. That certainly is not a good prospect. It is not a good recommendation for Mr. Wilson's ideas of a world peace.

How Diphtheria is Contracted.

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering germ of diphtheria. If your child has a cold when diphtheria is prevalent you should take him out of school and keep him off the street until fully recovered, as there is a hundred times more danger of his taking diphtheria when he has a cold. When Chambarlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted.

IRRIGATION FOR VEGETABLE CROPS.

By Russell G. Briggs, Garden Specialist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Irrigation applied generally to the growing of truck and vegetable crops in Alabama would, in combination with the obvious natural advantages, aid materially in placing that state in the front rank of vegetable producers.

Alabama, a state whose natural characteristics favor the successful growing of vegetable crops should be quick to take advantage of this fact and develop that which promises to be one of the states real claims to greatness. To be a real garden spot of the country, Alabama has only to avail of the opportunities with which she is particularly favored, thus giving her an advantage over states less well favored in this respect.

One of the principal factors in successful vegetable growing is moisture control. Both methods of irrigation which have been found highly successful in other places, can be used with equal or greater success here. In the Southern and Western counties where surface water is abundant and flowing wells are found, the flooding system may be used successfully on the level areas. At any other part of the state abundant water lies near or close to the surface that it can be obtained at little cost for use in the cheap economical sprinkling systems. The profits secured even in the more highly seasoned northern states from the use of irrigation methods should encourage southern growers to apply similar methods on their vegetable plantings where obviously the advantage of soil, climate and soil is in their favor. Owing to the peculiar nature of the trucking and gardening industry it offers large returns for labor and can be started and carried on with a minimum of capital offering a healthful remunerative occupation to those having limited means.

Alabama presents the general requirements of a trucking district with the special advantage of long seasons, suitable soils and available moisture, seldom found in one combination.

DO DAIRYMEN READ?

J. P. Quinerly, Dairy Specialist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Do you read dairy papers, books, bulletins? Most successful dairymen do. They say "it pays to read" publications. You can prevent mistakes, get lots of new ideas, increase your dairy profits by reading such periodicals as:

Hoard's Dairyman, Ft. Atkinson, Wis.

Hoard's Dairy Farmer, published at Waterloo, Iowa.

Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, Ill.

I suggest that you send for free sample copies of these papers and decide for yourself if you can afford to subscribe for one or more of them regularly. The subscription price of each is $1.00 per year.

There are two books which are full of the very best information about dairy cows,—their care and feed. You ought to have: Feeds & Feeding, price $2.25, published by Henry & Morrison, Madison, Wis.; Eckles' Dairy Cattle and Milk Production, price $1.73 postpaid, published by The Macmillan Company, New York City.

The best methods of successful dairymen and the results of many careful experiments (made for your benefit) are recorded in the following farmers bulletins and circulars. Make a list of the ones you want and sen to the Chief of Bureau of Publication, Washington, D. C. Order by full name and number.

THE MEANING OF THRIFT CAMPAIGNS

ONE OF THE BIGGEST THINGS UNCLE SAM HAS UNDERTAKEN.

A GREATER NATION

Is What It Means—a Nation of True Patriots and Substantial Citizens. The Splendid Outlook.

By John Sparrow.

Birmingham, Ala., April 12.—When we get the perspective of the Thrift Campaign which is being conducted in Alabama and all over the United States by the War Savings Section of the Treasury Department we will see that it is one of the biggest things Uncle Sam has thought out and that War Savings workers everywhere have reason to be proud of their connection with such a great undertaking.

Its Splendid Scope.

The government's purpose in this work is not only to teach thrift, but to make every man and woman a better patriot and citizen.

The Liberty Bond Campaigns had the same objective, but their scope was necessarily not as far reaching as that of the Thrift Campaign.

In the old days a government bond-owner and a "plutocrat" were one and the same thing in the minds of the people.

The number of citizens who had a direct financial interest in the operations of the government was therefore limited. The Liberty Bond Campaigns have to a very large extent wiped out this class distinction. It is estimated that about one-third of the total population of the United States now own Liberty Bonds in denominations ranging from $50 upward, and it is believed the number of security holders will be greatly increased in the Victory Loan Drive.

"Stamps" is the Answer.

It is not possible at present, at least for every man, woman and child in the United States to own a government security of the value of $50, but Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps are actually within the reach of everyone, and when this is accomplished the people as a whole will have been identified with their government, each will have a personal interest in the maintenance and operations of it. They will stand behind it through thick and thin.

The Cure For "Madness."

What chance do you suppose Bolshevism or any other form of political and social madness will have to spread among a people thus united with the constituted authority represented by the government. On the contrary, they will be vitally interested in its efficient administration, will be more watchful of its expenditures and more careful in the selection of men they send to Washington to pass appropriation bills and otherwise handle their money.

This is the deep, constructive statesmanship behind the Thrift Campaign. Every Thrift Stamp and every War Savings Stamp sold means a more united nation, and this weaving is going on until a cloth comes from the loom which can neither be torn nor split.

What higher inspiration could any lover of America ask than that which radiates from this work?

A Still Higher Purpose.

But the government had a higher purpose even than that in the Thrift Campaign. We are a nation of prodigals. It is "come easy, go easy" with us.

Our pennies and nickles trickle through our fingers in an unceasing stream which makes for no real prosperity. Much of the wealth created in this country by the toilers literally evaporates into nothing, it is gone, never to return and never to send back any returns.

Wise Spenders—Sensible Savers.

Now the idea of the government is not to make a nation of hoarders or to compel the people to deny themselves any of the sane pleasures of life. It is to teach them to spend their money intelligently, in addition to saving a reasonable portion of it, and making that portion earn more money. When the wise spending thought has been established in every home, the thought that demands value received for everything bought, whether it is pleasure, clothes or food, our economic life will have been placed upon enduring foundations. And when in every home the habit of living within the income has become fixed, and in every household there is a steady accretion of savings, who will dare to say how rich this nation will become, how powerful it will be in the councils of the world? We think we are rich today. We will be truly rich when the "happy habit of thrift" is universal. That's the wisdom of the government behind this campaign of ours. What American would not like to have a part in this rebirth of the nation?

My space is practically exhausted and yet I have barely touched upon two features of this Thrift. These, however, are sufficient to verify my assertion that the Thrift Campaign is the biggest and the most inspiring thing our government has undertaken.

If I have the opportunity in another article I would like to show what the campaign accomplished last year, and why it was launched upon the crest of a war wave

The peace patriot was the real war patriot and he is the 100 percent. patriot. Alabama support this Thrift Campaign!

CHURCHES TO AID VICTORY LOAN BY SERMONS ON MAY 4

It Will Be a "Thanksgiving Loan," In Recognition Of This Country's Hapiness And The Return Of Peace

Sunday, May 4, has been designated all over the United States as Victory Loan Sunday, when every pastor of every denomination is asked to discuss from the pulpit the Victory Loan campaign and urge upon their hearers such investments in the Victory Loan as they can undertake.

It has been the observation of those prominent in former Liberty Loan campaigns that the churches have had enormous influence in furthering subscriptions. And there is every reason why this should be so. Lending to one's country is something more than a business investment. It is a patriotic obligation and surely patriotism—a deep regard for one's homeland—is a form of religion.

The Victory Loan is also being called the "Thanksgiving Loan," and surely it is a fitting designation. Think of the boys who have come back home, alive and well, with the enemy vanquished, the battles over! Think of peaceful America, its people prosperous, its children happy and well nourished, its lands safe from the invasion of a foe; and compare our situation with that of starving Russia and Poland, with Germany torn by Red revolution; with victorious France still bleeding from the scars of horrible war. Think of the heavy taxation which must for years burden the people of Europe, victors and vanquished alike. And then compare our situation here—with our government asking only that we lend what we can spare, with gilt-edged security and liberal interest. Certainly, we can afford to call this a "Thanksgiving Loan, and prove our thankfulness by liberal investments. There is not a father who has seen his boy come home, or who has learned that he is safe overseas, who can afford to cheat himself of his share in this—the last of the government loans—which will pay the war bill and "finish the job."

Let's Get Aboard!

LEND AT INTEREST OR PAY MORE TAXES WE MUST CHOOSE

We Cheered For Peace And Now We Must Pay For It, In One Way Or The Other

The Victory Loan campaign is close at hand.

It is only a short time before we who threw our hats into the air and cheered on that November day when the armistice was signed will be called upon to prove that we are as ready to lend as to cheer.

A soldier returning from France to his home city, remarked to a citizen who met him with a hand-shake:

"This welcome and flowers are all very nice. But how about a job?"

Uncle Sam can well say to his people:

"That cheering for peace was fine. But how about paying the bills for bringing it about?"

The war bills must be paid. Anybody can see that. There are two ways to pay them.

One is to borrow the money from the people. The other is to tax it out of the people.

Our war taxes—most of them on luxuries—are heavy enough now. But unless the Victory Loan is liberally subscribed they will seem small besides the taxes to come.

Uncle sam had rather sell securities than put on new taxes.

He must do one or the other.

It's up to the public.

"FAIR AND SQUARE."

The individual quota system, recognized everywhere as the "Fair and Square" plan, is to be used in a large proportion of the Sixth Federal Reserve district in the approaching Victory Loan campaign.

Under this plan, a definite quota based on property and income is assigned every resident of the county, and he is asked to invest that sum in the Victory Loan. It is intended in this way to see that every man bears his share of the load and knows his neighbor down the road also is carrying his share, instead of penalizing the more patriotic who are willing to take on an extra load to put their counties over the top.

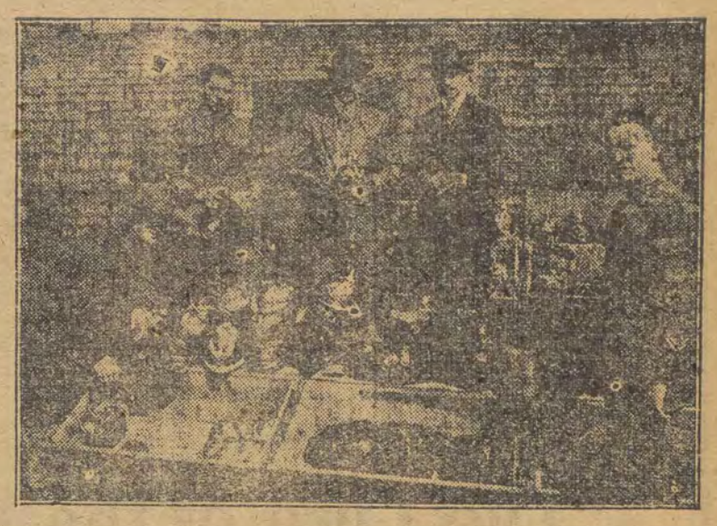
METHODISTS CHANGE DATE



CAMPAIGN FOR $35,000,000 IN M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH, CENTENARY DRIVE WILL BE HELD MAY 18-25.

The date for the Methodist Centenary financial campaign has changed from April 27-May 4 to May 18-25, official announcement of which is being made throughout the length and breadth of Methodism today. Several weeks ago it was found necessary to change the April date in order not to interfere with the Government plans for the forthcoming Victory Loan Drive. The selection of another date has been held in abeyance pending the decision from Washington which was forwarded headquarters of the M. E Church, South, recently.

The change in this date is of wide import to all Methodists who are, at this time, lining up plans of definite action regarding their part as individuals in the campaign. Dr. W. B. Beauchamp, Secretary of the Centenary Commission, stated today that he and other Centenary workers at headquarters have, through Secretary Carter Glass, pledged the loyal support of all Southern Methodists to the government at this crucial hour and that in setting May 18-25 as a date for the Centenary drive, he knows he will have the immediate and hearty cooperation of all conference secretaries, directors, field representatives and all workers connected with the campaign.

The Methodist Centenary financial campaign is the largest religious campaign undertaken in the history of the world. One hundred and fifteen million dollars is the goal set—Southern Methodists pledging themselves to raise thirty-five million of that sum.

3,500 CAPTURED GERMAN HELMETS TO BE GIVEN IN VICTORY LOAN

Inspecting cases of German helmets. The two civilians are, left, Frank R. Wilson, director of publicity, and, right, L. B. Franklin, director of the war loan organization.

Workers in the approaching Victory Loan campaign who render efficient service in obtaining subscriptions to the "finish the job loan," will be the proud possessors of genuine Hun helmets, taken from captured German prisoners or found on the battlefields of France after their former owners had no further use for headgear, it is announced by the headquarters of the Sixth Federal Reserve District at Atlanta.

Three thousand five hundred of these helmets, averaging eight to a county, will arrive at the headquarters soon, and will be distributed. The exact basis upon which they will be awarded has not yet been determined, but it will assure the real workers of a chance at the souvenirs. Hun helmets will decorate many a home in the South soon. In some instances they probably will be converted into cuspidors.

Preparations for the Victory Loan are going on rapidly, and the opening day, April 21, probably will find a big proportion of the state and county quotas ready for immediate subscriptions. This will be especially so in counties where the individual quota system is being used. By this plan every resident of the county will be notified, before the opening day, of what he is expected to subscribe. It is expected to have every citizen carry his own share of the quota, instead of letting his more patriotic neighbors carry more than their share. Local committees will hear appeals from those who consider their quota too high.

In most instances, the same loyal workers who carried the former loans to success will form the committees on the Victory Loan. At recent state conferences they expressed confidence in being able to put the job through, and their enthusiasm is certain to carry them to success.

Treasury department officials who have sounded out the sentiment of the whole country are confident that the people are willing to lend to their country for the purpose of finishing the job and paying the war bills. They understand the gigantic work that is still going on, and the necessity of bringing the boys back home; of giving the wounded men that education and instruction which will enable them to get a fresh start. The Government has still a big task before it, and the expenditures are still large. But they are far smaller in money—to say nothing of more precious lives—than if the war had continued. So the term "Thanksgiving Loan," may well be applied to this, the last of the government's invitations to its people to lend their money to their nation.

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN STUNG?

By F. L. Thomas, Entomology Field Agent.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Did you ever have an extra large swarm of bees come out earlier in the season that you expected, settle in a convenient position, and thus suddenly be brought face to face with the fact that you were not ready for them? If you have had that experience then you were "stung." The purpose of this brief article is to prevent such a calamity and might be entitled, "Be Prepared."

That new standard ten-frame hive should now be ready at a moment's notice. Capturing a swarm of bees is one way of transferring from the old fashioned "gum" or box hive to the better, more easily handled patented hive. It is also one of the best and most economical ways to begin beekeeping.

It is not only better for the beginner to go in for extracted honey production, rather than to try to produce comb honey, but the production of extracted honey is better suited to Alabama conditions. It requires far less skill and results in more money and a better crop. The darker honey of the South finds a better market when sold in the extracted form.

Bees can be made to pay for themselves almost from the start and for the additional apparatus needed to increase the business, as well as show some profit besides. A colony may be expected to average anywhere from $4.00 in a poor season to $15.00 or more in a good one. It is well to remember that one strong colony is worth more than two weak ones.

To those contemplating a start in better beekeeping the following suggestions are made regarding a suitable outfit for the production of extracted honey. This outfit which contains only necessary equipment may be bought in a knocked-down condition for $9.25, estimated from last year's prices. Wait until you know that you wish to increase before buying an extractor, and in the meantime use the product as chunk honey.

1 10-frame hive body with wired frames containing sheets of wax foundation;

2 10-frame supers just like the hive body;

1 floor board; 1 queen excluder; 1 inner cover; 1 outer cover; 1 bee veil; 1 bee smoker; 1 bee brush.

Order your supplies early. Reliable agents handling bee supplies and located nearest to Alabama beekeepers are the Penn Company of Penn, Miss., and J. J. Wilder of Cordele, Ga. Upon request these firms will be glad to send you catalog of their supplies.

MICKIE SAYS

The People of This Community Are Reading This Paper Today

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

You, sir, or madam, are part of a greater audience than was ever gathered together in this community. Your combined power is that of a great army.

Your possible purchasing power alone is enough to make every commercial institution here respond to your will.

You are going into the stores of this city now to spend that money.

And what you are trying to find out is how to spend it to your best advantage and where. Let us see how we can help you most.

Here in this paper today is the advertising news of the strong men of trade, the regular buyers and the best judges of merchandise. They have ransacked their shelves and their stockrooms to give you the finest they have. They are too shrewd to spend their money and attract your attention to anything but the best.

This is their biggest season, too, and some of the values they are offering today will seem impossible to you who do not know a buyer's necessities.

If you could go behind the scenes and see their stock of shoes and coats and dresses and suits and underwear, of furniture and rugs and draperies, all shrewdly gathered from the ends of the earth, all brought down to the lowest figure or raised to the highest standard of quality by every method known to expert merchandising, then you would understand the labor that has been expended for you.

There is no advertisement in this paper too small for you to notice today. For every one of these smaller merchants has had enough faith in his merchandise to put his announcement before you as large as he could; enough courage to stand back of it, and the integrity to sign his name to what he presents. He has some good reason for talking to you, and the fact that he is talking to you is proof of his ability and success.

And there is no advertisement too large for you to study carefully. Many a buyer, with some good value worth a column of space, has had to put it in the middle of half a page and crowd it into three short lines.

Here, then, is your compendium of merchandise, your catalogue of good goods; here amongst these merchants who are asking your attention today through the columns of their advertisements and offering you the best that they have.

The good women of the west voted for Mr. Wilson in 1916 because "he kept us out of the war." We wonder if they will vote for him again in 1920 because he kept us out of peace, and kept our boys from coming home for several months after the war was won. You can't ever tell about the women, you know.

Don't forget to come in and have the Probate Judge fix up your name on the voting list if there is any error. One more week is all the time you have to get right.

CHINA HAS A VERY IMPORTANT ROLE

PRACTICALLY ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND COOLIES SENT TO FRANCE.

What optimist a generation ago would have thought that backward China would have a hand in the settlement of a world war? But China is having a very important role in the great war that is just being brought to a close. Not as soldiers—fighting men—but as laborers behind the front line trenches. And just so many allied troops have been released for other duties. Practically one hundred and fifty thousand of these coolies have been transported by way of the Suez to France. This work has been done under the direction of the British Government and Church Missionaries. Among these missionaries are many of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which is just finishing the details of its campaign May 18-25 to secure $35,000,000 to further work of the kind that is being done in France and other places.

BANDING TOGETHER TO SPREAD GOSPEL

Nashville, Tenn.—One hundred and forty thousand Southern Methodists have signified their determination to pray for the success of the missionary work of the M. E. Church, South, and for the spread of Christianity throughout the world. These people have not only decided to do this, but have banded together in a league known as the Fellowship of Intercession, each signing a small card which it is thought will make the cause for which they pray more definite in the minds of the signers of the cards.

Dr. S. A. Neblett, secretary of the Department of Intercession of the denomination, stated to a reporter that the way in which the prayer cards were coming in was an inspiration From two thousand to five thousand of these are opened in the mail every morning, the number of 140,000 representing the complete total up to date.

FIVE HUNDRED WOMEN WANTED

Nashville, Tenn.—Five hundred young women are wanted at once by the Women's Missionary Council of the M. E. Church, South. They are wanted for services and missionaries of the church in both the home and foreign fields and the best type of womanhood is asked for. Women to whom the desire to serve has come very keenly, women whom the spirit of the hour has gripped earnestly, this is the type with whom the church wishes to make connection for various forms of missionary endeavor.

The particular forms of missionary work open to the young women of the South are in the medical, evangelistic and educational departments in the mission fields. One hundred and fifty are wanted as evangelists and deaconesses; two hundred and fifty are wanted as teachers and one hundred are wanted as doctors and nurses. The call has particularly gone out for young women of college education in order that they may be able to grasp quickly the leadership in the work which the church needs.

The calling of these young women is made possible through the Centenary of the church which is being observed this year. A fund of $35,000,000 will be raised soon, and this money will make possible the sending of many missionaries to Africa, Japan, China, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, Korea and in the home field.

If we have any ambition or hope of any kind in the world, it is that we may be able to turn on the light so strong that all such poison, germ-laden vermin as he will have to back up in their narrow cracks and stay there till they are absorbed by the dry rot. A fellow like him, who has been hypnotized by Rome is a danger to a civilized community. And he should not be allowed to run at large in a free country, lest by his poisonous mind he may contaminate the atmosphere and spread the disease with which he is infected.

SUMMER OPENING AT THE CLANTON MERCANTILE CO.

You know it is the one certain forecast of summer time to see the ladies come out with white dresses, shoes, hats and other summer things adorning their person. Then you may know that spring and summer are here, whether the weather be warm or cool.

This delightful season of the year is with us now in Clanton. The official introduction of the spring and summer season was done in grand style Wednesday by the Clanton Mercantile Company, when they exhibited a complete new line of summer white goods of all kinds to a large number of the ladies of Clanton and Chilton county.

Many feminine visitors to "The Big Bargain Store" expressed much pleasure at the profuse exhibitions which greeted them, and on their faces shone joy such as is only produced on a woman's face at the happy contemplation of a new white hat, dress and slippers in the good old summer time.

WORD FROM JUDGE REYNOLDS REGARDING ROADS OF COUNTY

Clanton, Ala., April 5, 1919.

Dear Editor:

The Commissioners Court has placed all the highways under the control of the apportioners and overseers. I have tried the best I could for the last two years to supervise the keeping up the highways through the county. I have furnished my own car without any cost to the county whatever, the work I have done has saved the county several hundred dollars. I want to thank those that have cooperated with me in keeping them up, but there has been a great deal of criticism, so the Commissioners say. And I want to say that if anyone can do it better than I have, they are welcome to the job.

I have written and said so much about not letting the highways go to pieces that I hate to mention it, but I want to call the peoples attention again to the fact that if the highways are left alone, not cared for, it will not be long until they are ruined and then the county will still owe the debt, and have to pay the ten thousand dollars a year interest just the same.

I have contended that it was cheaper on the entire county to put no hands on the highways, and work them with road machines, and let the hands work on the other roads, but the court has decided otherwise, and now I plead again for all the people along the highways to cooperate with the Commissioners and help them keep the roads up.

This county is forever ruined financially. I never expect to see it in good condition again. It looks like if it is not one bad thing it is two. When the court house burned we had the county in very good shape, or at least we could pay cash for all bills. Then we had to arrange to build the new court house. Just as we got this arranged then here comes along the dipping of cattle with twelve or fifteen thousand dollars more expense, and not one cent on hand to pay with. We had already borrowed $16,000.00 to pay for the building of the courthouse, so you can see what a condition we are in. I promise you that we will do the best we can, but I do not see how we can get along.

We have appealed to the public to not make one dollar debt against the county if it can be helped, we have repealed the wagon tax because the people seemed to be so much against it; we have tried to do as near as we could what we thought the people wanted.

I want to appeal again to all the people to take their teams and help on the roads. We need not wait for any money to work them with.

IF WE HAVE ROADS, WE MUST BUILD THEM.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

THE BIGNESS OF THE THRIFT IDEA

WHAT IT MEANS TO THE NATION AND TO THE STATE OF ALABAMA.

THRIFT IN THE HOME

Mr. Bowers Promoted and Transferred to Atlanta—The Women of the State are Thoroughly Organized.

Birmingham, Ala., April 21.—" tamps," the publication of the Alabama War Savings Committee, says in this week's issue:

"Every W. S. S. sale is a brick laid in the foundation of thrift upon which our nation is to stand forever as leader of the world.'

Following this line of thought:

War Savings Stamps of the maturity value about $12,000,000 were sold in Alabama last year. In a few years the greater part of this money is coming back to Alabama from the treasury. Think what this vast amount of money will do when it begins to circulate in this state. And that's just the beginning. This year's sales will mature, with interest, and come back in like manner. And so will next year's, and so on. In the course of time Alabama will have an enormous amount of money, in the hands of her citizens, who will have learned how to use it right. Better schools, better roads, better living conditions generally, will be the result. We shall see a state redeemed from poverty, strong enough financially to do these things for herself in the way of development of natural resources, which formerly had to be done for her by outside capital.

Get the vision. See what you are doing for your country and your state in this thrift campaign, and allow no man to belittle your endeavor or to cause you to feel that you do not stand in the first rank of patriots.

It is written in the Good Book, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Thrift is the vision needed by our people today, or they are in danger of perishing through prosperity. To give them that vision we must first get it ourselves.

WAS IT FOR THIS THAT OUR SOLDIERS WENT TO FRANCE?

To scrub the floor for even as estimable a gentleman as Col. House, as Mr. Richard Seelye remarks in his Paris conference to the Post-Intelligencer, is a poor reward for services rendered in the Argonne. Col. House and the other American peacemakers and designers housed in the Hotel Crillon doubtless track mud and otherwise make scrubbing a housekeeping necessity; but just why American soldiers should be called upon to perform this honorable but humble task we are not able to say.

It may be answered that the uninformed scrubmen that slush suds around the Hotel Crillon floors do so from choice, and that they are not compelled to engage in this meniel service unless they so desire. This, however, we submit, is not a sufficient answer, and is one that overlooks the essential opposition to the soldier scrubman—the uniform. If the uniform of the American soldierman stands for anything, and for two years we have loudly proclaimed that it does, then it is worthy of a higher station in the Hotel Chillon than that of the scrub bucket and the mop. A soldier may properly scrub his barracks and perform such other duties as are necessary to his own health and comfort. That is one thing; but when he is put to work as a soldier scrubbing floors and washing dishes for a hotelful of peacemakers and their families, he becomes a standing argument why a great many Americans want nothing to do with the army.

If the uniform of the United States army may indicate that the wearer is either a man who has fought for his country of who has scrubbed floors for Col. House, the doubt cannot but detract from some of the affection and admiration we have for it. Dish washers and scrubmen are necessary, and no stigma should attach to their callings. But none the less they are not soldiers; their vocations normally call for entirely different qualities, and the difference in perils and hardships that exist between them make for a difference in popular esteem.

If Paris is totally destitute of scrub women, if dishwashers and scullions generally are not to be had, it is proper that such soldiers as have a taste for this sort of work should have the opportunity to indulge profitably in it—but as private individuals not as soldiers.

The uniform should ever stand for valorous and self-sacrificing service in the army or navy, and should never be confused with exploits performed with sapolio or the Gold Dust Twins, for the comfort of Col. House or any other private individual.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

COUNTY POOR FARM IS O. K. SAYS EXAMINING COMM.

A committee was appointed out of the last Grand Jury of Chilton County to make occasional inspection of the county poor farm and report on same to the circuit court.

The committee of three are N. A. Kicker, David Childress, and Jonah McKee. These gentlemen made an inspection of the premises of the poor farm on April 11, and their report to the court of the conditions as they found them is very pleasing. They put their "O.K." on the place, and make a report that speaks well for Mr. Huckabee, the keeper of the farm.

JIM ROBERTS DIED TUESDAY IN ALBERQURKE, N. MEX.

A telegram was received in Clanton just before noon Tuesday by his relatives announcing the death of Jim Roberts, at Alberqurke, New Mexico.

The death of this universally popular Clanton citizen did not come as a surprise to his many friends here. His health has been very bad for a long while, and only a few weeks ago he went west in company with Dr. Marcus, in the hope of finding a climate that would lengthen his apparently numbered days.

Death came to him about 8 o'clock on Tuesday morning. His remains will be shipped from Alberqurke on Wednesday and it is expected the same will arrive in Clanton Saturday morning.

No definite announcement has been made as to funeral arrangements.

Mr. Roberts has been prominent in the financial and business circles of Clanton and Chilton County for many years. His associates in business and his friends in general will regret to know of his death.

THORSBY ITEMS

The "Navy" division of the Helen Keller Literary Society gave a most interesting program on the night of Saturday, April 19. It follows:

Song, Society; Devotions Miss Lockwood; Reading of Minutes; Roll Call; Business.

1st Tableau, John Smith and Pocahantas; 2nd Tableau, John Alden and Priscilla; 3rd Tableau, William Penn's treaty with the Indians; 4th Tableau, signing of the Declaration of Independence; 5th Tableau, Betsy Ross; 6th Tableau, Washington's Farewell address; 7th Tableau, Early settlers; 8th Tableau, Gold Miners of 1845; 9th Tableau, Lincoln, a rail-splitter; 10th Tableau, A soldier's farewell; 11th Tableau, Lincoln's last official act; 12th Tableau,Theodore Roosevelt, Rough Rider; 13th Tableau, The blue, the gray, and the khaki; 14th Tableau, The League of Nations; Closing Tableau, Liberty.

The following beautiful and impressive Easter program was given at the Congregational Church on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock: Hymn, congregation; prayer by Rev. Butler; chorus, Welcome Happy Morning; recitations, the Crucifixion and Burial, Juniors; recitations, The Resurrection and Appearance, Juniors; solo, God is Love, Ethel Peterson; recitations, primary class, Meryl Freeman, Dorothy, Butler, Doris Freeman, Donald Herbert, Lenore Goodwin and Mary Elizabeth Adams; song, primary class; recitation, The Easter of 1919, Miss Odie Lee Arthur; solo and chorus, Lovely appears, from the "Redemption.

The Easter offering taken at this service was given in response to an appeal being made to the churches of America at this glad season of the year to aid in reconstruction work in the war-ridden countries of France and Belgium. Sermon by the pastor, Rev. James W. Davenport; chorus, The Day of Resurrection.

Sunday evening the Luther League of the Swedish Lutheran Church of which Olga Soberg is president, presented the following Easter program to a large and appreciative audience: Song, congregation; devotions, Rev. Sjogren; short talk, Waldmer Lefstead; vocal duet, Esther Berlin and Naemi Turnquist; reading, Olga Soberg; Vocal solo, Esther Johnson; song, Inga Erdahl, Ruth Gerald, Esther Berlin, Naemi Turnquist, Olga Soberg; account of experiences while in the army, Edwin Soberg; vocal duet, Inga Erdahl and Olga Soberg; address, Rev. Sjogren; song, congregation; benediction; leader, Olgo Soberg.

The children of Mrs. Norton's primary department of the Congregational Sunday School enjoyed an egg hunt on the campus of the Institute Monday afternoon from 2 to 4. This is an annual outing looked forward to with pleasure by the children, and one in which the little folks all take great delight.

Edwin Soberg, who has been in France since last September, is spending a few weeks with home folks at present. He gave a most interesting account of his experiences while in the army at the last meeting of the Luther League. Mr. Soberg expects To leave Thorsby early in May to resume work in Sheboygan, Wisc.

Mr. Reno Villadsen and family of Jasper, Ala., spent Easter Sunday with Mrs. Anna Villadsen in Thorsby. They will return to their home Tuesday morning.

Services next Sunday morning in the Swedish Lutheran Church in the Swedish language, in the evening in English. The usual preaching service both morning and evening at the Congregational Church. Rev. Bice will preach both morning and evening at the Baptist Church on Sunday, May 4. Sunday School and Young Peoples services at all three churches next Sunday at the usual hours.

GREAT EASTER SERVICES AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

One of the greatest services ever held at a Clanton church was that at the Clanton Methodist last Sunday. The very elaborate Easter program had been prepared by the pastor in collaboration with other agencies of the church and the Clanton Commandery Knights Templar.

The latter were represented in a body at the church, wearing the uniforms of the order, and they made a very impressive scene occupying the front seats of the church.

Rev. Maye steered the program to a very desirable consumation. The church was elaborately decorated and a selected choir rendered splendid music appropriate for the occasion.

The theme of the sermon by the pastor was "The Resurrection." It was a short discourse but the words were selected and very much to the point.

This Easter service was one of the very few instances where people had to be turned away from a church in Clanton for the lack of seat room. But it would be this way every Sunday if the people would attend church like they should. For our church houses are entirely inadequate for accommodating our people.

MRS. McSWAIN ENTERTAINS

Mrs. T. C. McSwain delightfully entertained the E. C. Maye Sunday School class on Good Friday at her residence. The rooms were artistically decorated with pink and white roses and narcissus. The president, Mrs Barney Roberts, presided over the meeting. After the business of the class had been attended to, a very interesting program followed

Song by class, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name;" scripture reading, Matt. 20:1-10 by Mrs. Mally White; prayer Mrs. Roberts; Quartette, by Mesdames T. H. Neighbors, W. P. Splawn, Maye, and Rev. Maye. Miss Warrene Spigener recited a lovely poem, "Flowers of Easter." Mrs. John Armstrong sang sweetly "On Calvary's Brow," accompanied by Miss Glennie Evans. Mrs. Maye gave an interesting and inspiring talk on Easter. Rev. Maye in his rich toned voice, sang a beautiful Easter song composed and put to music by Mrs. Maye.

At the conclusion of the program the president in a few well chosen words, presented to the teacher of the E. C. Maye Sunday School Class, Mrs. Maye, a lovely Easter box of lingerie given by members of the class for the high esteem and love they have for her. Mrs. Maye accepted the lovely box with a heart full of love for her pupils. Rev. Maye led in prayer. Afterwards the hostess assisted by Mesdames R. E. Luckie, H. M. Simpson and Macy Jones, served a delicious course. The invited guests for the afternoon were Miss Glennie Evans, Mrs. W. P. Splawn, Mrs. J. P. VanDerveer, Jr., and Rev. Maye.

The general idea that the earlier a variety of cotton is the larger will be the yield under boll weevil conditions is not borne out by tests made at the Alabama Experiment Station. Extremely early varieties like King are usually toward the bottom of the list of the most productive; the medium early varieties are at or near the top.

Early varieties usually have small plants and bolls and set their fruit rapidly. If adverse weather conditions come upon them before they set a full crop of fruit, they stop growing and often throw off a large part of that not fully grown.

The medium early varieties have a larger root system and make medium to large plants. Their bolls are usually medium size. They fruit very rapidly. If unfavorable weather conditions stop their fruiting, they seem to have the power of recovering, upon the return of favorable weather conditions, and may put on a full crop of bolls before the season closes, or before the boll weevils become sufficiently numerous to destroy the late crop.

During the past ten years the Alabama Experiment Station has tested many varieties. The medium early varieties like Cook, Cleveland, Wannamaker-Cleveland, Culpepper, Tri-Cook, Sunbeam, Half and Half, etc., are among the most productive. Arkansas, the Scott Station reported among leaders Cleveland, Poulnot, Christopher, Triumph, Cook, Foster, etc. In Mississippi the Agricultural College Station finds among the leaders special selections of Trice, Express, Lone Star, Cleveland, etc.

Some very early varieties like King, Simpkins, etc., have short fiber and may not command the top of the market for short staple cottons.

Among the medium early varieties having short staple should be mentioned Half and Half and some strains of Cook. In the event that a large crop is produced buyers may discriminate against staple under seven-eights of an inch.

Tommie Hand, who has been in France with our army, has got back home.

CHILTON COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION AT SHILOH

The Chilton County Singing Convention met in special session at Shiloh Church Sunday, April 20.

The house was called to order by the president with song at 9:00, a.m. Prayer by Prof. J. D. Patton.

Program committee was appointed as follows: J. L. Gore, W. G. Culp and James Franklin.

Directors for the forenoon were A. H. Glasscock, J. L. Gore and J. D. Patton.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served to a very large congregation of people.

Directors for the afternoon were Profs. H. W. Lowery, George Godfrey, J. H. Wood, J. D. Patton, T. T. Taylor, Akins Collins and J. Monroe Smith.

A very fine duet was rendered by Prof. Patton and daughter, Miss Florence. Two quartettes were sung during the day by Profs. Patton, J.M. Dye, James Franklin, J. M. Harkins George Godfrey, H. W. Lowery and David Childress.

Organists for the session were Prof. J. M. Dye, W. G. Culp, Homer Dye and Misses Genie Collins and Florence Grey Patton.

A resolution of thanks to Shiloh Church was adopted.

We wish to thank all the singers for their cooperation in this session of our convention especially the visiting singers from other counties including Prof. Patton, who deserves special praise for his splendid singing.

The regular annual session will be announced later.

J. M. SMITH, Secy.

We ask the prayers of the praying people of Clanton for the Reese-Rowland meeting which is to be held at the Baptist church, beginning May 25th. Pray that it may be even more effective than the meeting last year in healing divisions and the conversion of souls. Only the spirit of God can do those things.

The protracted meeting season will soon begin in our country churches. If this pastor can be of service to any of the churches in the county call on him and he will be glad to serve you.

The Baptist Ministers and Deacons meeting of the Unity and Chilton County Associations will meet in Clanton church on Monday morning, May 5th, at 9:30. All are urged to attend for mutual benefit.

Rev. Henry Crumpton, former pastor in Clanton, will preach the commencement sermon for the High School on May 18.

The subjects for next Sunday will be, in the morning, "The Magnetism of a revived church;" at night "The Nature of Hell as the punishment of Sin."

REV. CRUMPTON TO PREACH COMMENCEMENT SERMON

We note with interest that Rev. H. T. Crumpton, formerly pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, is to preach the commencement sermon at the Chilton County High School on May 18. Rev. Crumpton was one of the ablest preachers who ever served a church in Clanton, and our people will be mighty glad to hear him speak again.

Mrs. Grady Broadhead received a telegram Monday from her husband, Dr. Grady D. Broadhead, stating that he had landed at Hampton, Va., on his return to the States from service in France. He is expected to return home soon.

JOHNSON SAYS TIME TO CALL FOR A HALT

Let's Make it Respectable to Again Call Ourselves American Citizens.

Washington, April 21.—There's nobody home in America." This was the phrase applied to the domestic situation in the United States today by Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, in a public statement here, in which he calls attention to the benevolent interest manifested by the Federal government in affairs in foreign lands while problems pressing for solution in this country are neglected.

"Our commuting government hovers around European capitals, basking in the sunlight of foreign adulation," Senator Johnson says. "It has become a reproach in many quarters to think in terms of America for America first. It's time to call a halt. Let's make it respectable to be American again. It's time for America to awake.

"Five months have passed since the armistice was signed, since we did the job for which America entered the war. During all this time we've been afflicted with a mental farsightedness which enabled us to see the ills and and Lithuania, of Czecho-Slavia and possibilities of Finland and Poland, of Courland and Livonia, of Esthonia Jugo-Slavia, of Armenia and Syria and even of the Hedjaz of Arabia, but which has prevented us from seeing or caring for the ills and the problems of our own.

"Our demobilized soldiers ask only justice and work and get neither; our ordinary business lags, and because of the government's inactivity or indifference cannot resume its normal conditions; unemployment increases daily and foreign agitators play upon distress and discontent. In the state from which I come our bean industry and our barley growers face dire disaster because they patriotically responded to the demands of the government and are now abandoned, while foreign nations have actually profited from their sacrifices.

Basking in the Sunlight of Adulation.

'We are under the spell of a world hypnotism, unconscious of what is transpiring about us. Our commuting government hovers around European capitals, basking in the sunlight of foreign adulation. The president is in Paris, the Secretary of State is there, the Secretary of the Navy in Italy, the Secretary of war on his way to Europe, the heads of various administrative departments are scattered east and west and north and south in Europe—there's nobody home in America.

"It has become a reproach in many quarters now to think in terms of America for America first. It's time to call a halt. Let's make it respectable to be American again. While our future fate is being secretly debated and secretly decided in Paris, and while we are denied the slightest of knowledge of decisions which may alter the destiny of the republic, loyal Americans here may well think of their own. The war has shown us our grave problems. Americanization, unemployment, normal business conditions, intelligent grappling with and throttling discontent and resentment, which may turn to worse, destruction of any noxious foreign growth which threatens our institutions—all these insistently cry for attention and solution, but are put by for world dreams. Let's care for, guard and protect our own.

"Bring American boys home and let's be American again."

This is the Way We Would Dispose of Knight of Columbus Mahan.

We are not out to pick fusses out of shallow-brained, short-sighted cranks like that fellow Mahan, who pops up over at Brierfield and hollers lies and slander faster than you can blink your eye. There is nothing to such fellows as he, and it is absurd to waste valuable time with him. There are too many brazen bare-faced atrocities being perpetrated on free America by these foreign despots of the Roman Hierarchy, and men who have backbone enough to stand up and make the fight need to be striking at the heart of the evil rather than waste their valuable time on such cheap specimens. If we can cut the mains through which fellows like Mahan are sucking their substance from the great reservoirs of Rome, that is the quickest way to put those kind of fellows out of the run.

It would be foolish to try to destroy a family of hornets by chasing each individual hornet all over the woods and killing him. Better just locate his course and lay plans to get the whole hive at one siege. That is the way to go about the Catholic menace.

Day by day, the line is becoming plainer and more visible. The course of all the streams that carry the cursed stagnant Catholic rot to the four corners of our country are getting located. Soon we shall have our forces marshaled ready to go up against the great stronghold. And when we reach that stage of the game, we shall march around the walls of Jericho seven times, whereupon the structure will tumble to the ground. Then free Americans will rush in, and upon the ruins again there will be erected the foundation of a government of a free and unhampered people as ours was before the grasp of Rome seized us and took away our rights.

So we say to Mr. Mahan, go on youd enchanted way which you have been seduced into following. We would not disturb you in sucking the milk from the bottle you are getting. But the man we are after is the one who gives you the bottle. He is a slick duck and knows bettter than to practice his mischief. You are just a crank and don't know any better than to let him fool you up.

The editor of The Union-Banner is very grateful to his many friends in and out of Chilton County, who have expressed their pleasure at the stand this paper has taken in fighting the schemes and exposing the tricks of the Catholic political meddlers in this country. As we see it, the time to fight this impending evil is now upon us. It has been upon us for a long time and many of us have neglected our duty already by not raising our voices against it. Let us wake up now and make amends for the delay of which we are guilty. One friend very aptly said to us the other day that the Protestants were so peacefully sleeping that it is a shame to wake them. But as he stated further, they must awake and they will awake. But some of them will find when they do awake and scratch the scales of political prejudice from their eyes, that they have been tied hand and foot by the designing Catholic intrigues.

We wish to admonish you, our friends, to stand by us in this fight. We are going to make it so hot that such soft-shells as Mahan will have to get in the ice-box to read the paper.

If you doubt the statement that the Catholics used every means at their command to make sentiment for their cause through the means of the United States army, just begin to feel around among the boys who have come home and see if you can't find some streaks of it. We know of one case right at hand to which we could cite you, and you would be surprised at it too.

What's the matter with Chilton County and the Victory Bond Issue? If we had not won the war; if our boys were facing the guns today, what would you be willing to give for victory?

The Subtle and Persistent Foe of Our Public Schools.

There is no denying the fact that the Roman Catholic Hierarchy is the subtle and most persistent enemy to our public school system in America. The nation-wide purpose of Rome is to make America Catholic. The public schools of our country stand a great barrier in the face of this program. Hence, their enmity toward the little red school house.

It is a matter of common knowledge that in cities and communities where there are Catholics, they do not patronize the public schools, and that they are opposed to the whole system. They always have their parochial schools and send their children to them where there is no possibility of their receiving any other than Catholic tutelage.

History proves the statement that if they had heir way we would have no public schools. They would destroy them. And if they cannot destroy the public school, their next plan is to capture it and make, after all, a school that spreads the Catholic dogmas. Roman Catholics are ever resourceful and they never accept defeat and totally give up anything to which they have set the skill of their hands and the treachery of their hearts.

Don't ease up to this Catholic fighting machine with your political record stuck in your pocket expecting to make a big flash with what you have done for the Democrats, Republicans, Socialists, etc. If we are ever to put the Catholic political machine out of business in this country, we have got to soften up on our personal political views. It is all right to believe so and so about politics. The editor of the Union-Banner has political convictions, and he would not sacrifice them for the sake of anybody else's politics, so far as politics is concerned. We are Republican to the core and want everybody to know it. But we are not such a fool about politics that we would vote for or support a Catholic in the Republican party rather than a Protestant in some other party. First of all we must be against the Roman Catholic political machine in America, regardless of all other politics and political parties. That must be the one plank in all our platforms if we are to have a platform that is safe for an American citizen to stand on.

If the party you are in is not opposed to Catholic domination, the best advice we can give you is to let your party go hang for a while till you can help the free Americans who are trying to save this country from ruin finish up their task of walloping Rome a good one over the head.

GROW CORN FOR MAXIUM YIELDS OF SOUND GRAIN.

By W. E. Hinds, Entomologist, Auburn.

The title of this article expresses the ideal toward which the Department of Entomology has been working for several years past. It is the study of the insects affecting corn. For many years the object in seed selection evidently, has been to obtain a type of ear which would take the prize at some corn show. The objective which it seems to us that every practical farmer should have, is that expressed above.

The first step to be considered is to see that the seed ears are of a type that will resist insect attacks. A long tight-fitting shuck is more important than all other characters of the ear put together. If this shuck fits tightly over the tip of the ear and is closed so that the insects cannot obtain access to the grain, it is weevil resistant.

After the seed ears have been selected it is wise to shell off the kernels, especially at the tip and a few at the butt of the ear because they are irregular in size and shape and are most likely to be injured by insect attack. The ideal selection of seed corn must be done in the field in the Fall from the stalk, but where this has not been done the next best thing for the farmer to do is to take his seed ears from the crib, making certain that they are of a weevil resistant type. Medium size ears are undoubtedly preferable to extremely large ears, since they are generally better covered and are much more likely to have been borne two ears to the stalk.

Where seed corn is purchased it is desirable to have it shipped on the cob, as the type of the corn is shown far better in this way. In the course of several years of experimental work with close study of the corn in the fields and during the storage period, we have found that Whatley's Prolific is one of the best varieties, so far as weevil resistance and large yields are concerned. It is a medium sized ear of prolific type, and a very large proportion of the ears are well covered and pendant.

The second step in preventing insect damage to the crop is to arrange to have a small area of corn maturing three or four weeks before the main crop, which will act as a trap to concentrate the first generation of black weevils and other insects in the field. To be most effective, this trap can well be placed as near as convenient to the crib in which last year's crop was stored, as most of the insects pass the winter in the crib and spread from the infested crib to the field in a steady migration, beginning sometimes as early as March and continuing late in Summer. The earliest maturing corn always draws the heaviest attack of these insects, as nearly all farmers are aware. If the date of maturity is three or four weeks earlier than the main crop, there will be practically no cross breeding of the corn if different varities are used.

The trap plot of corn may be depended upon to concentrate practically all of the weevils in the field through a radius of approximately one-half mile

A great many of the most extensive corn growers in Alabama adopted these methods in the production of their 1918 corn crop and it is certain that these two steps may easily be worth millions of dollars to Alabama corn raisers in the season of 1919.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Briscoe Motor Has Big Title

HERALDED AS A HALF MILLION DOLLAR MOTOR, THE LIVELY BRISCOE DISTRIBUTOR FOR CHILTON COUNTY SAYS THAT THE BRISCOE HAS A HALF MILLION DOLLAR MOTOR IN IT WHICH BENJAMIN BRISCOE & HIS BROTHER, FRANK, DESIGNED OVER IN PARIS, FRANCE. LET THAT BE AS IT MAY; THE BRISCOE HAS GOT WONDERFUL POWER, AND THE WAY IT CLIMBS HILLS AND TUSSELS THRU MUD AND SAND INDICATES A POWER PLANT OF EXTRA ORDINARY PERFORMANCE.

The Motor is not all by any means, according to Mr. H. Honeycutt. Shock-absorbing, full eleptic springs are feature found only on the Briscoe and Franklin car. Honeycutt says the roughest bumps melt under the resilient springs and give a joy and comfort to the passengers.

The season is young, yet Mr. Honeycutt is disposing of this elegant car at a gratifying rate, and his ambition is to make Chilton County Briscoe County, seems that it will be more than mere boast.

STATE-WIDE WELCOME TO OLD FOURTH ALABAMA

Citizens of Chilton County are given a cordial invitation by the Fourth Alabama State-Wide Reception Committee to be in Montgomery the first week in May and do honor to Alabama's World Heroes on their return to the State.

The great state-wide celebration at Montgomery will be announced as soon as it is received from the War Department. The 167 Infantry (4th Alabama) will arrive in New York, April 27th, and will be met by a large delegation of Alabama citizens. The men will be encamped at Camp Mills until they start South to be received by their home people.

Governor Kilby will preside over the Welcome Exercises on the State Capitol grounds and the City of Montgomery will be covered with flowers and bunting. An all-day program will be provided and it promises to be the greatest occasion in the history of the State.

Soldiers of the 167th Infantry and mothers of all soldiers in this regiment, as well as members of their immediate families, are asked to send their names and addresses at once to Brame Hood, Chairman Committee on Invitations, Montgomery, Ala. Especial provisions will be made to honor these guests of the City. They will be given souvenirs, badges and other distinctions. The request should receive immediate attention in order to complete the plans of the Montgomery Committee.

A CHILD DOES NOT LAUGH AND PLAY IF COOSTIPATED

LOOK, MOTHER! IS TONGUE COATED, BREATH FEVERISH, STOMACH SOUR?

Laxcarin cannot Harm Tender Stomach, Lover and Bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time to empty their bowels, which becomes clogged up with waste liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, does not eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment give them a few Laxcarin tablets. Then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all the constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will move out of the bowels and you have a well payful child again. A thorough "inside cleaning" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any suckness.

Bewart of counterfits, of oils, syrups, slats. Accept no substitutes—they might harm your child. Laxcarin is an excellent remedy sor the mother herself, and for the other members of the family. It is never known to fail, and it works like a clock. It is best in obstinate cases or occasional constipation, for the relief of sick headaches, and on aid in colds and fevers, miner skin errptions and all disorders where the basis of the trouble is constipation. It aids digestion, relieves fermentation, neutralizes every acidity, stops the bloating of gas, aids sour stomach.

It is best on account of great demand to order enough for afull treatment at once, which is six boxes for five dollars. It is reallf worth uhile to the sufferer a million more. One box is only one dollar and hill be sent upon receipt of money order or cash by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept. E 171, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Leads Juniors of Southland

MISS VERNA PURSELL

Miss Verna Pursell, of New Orleans, director of the Department of Junior Activities, will lead the 48,269 Junior Red Cross members of the Gulf division in carrying out the new Peace Program of the Junior Red Cross. Until recently the Junior work had been conducted as a Bureau under the direction of the Department of Development, but since the expansion of the Juniors into so many new phases of work, National headquarters recently passed a ruling making the Junior activities a separate department in the Gulf Division as well as all other divisions in the United States, and Miss Pursell, who has been head of the Junior Bureau, was appointed director of the department.

Miss Pursell has been active in Junior Red Cross work since last November when she accepted a position in the Junior Bureau under Mrs. A. L. Gladden, Jr. Upon Mrs. Gladden's resignation in February, Miss Pursell was appointed director. Previous to her work in the Junior Department, she has been an active volunteer worker with the New Orleans chapter in the Surgical dressings department.

She has recently returned from Washington, where she attended a conference of the Junior Directors of the various divisions with the new leader, W. J. Studebaker, of Des Moines, Iowa, national director of Junior activities. Plans were perfected for carrying out the new Peace Program and the progress of Junior work in each division was discussed.

In the new plans for the Juniors of the Gulf division and of America it has been decided that the Juniors earn and give at least one-half million dollars a year so long as it may be necessary, to support projects for carrying relief to the suffering children of foreign lands. This is an appreciable sum and within the scope of their willingness. The system for the collection and distribution of these funds is now being perfected.

Lyman Bryson, a noted writer, who has contributed numerous articles to a great many magazines and newspapers of the United States, and who, during the past year, has been doing special types of publicity work for the American Red Cross, has sailed for Europe as a special representative of the Junior Red Cross abroad investigating and writing reports pertaining to the conditions. He will spend several months among the children in various countries, and the accomplishments of the Junior Red Cross of America in carrying on special forms of relief work among the children in Europe. He will also write an article each month for the Red Cross magazine.

Mr. Bryson has a master's degree from the University of Michigan, studied law in Georgetown and Columbia Universities, and for four years taught rhetoric and journalism in the University of Michigan. He is admirably fitted for the work abroad for the Junior Red Cross.

Miss Blanche Greer, an artist, will accompany Mr. Bryson to illustrate his various articles.

Chief of Red Cross Kiddies

W. J. STUDEBAKER

Ten million children rushed to enroll in the Junior Red Cross in the fall of 1917, when it was decided to organize them for work. They seized the opportunity to release their energies and demonstrate their belief in the outcome of the war against autocracy. The children all over the nation, realizing that they must work together, were asking what they could do. It was in this spirit that the Red Cross was organized, and having proven itself of so much value and so vital to the social accomplishments of the school, teachers throughout the country have learned that this spirit of service that the children have developed during the period of war must not be allowed to die.

W. J. Studebaker, formerly city superintendent of schools at Des Moines, Iowa, himself an educator, who has taken over the work of National Director of Junior Activities, realizes what a potent factor the education of the children of America in the spirit of service has been in the period of war and what it can develop under the new Peace Program for the Juniors. This new spirit, of service, this new power to do, the new impulse to give is awaiting the new Peace Program to find its outlet.

But the spirit of service, as epitomized in Junior Red Cross, must have the power of sympathy and the love of mankind behind it, in order to prevent mechanical effort. When these three factors are properly mixed in the work of the Juniors it makes the thing that stretches the hands of help across the sea.

Are You Happy?

To be happy you must be well. If you are frequently troubled with constipation and indigestion you can not be altogether happy. Take Chamberlain's Tablets to correct these disorders. They are prompt and effectual, easy and pleasant to take.

CHRISTIANS TORE UP WORLD; THEY MUST REBUILD THE WORLD

ON THIS THEME JUDGE Wm. H. THOMAS MADE A FORCEFUL ADDRESS AT THE METHODIST CHURCH ON SUNDAY.

As a layman of the Methodist church in Alabama, in support of world-wide Methodist Centenary Missionary Movement, Justice Wm. H. Thomas of the Supreme Court of Alabama spoke at the Methodist Church in Clanton last Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour. The address which he delivered was nothing short of a masterful handling of his subject, and it struck up a responseive chord in the minds of the church workers who are studying and praying in the interest of this gigantic undertaking of the Methodists of our country.

Judge Thomas began by outlining briefly the part that has been so nobly played by prominent laymen of the Methodist Church in the last century, in forwarding the aims and ideals of the church in a missionary way, in carrying the Bible and the gospel to parts and peoples of the world in darkness and in paganism. Mention was made and proper credit given to such great characters as the little Scotch maiden who walked forty miles to get a Bible after she had heard of the great story book. George Williams and Robert Fox and the famous negro named Gilbert. An especially high tribute was paid to Gilbert for his work as a missionary among the Cumberland Indians; and to his efforts was credited the inspiration among Methodists for Missionary work.

From the visions of these devoted characters of a hundred years ago, Judge Thomas declared that Methodists first gained their inspirations and founded their efforts to carry the word of God to every person under the sun. He stated that the great force of the church had been put behind that vision, and hence this centenary movement in commemoration among methodists of the beginning of the world-wide Mssionary spirit in the Methodist church. Judge Thomas said, "One hundred years ago the methodist church caught the vision of its opportunity. This year is the centenary of that inspiration."

The speaker impressed upon his hearers his definition of democracy and thereupon based the theme of his diffusion of various church relations and Christian activities in the world. He said: "Democracy is the spirit of fair play, finding expression in the greatest affairs of life." Upon this definition of democracy he took up the subject of religious practices, and with his definition as a gauge he measured many of the important church movements in the world, showing that those churches and those governments only, which measured up to this standard had stood the test of the word of God and accomplished worth while and lasting good among the people who practiced the same.

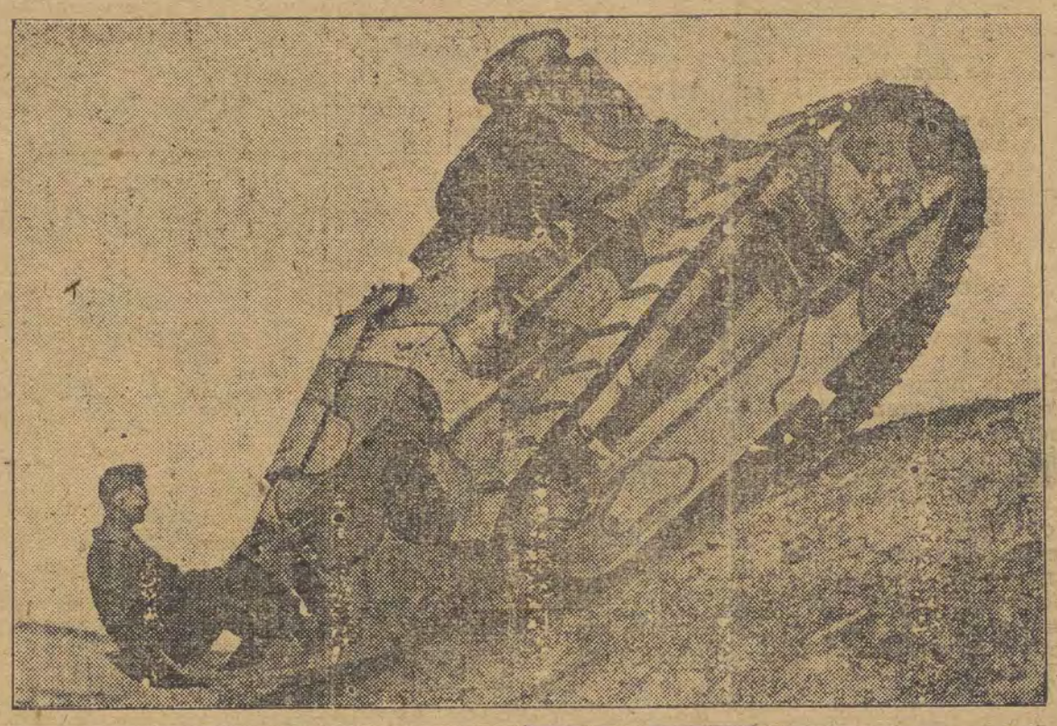
With credit given to religion and religious influence for the foundation of our government constitutions, the Judge asserted that there can be no such thing as separation of church and state in a democracy that insures a spirit of fair play finding expression in the greatest affairs of life. He proved that the Catholic idea of a religious autocracy would not work among people because it could not be measured by his definition of fundamental safe democracy; and that the religion of Confucius was not reliable because it was founded on superstition and ignorance rather than the spirit of universal knowledge of fair play finding expression in the teachings and practices of the religion.

Great emphasis was laid upon the torn and unsettled condition of the world growing out of the great conflict which the speaker asserted that the Christians of the world had themselves brought upon the world. He declared that the minds of men, nations governments and religious ideals are so mixed that they cannot be untangled. It would seem that his great idea was to reconstruct out of the ruins a new structure that will be adequate for the needs of our changed conditions. And reiterated that in the great centenary movement the Methodists have taken upon themselves the task to do their part in making the world; and he admonished the other denominations likewise to take hold and perform their part of the task.

Judge Thomas made mention of the fact that he favored sometimes the use of the language of the boy of the street to express his ideas, because he said: "In the street is where most people live, and the street language is what most of us use."

One most striking thing about the great speech of Judge Thomas was his definition of religion. It is, as he said, "A harness by which we pull ourselves toward the doing of something." Further he said: "The Methodists have one kind of harness, the Baptists a little different kind and so on with other denominantnionns; but all of them a harness which we get into to pull the religious wagon up the hill which we have got to climb."

Here Judge Thomas struck the core of his theme:—"That the Christian people of the world had torn the world to pieces in the great war, and that it is their job to put it back together so it will be a safe place for democracy, and by a rule of democracy that will be safe for the world, in all and after all making the world a safe place to live in.



He spoke at length of the great lessons that have been taught us in the tearing up on the world, and said:

"If you are not bigger minded and broader of vision than you were before the great conflict, you have been cheated out of something; and you yourself are the thief that has robbed you of your own intellect."

The closing remarks of Judge Thomas were directed toward the great task confronting the Christian world in rebuilding the world for the future. He painted a word picture of the duties that lie ahead of the church people that was indeed an impressive portrayal of the gigantic mountainous task. The new conditions were outlined very forcibly.

His closing words were these: "The Methodists will carry their end of the stick; will the other denominations come up with theirs?"

MT. PLEASANT ITEMS

Note—This correspondence was intended for last week's issue, but arrived too late.—Editor.

Rev. L. W. Thomas filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Marshall Dozier and grandchildren, Dewey and Callie Dozier, spent Saturday and Sunday at W.A. Dozier's.

R. W. Ward and family spent the week end with B. H. Jones near Mulberry.

Emmett Blankenship and family spent the week end with home folks.

Strawberry picking is all the go now. G. H. Massey and L. M. Rowell have a lot of them.

Fred Williams of Billingsley recently visited L. O. Vickers.

We are glad to say Frank Massey's baby who has had pneumonia is about well again.

Miss Alvie Dozier is still on sick list, but seems to be improving some.

Quite a number of our young people attended the singing at Poplar Springs Sunday.

The children all enjoyed the Easter Egg Hunts Sunday afternoon at G. W. Robinson's and Mrs. Ethel Burnett's.

Miss Mae Ham spent Saturday night with Miss Lillian and Ruebelle Collins. LITTLE VIEWER.

THE LAWS AND THE VERITIES

Washington, April 28.—The following statement was given out by the Repeblican Publicity Association:

Every ancient maxim contains a wealth of truth. If it had not contained truth it would not have survived long enough to become either a maxim or ancient. Here, for instance, is the old saying that "one can lead a horse to water but ten men can't make him drink." In these words we have a statement of truth that should be hung upon the walls of bureaucracy's offices in Washington, where officialdom has gone mad with the desire to tell all creation how to live and move and have its being. Just now we have in mind the visionary schemes to put returned soldiers on farms. Officialdom can lead a million soldiers up to the land, but it can't maket hem farm. Canada has tried it and failed. If Uncle Sam also tries it, he will also fail. This is not sayng that none of the reurned soldiers will go to the farm. A great many of them will. But they will go there of their own accord and not through the leadership of an official who is careful to keep away from the soil himself.

The trouble with the present autocratic administration is that it tells the returning soldiers to go to the farms and then does everything possible to keep them away. Hours of labor and wages are made as attractive as possible in cities or on railroads, while conditions remain practically unchanged in the country. In fact, conditions are less attractive for the farmer who must hire some help, for he finds increasing difficulty in persuading men to leave the city to work on a farm.

The whole policy of this administration has been one of attemptetd overthrow of economic law—an effort to prevent water seeking its level, an effort to dislocate the center of gravity, an effort to remake human nature by law or executive edict. Price-fixing, government operation, artificial and inequitable wage scales, are illustrations of the determination of self constituted omnipotents to perform modern miracles. The performances have taken place—their miraculous character has not become apparent for the reason that the eternal law of compensation is still in operation and the country is paying in one form or another for the attempt to set aside natural law.

Whenever the governmental "back to the farm" bureaus find themselves embarassed by a flood of resignations from employees who are quitting government jobs to go on the farms, we may expect to find soldiers flocking to agricultural occupations. Until then, soldiers will go to the farms when they feel so disposed, just as a horse will drink when he's thirsty.

LARGE WAR TANK PARADES OVER STREETS OF CLANTON

In boosting the Victory Liberty loan campaign, there was in Clanton all day Tuesday one of the large war tanks which has been in the thickest of the fighting in France, roaming over the streets of Clanton. The machine performed many thrilling and exciting stunts such as smashing down trees, crawling over ditches, etc.

Close observation of the hull of the turtle-like German-choser, showed evidence that it had been "around the horn," there being several dents that almost went through the inch-thick steel hull.

HORSE THIEF OPERATING IN NORTH CHILTON

Last Sunday night a thief made a clean sweep in the northern part of Chilton County, rigging himsef up a mule and buggy and passing on to parts unknown. A bridle was stolen at Ms. Rachel's, a set of harness was taken from Joe Broadhead's, a buggy was secured at W. M. Aldridge's and a mule corralled at S. F. Champion's.

None of the persons from whom the goods were stolen were aware of what had been done until the next morning, by which time the thief was probably several miles on his journey to somewhere. No clue as all was left as to the parties who committed the deed. A reward is offered for apprehension of the guilty ones.

Robert Baker who has been overseas for several months is at home again.

PRESENT-DAY EXAMPLES OF THE PRACTICES OF ROMANISM.

Every priest of the Roman Catholic church is, according to the teachings and edicts of the priesthood, the oath-bound enemy and aggressive persecutor of Protestants. Every Knight of Columbus is an oath-bound traitor to this republican form of government of ours in America.

By its fundamental law the Roman church is the avowed enemy of democracy, self-government, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, religious liberty, secular education, civil marriage and modern progress of every kind. The Roman church could not live and thrive under a practice of that democracy that guarantees the free exercise of the highest ideals of human progress, finding expression in the greatest affairs of life. Hence the form of religious autocracy which Rome practices cannot be set up as a religion that is safe for the people of the world to practice and depend upon.

By the laws and teachings of Rome, no soul can be saved outside her pale; no man can question the edicts of the Pope; no man can read the Bible without permission of the priest; no man can lawfully wed the woman of his choice unless a priest officiates. A few days ago the great Father McKee, a priest down in Montgomery, the capital of our state, issued a declaration that the marriage covenant was not a function belonging to the civil laws of the state, but to the church. And of course, when a priest says the church he can mean none other than the Catholic church, and everybody knows this to be so.

Then you have the beloved Montgomery Advertiser bringing into your home unchallenged and undenied, supported and upheld by its nasty hands, the flaming statement of Father McKee, that only Catholic priests have the right to perform the marriage covenant.

If Father McKee had gone on and made clear his meaning he would have told you that Protestant marriage, or civil law marriage is filthy concubinage. Pope Pius IX said it; the law of the Council of Trent said it; and Father McKee said it.

By saying that the marriage covenant belongs to the church (the Catholic church) Father McKee virtually says that our mothers, our wives, our married daughters were and are filthy concubines. And by publishing such filthy and unholy rot without any word of denial or protest offered The Monegomery Advertiser becomes the peddler of the pernicious stuff that Father McKee pukes up, and smears it in the faces of people over Alabama till it makes them sick at the stomach.

We don't suppose for a minute that the Advertiser and other daily papers that we could mention in Alabama, would endorse these natural and perfectly logical deductions from Father McKee. But we do suppose and charge openly that those papers have not got guts enough to oppose these pernicious hounds that are poisoning the pure atmosphere of our homes, our altars, and our public places day by day with their filthy teachings of the Roman church. When Rome belches forth a spell of her stench, these papers just shudder at the awfulness of it and print what they say and publish it to the world, because they are afraid not to do it.

There was a man in Clanton Monday representing the anti-cigarette league, and he was working and distributing literature in the interest of the move now on foot to get the next legislature of Alabama to pass a law forbidding the sale of cigarettes in this state. We hope the movement is a success. Cigarettes are a great evil, and the only way to keep us fellows from smoking them is to fix it so we can't get them.

Returned soldiers and sailors of Chilton County are looking forward with interest to the big day that Thorsby is planning for them on May 10. The occasion promises to be one of much pleasure to our army and navy men and their friends.. A detailed announcement of the day's program will be made public in a few days. The Thorsby citizens will put the proposition over in good style, you may depend upon that.

CAN THERE BE NO SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE?

In his splendid address at the Methodist Church in Clanton last Sunday, Judge Wm. H. Thomas made the statement that "There can be no separation of church and State." To our mind and according to our way of reasoning, this statement invites a very extensive breath of discussion.

To begin with, we find two propositions staring us in the face. By one course of thinking we find the conclusion that the church and the State should not be entirely separated. Then on pursuit of another course dissecting the meaning of the assertion, we are convinced that the church and the state should be entirely and altogether separated. These are the first off-hand conclusions we reach.

Now we face the double proposition that the church and the state on the one hand should not be separated, and on the other that they should be separated. But if they should be together they should not be separate; and if they should be separate they should not be together.

We cannot leave the matter in this kind of a fix, for it is reduced to an absurdity. Let's go a bit further and see what we may find. Let us take up the thing that we call religion, which is so closely interwoven with the church, and make a brief examination of it for a moment before we proceed.

First, what is religion in its pure analysis? Religion is the feeling of reverence which men entertain towards a supreme being or to any order of beings conceived by them as deserving reverence from the possession of super-human control over the destiny of man or the powers of nature; more especially the recognition of God as an object of worship, love and obedience. Religion denotes the influences and motives to human duty which are found in the character and will of the diety, the most popular expression of which is embodied in the teachings of Christ upon earth.

Now, let us go back to what we call a church and analyze that. What is it? A church denotes the system of beliefs, ideals practices or cenceptions which man entertains respecting the God whom he worships. In the various churches there are many systems of belief, many different ideas of religious practice, and numerous different conceptions that are to be performed through the impelling forces of religion. The church is simply a mode of expressing one's conception of religion and the interpretations of the teachings of the Holy Boble. The church is a formality that is supposed always to be founded on some certain conception of religion. Church creeds differ; they may be Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Catholic or what not. The practice of any of these creeds should be left a matter optionary with each and every individual to be partaken of and employed under what we believe to be a proper and just determinate right of religious liberty.

Now, can the church and state be separated? We say, yes. Should the church and state be separated? We say, yes, again. Well, why?

The state, that is the government, has nothing to do with how a man shall worship the diety. The only duty of the state in connection with the church is to guarantee freedom of religious practice to any and all churches or creeds, that they may have the right to worship under their own vine and fig tree, according to the dictates of their own conscience. The state should also seek to make plain and further the idea that it desires no connection with the church. The line of distinction between church and state should be kept plain and clearly discernable—the point where one's duty ceases and the other begins should be constantly renewed and made plainer and plainer.

Well, then, can the state and religion be separated. We say, no, not if the state is to survive and prosper and manifest itself as a system of fair play finding expression in the greatest affairs of life. Religion is democracy. The state must be founded upon democracy if it is to be worth while; hence, it must be founded upon religion.

Judge Thomas said that the church had written every government constitution in history. What he meant was that religion had written every constitution of governments. It may not be literally true after all that religion has underlaid every state constitution, but it is essentially true in far the greater number of instances anyway.

Nobody wants to live under a government that is founded on anything other than religion. We must have men to write our constitutions who recognize God as an object of worship, love and obedience, holding supreme power over the eternal destiny of all humanity.

But beyond this recognition of the divinity which is the real test of religion, we should not go in our constitutions, for beyond this commences the church creed, and the individual must be free to choose his way from here on, and not have his way dictated to him by any person or any constitution.

There must be total separation of church and state, in so far as political affairs are concerned. But the spirit of Christianity should underly and must support the whole works of our governments and our constitutions.

Clanton had the pleasure of seeing its first real war tank Tuesday. Many people viewed the machine with interest. It was one of the real tanks that were used against the Germans last year, and bore several scars of the conflict. The tanks did a large part of the work of subduing the Germans. It is a machine conceived by the British upon the ideas of the American tractor.

A FUTILE POLL.

As a meanes of ascertaining the sentiment of the people of the countryupon the question of a League of Nations anumber of newspapers have been conducting a poll. With very few exceptions, this balloting has proven nothing that was not thouroughly known before. The vote has been overwhelming in favor of a league, which was the inevitable result of the method of voting adopted. The general question that was put was: "are you for or against a Leauge of Nations?" That begs entirely the question that is before the American people. That is not the issue for the country to decide, much as President Wilson endeavored to make it so.

What the Senate will be called upon to approve is a specific league covenant, with its provisions down in black and white. If these protect American rights, and do not discard things essential to our national life, the amended constitution will be approved. There has never been any doubt as to where the country stood if a satisfactory plan could be worked out. The United States has been the leader among nations in behalf of international ambition and the substitution of a competent tribunal for war as the ajuster of international dispute. It has proven its good faith by submitting such questions that affected itself, and by standing by the judgment rendered. To take a ballot among American citizens upon such a general question is no more important than to seek a verdict as to whether our people prefer right or wrong, or peace to war.

Taking a poll as it has been taken in most cases has been a sheer waste of time and paper. A few newspapers have been sensible enough to ask opinions as to whether the plan as brought back by the President should be amended, and the response in favor of such amendment has been a large majority of the votes cast. Are the amendments sufficient? that is the real question before the senate and the country. America is willing and eager to go as far in a league plan as she can with justic to her traditions and fair protection to her national rights. Further than that she neither desires intends to go. And no poll of any kind was necessary to establish that fact. —Phila. Press

BAD BREATH

Puts Stomach in Fine Condition. Laxcarin Tablets get at the Cause and Remove bad Breath.

Laxcarin tablets for which there is no substitute of any worthy consideration, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Laxcarin tablets. The pleasant chocolate coated tablets are taken by all who know not them only for bad breath but for the cause of bad breath itself which is most usually caused by stomach disorders such as indigestion, soury and gassy stomach, where there is much bloating of gases, etc. Laxcarin tablets are also very good for constipation, whether it is a chronic case or whether it may be only occasional. Laxcarin gently forces the bowels to move at the same time compels the toxans and other poisons which accumulate in the bowels and the kidneys to leave the system. Laxcarin stimulates the bowels and the liver into natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. Laxcarin does this work without any danger, and without any bad effects which are usually caused by others.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening gripping cathartics are derived from Laxcarin tablets without gripping, or pain or any other disagreeable effects.

Laxcarin tablets' formula is not a secret preparation and the same formula is being used by thousands of physicians all over the world. Only so far it has been obtainable only by physicians prescriptions. It is the prescription of a very famous professor.

Laxcarin is a purely vegetable compound. You will like them after a trial. Will never want to be without it. It is really a very good family laxative.

It is best to order enough for a full treatment at once, which is six boxes for five dollars, as on account of the very changing market conditions and on account of the many repeat orders we are hardly able to full the orders. One box is only one dollar and it is worth a million more to the sufferer because is relieves and because it works like a clock. Will be sent upon receipt of remittance post paid. CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. F. Gable, Pastor.

There are many intelligent people who deny that the Easter rabbit lays eggs for the benefit of the children, and colored them with markings of all kinds. But this preacher knows better than that. Not only did the rabbit lay eggs but he laid a large wash basket packed high with all kinds of pretty clothing and other useful things on the pastor's front porch, rang the bell and then ran away. At first the preacher thought that the family washing had been brought home, but was assured that it had already been brought. He then gingerly poked the pile with one finger to see if anything would holler, thinking that possibly another Gable had been added to the house. But not so. Remembrance then came that just a year before the rabbit had performed a similar trick and so investigation was made.

Not a single member of the family had been overlooked, and there are quite a number to the family. There were numerous evidences of much work done by loving hands, and tho their names are not positively known, yet the affection manifested makes the pastor family feel very unworthy and humble.

Next Sunday night, Dr. Wm. H. Smith of Birmingham, will occupy the Baptist pulpit and the pastor will be in Thorsby, each to carry a special message.

The next meeting of the Ministers and Deacons of the Chilton County and Unity Associations will be held in Clanton Baptist Church on next Monday morning at 9:30. The subject will be "The Purpose and Benefits of a Monthly Ministers and Deacon's Meeting." All who are interested or have any curosity about it are invited to come.

MT. NEBO SINGING SOCIETY

The Mt. Nebo Singing Society held its regular meeting at Mt. Nebo Church last Sunday with a full class and a number of visitors, all of which we were proud to see.

The singing was opened with song and prayer by the chairman, who directed a short lesson while the program committee arranged the program.

There was a splendid male quartet rendered by Messrs Calvin Parrish, Sam Culp, Blanco Durbin, and F. I. Popwell; also a well mixed quartet by Mesdames Zellie Scott and Ollie Williams, Messrs Vaughn McKee and William Cox.

The directors for the afternoon were Messrs Jim Dunlap, Eugene Williams, Vonnie Culp, William Cox, Sam Culp, Sim Henley, F. I. Popwell and Calvin Parrish, ten minutes each.

The singing was closed by song by the chairman and prayer by Mr. Popwell. The society will meet again next second Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us at these meetings.

VICTORY LOAN WORKERS' MEDAL

Medal made from captured German cannon, to be distributed among the best workers in the Victory Loan campaign which began last Monday. Forty thousand of these will be distributed in the South, the awards being made by the zone chairmen.

VICTORY CAMPAIGN STARTS WITH BOOM; NEW LOAN POPULAR

Interest At 4¾% Per Cent And Four-Year Term Pleases The Public

Atlanta, Ga.—The Victory Loan campaign has got off to a flying start, to judge from the telegrams pouring in upon the district headquarters within the first few days of the big drive. That the Sixth Federal Reserve District will go over the top with a bang is indicated by the early results, though it will require the co-operation of every citizen to make success assured.

The announcement of the terms of the Victory Loan did a great deal to inspire subscriptions from those who invested from a business standpoint as well as from patriotic motives. The notes pay 4 3/4%, the highest interest of any of the Liberty Loan series, and are payable by the government in four years after date. This high interest and the short term makes them certain to remain at a high figure, financiers say, and there will be no danger of their dropping to a discount.

Secretary Carter Glass has announced positively that this will be the last of the Liberty loans. It will pay the bill for defeating the Hun and bring the boys back home.

The campaign all over the district was opened with parades and great celebrations. In Atlanta the central part of the city was more elaborately decorated than ever before in history. In several of the larger cities the "flying circus" of airplanes fought mimic battles in the air high above the streets. Secretary Glass is to deliver an address in Atlanta on May 1.

Chairmen all over the Southern states are reporting that the Victory loan is easier to put over than they had expected.

"Our people have not lost their patriotism," they report. "There was an apparent apathy. We had begun to believe the public thought the war was all over and there was no use in subscribing to more bonds. But we were wrong. The American—city man, town man, farmer,—is willing to pay his share of the war bill, and he is proving it."

That is the patriotic side of the matter. On the business side, the short term bonds or notes appear to strike the public eye favorably. The average man is more willing to tie up his money for four years than for a longer period, and the fact that the government promises to pay in four years makes the securities more easily negotiable at full price than if a period of twenty years were involved.

The quota for the district is $144,000,000. Several counties reported arly on the first day that their quotas had been reached, and asked for Victory Loan honor flags, which are to be awarded to every community oversubscribing its share. The fair and square individual quota system adopted by many counties helped to carry them over the top on "Volunteer Days," the first two days of the campaign. In the Third Loan campaign every county in the district went over and an effort is being made to repeat this performance this time.

MY RECOVERY IS WONDERFUL SAYS A GADSDEN FARMER

Been a Long time Sufferer from Constipation, Stomach and Kidney Trouble Dreco, the new Herbal Remedy, gave relief.

"For ten years my wife suffered from a bad case of stomach trouble, constipation, pains in har back and aching limbs," says Mr. J. W. Hayes, the well known farmer of Route 4, Gadsden, Ala.

"Her food would sour in her stomach and foul gas would bloat her up; she had dull, heavy, aching pains in her back, over her kidneys; constipation was daily a menace, and her nerves were shattered. Sleep was broken and did not rest her, and her appetite had about failed. Although she had taken many different medicones, none helped much, until she took Dreco, the new herbal stomach remedy. The second day after she started on Dreco, the felt better, and has continued to improve ever since. The constipation has passed off; her food digests well, and does not swell up in her stomach; she has no more pains in her back, and her sleep is sound and refreshing; she can now live in comfort, whereas life before was a burden."

Many people are daily testifying to the good results of Dreco treatment in cases of weak kidneys, sluggish liver, poor digestion, gas, rhumatism and constipation.

All good druggists now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE SHAPE

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid in Stomach.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays or rather ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermenting. Thus everything eateu sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can forming acrid fluids and gasses which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a belch up of gas, we erobate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water brash or nausea. Coupled with this condition of the stomach a case neglected and a chronic case of constipation—and you have the worst enemy known to mankind.

In a case of this sort it is best to take a Laxcarin tablet twice a day, morning and at night, until the entire condition is remedied. The remedying of a condition of this sort usually depends upon the length of time the person has been suffering from indigestion or constipation. Because one can expect to remedy an abnormal condition which has probably been lasting for years without a few weeks. However, it is safe to say that almost immediate relief is experienced directly after taking Laxcarin for a few days. While relief follows usually the first tablet or two, it is essential to keep up the treatment to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Laxcarin is very inexpensive and it is made out of pure vegetable herbs It is absolutely harmless and it is used by a great many people. It's formula is not a secret to the medical world in general as a matter of fact it is being used by thousands and thousands of physicians in daily every-day life. This harmless preparation is used by a great many people for stomach trouble and constipation. Laxcarin is sold exclusively by the Laxcarin Products Co., Dept., E171, Pittsburgh, Pa. Price for full treatment of six boxes only five dollars. One box only costs one dollar, but it is worth a million to sufferers as it relieves them so well and as it works like a clock.

About Rheumatism.

People are learning that it is only a waste of time an money to take meicine internally for chronic and muscular rhumatism, and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.

HONOR EMBLEMS FOR VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN

Four distinct honor emblems have been provided by the Liberty Loan Organization of the Sixth Federal Reserve District for The Victory Loan campaign, April 21 to May 10.

There will be two flags in the competition among communities. Another type of flag will be awarded to industrial plants, stores, factories and other organizations, and a paper emblem will be awarded to households.

The flag which will be most sought after is the one to be awarded to communities which have oversubscribed their quotas in all loans. The design is very much like the Fourth Liberty Loan flag—white, with red border and four vertical stripes, and one traverse stripe, resembling a tally mark. In the first campaign the cities and counties were not assigned quotas. It has been decided to accept a statement from the county chairman that the counties did their part in the first loan as authority to warrant the issuance of the flag provided they have gone "over the top" in subsequent campaigns.

The community honor flag for the Victory Loan is of a somewhat similar design. The blue "V," signifying Victory occupies the white field in the center. This emblem will be awarded to all communities which reach their quotas in the final drive.

A special flag has been provided for organizations. The design resembles the community flag, with an additional inscription as follows: "The Victory Liberty Loan Industrial Honor Emblem. Awarded by the United States Treasury Department." The industrial emblem will be given to every organization, seventy-five per cent of whose members subscribe to the Victory Loan. It is a handsome cloth flag, suitable for flying over buildings or decorating windows.

A neat little emblem will be awarded to every household in the district in which every member or employee buys Victory Loan short-term notes or bonds. This is an attractive design in two colors, carrying the inscription "Household 100 per cent honor emblem Victory Liberty Loan. Awarded by the United States Treasury Department."

Every town and county in the district is striving for the community flag. Leaders in church organizations; employers in factories, stores and offices and others are urging their members and employes to subscribe so that they may win the right to fly the flag. Thousands of them are being awarded throughcut the ccuntry, and this district will get its share if the people do not lag in making their subscriptions to the Victory Loan.

HAVE YOU SPRAYED YOUR ORCHARD?

G. C. Starcher, Horticulturist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

All orchard trees, berry bushes and grapevines should have received a thorough spraying in the winter, or dormant season, but if this was not done it is not too late now to accomplish great good and perhaps save the entire fruit crop from destruction during the present season. If insects and diseases are left unchecked, the entire crop may be destroyed and the trees and vines very greatly injured before it will be possible to apply strong winter spray solutions at the end of the growing season. Failure to spray in the winter of course has made it impossible to grow as high class fruit in the summer season as could have been done had the winter spraying not been neglected.

However, the Department of Horticulture has time and again taken up the spraying of neglected orchards, after the fruit has set, and produced a beautiful crop of excellent, though not perfectly clean, fruit during that season. Fruit growers who have not been practicing spraying for a number of years are inclined to hesitate purchasing spray machinery or supplies until they are certain the trees are going to set a crop of fruit. Such a method of procedure, of course, is not followed by those who are fully alive to the importance of an early application but if you happen to fall in this class do not hesitate longer but prepare your machinery and secure your materials so that the spraying can be done as quickly now as possible.

The writer was talking to a very intelligent young man from one of the best fruit Counties in Alabama a few days ago and was informed that his County could not produce fruit because the trees always died after they produced one crop. This opinion seems to be general but nothing more fallacious can possibly be conceived. Apple trees in the College orchards, twenty-five years of age, are just as healthy as they were the day they were planted. Our peach trees, which have borne five crops, made as strong growth the past season as they ever made, while bearing their heaviest crop. The only difference between the trees this young man had observed and the trees in the College orchard is that ours have been protected from their enemies, while those he observed had been left to the ravages of disease and insect enemies.

Every reader of this article should write to the Department of Horticulture, Auburn, Alabama, at once for information on the following subjects:

Spray materials that will prevent worms and rots in apples, peaches, plums and grapes and other orchard and garden crops.

This information is contained in bulletin form, so simply and clearly stated that it is easily understood.

SELECTION OF VELVET BEAN SEED.

By M. H. Pearson, Assistant Agronomist.

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

To grow a profitable crop of any kind, good seed is of prime importance. The poor quality of velvet bean that is found throughout the state makes the possibility of getting good velvet bean seed rather limited. While traveling over the greater portion of the velvet bean producing section of the State, different Extension workers have made inquiries regarding velvet beans and the answer in most cases was that there were no beans for sale, and the few that are in the hands of the farmers are poor in quality compared to former years.

Other sections of the state are calling for velvet bean seed and quite a number are being shipped from one point in the state to other sections, but it is going to be next to impossible to secure good seed for planting purposes. It should be the practice of every man who buys velvet bean seed this year to run a germination test on them before buying, if possible, and especially before planting, in order to determine what percentage of the beans will germinate. This can be done in a small pan or box.

A double layer of cheese cloth, sheeting, or some similar cloth may be used for running a germination test. A representative sample of one or two hundred beans should be taken from the lot of seed beans, and placed between the layers of cloth and the cloth kept damp in the box or pan mentioned above. The box may be placed during the day in a window where the sun may strike it, provided the day is rather warm. If not, it may be kept near the kitchen stove or some other suitable place. By this simple method any farmer can determine for himself whether his seed are good and how many he will be required to plant in order to get a good stand.

People who have any velvet beans left over from the 1917 crop that have not gone through a heat and have been kept dry will do well to use these in preference to 1918 crop beans.

Every farmer who expects to grow velvet beans in the 1919 crop should begin now to make arrangements for seed as the scarcity of seed will surely make them in great demand.

In case any one should fail to get good velvet bean seed, they should not fail to grow a legume in with the corn. In North Alabama or the Tennessee Valley section the soy bean may be grown with good success while in the southern part of the state the cow pea will give the best success.

How Many Women Are in Trouble Today?

By J. R. HAMILTON

Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

All of you women whose husbands have told you you have been spending too much money, please stand up. Great Scott! Every married woman in America is on her feet.

All you who are earning your own living and spending as much as you earn please stand up.

Now we've got the rest of them.

"Well," you say, "now that you've got us standing here what are you going to do about it?"

I'm going to give you the first law of business:

Cut your expenses down first, and then find out how you can do it afterward.

Every big institution carries what it calls a "butcher."

When the expenses of that institution begin to eat up the profits the "butcher" issues a sweeping order to cut down so many hundreds of dollars a day. He doesn't ask how it can be done. He knows it has to be done if his business is going to continue, and he leaves it to the people under him to find out how.

This cutting seldom if ever ruins a business. It simply sharpens the wits of those who are left.

Now let's take your case. Instead of taking the money that you think you ought to have, suppose you take the money that you have actually got. In your case, being both "butcher" and buyer, you naturally have to sharpen your own wits.

Therefore the first thing you begin to do each day (just as you are going to do now in a minute or two) is to open this paper and see what special inducement each store is offering in the things that are necessary for you to buy. You look for the clothes, and the shoes, the children's dresses and suits, the underwear, the house needs, and all of the various necessities and luxuries demanded in your standard of life.

The next thing to do is to cut out all those snobbish, exclusive, little nonadvertising concerns, who find it somehow beneath their dignity to sell their goods at less than a profit of several hundred per cent.

The third thing you do is to reckon up your savings at the end of a week or two.

And the fourth thing you do is to stand amazed at the amount you have saved in spite of the amount you have bought.

Now of course this is letting you in behind the scenes.

There isn't a buyer in any store who doesn't have to bring himself up with a jerk or get brought up with a jerk every once in a while, and who doesn't also stand amazed at what he has been able to accomplish with a smaller amount of capital and a greater amount of energy and a little extra thimbleful of brains.

Now don't tell anybody you have been behind the scenes, but just dig into the advertising in this paper quietly for the next few days; cut out the "dropping-in-anywhere" method of shopping; make a business of your household expenditures, and see if this little financial plan doesn't relieve your terrible money strain.

SALEM SINGING.

The twentieth annual singing will be held at Salem churcch, near Coosa River, on the Fourth Sunday in May. Everybody come. We expect the biggest and best singing in our history.

J. W. CLECKLER, Sec.

W. A. Calloway of Verbena, was a visitor to Clanton on Wednesday of this week.

Attorney R. Nelson Brassell is preparing to remove to Montgomery, to take up the practice of law again in that city. His many friends in Clanton will regret that he is to leave us. He has been in Clanton, associated with Col. A. C. Smith in the practict of law for nearly a year, and has established a reputation as a sterling young man. We hope him success in the future, wherever he may go.

CORINTH NEWS

Dear Editor:—Please allowe me space in your paper for a few words.

Health here is very good at the present time.

Everybody seems to be enjoying the nice warm weather.

Farmers are getting along fine with their work. Mose of them are practically through planting.

So far as we can learn, there is a very good stand of cotton among the farmers here.

Everybody seemed to enjoy the memorial service at the old soldiers home Sunday.

There was a singing at Verbena church Sunday, and Mr. H. C. Collins from Coosa County was the principal leader.

Mr. Bernie Manning from Birmingham was visiting his father and mother here Saturday.

Mrs. Goggins of Mt. Creek visited her daughter, Mrs. Manning Sunday.

Come on everybody and let's try to improve our Sunday School.

Some of our people have received a letter from one of our soldier boys in South Carolina, Mr. Henry Jones. He sayes that he is living fine and is waiting for his time to come around that he may return home to father and mother and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Jones of this place are not hearing very often from their son, Archie Jones, who is in France. We wish for his early return to home.

Come on you writers to the Union-Banner, and lets make it more interesting to the many readers.

A READER.

Rev. W. J. Armstrong deliveder an address at Thorsby on last Saturday, the occasion being the I.O.O.F. Anniversary Celebration for Chilton County Odd Fellows.

Messrs George Wyatt of Alred Drug Co., Jean Wyatt of the Union-Banner and Lonza Parrish of W. A. Kemp's, went fishing on Coosa River on last Thursday afternoon.

FREE SPRINGS.

Health of this community is very good at present except a few cases of colds.

Farmers around here are busy trying to get all their grain in the ground for their new crops. Gardens are in good condition; chickens growing fast and we will soon have lots of nice fryers to eat.

The Easter egg hunt at Mr. Cofer's was a happy time for all present.

H. Cofer and family spent Sunday at L. A. Brown's.

Misses Lexa Brown, Thelma and Myrtle Cofer paid Misses Lorena and Liose Prim a visit Sunday afternoon.

Master Roy Rayborn is all smiles since he bought himself a new Beckwith organ with the money he got for his pigs.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore McAdory, Miss Smith, Mr. Screws and Miss Ethel Prim motored down from the city of Birmingham Sunday to J. C. Prim's.

Several of the boys from France are at home.

It is quite amusing to read the comment to Mr. K. C. Mahan's letters, for he is a full-blooded what you call them.

W. S. S. SALES IN ALABAMA BY COUNTIES

Birmingham, Ala., April 4.—Everyone in Alabama will be interested in knowing what the state did in the War Savings campaign in 1918. The following table compiled at the headquarters of the state committee shows the sales by counties. These, it will be noted, in every instance is below the quota fixed by the national committee, but all the same the showing is regarded, both at Washington and at state headquarters, as very good indeed. No "band wagon" methods were used in Alabama—these are solid sales:

Mr. Thomas Foshee visited Mr. Farr at Mr. Rowell's Saturday night.

Sunday school is moving along nicely considering so many all day singings for the young people to go to. LITTLE VIEWER.

Do Your Best.

Everyone should do all he can to provide for his family and in order to do this he must keep his physical system in the best condition possible. No one can reasonably hope to do much when he is half sick a good share of the time. If you are constipated, bilious or troubled with indigestion, get a package of Chamberlain's Tablets and follow the plain printed directions, and you will soon be feeling all right and able to do a day's work.

E. C. POWELL, Mgr.

"LET'S MAKE IT UNANIMOUS."

Z. E. Bellah, who is state field representative among the postoffices, has a slogan which he has worked with marked success among the postoffices, and which can be used in appealing to all citizens. It is this: "You postoffice employes get thirty days' steady work every month from Uncle Sam. Why not lend him one day out of the thirty on interest?"

During the war we were urged to "give" a day's earnings to the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and such causes, and many of us did it cheerfully.

Now there is not one of us, no matter whether we are rich or poor, who cannot afford to lend one day's wages, salary or income to the Government. Our money will be in the best security any Government ever offered, it will earn good interest, and we can get it back any time we really need it. And the finest thing about the proposition is that when we start on it we have adopted a plan which will roll up for us a big, substantial sum, that will enable us to do something worth while.

If every one in Alabama "lent a day to Uncle Sam," in a few years there would be money enough in Alabama to make this State financially independent of outside help.

HONEST CONFESSION GOOD FOR THE SOUL

IT MAY SOUND LIKE A FUNERAL TO SOME OF "THE DYED-IN-THE-WOOL" BOYS; BUT THE ADVERTISER SAID IT.

Mr. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General and Mr. Joseph Tumulty, Secretary to the President, were guests Thursday night at a Jefferson Club dinner in Philadelphia.

Mr. Palmer, feeling prosperous, well fed and happy, advised his hearers to beware of "conservative stand-pat Democrats" next year. He desired the Democratic party to continue radical "and beware of ancient standards."

Mr. Bryan always talked that way, and always got beat. The country convinced itself last year that the Democratic congress had made too much of a fetish of "bewaring of the ancient standards," and returned a Republican congress pledged to conservatism. The country did this in spite of the prestige of a war congress at a time when the war was being wound up several months ahead of schedule. It was the first time anything like that had even happened in this country. Invariably, the party that had been in power during a war extended its hold upon the government for a long term after the war.

The Democratic party was not repudiated last fall because of anything it had failed to do in connection with military and naval activities during the war. The party had made some blunders and had spent money freely but previous war governments had made more blunders and spent relatively as much money. The Democrats had been largely responsible for the creation of a tremendous war machine, which the party oiled and sent buzzing across the Atlantic at amazing speed. The machine was a winner from the start. Its victory was satisfactory in every respect. Ordinarily the congress that had done so well with a war machine would have received the reward of re-election.

But the Democrats unwisely permitted agents to do things at home that irritated and provoked people. Most of the irritating things they did were by way of meddling with people, reducing their liberty and converting the party to a vehicle of State Socialism. Management of the railroads, telegraphs, telephones, express companies was not calculated to make citizens happy. The cost of operation of the systems was multiplied extravagantly, while the service rendered was not correspondingly improved. Then bureau chiefs said: "Now we have these things in Federal hands. Let's keep them, and make the people like it." This was startling.

Again it must be said, the Democrats in office, furnished the country several examples of its purposes by ing the party's historic attitude on to state autonomy and local overnment. Its strength for 100 has been drawn from its devo- to these things, plus simplicity economy in government. The Democrats put themselves in a rather awkward position before the country when they had mutilated and defaced the most famous of the landmarks.

Mr. Tumulty would rely with confidence upon the war record of the party to advance it to victory next year. Mr. Palmer would rely upon radicalism in domestic affairs. Mr. Tumulty is undoubtedly correct in his view that the war achievement ought to be kept proudly before the people; yet the difficulty of relying upon that is that we relied upon it last fall, and were beaten. We were beaten because the Democratic congress and some of the bureau chiefs had been as radical in domestic affairs as Mr. Palmer says the party ought to be next year. Reconstruction calls for sound conservatism rather than theoretical and doubtful experiments in unknown fields. The bulk of the American people who own homes, pay their debts and have one wife are not radical at heart, and The Advertiser fears that if the sentiment is affronted by the Democrats with a radical program after the unpleasant experiences with radicalism we have had and are still having, the party will be roundly beaten in 1920.

The Democratic party ought not to stand still of course; it ought to be progressive. But it ought not, formally or otherwise, to repudiate its conservative traditions, even though it be invited to do so by so able and distinguished a gentleman as the United States Attorney General. The country desires above everything else to see its affairs settle down.—Montgomery Advertiser.

BOYS OF THE RAINBOW TO GO TO MONTGOMERY

Every effort is being made by the Committees in charge of the reception for the 167th Infantry of the Rainbow Division in Montgomery to have every soldier who was a member of the 167th to be in Montgomery on that day to partake of the festivities.

Grady Reynolds has in charge the preparing of the Rainbow boys of Chilton County for going to Montgomery. Every man who has returned to his home in this county from service with the 167th Infantry is requested to see Mr. Reynolds at once and let him tell you what the plan is to get you to Montgomery to join your comrades in the big demonstration. Full arrangements are complete to pay your way to Montgomery and to show you the time of your life when you get there.

It is very probable that next Tuesday will be the day of the parade and reception at Montgomery.

THORSBY CELEBRATION POSTPONED TO MAY 17

The big celebration which the people of Thorsby are planning to give the returned soldiers and sailors of Chilton County has been postponend to Saturday, May 17. It was originally announced that the program would be carried out on May 10, but the committee thinks it best to put it one week furher away owing to the fac that the people around that city are at present in the midst of their strawberry season, and also the fact that the celebrations for the return of the Rainbow Division in the cities will be held the same week.

It is the hope of the Thorsby people that all the returned soldiers and sailors of the County, with their relatives and friends will come to Thorsby on the 17th and partake of the good things that the Town is going to offer them.

WHO CONTROLS?

Cabled reports to the effect that President Wilson intends to keep back American soldiers and starve the Italians into submission, added to the numerous reports we have received that Wilson is playing a "no limit" game at the peace table with the public purse of America, leads us again to ask, Who controls the public purse and the national resources, Wilson or Congress? Read the Constitution.

CENTENARY SPEAKER

First Methodist Church at 11, a.m. Sunday, May 11, Mrs. Thos. M. Owen of Montgomery will address the congregation of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Owen ranks at the top among the strongest Southern women, as a platform speaker. One of the most brilliant women in the South, the daughter of Gen'l Jno. H. Bankhead of Washington, D. C. There is a great and uplifting treat in store for the people of Clanton. Come and hear this most splendid message Sunday at 11, a.m.

The usual evening hour for service is 8:30, and at this time the pastor will speak on the 14 Points in the Centenary campaign. Come.

COMMISSIONERS SALE

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.—Probate Court.

In pursuance of the directions and terms of a Commission dated the 28 day of April, 1919, issued to the undersignued by the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate of said County, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, for cash, at public auction, on the 17th day of May, 1919, between the hours of 11 o'clock, a.m. and 4 o'clock, p.m., at the courthouse door in Clanton, Ala., the following described property:

A lot or parcel of land fronting twenty-three and one-third feet on Second Ave. (Main Street), extending back seventy-five feet, said parcel of land being in center of lot No. 1, Block No. 10, on the east side of the L. & N. Railroad, in Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama, with the brick building thereon, (being the storehouse now occupied by J. E. Evans.)

Which said property is to be sold under the order of said Probate Court, for the purpose of division and partition between the several joint owners thereof, viz: W. J. Easterling, Lettie Powell, Teresa Duke, Sam Paul Mims, Fannie Bell Powell, Mardrue Robinson and Iona Mims.

This 28th day of April, 1919.

Reese-Rowland Revival to Begin at the Baptist Church Thursday, May 22.

ONE OF THESE FELLOWS IS THE PREACHER, AND THE OTHER ONE IS HIS SINGER. YOU SHOULD GET BETER ACQUAINTED WITH THEM BY ATTENDING THEIR MEETINGS AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Southern Baptist Evangelist, Rev. T. O. Reese, assisted by his music director, Mr. P. S. Rowland, will open a two-weeks revival meeting at the Clanton Baptist Church on Thursday night, May 22. They hold out promises of a very worth-while meeting with the production of great results for the cause in Clanton. Our people are urged to give their support to these workers.

METHODIST MISSIONARY MOVEMENT IN CLANTON

The Centenary Missionary movement of the Methodist Church was formally outlined at a meeting for that purpose at the home of Mr. W. A. Reynolds Tuesday night. There was a good attendance of the Methodist workers, and a good time was planned for the entertainment of the workers and executed in grand style at the Reynolds home.

The following outline of committees in the campaign for Clanton was prepared and will be put into the work of soliciting funds for the missionary movement under the direction of the Clanton Methodist Church.

W. A. Reynolds was chosen as the Campaign Director.

Team No. 1—J. C. Jones, Captain; M. L. White, Mrs. B. M Roberts, Mrs M L White

Team No. 2—Mayor J. W. Stanfield, Captain; Dr. Herbert Neighbors, Mrs. T. C. McSwain, Mrs. H. M. Simpson

Team No 3—Mrs. J. C. Jones, Captain; Mrs Martin Nix, Eric Hart, W. W. Fox.

Team No. 4—Thad C. McSwain, Captain; J. B. Atkinson, Mrs. R. E. Luckie, Mrs. Macy Jones.

Team No. 5—W. A. Reynolds, Captain; Mrs. E. C. Maye, Mrs. Marion Gore, Mrs. Samuel Johnson, Miss Annie Reynolds

This is certainly a live bunch of people, and it is a matter of certainty that they will make a showing of this campaign in Clanton

UNION GROVE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to say a few words in regard to this place.

Health of this community is very good at this writing.

Most of the farmers are done planting cotton and some are ready to go to chopping.

Our Sunday School is progressing nicely and we hope to continue so. Next Sunday is our regular preaching day at this place.

The Union-Grove base ball team went to Thorsby Saturday afternoon and gave Thorsby a very interesting game. The score went in favor of Union Grove boys by 9 to 5, which was due to the heavy hitting of W. A. Marler and D. W. Burnett, both hitting for a home run. The Thorsby boys had Howard Roper to throw the game for them.

SALE OF COUNTY PROPERTY

State of Alabama, Chilton County.

In accordance with an order of the Commissioners Court held on the 3rd day of May, 1919, I will proceed to sell to the highest and best bidder for cash, lots No. 11, 12, 13 and 14, in Block No. 11, in the town of Clanton, Ala., to the highest and best bidder for cash on June 3rd, 1919, at 12 o'clock, M.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

May 5, 1919. L.H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

CAN'T BLAME 'EM

Out in California protest is being made against the passage of the Mineral Lands lease bill which it is proposed to bring up at the coming session of Congress. It is easy to understand this attitude in view of the experience we have had recently with government control and government operation.

CAN'T IN CANADA

Press dispatches from Canada convey the information that farmers are having great difficulty in getting the necessary hands for the spring work. The same experience will be had in the United States. The rapid revival of industry will present a condition of labor-shortage rather than of unemployment.

167TH CELEBRATION IN BIRMINGHAM MAY 7

All the 167th Infantry, who have seen oversea service, are invited and urged to go to Birmingham Saturday, May 10, to attend the celebration in your honor. Your expenses will be paid by the Birmingham people. You will report to Virgil Evans, Headquarters tent, located on 20th St, between twenty-second and twenty-third Avenues. Also all other returned soldiers and sailors are invited to come to Birmingham to this celebration. The soldiers will report to Captain Hugo Black, at the Chamber of Commerce. The sailors will report to Lieutenant Commander Meredith at the Chamber of Commerce. Everybody will please help in letting the boys know about this, also watch the daily papers and keep yourself posted all about this great celebration.

W. A. REYNOLDS,
County Chairman.

THORSBY ITEMS

The date for the reception to be given the soldiers and sailors of Chilton County by the citizens of Thorsby, has been changed to Saturday, May 17.

Lawyer Gerald and family were up from Clanton Sunday to spend the day with Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

Rev. James M. Graham was a welcome visitor to Thorsby Sunday. Mr. Graham who was recently a Major in the American Red Cross with headquarters in Atlanta, has resigned this position to take up work in the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, and is to be associated with Dr. George Eaves D. D., of Birmingham. Sunday morning Mr. Graham preached a most interesting sermon at the Congregational Church.

Miss Ida F. Lockwood, a teacher in Thorsby Institute, is in Atlanta attending the Commencement exercises of the Atlanta Theological Seminary. Miss Lockwood is a graduate of the Seminary, class of '17.

Rev. Bice, who has been serving the Thorsby Baptist Church as pastor for about a year, resigned his work here last Sunday. He preached his farewell sermon at the 11 o'clock service, and in the evening the pulpit was occupied by Rev. Gabel of Clanton.

The strawberry season is on in full blast this week. The local rains which have fallen through the week have greatly benefited the crop and cheered the heart of the farmers.

Last Saturday afternoon Thorsby and Union Grove played a ball game on the Thorsby diamond. The score was 9 to 6 in favor of Union Grove.

Mr. Edwin Soberg will leave Friday of this week for Sheboygan, Wisconsin, to resume work with Armour Company in that city. Mr. Soberg recently returned from overseas service, having been for several months a gunner in the Tank Corps.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF CHILTON HIGH SCHOOL

Prof. H. C. McDonald announces the program for the closing exercises of the Chilton County High School, as follows:

Final examinations begin May 12 and close May 16.

Seventh Grade Commencement exercises Thursday night, May 15.

Annual recital of the department of music, Friday evening, May 16.

Commencement sermon Sunday, May 18, by Rev. Henry T. Crumpton of Batesville, Ark. Rev. Crumpton will preach both morning and evening.

Undergraduates entertainment and play Monday, May 19.

Graduating exercises of the Senior Class, Tuesday, May 20th. Miss Sarah E. Luther will deliver the baccalaureate address. Her subject will be "Looking Forward." The graduating class is 20 in number, and the presentation of their diplomas will be the close of the session.

COUNTY COURT HELD MONDAY FOR MAY, 1919

The following cases were disposed of at the May term of the County Court held by Judge Reynolds on Monday last:

F. Sewell, charged with insulting language, continued to Thursday May 8th.

Caleb Smith, charged with assault, continued and bond fixed at $500.

McKinley Wilson, charged with assault and plead guilty, fined $500 and costs.

T. L. Watson, charged with violating prohibition laws. Defendant failed to appear. Bond forfeited.

John Davis, case waived to grand jury, bond fixed at $1,000.

Dave Heard, charged with assault trial and discharged.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION FROM A GREAT MAN

Judge William H. Thomas of the Supreme Court of Alabama, sends words of appreciation to the Union-Banner in the following letter:

Montgomery, Ala., May 2, 1919.

To the Editor of the Union-Banner,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Friend:

May I thank you for the full and kindly report you gave of my speech at the Methodist church and to say that you are right—it is the influence of religion that has affected constitutions and statutes in the past and that will in a large way so affect them in the future.

Assuring you of the pleasure given me of speaking in Clanton and by your notices, I am,

Very sincerely,
Wm. H. THOMAS.

SOUTHERN THINKING

One of the leading ministers of the South, who has all his life been a Democrat, in a personal letter to the editor of the Manufacturers Record, discussing other subjects, incidentally refers to the growing spirit throughout the South of indepenndent thinking of which we have been hearing a great deal lately. In the course of his letter se said:

"Though I think a lot of our Southern preachers do not look at it that way, I rejoice that you are doing a great service now in shaking up the people of our country and compelling them to think as to the real merits of the league of nations proposition.

"I declare, I am tired of the idealists running our government. We do not want men to legislate for us who have no ideals, but they certainly need to know how to base these ideals on facts and not hold us up in the atmosphere of dreams.

"I am not sure I oppose the league of nations. I want to think that if its constitution can be arranged properly and safeguarded, it will be a good thing. But I am opposed to having the thing rammed down the throats of this nation without intelligent men getting a fair chance to think it through and decide on its merits. I do not want on autocratic government, even if the autocrat was an angel, and we have no angels to get into responsible positions.

"To the best of my belief a lot of our people, even in the South, are being shocked out of their quesionable devotion to anything put forward under the name of the Democratic party. You will be interested to know that I have heard not fewer than a dozen Baptist preachers say that they were glad that the Republicans won the congress in the last election."

ENDORSE SALVATION ARMY

When Col. W. P. Screws and Chaplain Smith of the 167th endorsed the Salvation Army and its work, they voiced the sentiment of every boy of that outfit. Some of those boys are already back in this country and each of them is ready to say all they can in favor of the Salvation Army. What the Salvation Army did overseas is known to all all over the country. What it is doing here at home for the Country boy and girl can be learned by taking the matter up with the minister of any city church, of the judges of the city courts. This information given by these people will show the people of the small towns and rural districts the necessity of contributing to the Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19 to 26th.

Rev. F. A. Ellison returned last Friday from Camp Gordon, Ga. where he had been to see his son, Lee, just returned from France. He found him getting ready to come home, and he expects him to arrive here in a few days. While there Mr. Ellison ran across Dr. Joe Calloway, who is getting along fine as a ranking private. Joe sent us word to forward him the Union-Banner every week and also sent the money along to pay for it. But soldiers always pay for what they get.

SENATORS WILL STAY WITH THEIR GUNS IN THE PEACE MATTER.

THE THIRTY-NINE HONORABLE SENATORS WILL STAND OUT FOR SEPARATION OF PEACE TREATY AND LEAGUE.

Washington, May 5, 1919.—The Republican Publicity Association thru its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

Advocates of the League of Nations make little reference to the second of the resolutions signed by 39 Senators of the next Congress on the 4th of March last. Perhaps they think it is the part of wisdom to "let a sleeping dog lile." Certain it is that the grave of their hopes is in that resolution, subscribed to by enough senators to insure the defeat of the league if it comes before them as a part of the treaty of peace. After urging that the utmost expedition be used in the negotiation of peace terms the resolution continues: "that the proposal for a league of nations to insure the permanent peace of the world should be then taken up for careful and serious consideration."

The men who signed that document have had broad experience in the affairs of the world. They never make the mistake of attaching their signatures to a paper the contents of which are not fully understood by them. They knew that to sign a declaration such as is contained in that resolution carried with it an obligation. And they are men whose habit it is to fulfil their obligations, else they never would have risen to their present high place in the affairs of the nation.

Not only were the terms of the resolution ignored by the President, but precisely the opposite of what is contained therein has come to pass. We are told that the drafting of the league of nations is completed; in fact that the full text has been cabled to Washington, and now reposes in the vaults of the State Department ready for publication whenever the President condescends to take the American people into his confidence.

These being the facts, what will be the attitude of the thirty-nine signers of what has come to be known as the 'Second Declaration of Independence' when the league-treaty is brought before the senate for ratification? It is not conceivable that there will be any departure from the terms of that declaration. Having deliebartely endorsed that document, no intelligent man will have the hardihood to say that those senators will repudiate the seniments that stand over their signatures. Of course they will not!

That being the case the league of nations is dead, unless, perchance, the president has an eleventh-hour awakening, and consents to its consideration after the Senate has disposed of the treaty itself. It is as certain as that those Senators are honorable men that they will continue to fight and vote for the principles they solemnly proclaimed to the world on that eventful day in March—the segregation of the league covenant from the peace treaty. It makes no difference how much the league may be changed from the form in which it was originally published; so long as it remains a rider and parasite upon the treaty itself its defeat is foreordained.

There is little wonder that the subject its taboo with the defenders of the league. From their point of view the less the people know of the language of the Second Declaration of Independence the better. But when the document is before the Senate officially, their silence will avail nothing. The thirty-nine mean to stand by their guns, despite anything Mr. Wilson may do to overcome their opposition.

Republicans of Chilton County Must Make Good Promises.

We think it the part of wisdom just now for the leaders and laity of the Republican party in Chilton County to take stock of our situation here at home and endeavor to get our bearings and establish our balance firmly, to the ultimate consumption of that which we are pledged to do in the administration of the affairs of the county.

Now, many secondary things could be mentioned in this consideration. Many details might be enumerated as we find them in this stock-taking. But they all point to one fundamental and broad consideration which can but be taken as the basis of all the aims and endeavors of the Republican party in the county.

We would sum up the situation as follows, and beg our fellow-Republicans, officials, citizens and all, to join us in the preservation of this one underlying obligation to which we are all pledged, viz:

When the Republicans were given the management of the affairs of the county, our financial condition was shameful and ridiculous. Men who did work for the county had to lose from one-third to one-half of it in discounts. The Republicans were pledged to alleviate those conditions. And it is the one idea above all else that we should hold to in our administration to make good this pledge.

In fact upon our keeping faith with the people on this pledge depends the future standing of our party in the county. So, it behooves us all, in spite of every other personal or private desire, to help save the faith in our party by the fulfilment of this one pledge that is of supreme value to us all as a party and as individuals of the party.

If the Republican party is to be worth anything to the people of the county, it must serve the people. It must do for the people what it promised to do for them. This cannot be done if we lose sight of our fundamental obligation in a mess of minor individual quibbling. Let us not be too easy to jump into the little whirl pool of selfish individual considerations. Let us cling to the main current that will insure the landing of the boat successfully in the end as we promised to land it. Then there will be plenty of time for the consideration of other things.

Whatever hopes or aspirations anyone may have in the future must be founded on the success of the present administration. Then what shall we have to stand on of we tear down the only foundation we can possibly have?

Let us unite in showing the people of the county that the Rupublican party can and will keep its faith and pledges. Let us make the party a means of rendering universal service to all the people of the county, with malice and prejudice toward none, but with just and due respect toward all, standing for the things which we promised to stand for and accomplishing in the end what we set out to accomplish. To do this our county officers must work in harmony and not be pulling against one another; and our people must give to the officers the undivided support and allegiance which is theirs by right and justice. And the officers must in turn render the service to the people which they are obligated to render.

THE CAT AND THE FISH

In a sinful world it is America's job to see that no European or Asiatic power shall stand sentinal over the Panama Canal. We may have the highest regard for the power that would like to do so. But we have an even higher regard for our own safety. And we don't propose to leave that question to an alien body like the league on nations to determine.

When there is fish on the table we do not leave the cat alone in the room with it, and we don't take time to go to court and apply for an injunction against the cat—Kansas City Times.

Ned Brace Makes a Guess, but He's Got Another One Coming.

It is interesting to note that "Ned Brace" of the Birmingham Age-Herald has discovered the man whom the Republicans will put up for President next time. And who would you guess Ned says that man is? Why of course, it is Billy Possum Taft, who has so lately come into iminent popularity (with the Democrats) by his howling support of the Wilson League of Nations.

Now we know the Democrats and the Democratic newspapers are great lovers of Billy Possum. Yes, sir, they have been saying so openly and above board here lately. These Southern Democratic newspapers, like Ned Brace, are celebrated for their political impartiality, and they are complimenting Mr. Taft upon the breadth he has been displaying in supporting President Wilson.

The National Republican suggests that these newspapers might explain what they think of the breadth displayed by Mr. Wilson when, after his election as president, he put out a book "The New Freedom" in which he said in effect that while Taft and his administration had been the creatures of the special interests, that were sucking the life blood out of the people, it was very doubtless due to no wicked intention on Mr. Taft's part, but to the fact that he (Taft) was such a bone-head he couldn't understands the situation and didn't know he was being used.

You see, that was how Wilson and the Democrats loved Taft back there a few years ago. But of course Taft was then serving the special interests and incidentally holding a high seat in the councils of the Republican party. But now things have changed. Taft has gone over to the camp of Mr. Wilson to join hands with the foreign influences that are trying to put a big one over on America, and therefore, he is all right, a broad-gauged, jolly good fellow.

And Ned Bruce actually is fool enough to think the Republicans would try to hand this country such a lemon as Bill Taft for President again. Why honest, Ned, next to the Democrats putting Wilson up for another term, the next silliest thing that could happen in politics in this country would be for the Republicans to put Mr. Taft in the race for president.

We say frankly hat neither Wilson nor Taft will do for president. This country does not want a tool of the Pope to occupy our white house any longer. We have surely had enough of that stuff from both Taft and Wilson to open our eyes so far as those two fellows are concerned.

Ned, you will have to guess again, son. You missed it on Billy Possum.

And don't forget while meandering down the political pike that it was the Roman Catholic prieses who headed the Irish parade to defy English conscription and now they stand solidly back of the American organizations threatening a notional walk-out and tie-up of all American industries July first if the Prohibition Federal Constitutional amendment is legally enforced.—The Yellow Jacket.

Regardless of what Mr. Woodrow Wilson says or thinks, this war has not Internationalized the American people—It has nationalized them. And the constitution of the league of nations will have to reckon with that proposition, or there will be no league of nations, so far as the American people are concerned. Stick a pin here and go back and read it a year from today.

Socialism is the Coming Issue In American Politics.

Within the next two years the Democratic party must either repudiate President Wilson or it must embrace all of his socialist doctrines. Under Wilson's leadership the Democratic party has constantly reduced our liberties and unnecessarily increased our taxes. He has already driven the Democratic party to the reluctant support of many socialistic measures. Unless his power is challanged before his term expires, the Democratic party will be irrevocably committed by Wilson to socialism under the name of progressive Democracy.

This is the stratling and deliberate opinion of no less a democrat than former Senator Bailey of Texas.

Alongside this statement should be placed the views of George D. Herron, and expatriated American residing in Switzerland. Herron is a revolutionary socialist, an embryo Bolshevist who calls for the overthrow of our present "capitalistic society" by the complete abolition of the right of private property, substituting instead absolute communism which is to be brought about by the development of a class consciousness among the "working classes."

In 1916 and 1917 Herron wrote several articles in the European press about the President, which he published in a little volume entitled, "Woodrow Wilson and the World's Peace." Herron describes Wilson as follows:

"He has knowingly undermined certain of the foundations upon which our capitalist society rests."

"He has indeed been extraordinarily shifty in the accomplishment of the things he believes basic and right."

"He has shown himself more profoundly conscious of the working class than many of the working class leaders."

"If we could look deep into this man's soul I think we should find there the ideal of a world at last arriving at universal communism of production and distribution."

"He is revolutionary beyond anything his words reveal, beyond anything his contemporaries have discerned."

"As compared with Woodrow Wilson, there are socialist spokesmen who areBourbon in their understanding and sympathy. As contrasted with America's President, the parlimentary leaders of German socialism are mediaeval reactionaries."

These writings of Herron's account for the wild enthusiasm with which Wilson was greeted last winter by the extreme European socialists.

What does the president think of Herron's picture of him? Has he ever manifested any public disapproval? Far from that. Wilson selected and designated this same George D. Herron to be a representative of the United States as the proposed conference wih the Russian Bolshevists in the sea of Marmora. Surely no one will construe that appointment as a repudiation of Herron.

If Herron's picture of Wilson is correct, Senator Bailey has understated the case.—Boston News Bureau.

THEY'RE WORRIED

The Democrats are worried
And they're worried like a sight
And the reason they are worried so
They're not a feelin' right.

They have spent the people's millions
Like sailors on a spree
And there's no way to settle
But by taxing you and me.

They've taxed the high and lowly
The yellow, black and white,
Till the people of all classes
Are not a feelin' right.

Yes, the Democrats are worried
And they're worried like a sight
For they realize they're headed
To the depths of endless night.

It is reported that President Wilson may issue a proclamation from France when the peace treaty is finally signed, stating that the war is over. Perhaps he has forgotten that the Senate must ratify the treaty and that peace cannot be proclaimed until the Senate has so ratified and an exchange has taken place between Washington and Berlin.

Nearly everyone in Washington and nearly every legislature in the United States, is searching about for means to raise more revenue. There are many issues abroad, but the one receiving the most attention seems to be that of "more revenue." A business concern would have tried reducing expenses longe before this. The plan may occur to the government agencies some day. It might even occur to them some doy outside of a campaign year, although thes is hoping a good deal.—Kansas City Times.

A woman the other day in an audience where Taft was speaking for a league of nations asked the former president how a nation would get on in case it wanted to withdraw from the league and he replied: "You know what happened in the Civil War."—Yellow Jacket.

Thank the Lord its gone and gone for good. The late, unlamented, business-busting, tax-burdening, money-wasting Democratic Congress is no more, but the reckless hand it played—the awful mess it made—will set back American civilization at least fifty years.—Yellow Jacket.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

ALLGOOL'S FARM LETTER

Right now is the time for every farmer who expects to have hogs for the market this fall to get busy. Do not expect to top the market after lettiny late winter and spring pigs drag through the summer without attention. To prepare hogs for the market you must not stunt them with scant food. Producing hogs for the market is a business, and to do so successfully, the animal must not be neglected. Keep your hogs for the market in a good growing, thrifty condition, by giving them plenty of good clean water, plenty of green pasture and a little corn.

During the summer, your hogs should be provided with soy bean, cow pea and sorghum pasture; and added to this from one-fourth to one-half ration of corn. Right now is the time to plant these grazing crops. Do not try to produce pork on corn alone. It takes approximately 12 bushels of corn to produce a hundred pounds, when corn is selling at $1.50 per bu.

At the Alabama Experiment Station the corn required to make one hundred pounds gain was reduced from 456 pounds in the case of corn alone to 157 pounds, where the corn was supplemented by the soy bean pasture, and the cost of producing the pork was reduced in like proportion.

Again, to produce pork profitably the pig must be kept in sanitary quarters and free from lice and disease. At this time hog cholera is prevalent to a greater or less degree throughout the State. If cholera is in your herd or in your immediate neighborhood, protect your hogs by giving them the anti-hog cholera serum treatment. Get your county agent to teach you how to inoculate your hogs. This may be the means of saving your entire herd. Get busy with your representative and see if the state can not take further steps in the control of hog cholera and thereby curtail the annual loss to the farmers of the State thousands of dollars.

Already Alabama is taking high rank among the big pork producing States of the Union. There is no good reason why, in the next few years, this state should not take the first rank. If every farmer will do his best we can do this. The opportunity is ours. This branch of farming is productive of greater and more profitable returns in a shorter period of time than almost any other. What we want is more hogs and better hogs.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady. Five Bottles of Cardui Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Prine, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child...I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time...

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr. ———about my taking Cardui. He said, 'It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble', so he got me 5 bottles...After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved...before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it. E 74

SPEED ARTISTS STRIKING IT HARD IN CLANTON, ALA.

The Town authorities of Clanton have wisely decided to enforce the city laws in regard to reckless driving of motor vehicles inside the city limits. A number of arrests have been made in the last few days.

Last Sunday morning a squad of negro motorcyclists traveling from Birmingham to Montgomery proceeded to run a speed race through the streets of Clanton. Mayor Stanfield saw them and attempted to stop them and they refused to halt, proceeding on in their dare-devil stunts in defiance of our laws and ordinances.

Mr. Stanfield informed Marshall Gore of the incident and instructed the City Police Force to lay in wait for the negroes on their return trip.

Marshall Gore watched for the speeders all day and at about five o'clock Sunday afternoon they came along maving their way to Birmingham. The police net was thrown around them and the whole gang, half a dozen of them, was held up and made to pay for the violations of the morning.

Mayor John Stanfield, accompanied by Dr. E. C. Maye and a "Franklin" load of his three-minute Centenary Speakers, went out to Mt. Nebo Church last Sunday afternoon and had a great meeting. Strong Centenary speeches were made which filled the hearts of the hearers with enthusiasm. Chorus Choir of 25 voices, under leadership of Sam Henley, director, was uplifting to the occasion. Dr. Maye and his co-workers feel good over the outlook. The Team Workers are all ready to make the start. Look out for us. We are marching on—morching on—Clanton Centenary Workers Team Band.

This week ends our study weeks and next will see us taking exams. I have been telling you that school would soon be out and now that time has arrived.

Miss Bertie Teel entertained the Seniors with a delightful party at her home in north Clanton.

We had a part holiday last week to go to see the tank which was here boosting the fifth liberty loan. Those who missed seeing it missed a treat.

Commencement begins on Friday night, the 16th of May. We will have some good programs and want everybody to be here.

On account of going to the Liberty Loan parade I did not get my news in the paper last week.

This is the last time I will put the news in the paper.

We hope to see everyone that now is in school back next year except the Seniors. We wish to thank the editor of this paper for giving us his space every week. May Fortune ever smile on him.

VICTORY LOAN MUST SUCCEED OR FAIL IN NEXT FEW DAYS

Appeal Made By Headquarters To Works To Put Full Force Behind Drive During The Rest Of Campaign.

LEND HIM A LEG

The Victory Loan drive is drawing to a close.

Whatever remains to be done must be accomplished in the next few days or the opportunity will be gone forever.

This is the last great popular war loan. It is in reality the "last chance" the people of the Sixth Federal Reserve District will have to invest in the Liberty and Victory issues of Government securities. It is now or never.

The quota assigned to this district has been nearly reached. But unless every person who can, even through a sacrifice of luxuries or comforts, invests to their limit it might be a failure. In all past campaigns the Southeast has responded nobly. It must not fail now in this final drive.

The loan must be a success. It has behind it the solemn call of a great national duty to our soldiers and sailors; the call of the nation's honor, and the imperative call of its duty to the rest of the world.

An appeal has been sent out from headquarters to the workers to put their shoulder to the wheel during the remaining days of the drive; to pull together and push together and wind up the campaign with a huge oversubscription. Some counties are lagging behind. Most of the counties will go over. To fail now would leave a blot on the record of the county which does not reach its quota. That blot would remain forever because there will not be another chance to "come back."

The crowning work of patriotism for this district would be for the people to make the Victory Loan the greatest of all loans—to put every county in the district over the top. Then we could take pride in the feeling that we had "finished the course."

OBITUARY

William L. Honeycutt was born December 26, 1866, and died March 27, 1919. He was united in matrimony to Miss Alice Conway on October 23, 1885. To this union was born four children.

Billie leaves a mother, one brother, one sister and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. God saw fit in his goodness to take him home to reign throughout endless ages. He brought sunshine and happiness into the home. His seat is now vacant and the cloud of sadness has found its way into the home.

God doeth all things well.

May we all be so submissive to his will that we can say, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven." When God speaks, may we all be silent. When he sends the heavenly message and says, "It is enough, now come home," his mission in the world is finished. It is sad to think that the dear one can never visit his home again, but it is wonderful to think he is living with the blessed Savior who is able and willing to take care of us all if we will only trust him.

Friends, the only way to ever meet Uncle Billie is to trust in Jesus and prepare to meet him in the city of God where cometh no separation.

We feel assured we shall meet him on the morning of the Resurrection when God shall call his faithful children home.

He was a faithful soldier of the cross and lived the life of a true Christian, we cannot understand why God called one so good as he, but He doeth all things well, and we only see through a glass darker now, but face to face and all things shall be made plain.

His influence will live on through the spirit has gone to its reward. Our heart aches for his devoted wife as she comes in to behold the vacant chair and weep, for she too is a consecrated woman; she looks through tears and beholds Calvery, then submits to God's will. Let faith exalt her joyful voice and now in triumph sing.

O, grave, where is thy victory? and O, death, thy sting?

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery. A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and sympathising friends attending. His body was laid to rest with impressive ceremonies by the Independent Ordr of Odd Fellows, in Union Grove Cemtery, to await the resurrection of the dead in Christ, at His second coming.

MICKIE SAYS

It is just as necessary for us to grow a good crop of vegetables this year as last. The early vegeables are worth more and taste better, but in growing early vegetables we always have to reckon with out worms. Their work is so destructive that unless one knows how to control this pest and applies that knowledge upon the first appearance of the worms, the delay that occurs before receiving advice from the experiment station is often disastrous to the crop.

Cut worms begin their injury as soon as the first plants sprout; they work just at, or a little below, the surface of the ground, doing their feeding at night and resting in the soil during the day. The damage is greater when a field or garden spot was in grass or other rank vegetation the fall before. With the coming of spring the half-grown worms get ravenous and consume a large amount of food, continuing their damage until about the middle of May when it suddenly ceases. About this time the worms change to a resting stage, from which they later emerge as grayish moths or "millers."

A simple and very efficient method of control is to distribute poisoned clover on the badly infested spots of the garden soon after sundown. About 10 pounds of clover cut or bruised to make it more attractive, is poisoned with five or six ounces of Paris Green. If there is no clover at hand, another poisoned bait, consisting of 10 pounds of wheat bran or similar substance poisoned with six ounces of Paris Green and a finely chopped orange or lemon, is strongly recommended. The bran, Paris Green and fruit are mixed first, and to this is added a little molasses and water to make it like a stiff dough This should be spread around in small lumps ,and some may be placed beneath pieces of board. By waiting until late afternoon the bait dries out less, and is therefore more attractive.

White Grubs—

These are also well known pests, and are expected to do considerable damage in 1919, especially in South Alabama. The grubs are most destructive the year following an abundance of beetles, but in a wet season the injury is less severe.

Methods of control are preventive rather than remedial. Once the grub is present in a field there is no practical means yet known of protecting that particular crop. Corn, strawberries and potatoes suffer greatest injury.

Late spring plowing and allowing poultry to run is oftentimes the only way that the white grub can be fought at this time of year. Hogs, if they can be confined, will practically eradicate the grubs.

CLANTON BAPTIST CHURCH

Jno. F. Gable, Pastor.

The Chilton and Unity Associations Ministers and Deacons meeting organized in April had a well attended and successful meeting at the church last Monday. Thirteen members and eleven visitors were present. The benefits of such a monthly meeting were freely discussed by several of those present and it was agreed that much good could be done by cooperating in enlisting and developing the churches in their various activities. Several great needs were spoken of such as education, support for great denominational enterprises and a general revival of religion. It is hoped that movements can be launched during the summer looking to all these ends. The Ministers meeting adjourned at noon but committees on apportionment discussed the prospects until late in the afternoon, and it was decided that an effort should be made to raise about $15,000 in the two associations, including Chilton and Autauga Counties, on the Endowment fund for Howard College. It is expected that between five and seven hundred thousand dollars will be pledged in the state for Howard College and Judson College and Newton Institute.

The pastor's subjects next Sunday will be, at 11, a.m. "A Democratic Convention;" at night, "Are the Sufferings of Hell everlasting?"

Several young couples are starting out on life's voyage in independent boats these days. We pray God's blessings on them and trust that they will pull together, evenly and harmoniously during all the years until they reach the everlasting heaven, meantime resting in the spirit, the Refuge from all Storms."

HAVE YOU A PUREBRED BEEF BULL?

By K. G. Bawer, Beef Cattle Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The value of a purebred bull is no longer questionable, as it has been demonstrated over and over that he will more than pay for himself in one season if properly cared for. A purebred bull in many instances will change the cattle business from a losing proposition to a paying one.

Now is the time to decide what kind of a sire you are going to have for the calves next year. Beef cows should be bred during June, July and August—preferably in July and August—so that the calf crop will come on in March, April and May. At this time your cows will have grass, and consequently be in condition to give a maximum amount of milk to grow and develop the calves.

It is very important to keep the bulls separated from the cows until the month of June, and then allow them to run together until September. This will insure the calves to come evenly—that is, they will all be ready for the market or the feed lot at about the same time.

As a basis on which to figure the value of a purebred bull in your herd, these records were kept by R. J. Goode, Gastonburg, Ala.:

Purebred Sire: 12 calves, 400 pounds, 7½ c, $30.00.

Scrub Sire: 38 calves, 300 pounds, 5c, $15.00.

These calves were produced from the same grade of cows; and cows and calves ran on pasture until the calves were marketed. This shows a gain from the service of a purebred bull of $15 per head, which is not unreasonable for any man to expect.

It is advisable for the small farmer with a few head of native or grade cows to buy a young bull—say from 12 to 18 months old. Such a bull could be used on 15 to 20 cows, provided he was kept separate from the cows and was allowed only one service per cow.

By buying a young bull and taking care of him properly, the farmer can expect to sell him for at least as much as his cost price; in many instances there will be an increase in value.

If you do not own a purebred bull and do not know where to locate one to meet your requirements, take the matter up with your demonstration agent, who will be glad to help you.

VALUE OF SILAGE AS MONEY CROP

By K. G. Baker, Beef Cattle Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Already much has been said in the South regarding the important proposition of maintaining the fertility of the soil. This year there will be much money spent in buying high-priced fertilizing materials which will be resold next year in the form of crops of different kinds.

Cotton is the natural money crop of the South, and if the law of supply and demand controls price, it is necessary to decrease the supply or increase the demand, or probably both. One way of decreasing acreage in cotton is to increase the acreage of some other money crop.

Silage, properly fed to either dairy or beef cattle, is a good money crop, and has the advantage of returning to the soil a large part of the fertility removed from it. However, it is the purpose of this article to discuss silage in relation to beef cattle.

Either cane or corn silage, or a mixture of the two, fed in conjunction with cottonseed meal, velvet beans or peanut meal, is a satisfactory ration for fattening beef cattle, as a large percent of their fertilizing value is retained in the manure. European nations buy our cottonseed meal primarily for its fertilizing value, feeding it first to cattle, since over 80 per cent of the fertilizing value of cottonseed meal is retained in the manure. So, where a man is forced to buy cottonseed meal for fertilizer, he can buy it and feed it to his steers in conjunction with silage, and if this meal costs $60 a ton, he should only charge 20 per cent, or $12 a ton for it to the cattle; he would have the other $48 in fertilizing value.

Cattle feeding is a business within itself, and it is necessary to practice care and judgment in order to get the best results. Therefore, it is advisable for the beginner to start in with a few feeders and add to the number as he gains experience. In some instances three or four farmers can feed a sufficient number for a carload. It is always necessary to have as much as a carload to go from one vicinity for the sake of economy in shipping.

An Experiment Station investigating the relative value of silage made from corn and cane procured the following data, which is the result of three years' feeding:

	Corn Silage C. S. Meal. Pounds.	Sweet Sorghum Silage C. S. Meal Pounds.
Ave. calf weight....	393	399
Ave. daily gain.....	1.19	1.12
Ave. daily ration calf:
Silage 27.39		27.55
Cottonseed meal.... .98		.98
Ave. yield silage per acre (tons) 12.11		16.93
Ave. gain per acre of silage (pounds)...1,089		1,376

Steer calves fed 120 days each year.

Examination of this table shows that 16.93 tons of cane silage in conjunction with 1,176 pounds cottonseed of meal produced 1,376 pounds of beef, which figured at 20 cents a pound amounts to $275.20. Subtracting $35.28 for meal, leaves $289.92 for raising and handling 16.93 tons of silage. Even though the yield for this state should be cut in half, there would still be a profit.

SOME THINGS TO DO ABOUT THE VELVET BEAN SHORTAGE

By H. B. Tisdale, Associate Plant Breeder

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

What should be done under the present condition brought about by a shortage of velvet bean seeds? It is a deplorable fact that most of the beans of the 1918 crop are faulty and a large percentage of the beans of the 1917 crop are of low vitality and germination percentage.

Prof. Duggar has pointed out the danger of a shortage of stock feed and pasturage and a consequent decrease in soil fertility for the crops of 1920, which is likely to be brought about by the present shortage of velvet beans for planting.

A few things can be done about planting time which will relieve that strained situation to a large extent. As Prof. Duggar has suggested, the supply of velvet bean seeds should be hand picked and the rate of seeding increased according to the amount of decreased germination percentage. In lots of shelled velvet beans there are varying amounts of broken, immature and rotten beans. These can easily be removed by hand just before planting.

Since a large proportion of the velvet beans which are to be used for planting are of low vitality, they should be treated with extreme care at planting. Seed of low vitality are very sensitive to unfavorable conditions, such as cold weather, dry soil and diseases. The seed should be planted only in a well prepared seed bed, which is warm and contains plenty of moisture. In order to obtain these conditions it may be necessary to wait later in the season than usual to plant. When seeds are planted in such favorable conditions they germinate and grow off rapidly, thereby resisting attack of diseases.

Farm labor is too scarce to waste a lot of time planting seeds that you know will not come up. Therefore, the greatest care should be taken to learn the quality of planting seeds. One peck of velvet beans has usually planted about 1½ acres of land with corn. Since the supply of velvet beans is short it might be advisable to decrease the rate of beans per acre, remembering, however, to plant according to the germinating quality of the beans.

As a last resort, have a supply of soybeans, peanuts, cowpeas and other legumes on hand to maintain and even increase the usual acreage planted to legumes.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—GOOD SPRING TONICS

Agnes Hitt, Home Economics Specialist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

During the first spring days the excretory organs are more or less sluggish and need stimulating. The usual means of stirring them to action are strong laxatives, which tear down or weaken the body, and then special effort must be made to build it up again. Such medicine ought not to be used, and need not be, if the diet is carefully planned. If plenty of fruits and vegetables are included the appetite will be better and that lazy, sleepy feeling will be less pronounced.

However, the needs of the body must first be known before a diet can be properly planned. There must be protein foods, as milk, eggs and meat, for building and repairing tissues; starches or carbohydrates and fats for producing heat and energy; and water and minerals, which act as body regulators.

If much meat and patented flour are served in the home, fruits and green vegetables must be served in abundance to supply the needed minrals, and counteract uric acid formation in the blood and tissues. Fruits contain from one to seven per cent vegetable acids, and less than one per cent potassium salts, and together they have a great effect on controlling acidity in the blood, tissues and excretions. Because of their large amount of water, cellulose and mineral matter, they aid the large intestine in ridding the system of waste. In addition they are relished by everyone, and add variety to the diet. This is true of the canned fruits and vegetables as well as the fresh ones.

The amount and kind of fruits and vegetables for young children vary as the child grows older. The following table indicates what should be included for the different years:

Two Years Old: Some fruit juice or strained pulp every day. Orange juice the staple, but gradually other kinds mild in flavor may be tried, as prune juice or pulp; cooked apple juice or pulp (from stewed or baked apples), or fresh peach juice carefully strained. Two tablespoonfuls should be given at a time, preferably between the two morning meals.

After middle of second year give one green vegetable a day. The vegetable chosen should be mild in flavor, cooked until thoroughly softened, and then strained; or may be made into cream soup.

Three and Four Years Old: Fruit should be given at least once a day. If child is sturdy, mild fruits of delicate texture, thoroughly cooked, such as baked apples (pulp only), apple sauce, stewed Bartlett pears, baked or steamed bananas, may be gradually introduced into the diet.

A green vegetable of mild flavor and delicate texture given once a day may be mashed or finely chopped instead of strained, as before.

Five to Seven Years Old: Raw fruits such as perfectly ripe pears, peaches and grapes, free from seeds and skins, should be introduced into the diet cautiously, but for the most part the fruit should be cooked, and especially any given for supper.

Green vegetables should still be cooked and mashed or strained, because they are likely to be poorly masticated.

Eight to Twelve Years Old: Raw fruits can be used more freely, only the strongly acid ones forbidden. For the evening meal preference should be given the cooked fruits moderately sweetened.

A mild, thoroughly cooked green vegetable should be provided, if possible, every day. Raw vegetables should not be made a regular part of the diet before the tenth or twelfth year.

Each child should have a quart of milk a day. If he does not like it well enough to drink it, this quantity can be very easily served him in cooked foods.

METHODS OF PLANTING VELVET BEANS

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agronomist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The common practice of planting velvet beans has been to drop the seed by hand between the hills of corn in the drill. When the beans came up they were usually below the surface of the corn middles. The soil was worked down to the corn, and in working it down around the corn plants, many beans were covered up—resulting in a poor stand and a reduced yield.

A better practice is to make the corn rows wide and to plant a row of beans in the middle between the corn rows. When they are planted in this way, the beans can be dropped with a planter at a uniform depth and space, thereby securing a good stand.

The early cultivation of the beans is made easier because an implement suited to the cultivation of the beans is used. It may be a scooter and scrape or it may be a two-horse cultivator. The operator has only the row of beans to watch.

If the riding cultivator is used, it straddles the row of beans and gently works the surface soil up close to the beans. In a few days the cultivator straddles the corn row and works the soil around the corn and stirs the remaining uncultivated space between the corn and beans, thus working the entire surface of both crops.

The early vines that reach over to the corn plants are broken off with cultivators. When the corn is laid by, the vines reach over to the corn plants and climb upon them.

This method permits a thicker planting of beans, easier cultivation and secures a larger yield of seed.

THE HARROW A LABOR SAVER

By D. J. Burleson, Extension Agronomist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Our grandfathers cultivated corn by running a single-foot plow five or more times to the row. They wasted labor because they lacked many tools which we now have. Along no other line have we made more progress in agriculture than in the use of labor-saving implements. But we have not yet fully appreciated the labor-saving value of our simplest and most common devices.

The harrow is one of our greatest labor-savers. We do not use it enough here in the South, neither the spike-tooth type nor the disk. In the preparation of our land for planting we need deep plowing, but the harrow should follow the plow. Good preparation saves labor in cultivation.

A spike-tooth harrow does excellent and rapid work in the early cultivation of corn and many other crops, where the crops were planted on a well prepared seed bed. The first cultivation should be given before the corn comes up, or soon thereafter. This implement may be used every week until the corn is four to six inches high. It is usually advisable to run diagonally across the rows, the teeth being set so that they slant considerably backward. This cultivation does no permanent injury to the young plants, but it destroys young grass and weeds, and makes a dust mulch to conserve moisture. The best time to kill weeds is when they are small, even when they have just sprouted. After the corn is too high for the harrow, a weeder may be used in the same manner until the plants are about a foot high.

Land which has not been properly prepared may need more than a harrow while the corn is young. Sometimes corn under one foot in height, on clay land which has baked after heavy rains, or which was not well prepared before planting, will need deep plowing. After corn is a foot high it should never be cultivated deeply.

After corn is too tall for the harrow or weeder, the two-horse cultivator, or the one-horse spring-tooth diverse cultivator should be used.

RED SPIDER NOT DANGEROUS THIS YEAR

By Frank L. Thomas, Extension Entomologist

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

Most cotton growers, especially those in the northern half of the state, have a vivid recollection of the Red Spider and its injury to cotton during July and August of last year.

The Red Spider is most troublesome in seasons following severe winters. The reason for this is that the natural enemies are killed off by the variations of severe cold and warm weather, thus allowing the little spiders to spread unmolested in the summer, if favorable weather occurs.

But this year we believe that there are two good reasons why this pest of cotton will not take its heavy tax, if it is even noticed to any extent. Its natural enemies which did survive the winter of 1917-18 multiplied very rapidly with the abundance of spiders last summer, and the past winter has not been a hard one.

The man who thinks he knows how to prophesy may be found to be incorrect, and to make assurance doubly sure, the following suggestions, if carried out, will prevent the red spider getting a start even in a favorable season.

Cotton should not be planted near the house, for the spider passes the winter on violets and many other green plants found in the yard. It is preferable to remove and burn the violets. As soon as pokeweed appears dig it out and burn the stalk. The main sources of red spider infestation are violets and pokeweed. The whole secret of red spider control is prevention by keeping down the early weeds on which these mites are found. Now is the time to clean up the farm, and clean cultivation always pays.

SOYBEANS AS A SOIL IMPROVING CROP

By E. F. Cauthen, Associate Agronomist, Auburn

Prepared by Extension Service, Auburn, Ala.

The value of a soybean crop for soil improvement is about equal to that of a cowpea crop. When the crop is cut for hay, or harvested for seed, leaving on the land most of the plant, the residual fertilizing effect is worth while.

Cotton planted after corn and after soybeans, for which only the grain was removed, made on a two-year average 1141 and 1459 pounds of seed cotton, respectively, per acre. As a result of the fertilizing effect of the preceding crop of soybeans, the soybean land made 318 pounds of seed cotton per acre more than the corn land. Stated in money value, the fertilizing effect of the soybean crop was, if the seed cotton be calculated at 8 cents a pound, $25.44 per acre.

When a fall forage crop of small grain and crimson clover was planted after corn and soybeans, the yield of hay was 3399 pounds for the corn land, and 4249 pounds for the soybean land. The increase, due to the fertilizing effect of the soybeans, was 858 pounds of hay per acre. If the hay is valued at $24.00 per ton, the fertilizing effect of the preceding soybean crop was $10.30 per acre.

A winter oat crop, following corn and soybeans, which was gathered in such a way as to leave the stalks and bean stubble, made an increase of 173 per cent, as a result of the fertilizing effect of the soybeans.

Since the soybean can be grown in all parts of Alabama, and lends itself readily to different kinds of cropping systems, the importance of it as a fertilizing agent and a feed crop should not be overlooked by Alabama farmers. Plant a few acres of soybeans for hay, for seed, for hog grazing, and for soil improvement.

For more information about this crop ask for Bulletin 203 on "Soybeans in Alabama."

WORTH A TRIAL

There will be great difference of opinion regarding the advisability of the proposed adoption of trial by jury in the administration of military justice. The plan, if adopted, would be a startling departure from practices in force the world over, and yet, in a democracy like this, it might work with entire satisfaction. Certainly it would create among the soldiers a feeling of responsibility for the conduct of those among them who might tend to lawlessness. There would undoubtedly be some instances in which a jury of soldiers would acquit one guilty of a minor offense. Instances of this kind would be rare, however. In general, a jury of soldiers would appreciate the fact that their own safety and the promotion of efficiency in the army require their holding their fellow soldiers to strict accountability for any lapses or infringement of military discipline. The experiment would at least be worth trying.

BEAUTIFYING THE HOME.

The past winter has been of such an exceptional nature that a little friendly advice may be somewhat beneficial to those who take an interest in the outside adornment of their homes.

Vegetation, when in full growth, without any apparent check from the usual Fall and early Winter, was brought to a sudden halt by the sudden change, had in the early part of January, congealing the sap so that what was not killed outright was damaged considerably.

Do not try to do any cultivating until all danger of frost has passed and the ground gets good and dry. Then examine every shrub or rose bush thoroughly. See that all dead or injured branches are removed and all dead plants dug up. Give a good application of air slacked lime and work it well into the soil. Leave for a few days, then give a good coat of well decomposed manure at least three inches thick. This can be well worked in and allowed to remain at least two days before attempting to plant anything in the beds. Nine-tenths of the failures in successful cultivation of shrubs and plants is caused by not preparing the soil and not waiting for it to become dry after the wet winter weather. This applies to all soils whether clay or sandy.

Shrubs should be planted as soon as you can get them. You can plant any time from the time leaves fall until the buds swell in the Spring.

Do not be in a hurry to plant tender plants in beds outside. Generally speaking, April 15th is time enough If the ground has not warmed up, plants receive a check from which it takes them some time to recover Whereas, if taken at the proper time from the pit, or hot house, they immediately take root and continue to grow and bloom.

If you use seed for stocking up your flower beds, porch boxes or hanging baskets, start them early in the pit Transplant carefully and do not crowd the young seedlings. Start early as you possibly can in boxes 2½ to 3 inches deep and from 6 inches to one foot in width, and from 10 to 18 inches in length. Use drainage of small pebbles, charcoal or sifted ashes through a 1-2 inch mesh.

The soil should be equal parts of good garden soil, decomposed leaf soil and about one-fifth sand. See that the soil is made firm by pressing with the fingers, leaving the surface loose Sow seeds as per directions on the package and do not allow them to become dry. It is better to leave one half inch space between the soil and edge of the box and after a good watering cover with paper drawn tightly and kept damp until the seeds are up, when you can gradually give them light and air. Avoid wind and excessive sunshine. Careful attention and patience is necessary for success but the pleasure is worth it.

COTTAGE CHEESE

Skim milk on the average farm is considered of little value except as a feed for calves and hogs, but when made into cottage cheese it is one of the best substitutes known for meat. Cottage cheese when properly made contains a higher percentage of body building material, protein, than the choicest meats which are served on the farm table and this toothsome dish can be made without expense and with very little labor.

For supplying protein or body building material one pound of cottage cheese equals:

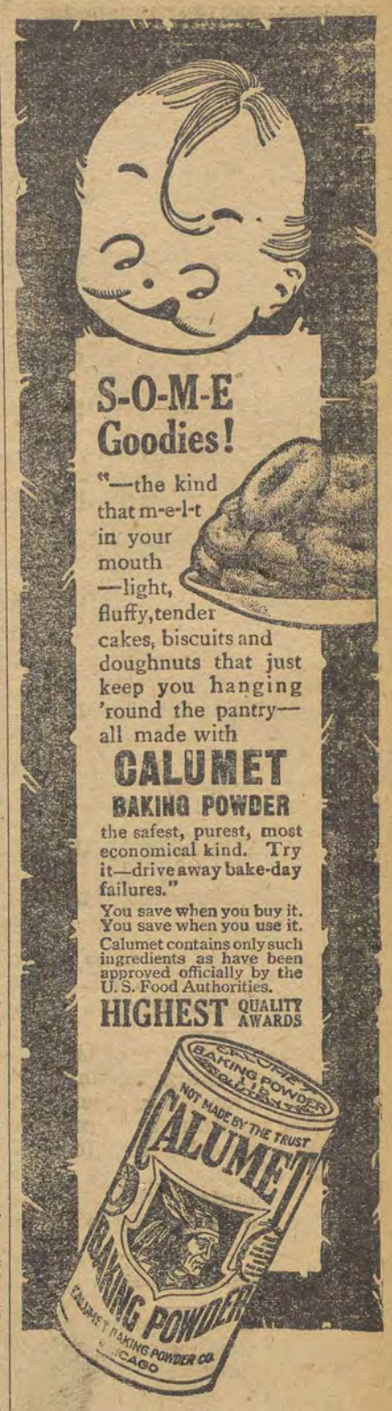
1.27 pounds steak.
1.52 pounds fowl.
1.46 pounds ham.
1.58 pounds pork chop.

For supplying energy one pound of cottage cheese equals:

8 1-3 ounces steak.
10 3-4 ounces fowl.
5 1-2 ounces ham.
6 ounces pork chop.

In making cottage cheese the first and most important essential is good flavor and the next is the uniformity of the product. A good flavored cheese can only be made from clean skim milk that has not been allowed to become too sour.

The home method of cottage cheese making consists in placing curdled milk, either heated or unheated in a cheese cloth or cotton bag which is hung up and allowed to drain until dry. This makes a fairly good dish for the home table, but for the market this method is unsatisfactory as a good keeping product with a uniform texture cannot be made in this way.



To make a good market cheese allow the milk to become sour and firmly curdled. Break up the curd and heat to 100 degrees Fahrenheit in about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally while heating. Let the curd stand in the hot whey for about 15 minutes. Remove the whey by pouring through a cheese cloth bag, allowing it to drain until no more appears. The higher the temperature to which the clabber is heated or at a like temperature, the longer the curd remains in the hot whey, the harder and dryer the cheese will be. By regulating the time and temperature a cheese of a desired consistency can be made. The curd should be either worked thoroughly or run through a coarse meat chopper. Salt to taste, or about one ounce of salt to five pounds of curd is a medium amount. Add either cream or whole milk at the rate of about one-half pint to five pounds of curd. The softer the cheese the sooner it will spoil and sour, but it may be kept for several days in a cool place. The yield is about one pound per gallon of milk used.

The cheese should be packed in neat, attractive packages; a number of styles are in rather general use, the most popular being the one pound size Kleen Kup; Gem Fibre package, and a water-proof paper package used for carrying ice cream. It is well to line these packages with parchment paper.

UP WENT SCALES 10 POUNDS FOR AN ALABAMA MAN

Was so Weak and Run-down, often had Convulsions; Kidneys weak, Liver lazy... Dreco built up his system and made him well.

I was so weak and run down that I often had convulsions. I was confined to my bed when I began taking Dreco, and now since taking two bottles I am up going about and have gained 10 pounds. This is the sogned statement made by Mr. N. Long of Coosada, Ala., near Montgomery.

My troubles all began in my stomach. I had indigestion and gastritis, and my food did not give me any strength. My bowels became constipated; then my liver and kidneys went back on me. I had awful pains in my back and my limbs ached something awful. I became nervous and lost my appetite. My strength was leaving me and soon I took to my bed. It was here that I read of Dreco, and the great good it was doing, so I bought a bottle and it has been a great blessing to me. My troubles are past, but I am going to take several more bottles to get me good and well.

Dreco acts like magic in stomach trouble, gas, fermentation, heavy, distressed feeling after meals and on retiring. It attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal action.

All good druggists sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

Royal Welcome Greets Fourth Regiment Throughout State

Round After Round of Hearty Welcome Outburst on Way From Birmingham to Montgomery.

Three Thousand People in Clanton

Reception at Old Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek is Wonderful.

The Route of the "Old Fourth" from Birmingham to Montgomery was a continuation of the triumphal procession which began when the Tigers of the Rainbow Division first touched Alabama soil on their victorious return from the banks on the Rhine. At every station, no matter how small, the entire population turned out to welcome the men who spread the fame of Alabama over the world Colonel Wm. P. Screws, with twenty officers of the 167th Infantry, the headquarters company, regimental, band, and other troops filled the first three sections, each of which was composed of a dozen sleepers, with baggage cars and caboose. The first section left Birmingham at 2 o'clock and arrived at Montgomery at 8:00, p.m. The other sections came at 45 minute intervals.

Birmingham which had turned out in mass to welcome the men and to witness their parade, followed the troops to the depot in large numbers and their farewells were as cordial as their welcome had been. At the small towns and industrial plants where no stop was made the tracks were lined with cheering crowds, anxious to catch a view of the Alabama fighters.

Dense crowds from town and surrounding country were about the station at Calera, where the first extended stop was made and the arrival and departure of the trains was greeted with cheers and applause. There the men in the cars began to find people in the crowd whom they knew and the home coming took on a decidedly more personal aspect from that point on to Montgomery, where many of the 1,500 men are well acquainted.

Reception in Clanton

Probably the biggest crowd that greeted the soldiers on their journey from Birmingham to Montgomery was at Clanton. Here the reception was arranged and garried out by program. Ladies served candies and cigarettes to the men and the regimental band gave a brief concert. Colonel Screws turned out the headquarters company and at the head of the band led a parade through Main Street. Prof. J. L. Johnson, principal of the Clanton Grammar School, with a number of school girls, and Scout Master, W. O. Rich with his troop of Clanton scouts, were loudly in evidence with flags and banners inscribed with messages of welcome to the heroes. The yells of the kids evinced much interest and applause from the soldiers.

The Clanton reception committee was composed of Judge L. H. Reynolds chairman, Rev. E. C. Maye, Mrs. N. S. Johnson and Mrs. W. P. Splawn. The populace called upon Col. Screws for a speech. He mounted an improvised platform and in a few hearty words expressed the appreciation of the officers and men of the reception given them by the people of Clanton.

A company of the second section performed a drill parade with rifles and bayonets in the street, to the delight of the hundreds of interested spectators. Everybody said, its no wonder they whipped the Germans, seeing the way they handle those guns.

Big Crowd at Verbena.

Verbena turned out in force to welcome the advance guard of the new crop of veterans. Dr. J. B. Baldwin, S. L. Gibson, Will Gulledge and a large reception committee took charge of the ceremonies and Dr. Baldwin introduced Colonel Screws as one who had spent a part of his boyhood near Verbena and in his youth had learned to swim in the creek near by and had stolen plums from the orchard of the doctor's father. Col. Screws replied that his memories of boyhood days there were bright and pleasant, and he plead guilty to the plum charge. A pair of young mules were attached to the wagon which served as a platform for the orators and their speeches were unusually brief. Dr. H. W. Caffey, father of Col. Francis G. Caffey, who was Col. Screws' commanding officer in the Spanish-American War, was at the station to greet the commanding officer of the Old Fourth. The decorations included a large sign bearing the legend, "Welcome Alabama Heroes," and it was surrounded by the mountain laurels which grow in such profusion in that section.

Visit Old Soldiers.

The first section stopped at Mt. Creek for forty minutes and the new veterans were visited by the old veterans from the Confederate Soldiers Home. Dr. R. J. Eiland, with the assistance of neighbors having automobiles, had provided transportation for the elder soldiers from the home to the station and more than fifty of the men at the home were present to welcome the returning fighting men. The band began playing "Dixie" as soon as the train stopped and the men of two wars gathered under the Stars and Stripes borne high by a returned local soldier in uniform and they fraternized as only men who understand what the hell of war means can. Again Col. Screws was called upon for a speech and he told the veterans with more words than he is accustomed to using on such occasions the depth of the appreciation of the regiment upon the reception given the command by men who know by experience what war really means. At the conclusion of his speech Col. Screws was presented with a Confederate battle flag.

Stop at Deatsville.

The last stop was made at Deatsville where a bottle of Coca-Cola and other refreshments were given to every soldier.

Most Men Know Just as Much About Merchandise as Most Children Do About Astronomy

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia

This is so true that it needs no proof to bear it out. The average shoe has sixty-two different parts, any of which can be cheapened to make a price, and none of which can be judged except by the highest expert in shoemaking. The average suit of clothes has a hundred and fifty-seven parts; the average pair of trousers has over sixty processes. The average fabric, even when it is absolutely all wool, through and through, can be made in many different grades. Your all silk socks can be made out of pure, earth-grown fiber without your knowing it; and one man is now trying to make them entirely out of cheap glue.

Now, the question is, if you are starting out to buy something today, where shall you go?

The answer is very simple: If you do not know the merchandise, you must know the merchant. The way to judge the goods is to judge the man. And the best way to judge the man is through the advertising.

The man who advertises is the man who signs his name to what he claims. If he signs his name to a bogus check, he goes into jail; if he signs his name to bogus advertising he goes into bankruptcy. Every advertiser knows this, and so he is careful of what he says. But the men who do not advertise do not have anything to lose. They do not have to be so careful of what they say. It is merely a matter of personal integrity with them. There are many thousands of fine merchants and honest men who do not advertise. That is not the point. The question is how to find them and how to tell them from the rest. When they advertise they must be honest if they hope to win.

And this is the value of the Advertising Pages in this paper today. These are the men who have signed their names. These are the men who guarantee what they sell.

It has been nearly three-quarters of a century ago since the first great merchant, Alexander T. Stewart, trusted his commercial ship on the advertising sea. And singularly enough this great man was flying flags of distress when he advertised. He put out a little dodger through the streets of New York, telling the people frankly that he had bought too much and would sell it cheap. And they came to his store and saved his commercial life.

Any man is careless who doesn't turn to the advertising news for whatever he is going to buy, because the best merchants are always the ones who advertise. They are the men who stand back of what they do and say. They are the guaranty of good faith in the business world.

Turn to their advertising pages now and see what they are offering you today.

BAPTIST REVIVAL BEGINS NEXT THURSDAY NIGHT

Rev. Jno. F. Gable, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, has gone to Atlanta this week to attend the Southern Baptist Convention. In his absence he has commissioned The Banner to remind the people of Clanton that the big Reese-Rowland revival will begin at his church on next Thursday night, May 22, the next night following the close of the High School.

Now, we want everybody to remember about the meeting and show up promptly on the first night. If you don't Mr. Gable will think that we let everybody forget about while he was away.

Don't wait till the revival has been going on three or four days before you start to attend. Lots of people never go to revivals you know till somebody else starts to shouting. Then they stumble in to see what is the matter. Don't wait till the other fellow gets the meeting fired up before you start. The trouble about that is that he may be waiting for you to get started to shouting before he comes. Everybody come on and get an even start from the very first.

DANCE AT REDMAN HALL

After the performance of the Howard College Glee Club at the high school last Wednesday night, quite a number of young people of Clanton gathered at the Fraternal Hall and entertained the Howard visitors with a dance. Music was furnished by the Clanton String Band, which was very fine for the occasion.

Tax Assessor J. N. Dennis, went to Birmingham Saturday to see the demonstration of the 167th Infantry of the Rainbow Division.

Howard L. Foshee, our next County Superintendent of Education, was in town Saturday.

Lee Ellison, who returned to the U. S. from overseas a few days ago, arrived in Clanton Saturday morning. Lee is the son of Rev. F. A. Ellison.

MRS. THOS. M. OWEN AT THE METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

On last Sunday the congregation of the Clanton Methodist Church was treated to another very uplifting address by one of the most highly recognized platform leaders of the Methodist Centenary movement in Alabama. The speaker was Mrs. Thos. M. Owen, wife of the director of the State Department of Archives and History. The talented lady is the daughter of Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama and Washington.

She spoke at the eleven o'clock hour, and gave her hearers a lecture of the highest value from every point of consideration. Mrs. Owen expressed great delight at having the pleasure of coming to Clanton on her important mission, and to say the least, the people of Clanton were equally delighted to have her on this occasion.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

This being our Centenary Day, the hours for worship will be from 10:00, a.m. to 11:00, a.m. The pastor earnestly requests every member of this church to be present promptly at 10:00, a.m. in final instructions for the Centenary drive, which will take place Sunday afternoon, May 18, from 2:00, p.m. to 7:30, p.m. The Team Captains under the direction of the campaign director, W. A. Reynolds, will meet with their teams in front of the Methodist church promptly at 2:00, p.m. in their cars; make the drive, get their cards signed, then meet at the close of the drive again at the Methodist church at 7:30, p.m.; report amount secured by each team, which will be placed upon the chart in the church, showing the results of the day's work.

To Teams:—Please carry out this plan exactly. GO OVER THE TOP in one day.

No preaching at 11, a.m. or 8:30, p.m.

Centenary Day will be a great day for your church. Do your part to make at a great day.

CLANTON BOY SCOUTS RENDER VALUABLE ASSISTANCE IN THE RAINBOW AFFAIR LAST SUNDAY

Any mention of the reception of the 167th Infantry of the Rainbow Division in Clanton Sunday would be sadly incomplete without rendering due credit to the part played by the local troop of Boy Scouts.

When it was first learned by telegram late Saturday that the soldiers would stop here Sunday, it became at once necessary to advertise the fact so that our people might know of the occasion. In this the success of the scouts is best told by the size of the crowd that was in Clanton Sunday.

Curculars annonuncing the event were hurriedly printed by The Union-Banner, and fast as the printing press turned them out the scouts grabbed them and scattered them everywhere among the people.

Then on Sunday after the crowd had gotten here for the reception the scouts were still on the job in the making of the event a success.

Too much praise cannot be given these youngsters for the valuable service they rendered. It is the duty of everybody to tell the boys that their work was valuable and appreciated.

BOY PREACHER BACKSLIDES BECAUSE OF THE MOVIES

Silas Turner, Florida's fourteen-year-old marvel preacher, is missing from home, and his parents are frantically now searching for his whereabouts.

The boy who has been preaching since he was five years old, recently visited a movie picture show and smoked a cigarette, which, according to his own teaching, consigned him to everlasting perdition. He has been missing since that time and the police have been unable to secure a trace of him.

This is the same kid who came to Clanton about a year ago and preached here. He was refused the pulpit at Friendship Church because he showed evidences that he was about as worthy to preach as any other average 14-year old boy.

CENTER HILL

There will be an all day singing at this place the third Sunday in May (18). Bring your Christian Harmony Note Books and a well filled basket. There will not be a bublic spread of dinner, but all singers will be amply cared for.

MRS. G. H. VINSON DEAD

Mrs. G. H. Vinson died last Wednesday night in an infirmary in Birmingham. Her remains were laid to rest at Poplar Springs Cemetery on Friday last.

CONGRESSMAN BLACKMON WAS IN CLANTON MONDAY

For a few hours Monday morning Clanton had as a visitor, our Congressman, Hon. Fred L. Blackmon, of Washington and Anniston. The Congressman was making a tour of his district and, and it was on his round that he visited Clanton. It is probable though that his visit here may have something to do with the appointment of a postmaster at the local office. Many friends of Mr. Blackmon were glad to shake his hand and have a few words with him.

ALL EYES TURNED TO HIGH SCHOOL SUNDAY

Rev. H. T. Crumpton to Preach Both Morning And Evening Sermon.

All the various activities in Clanton, programmed for next Sunday are going to co-operate and join in making of the High School commencement a successful occasionn. Rev. Henry T. Crumpton is going to furnish the chief attraction to begin with by preaching at the High School at the morning and evening hour of worship. Mr. Crumpton is well known here, having been previously pastor of the Clanton Baptist church and we all know what to expect of him. And we should not fail to look at the other side of the situation and remember that he also knows the people of Clanton. In his two sermons there is sure to be some of the very best interpretation and application of gospel, suited to the place and the occasion. We fancy already Rev. Crumpton cutting out the timbers and shaping them, with the plans already laid to put those timbers together, here next Sunday making a most formidable and lasting structure of thought.

Rev. Gable asks us to say that services at the Baptist Church will give place both morning and evening to the services at the High School. Sunday School will be held in the morning at the usual hour, after which everybody will go to the High School to worship with Rev. Crumpton.

The services at the school coming on next Sunday are going to interfere very seriously with the Methodist Centnennary plans for that day. But Rev. Maye has very graciously consented to forego a large part of his very important church program in favor of the High School exercises. There will be no morning nor evening worship at the Methodist Church. The detail work of the Centenary program will be carried out, but it has been arranged so that it will give everybody a chance to go to the high school also.

The preachers and church committees have very nicely fixed their programs to co-operate in making the services at the school a success, and it is to be hoped that the people from the town and surrounding country will come to the services and render their very necessary aid in worship.

OFFICERS GET CHARLEY CLECKLER AND HIS BOOZE

Early Saturday morning Sheriff J. L. Gore arrested Charley Cleckler out near the turpentine still and confiscated a couple of gallons of moonshine liquor which he had in his possession. He was brought to Clanton and placed under bond.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors in Clanton for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our wife and mother.

"Dicearces Mericies," That is President Wilson's Newest Name.

Of course you remember when President Wilson first went to Europe last winter in search of his golden fleece, the league of nations; and how he made his dash for the Pope of Rome the first shot out of the box. But you have not heard just what happened when our President crossed the threshold of the vatican and was locked behind the doors with his holy eminence, Pope Benedict XV, have you?

We have managed to find out one of the things that took place there on that great secret occasion, and we want to tell our readers what it was. Our little bit of information on the subject comes from "The Western World" a Catholic paper of Des Moines, Iowa. Now of course our friend Mahan, or some other leather-lung soft-soap eater will at once rise up in the meetin and swear that we are lying and that there is no such paper as the one this clipping came from. But back to what happened at Rome when Wilson visited the Pope. We have got to run this train, and have not got time to stop and throw coal at the little fice who bark at the noise we are making. Here is what that Catholic paper says:

"One suggestion, as timely as it is genial, is attributed to the Fifteenth Benedict these days, viz: that of making President Wilson an Arcadian, member of the famous litetrary society that originated in the vatican gardens in the sixteenth century. To Cardinal Gibbons, father of the Bishops of the world; to the sturdy Cardinal Mercier; and to the Prince Bishop of Trent, a similar honor is done by the Arcadians.

"The four famous Arcadians will find themselves in excellent company, as far as dignity, fame and learning. Leo XIII and Pious X were members of the Arcadia. Benedict XV is one with the title Pontifex Maxims. The King of Spain and the Queen of Sweden are also members. Most of the Cardinals in Rome belong to it, a small number of foreign Bishops, and many lovers of letters all over Europe.

"On becoming an Arcadian, one receives from the society a Greek name by which he is to be known on its register. The name given by it to Mr. Wilson is 'Dicearces Mericies.' "

So you see the Catholics are taking unto themselves again, praise and honor at the gullibility of our President in swallowing their doses of carefully prepared politico-religious-literary physic.

What you got to say about it? We will leave it up to you, gentle reader.

GIVE THEM THEIR OWN MEDICINE

President Wilson continues to demand a discrimination between the German people and the German war party, together with a peace without victory. And still we are wondering how Germany could have held out as long as she did, had it not been for the fact that the German people were back of their army. The German people gave their "undefeated" troops a royal reception in Germany after the signing of the armistice, covering them with laurel and cheering themselves hoarse. Why insist upon discrimination between criminals? Is there such a thing as a good criminal? Can the world forget that many of the officers and men of the German army came from what we are given to understand should be a class, segregated as "the German people?" Will the world soon forget what these German officers and men did to the women and children of Belgium and France? There can be no peace terms too harsh for such a barbarous nation. Let them pay, every man, woman and child, as an example to future generations. If this is done and the terms backed by iron, there need be no fear of some methods again and no need for any league of nations.

"Dicearces Mericies" will probably return to the United States about June 15th.

President Wilson will cable his message to the opening of Congress from the White House in Paris.

Congress goes into special session on the 19th. We look for the Republicans to come out with some good legislation for this needy country right off the reel.

Republicans Promise Rigid Investigation of Government Extravagance and Waste.

With the open declaration that extravagance in governmental departments has reached proportions of scandal, and asserting that the financial outlook of the government is not encouraging, committees of the next Congress of the United States are planning to delve into the conditions and lay open some of the things that ought to be shown to the eyes of the people. The House Ways and Means Committee calls for drastic retrenchment, and is indignant over the fact that while the people are patriotically subscribing to the Victory Loan, government officials are extravagantly wasting the money.

The Committee realizes that there is already much complaint against heavy taxation. But Congress cannot go on issuing bonds to pay interest on former bonds. There is a likelihood that the next Congress will force a budget system upon the administration, and in addition, institute drastic measures of retrenchment in expenses.

The number of unnecessary government employees at Washington is fast becoming a public scandal. The various committees of Congress ought to get busy at once to cut down the number on this list and reduce expenses on this one item. All through the war these committees have been silent as the grave, not even venturing to meet. Their indolence has given to the many bureaus and departments a free rein in the employing of assistants of one kind and another, and the privilege has been most recklessly abused.

We hope the Republicans will make a showing quickly in cutting the expenses at Washington. It is their first duty to the country.

We are mighty glad to see that a Congressman from Iowa expects to put thru some legislataion in the interest of the rural schools of the United States. But it is to be borne in mind that the Catholics are sworn enemies of our public schools, and they will make every effort to get mixed into the effort some incendiary motives that will prove detrimental to the whole purpose. Some of our soft-shelled Congressmen forget this at times, and allow themselves to be fooled by the innocent propaganda that the Catholics use to get the upper hand of measures that are contrary to their designs. There will be Catholic opposition in Congress to anything designed and purporting to better the common schools. Those Congressman who have Americanism enough in them to fight the hellishness of Romanism will be called upon to stand firm for the public schools, or else the measure will be totally defeated, or come out all trimmed up so as to make it worse for the public schools than it was before they started.

Twenty-five Years Ago

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

A writer has the following to say in his "Ruddick Ripplings:" Gregory & Coe Lumber Company checks and eggs compose the currency for this part of the county. Hurrah for Cleveland and Wall Street!

At Dixie last Friday Mr. W. J. A. Melton shot and killed George Goldstein, colored, three pistol balls taking effect in the negroe's head.

Last week J. S. Retherford killed the champion rattle-snake near Coosa River. The reptile was 5½ feet long and 7⅝ inches in circumference, and had 19 rattles.

Farmers are about done planting their 5-cent cotton and a rain is needed.

The miners at Blue Creek keep finding gold. They found a piece last week worth twenty dollars.

W. C. Robinson is Secretary of the Chilton County Teachers Institute which was held at Jemison last week.

Dr. J. P. Hayes has been engaged by Dr. J. S. Johnson, Jr., as his assistant, and will answer calls at all times.

The fence around the Clanton Cemetery is at last being erected.

W. H. Merritt has commenced building his two-story storehouse on the Bivings lot.

W. L. Sampey has completed his new warehouse below the depot.

Dr. Johnson had the misfortune to lose his best horse "Dutch" last week. He dropped dead in front of the drug store.

Mrs. Bowden's school is being well attended.

The Clanton boys played the Jemison boys a game of ball last Saturday. The result was a tie. The game was so exciting that the Clanton boys came home leaving their clothes—except of course, what they were wearing.

Republicans to Consider League of Nations on its Merits.

Efforts to make it appear that Republican senators are considering the covenant for the League of Nations from a partisan standpoint will fail. The question involved transcend partisanship. Senate Republicans expect to confer, and take counsel of one another's views but they say that any notion there will be any attempt to caucus and bind members to do this or that is without foundaion.

A part of the democratic side too, will rise above partisanship in the consideration of the covenant. On the other hand, certain Democratic senators who were just as enthusiastic for the League before it was revised as they are now, will think along political lines only, and abjectly to whatever the administration wants done. They would have voted for it without protection for the Monroe Doctrine just as readily as they will vote for it now.

English senators will study the proposition deeply and seriously to make it certain the country will hear one of the great debates of this generation when it is discussed. It will be a debate characterized by expositions of Americanism which will be worth while.

That the covenant has been improved by the criticisms which were directed against the original instruments by such men as Lodge, Root, Cummins, Borah, Knox, Hiram Johnson, Poindexter, and other prominent Republicans is not seriously disputed by any considerable number of the League supporters in either of the houses of Congress.

Reports that there is anything like a final alignment of the Senate are not well-founded. Comparatively few Senators, except those committed to the covenant from the start, have said how they will vote on the final test. Just what the parlimentary situation will be is not yet plain and cannot be until the text of the peace treaty is given out. It is obvious there will be great debate and hard controversy over amendments proposed to the covenant and probably the hardest fight of all will rage about provisions that look to the guarantee of territorial integrity of nations, which will mean underwriting of the boundary lines of the world as the League maps them out.

A Victory for Criticism.

Quite aside from all questions of principle and policy, the revised covenant of the League of Nations published yesterday shows how much good can come out of a free discussion and honest criticism, for it is admitted that the new product is a great improvement over the old. Much impatience has been shown by the unquestioning middle-of the-road, through-to-the-end followers of the administration when anyone has assumed to question the infallibility of any of its methods and purposes. But criticism in this case was not suppressed, the critics continued their good offices, and the result so far apparent, has justified it. All parties, even the dyed-in-the wool adherents of the Wilson administration, are agreed that a marked change for the better has been worked out because of the propulsion of honest criticism.—New York Herald.

ASWELL NOT SO WELL.

At least one of the Democrats who took a leading part in the framing of the legislation of the last Congress has become appalled at the result, and intends to obey the call of his conscience and apologize to the House when it re-convines for the part he played in bringing about national disorganization. Representative Aswell of Louisiana is the man who initiated the legislation for the taking over by the government of the wires and cables. He says he is thoroughly disappointed over the result. He was led to believe by officials with whom he conferred that government operation would lead to a general reduction of rates, in some cases as much as one-half. But not only have the rates not been reduced, but telegraph rates have been increased about 20 per cent.

"I am the author," humbly confesses Mr. Aswell, "of the resolution that was made the basis of existing law taking over the control of the telegraph and telephone wires for the duration of the war. I believe in it heartily and worked for it faithfully, but I am very frank to state that I am greatly disappointed and discouraged to note the increase of 20 per cent ordered on telegraph rates. I am not yet ready to admit that any such increase is justifiable or necessary.

"This means the death knell to the government control or ownership of telegraph, telephone and railroad lines. I owe it to my people and the congress to apologize for my resolution if government control means increase in rates."

We are very glad to know that Mr. Aswell's vision at last has penetrated the cloud of Wilsonism and government ownership that seemed to inspire him and his Democratic colleagues. It would have been far better for the country if the predictions of the Republicans, since proven to be true, had been followed when the Aswell legislation and similar bills were up for discussion. Apologies cannot repair the damage that has resulted from the experiments of the Democrats in upsetting the established order of things and substituting their own untried schemes. The people will be slow to entrust the government again to the control of the men who have brought such disorganization to our railroad and wire systems, and who now seek forgiveness for their misdeeds in abject apologies.

EDUCATIONAL REFORMS PLANNED BY CONGRESS

Towner has Bill to Promote Americanization of Aliens and Obliteration of Illiteracy.

Washington, May 14,—The formation of a new department of education and a seat for the head of it in the president's cabinet is provided for in a bill which will be introduced in the House immediately after the opening of the special session by Representative Horace Towner, of Iowa, a member of the committee on education.

It is the aim of Towner and many of his Republican colleagues to coordinate all of the educational work now done by other bureaus of the government in various executive departments into the one central agency for giving a new impetus to the education of all the people. One of the most important parts of his plan that has been urged by the American Federation of labor and the American Educational Association would be 'hat for the removal of illiteracy. Such instruction, the bill provides, shall deal with the common school branches and the duties of citizenship, and when advisable, shall prepare for some definite occupation. In order to encourage the states in the promotion and support of education an appropriation is made of $100,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921. Three-fortieths of this is given the states for the instruction of illiterates of ten years of age and over. The later sum will be appropriated to the states in the proportions which their respective illiterate populations bear to the total illiterate population of the United States, not including outlying possessions.

Three-fortieths of the total sum is to be used to teach immigrants ten years of age and over to speak and read the English language and to understand and appreciate the spirit and purpose of the American government and the duties of citizenship in a free country. This sum also will be appropriated to the states in the proportions which their representative foreign-born populations bear to the total foreign-born population of the United States.

In order to encourage the states to equalize educational opportunities, $50,000,000 will be used for public, elementary and secondary schools for the partial payment of teachers' salaries, for providing better institutions and extending school terms, especially in rural schools in sparsely settled localities and for the extension and adoption of public libraries for educational purposes. This sum will be appropriated to the several states in proportion to the children between the ages of 6 and 21 bear to the total and in proportion to the number of school teachers to the total throughout the country.

REPUBLICAN MAJORITY IS READY FOR MAY 19

Floor Leader Mondell Declares That His Colleagues Will Conduct Busnness-like Session.

Washington, May 15, 1919.—The Republican majority will be ready for business as soon as the gavel falls on May 19th, announced Representative Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, floor leader of his party, to your correspondent.

"The majority committee members will be elected the first day of the session," he went on, "and if the minority will present their committee members, which they have not yet done, the House can get to work at once.

"The first work will be that of preparing and passing the seven appropriation bills which failed in the last Congress. In the meantime the legislative committees will organize and proceed to business.

"In view of the fact that the president has decided to call congress in session in advance of his return, it is to be regretted that he did not make up his mind sooner that this might be done. Congress might have been in session from the 1st of May or even earlier, in which event the legislature program would now be well under way.

"Congress will be compelled to establish an entirely new record for the dispatch of business, if it passes all of the appropriation bills between May 19th and July 1. But I am sure it will be the disposition of congress to advance the program as far as possible by the 1st of the fiscal year.

"I anticipate a busy, businesslike session from the beginning and the adoption of a forward-looking constructive program. The problems before us are numerous and imprtant. I anticipate an earnest spirit of harmonious cooperation in connection with the consideration of all these problems.

"The fact that the Republican majority thoroughly organized immediately after the adjournment of the last congress; elected a speaker and ma-jority leader, selected a chairman of all the committees, named the minor officers such as clerk, doorkeeper- sergeant at arms and postmaster, and appointed every member to his respective committees, enambed every Republican member to mentally prepare for the work he will be called upon to do when the work of the 66th congress begins. Hence, the membership of the party which will control the House is in shape for immediate action for the good of the country than any new majority in many years."

Willie Parrish of Birmingham visited relatives in Clanton Saturday and Sunday. returning Sunday afternoon.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

THE FAILURE OF OUR GOVERNMENT OPERATION

Washington, May 15.—The failure of government operation of railroads, telephone and telegraph lines, or any other public utilities, might easily have been forseen by anyone who would take the trouble to consider the elemental influences inevitably determining the outcome. It is certainly axiomatic that centralized power in an individual or commission can only produce results commensurate with the integrity, ability, experience and unselfishness of the individual or the members of the commission. It is impossible that government operation would place in control men of greater ability and experience than were the men who built up the enterprises under private management. Neither is there any reason to believe that government operators will be more honest or less selfish than private operators. Private operation had the advantage of the incentive constantly offered by the hope of the rewards of success. In government operation this incentive was practically lost.

Government operation necessitates all the acts incident to government regulation, and more. If, then, government regulation be a failure, nothing better can be expected from government operation. If government regulation be a success, there is no need for government operation. Private operation under government regulation retains the advantage of individual initiative and the stimulus of competition in efficiency, while these are wanting in government operation. By no line of reasoning can one justify the expectation that government operation under proper government regulation.

Government operation has not only been more costly and less efficient but it has brought complaints of discriminataion and injustice — establishment of inequitable rates and injury to business. It has brought on strikes and threats of strikes, discontent among employees, antagonism toward the government, wastefulness, depreciation, retrogression and disorganization. All of which was forseen by men who knew that an appointment to government office does not carry with it extraordinary ability, intelligence, experience or integrity."

Fertilizing Growing Crops DOES IT PAY?

J. N. Harper,
Soil Improvement Committee, Atlanta, Georgia.

Side applications of fertilizers to the growing crops as a supplement to a first application made at seeding time is quite widely practiced in the South.

The writer recently obtained from county agents the names of leading farmers of North and South Carolina who make a bale or more of cotton per acre. These farmers were addressed a letter and asked, among other things, to tell how they fertilized their cotton. In these answers a large proportion report that they make side applications of fertilizer. A few of these reports that are typical of the rest are given herewith:

Mr. Jno. C. Fletcher, McColl, S. C.

Kind of soil: "Light loam with clay subsoil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "Use about 1,400 lbs. per acre; half applied just before planting, and the other half about June 15th."

Mr. B. D. Mann, Enfield, N. C.

Kind of soil: "Sandy loam and heavy loam to gray stiff soil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying. "From 500 to 1,000 lbs. per acre of an 8-3-3. At time of planting use from 400 to 600 lbs., about June 1st when cotton is chopped out make another application of 400 lbs."

Mr. Fred H. Young, Timmonsville, S. C.

Kind of soil: "Sandy loam with clay subsoil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "900 to 1,000 lbs. of fertilizer used. April 1st apply 500 lbs. of fertilizer, ridging on same and planting about ten days later. Fertilizer applied in three applications; 500 lbs. before planting; about May 1st, another application of 500 lbs.; and still another application of 200 to 250 lbs. June 1st."

Mr. B. F. Shelton, Speed, N. C.

Kind of soil: "Norfolk loam, or dark gray soil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "800 lbs. of a 9-5-2 used per acre (during normal times an 8-4-4). Half of fertilizer applied in drill at time of planting; the other half when cotton is 5 to 6 inches high."

Mr. A. G. Clarkson, Wateree, S. C.

Kind of soil: "Ruston loam."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "1,500 lbs. of a fertilizer analyzing 10% phosphoric acid, 3% nitrogen, and no potash. Apply two-thirds of fertilizer at time of preparing the land and one-third in May or June."

Mr. S. P. Winburne, Como, N. C.

Kind of soil: "Light loam."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "600 lbs. per acre of a 10-5-0 (during normal times 700 lbs. of an 8-4-4). Apply fertilizer and stable manure in drill before planting. Apply one-third of fertilizer as a side application when plants are about knee high."

Mr. H. A. Monroe, Cameron, N. C.

Kind of soil: "Gravelly sandy loam with clay subsoil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "600 to 800 lbs. of fertilizer per acre used. Part applied at time of preparing the land, and 200 to 300 lbs. applied as side dressing before blooms appear."

Mr. F. H. Waller, Kingston, N. C.

Kind of soil: "Gray sandy soil."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "800 lbs. per acre of a 10-4-8. Apply fertilizer in drill about ten days prior to planting. Side dress one or two times about June 20 and July 10."

Mr. W. F. Peterson, Clinton, S. C.

Kind of soil: "Dark gray."

Fertilizer used and method of applying: "400 lbs. when rows are laid off; 250 lbs. as side application at second plowing after chopping, and 250 lbs. as another side application when plants are knee high."

Side Applications to Cotton.

At the time the cotton plant is in full bloom ample plant food must be available or else a large percentage of the squares will shed. While there are other factors that cause shedding, for example, a lack of a proper amount of moisture; still, it has been proven that even with the most favorable moisture conditions, a lack of plant food is the potent cause of this trouble.

Under boll weevil conditions, the fertilizer used in side applications should contain a high percentage of phosphoric acid and a rather low percentage of nitrogen. This fertilizer has the effect of forcing the young bolls to quick growth and early maturity.

Side Applications to Corn.

While it usually pays to make a larger side application of fertilizer for cotton than for corn, still, many of the best farmers in the Southeast advocate liberal side applications for corn.

The period of the growth of corn is much shorter than that of cotton; consequently, there must be present in the soil large supplies of available plant food at the critical period of its growth, which is from the time it is waist high to tasselling time.

PEOPLE WANT AN AUDIT

Washington May 14.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters.

The New York Tribune Bureau in Washington sent out a story recently declaring that Republican leaders would put a bridle on war probe,' and that so far as ideas of limitation had taken form, prospective investigations had been grouped under three heads: (1) Greatly to restrict, if not entirely forbid, the investigations of the management of the American Expeditionary Force; (2) To avoid investigation of productions of machines and materials for the war and general questions of business management; (3) To limit War Department investigations largely to matters bearing on its administration the truth regarding the thousands of grievances soldiers are bringing home with them will only besmirch the national honor without accomplishing any great good, says the Tribune Bureau, and in the next breath intimates that Republican leaders are chary of going too fully into investigations because they believe them to be politically dangerous. On the other hand, we are told that the Republicans will make Burleson a target.

Just what authority the N. Y. Tribune correspondent in Washington has for making these announcements does not appear. There are not enough Republican leaders at present in Washington to commit the party to any such wishy-washy programme even if that were desired. The people of this country have cheerfully come through with billions of dollars for the public defense and they are positive that untold millions have thrown away with an abandon utterly criminal; that departmental breakdowns have been responsible for gross failure to keep our troops adequately supplied with the engines of war with the result that we had to depend largely on France and England for airplanes, artillery, uniforms and a thousand and one things needed by the armies today; that all Democratic bureaucracy has been only a bedlam of inefficiency with European allies acting as shock-absorbers while our machine bumped over the winding road to the front line trenches. The people also know that the soldiers themselves displayed the utmost gallantry and efficiency despite the handicaps under which they labored.

These things the people knew in a general way without knowing who in particular are responsible. Each department blames the other for its failures, and the officials at home pass the buck to the forces abroad for many a bungle. No doubt hundreds of cases of maladministration, to put it gently, have never been exposed, many will never be because the tracks have been covered up. Certainly the gravest of these, at least, should be brought home to the persons responsible in order that this country may knaw whom it trusted and who abused that trust. Any other course would amount to a clean bill of health to a large number of lepers, political and moral, who have sponged on the American people and who are strutting before the public boasting of renown to which they are not entitled. There need not be a walter of smelling committees. A systematic investigation of the war proceedings is what is desired, not the making of political capital—Heaven knows the Republicans have enough of that—but in order that the goats may be separated from the lambs. As for making Burleson the target, that would be as foolish as to shoot at a man's reflection in the mirror with a view of killing the man. Burleson is but the reflection of President Wilson.

Motto: - - - - "Do Right."

The hog when rightly handled is a "Three-in-one" farm implement. First, he is a labor saving machine, harvesting without cost the crops provided for him; second, he is a fertilizer factory enriching the farmer's fields through the crops grown for him and consumed upon the ground; third, he is a mortgage lifter, paying the farmer handsomely for the privilege of harvesting his crops and enriching his land.

But the hog in the pen falls far short of these accomplishments. The prices of hogs and such feedstuffs as corn, shorts, etc., usually bear such relation to each other that the hog will just about pay for his feed when put in a pen and fed such feeds.

The Experiment Stations and successful farmers have found that such crops as rape, clover, alfalfa and the small grains can be depended upon for half to three-fourths of the ration for young hogs and still keep them growing rapidly. If fed no other feed, they just about hold their own as they can not eat enough such feeds to produce much growth. Fattening hogs can make about one-fourth to one-third of their ration from the same class of forage. Such seed crops as soy bean and peanuts will produce rapid gains without additional feeds though it is profitable to balance such crops with corn. Tankage with corn has also been found very profitable when hogs are grazing peanuts.

If no other pasturage is available rape seeded early on land rich enough for turnips, will furnish excellent grazing within six to ten weeks from the time of planting and will last until mid June or early July. An acre should furnish plenty of grazing for a sow and litter, and if the land is as rich as it should be, will do even better.

Sorghum is, at best, a very poor feed for hogs, but it is better than no forage if it is properly used. If it is necessary to use sorghum the hogs should be turned on to graze it when it is 12 to 24 inches high while it is tender and they will eat it like grass. If permitted to head out and ripen, it should be cut and thrown to the hogs.

One of the best hog crops is the soy bean. Soy beans are easily grown, are drouth resistant and can be grown after oats if desired, though they make their best growth if planted earlier. If forage of other kinds is scarce, hogs can be turned on soy beans when they are in bloom, but the best results are secured by waiting till the pods are formed but not yet well filled. Some corn fed on soy beans is very profitable.

There seems to be nothing else except milk that will make a hog grow as soy beans will, though they fatten faster on peanuts. Soy beans make soft pork, but the hogs do not get so fat as on peanuts, so are in good shape to harden off on other feeds.

Every club boy and farmer should plant some soy beans for his hogs. See your county agent about seed.

Health of this place is very good at the present time. Everybody is enjoying the warm weather. The farmers seem to be getting along nicely with their work. We also had a nice rain last Wednesday evening which we were all glad to see.

Next Third Saturday and Sunday are our preaching days. We hope to have a large crowd to hear what Bro. Norris has to tell us.

Several of Bill Mims and Mrs. John Mims' family went to the cemetery on last Friday afternoon and did some work toward sweeping, digging grass and cleaning off.

We are glad to know that Corporal Evan Downs has landed from overseas. We are expecting to see him back home real soon. We believe be could tell us lots of interesting things.

Mr. Lee Downs of Ensley is at home now for a few days.

Miss Bessie Downs spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Mamie Jones.

Misses Bertha and Nettie Dennins, Mamie and Daisy Downs, Louise Popwell, Ruth Moore, Vera Gillespie, Lera Johnson, Messrs Julian Vinson, Arthur Mims, Lee Downs, Chester and Dacil Mims and Dowell Johnson went kodaking Sunday afternoon. They report a nice time.

Mr. Caldwell Mims had a little run-away scrape last Sunday afternoon with two girls in the buggy. His mule got scared at an automobile, but he didn't run very far, and the result was a big laugh.

Mrs. John Mims returned home last night from a day and night's visit to her son Jim Mims at Ensley.

Miss Beaula Dunlap spent the day Wednesday at her Uncle's J. Z. Mims.

Miss Alsey Mims is spending the week-end with her brother, A. Z. Mims.

Chester Mims received a letter from Corp. Wibb Parrish this week. He wishes to get back in time to play a few games of base ball with the boys.

Gladys Culver, little daughter of A. J. Culver, is spending this week with her aunt, Mrs. Bertha Foshee.

771 CHILTON MEN IN SERVICE DURING THE WORLD WAR

Birmingham, Ala., May 10.—Chilton County's quota of the fund for "Alabama Memorial" which will be raised in the state drive from June 27 to July 4 will be $4,624. This announcement was made today by W. S. Stallings, state campaign director. The quota was reached when it was found that the county had 771 men in the military, naval and marine service during the world war.

The County has been asked by the Alabama Memorial Commission to contribute six dollars for each man who served the nation in either of the three branches of the service. The total number of men from this county was reached by the addition of ten per cent to the total men who entered the service through the nation's draft machinery. This ten per cent represents the men who volunteered for service before the selective service law became effective.

Several counties have informed the memorial commission that they will voluntarily increase their quota or will guarantee that they will go over the top with dollars to spare. Notable in this list are Montgomery and Cullman counties. Montgomery's is $16,200 but the county director has increased it to $50,000. The director of Cullman County will exceed its quota.

Frank Patterson of Cooper went to Birmingham to meet his son with the 167th Infantry. Byron came down with his father Saturday night and stayed at home, rejoining his regiment and going on with them to Montgomery Monday.

E. D. Hand and wife of Route 2 were visitors to Clanton last Saturday.

Herman Eubanks and wife of Birmingham were in Clanton Saturday and Sunday visiting their parents.

James Kebble Terry Daniel of Ensley was in Clanton Monday. Jim is now holding down an important position as an electrical machinist foreman in one of the big plants at Ensley. He is a Chilton boy of whom we are indeed proud.

Congressman Blackmon subscribed for The Union-Banner while he was here Monday. We do't suppose that the Banner is quite the biggest paper that our congressman gets and reads but honestly we believe he will find lots of things in our little sheet that would be good thought for him in his high seat at Washington.

Dr. J. E. Gowan left Tuesday for New Orleans to take a special course in Dentistry. At the same time his wife and children left for Kosciusco, Miss., to visit Dr. Gowan's father and other relatives.

MODERN ORDER PRAETORIANS COMING TO CLANTON

The Modern Order of Praetorians, a fraternal insurance order, having its headquarters in Dallas, Texas, is opening up a campaign under the direction of the Montgomery headquarters for Alabama, for the establishment of a local lodge in the town of Clanton.

The work of organizing and starting off the movement in Clanton his been placed in charge of special agents, M. J. Helms and E. B. Slay, of Montgomery. They have already spent some time on the proposition in Clanton and have found splendid encouragement. A number of applicants for insurance and membership in the order have already been secured. It is intended in a few days to establish the local lodge and get things to going right for the future success of the Praetorians in Clanton.

As a fraternal feature, the Praetorians offer a very valuable and impressive lesson. The insurance feature is beyond a doubt, the best thing that has ever been offered in the way of fraternal life insurance. The Praetorians is not a new movement just starting out in the insurance business. It is an established concern that has already passed the stage of experimenting. They have got something worth while to offer anyone interested in affiliating with a fraternal order and the carrying of life insurance. You have only to see the proposition and make comparison of it to be convinced that it is the best fraternal insurance that you can find anywhere.

SALVATION ARMY ZONE MANAGERS ARE ENCOURAGED

When the Zone Managers of the Gulf Division, Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19-26, met in Birmingham, Ala., May 4th and 5th, there was gathered there one of the most enthusiastic crowd of men and women that the city has ever seen.

They were all bubbling over with enthusiasm because they are finding the people wherever they go deeply interested in the Salvation Army and its work. All of them reported that they find the people of the cities and the country anxiously awaiting the opening of the campaign, so that they may contribute to the fund in order that the Salvation Army may carry on its work among the people, that the Salvation Army alone can reach.

A statement made by one Zone Manager was typical of statements made by all of them. This statement was as follows: "The people of this country have at last realized what a wonderful organization the Salvation Army is, and are anxious to do what they can to help it in its work."

The people of the rural districts are beginning to realize that they are even more interested in the Salvation Army and its work than the people of the city, and now that the country people realize this, they are more than ready and willing to aid the Salvation Army in carrying on its work by making liberal contributions.

RETURNED SOLDIER HELPS SALVATION ARMY TO PAY DEBT MADE "OVER THERE"

Clifford Blauvelt, a Birmingham boy who went overseas with Company A of the 167th regiment, saw service at St. Meheil, the Argonne and Lorraine, and was gassed at Lorraine, has just recently returned home. He is at present assisting in the Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19-26th.

"I am glad to be doing this work," said Mr. Blauvelt, "for no one realizes more than I do what the Salvation Army did for the boys over there, and anything we can do for them is not half enough. I'll always be a friend to the Salvation Army and the noble men and women in its ranks. When we were cold, hungry and homesick, members of the Salvation Army always came to our rescue. The Salvation Army lassies could always be found where the fighting was hottest, and the American people should and will back the Salvation Army up in the Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19-26."

MEN IN HIGH POSITIONS HELP SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

In speaking of the Salvation Army campaign for this Zone, Hon. Earl Brewer, Chairman Gulf Division, said:

"The Zone, county and city chairmen, treasurers and other executives of the Salvation Army Home Service Fund, for this district, were carefully selected, and there is not a man occupying one of these positions, who does not stand high in the regard of the people who know him. The people know that these men are giving their time and money to this cause, from purely unselfish motives, and they know that these people would not be connected with a campaign of this nature, were it not for a worthy cause. For this reason, it is anticipated that the quota for this district will be oversubscribed during the first days of the campaign."

TRAVELING MAN PRAISES SALVATION ARMY WORK AND TELLS EXPERIENCES

A traveling man was standing down at the railroad passenger station a few days ago when a boy boarded a train for a distant city where he had a position awaiting him. "I wonder," said the traveling man, "if that boy or his parents realize the hard road that he is going to have to travel; the temptations that he will meet with and the hard fight that he is going to have to put up to overcome them? And I wonder if they know that in case he finds some of those temptations too much for him and falls by the wayside who it is that will stand by him when all others have turned away? It will be the Salvation Army whose slogan is: 'A man may be down but he is never out.'"

The Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19-26 will give the people of this town and county an opportunity to help the Salvation Army in its work.

Ask the returning soldier who was his best friends on the firing line. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred he will tell you the Salvation Army.

Men and women from every walk of life are joining the leaders in the Salvation Army Home Service Campaign, which will be launched May 19th, for the purpose of raising funds to carry on the Army's work in the United States on a great scale.

The Salvation Army is non-denominational and non-partisan in its help to the lowly and the down-trodden. It recognizes no creed and no system of ceremonies when it goes out to save those who have fallen by the way.

WILSON WAR POWER IS TO BE WITHDRAWN

Senator Watson Introduces Bill to Restore Conditions in the Government to Normal.

Washington, May 20.—Immediately upon the opening of the special session Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, introduced a resolution to take from the president all of the extraordinary powers granted him by congress for the carrying on of the war and to repeal the esponiage law.

The administration has shown a tendency since the signing of the armistice to continue the privilege granted it of driving the country by force of authority in the direction of State bolshevism. The seizure of the cables, the pronouncement of former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo in favor of the retention by the government of the railroads for a period of five years, the fixing of prices the attempt to retain control over the telephone and telegraph wires, a proposal to operate the coal deposits of Alaska, and to build homes for soldiers in the West, are urged by members of congress as proofs of it. It is believed by Senator Watson that much of this tendency comes from the usurpation of power by the executive branch of thu government.

As a result of the Indiana Senator's move it is likely that an accounting will be asked of the $100,000,000 granted the president fr national defense purposes. It was charged by Representative Good of Iowa, and substantiated with proof, at the end of the last session $5,000,000 had been diverted to a Connecticut corporation headed by Vance McCormick of the War Trade Board for the purpose of doing business of all kinds in any part of the world. It is the intention of congress to get at whether the entire sum was spent for the purpose for which it was needed.

The president was given extraordinary power to reorganize the bureaus of the government as he thought fit, without the slightest check on the part of the legislative branch. This will be all done away with by Senator Watson's resolution, if enacted into law, as will his special powers of appointment on the civil side of the army and navy, and his bureau of public information, supervised by George Creel, for the acceleration of public opinion toward the men and methods favored by him, which aroused the decided resentment of many members of both the House and Senate even during the period when the war was still actually in progres.

HAULING WITH TRUCKS

In these times of hustle and progress, it has become necessary for deliveries of merchandise, produce etc., to be made earlier and quicker than it can be done by freight or express. This problem is solved by the use of the motor truck. Farmers find it very convenient to ship their produce to the market in the cities by truckloads, which affords them prompt shipment and gives them the advantage of shipping just when they get ready.

Truck traffic is invaluable for moving household goods. By moving them by truck one eliminates the worry and work of packing and crating the goods for shipment which is absolutely necessary in shipping any way other than by truck. This together with the swiftness of this kind of hauling makes it very convenient and altogether advisable for farmers as well as others who have things to be hauled to have it done by truck.

CHILTON GREETS RETURNED SOLDIERS WITH RECEPTION

Thorsby, Ala., May 17.—With cheers and tears and a reception that no point in the state outside the principal cities can hope to excel, Chilton County Saturday received her heroic sons, and 5,000 of her citizens abandoned the regular daily pursuits to attend and participate in the welcoming celebration. From the moment in the early morning that the soldiers and citizens began arriving until a late hour, when the festivities ceased, every man, woman and child present devoted every energy to the glad task of receiving the gallant Chilton warriors and making them feel the welcome that filled every heart with emotion.

Hard working committees had planned well for the event. The town of Thorsby was decorated as no small town in Alabama perhaps was ever before decorated. Every house displayed the colors, and the streets of the town blazed with flags and bunting. Prominently displayed and interwoven with the Stars and Stripes in the decorating scheme the Stars and Bars of the "Lost Cause" was seen, a symbol of the re-united nation.

Two ball-games were held, which were participated in by many of the soldiers. Bands furnished an excellent musical program throughout the day, and from the early morning hours on through no break was allowed to occur in the festivities. It was Chilton County's "day of days" and nothing was omitted that could in any way contribute to the joyousness of the great event.

The first big feature of the day was the parade, which at 10:30 o'clock traversed the streets of the town. More than 150 soldiers, in which number several marines and some naval veterans were included, formed the line of march and staged some interesting drill movements for the entertainment of the assembled crowd. After this reature, the parade passed through the town receiving on every hand the wildest and most enthusiastic cheers imanigable, passing at length under the Victory Arch especially constructed for the occasion by Mr. Billingsley. The arch was anelegant structure, a fitting tribute to the gallant fighting men who were the first to pass under it.

Bosworth Welcomes Men.

The welcome welling in every heart was effectively expressed by Mayor Bosworth, who delivered the official welcome address. This was hardly more effective, however, than the individual welcome which was delivered to each man by the women present. The great success of the day was attributed very largely to the efforts of the women of the county, who have worked ceaselessly to promote the celebration and whose efforts throughout the day Saturday made the day the big success that it has been pronounced. J. M. Graham of Birmingham delivered an enthusiastic address.

In the parade marched, first the soldiers; second in line came the old soldiers, veterans of '61, soldiers who wore both the blue and the gray, joined together in the common cause of welcoming home triumphant sons and grandsons. Next came large platoons of school children from the county schools, whose part in the celebration was important and well performed. These were followed by the naval section.

After the parade and welcome address, dinner was served. And such a dinner! Upon this feature the women of the county, assisted by men whose experience made them eligible, had devoted days of work, thought and preparation. It was an old-fashioned barbecue. Such a large amount had been prepared that 50 large baskets were left untouched, after feeding the largest crowd assembled in Chilton County in years.

The afternoon was devoted to baseball and other amusements. Soldiers roamed at will, meeting old friends and receiving that personal welcome that comes from home-folks. Many of the men were in the Rainbow Division, and had just returned after having been on a series of reception trips. All expressed their delight at being home again, and tears of gladness were seen on the cheek of many a bronzed soldier who never before had felt such an emotion.

CONGRESS TO REDUCE TAXES ON LUXURIES

Republicans Plan to Prevent the Necessities of Life from Being Classed as Otherwise.

Washington, May 19.—One of the first measures of revenue reform to be put forward by the Republican congress will be the reduction of the luxury tax provisions of the revenue law enacted at the last session of the Democratic congress.

It is contended by legislators that many of these provisions impose an unnecessary burden upon the purchaser of the ordinary necessities of life and unduly add to the cost of living. For instance, it is pointed out that it is now difficult to buy a good and substantial pair of shoes whether for men or women, for less than $10.00. Yet the law declares that any pair of shoes which costs more than that is a luxury and is so taxed. The derby hat of good quality of the average man, which formerly cost $5 now costs $8. But the revenue law defines it a luxury if more than $5 is paid. The same is true on all shirts costing more then $3. One of the most popular makes of shirts in the country today could be purchased before the war for $1.50, but now costs $3. Ordinary shirts have therefore under the Kitchen-Simmons law become a luxury, for which the purchaser must pay an additional tax Not many women would consider a hat costing $15 a luxury, especially in these days of high prices, but the law declares that any hat of this sort which costs more than that sum is a luxury and must be taxed. Hence, the object of the Republicans who are to take control of the Ways and Means Committee in the House and the Finance Committee in the Senate to remove what they term these absurdities of the law.

Representative Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, a member of the Appropriations Committee, and himself a business man, has proposed this financial plan: "Reduction in taxes, I should say, from 25 to 33 per cent. I should separate the abnormal from the normal expenses so far as can be; that is, I should consider the necessary running of the government in a way similar to what it was before the war, the interest on the public debt and a sinking fund therefor as normal expenses of the government. These should be met by taxation. Railroad, telegraph and telephone losses, public highways, the large army necessary for the emergency and similar expenses I should regard as abnormal and to be borne by bond issues. I will assume the normal expenses of running the government similar to before the war to be between $1,000,000,000 and $1,500,000,000, interest on the public debt to be $800,000 and the sinking fund $500,000. This would bring the total to be derived from taxation to below $3,000,000,000 annually."

FARMERS TAKE NOTICE— FERTILIZE CROPS EARLY

Don't wait too late to fertilize corn and cotton.

If you don't put fertilizers out when you plant corn, don't wait too long to get it to the corn. While I never put out fertilizer when I plant, but others do. As soon as corn is large enough to begin to work, begin to put the mixed goods to it, and when it is from knee-high to hip-high, begin to put the nitrate of soda. A great many experiment stations advise this and I find from my experience that we wait too long to put out our soda for corn. Try this and see if you don't find it better. On late corn it works fine to mix other fertilizers with soda and put it all out at one time—about the time the corn is knee-high. This will save some time. Soda should go to cotton as soon as cotton is chopped by sprinkling the soda around the cotton and covering the soda while soding up the cotton.

Respectfully,

J. D. COLLINS.

PREACHERS AND DEACONS CALLED TO MEET MAY 26

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give us space in your paper to say to the preachers and deacons of the Chilton County and Unity Baptist Associations that they are requested to meet on next Monday, May 26, at Clanton. All are invited to come. We are looking for a good day.

I will preach at Samaria on Saturday and Sunday, May 24 and 25, at 11 o'clock each day. All are invited to attend at this church. We have before us the open door, so come in.

REPUBLICANS ARE IN CONTROL IN CONGRESS

"Reconstruction" Session Called by President is Organized. Gillett Is Speaker. Big Program.

Washington, May 19. The Sixty-sixth, or "Reconstruction' Congress, called into extraordinary session by President Wilson from Paris, convened at noon today, and Republican majorities in Senate and House organized both bodies.

Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, was elected speaker of the house, over Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, democratic candidate and former speaker, by a vote of 227 to 172.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, the Republican candidate, was chosen president pro tempore of the senate over Senator Pittman of Nevada, Democrat, 47 to 42. Several Democrats were absent but all Republicans were in their seats, two withholding their votes.

The Republicans of both bodies alselected full slates to other officers and thus, for the first time since 1911, returned to control of the American national legislature.

Routine affairs of organization comprised the opening day's proceedings, both bodies adjourning until noon tomorrow, when President Wilson's cabled message will be read separately in the senate and house by clerks. The senate today concluded its session in fifty minutes and the house in two hours and twenty minutes.

Although keenly realized by all members, there was no outward evidence in the initial proceedings of the enormous amount of work ahead. The peace treaty with Germany, including the League of Nations covenant, the Austrian treaty, and the proposed convention for protection of France, are not expected before next month. All hold promise of dramatic debate.

Appropriation Bills.

Appropriation bills which failed in the filibuster last March will be rushed immediately in the house. Chairman Good of the house appropriations committee tonight called a meeting for tomorrow to begin work on the general deficiency measure.

Legislation dealing with railroads, telegraphs and telephones, women suffrage, prohibition, repeal of the luxury taxes and other pressing subjects are promised in the van of important economic and reconstruction questions. This legislation is expected by leaders to hold congress in session almost continuously until the presidential conventions in 1920. Investigation planned by the Republicans of numerous administration acts are also expected to begin in the near future with the inauguration probable in the house in connection with appropriation bills.

The flood of bills which is expected to make the new congress momentous began in the house today and senate's initial measures will be presented tomorrow. House Resolution No. 1, was the woman's suffrage constitutional amendment measure introduced by former Republican leader Mann, of Illinois.

Despite the formality of today's proceedings and the absence of the president — the first time congress has opened with a president on foreign soil—overflow crowds in both senate and house galleries witnessed the birth of the new congress. Many cabinet officers and other high officials were spectators in the house where cheering speech-making lent an informal tone of popular interest.

When House members were sworn in, Representative Victor Berger, of Wisconsin, the lone Socialist member who was convicted of violating the espionage law, was prevented from taking the oath, upon objection of Representative Dallinger, of Massachusetts, chairman of the elections committee. He was ordered by the Speaker, Gillett, to stand aside and was not allowed to address the house, which adopted unanimously a resolution authorizing a committee to investigate his right to membership.

No objection was raised from the senate floor to the seating of Senator Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, Republican, whose election is being contested by Henry Ford, Democrat, formal notice or renewal of the Ford contest, with a request for a committee investigation was filed.

In addition to electing officers, the senate adopted the usual resolutions of procedure with a departure in that for notifying the president, because of his absence in Paris, of the convening. The senate committee of notification, Republican Leader Lodge and Democratic Leader Martin, met late today with the house committee, Republican Leader Mondell, Representative Mann and former Speaker Clark, and decided upon different courses. The senate leaders sent a cable merely advising the president of the senate's formal action today, while the house committee sent a letter of notification to the White House.

Major committees of the house were organized today, but senate committee arrangements went over. Senator Lodge appointed the Republican conference committee on committees, to make assignments, selecting two leaders of the Progressive group, Senators Borah of Idaho, and Johnson of California. Both advised Mr. Lodge that they did not wish to serve, but will be urged to accept. The committee will begin work tomorrow.

DOUBLE-HEADER AT THORSBY

On Saturday, May 17, Thorsby copped a double-header from Verbena and Union Grove. The scores were as follows:

Thorsby 7, Verbena 4;

Thorsby 6, Union Grove 2.

Thorsby played the first game with Verbena. The game began at two-thirty with the visitors taking the bat. Smith pitched for Thorsby with Boockholdt doing the receiving. Driver who pitched for Verbena hurled creditable balls until the latter innings, when somehow he let the ball game slip through his fingers by letting the Thorsbyites roll up a 7 to 4 score against him.

The effective pitching of Smith for the locals was the feature of the game. Thorsby also did some fine stick work especially at critical periods. Many men were left stranded on the bases as the pitchers at times seemed invincible. Smith offered to grow stronger as the game progressed for the batters who faced him in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings went down in one, two, three order.

Immediately after the first contest Thorsby took the field with Union Grove at bat. The second game was faster than the first, but had fewer thrills in it. The locals booked up Watkins who was in the box, and by timely hitting, good base-running and a few cheers from the rapidly departing crowd, grabbed the game from the start and were never headed.

The sole feature of the game was a one-handed stab of Robinson's drive by Larsen in the left.

Thorsby would like to make a schedule of games for the summer, and if there are any teams interested, write to Chas. Howard, Manager.

This being the Soldiers Reception Day at Thorsby, the crowd was exceedingly large. It was estimated that between three and four thousand attended the games.

Y. W. C. A. UNIFORMS TO CLOTHE STUDENTS

Suits Worn by War Workers Will Be Given to Penniless Students in Switzerland.

Official uniforms of the Young Women's Christian Association minus the Blue Triangle, the Association insignia, will be worn next winter by women students who have been stranded in Switzerland during the war and who, because of lack of funds, inability to re-enter their native country, a desire to finish their university courses or because they have no family to which to return, will remain there next year.

Elizabeth M. Clark, who has been in Switzerland for ten years under the World Student Christian Federation, has appealed to the National Student Committee of the Y. W. C. A. for clothing for the 300 foreign women students in Switzerland. The scarcity of clothing last year among these almost refugee students made it necessary for two girls to share one coat so that only one could go to classes or go out of doors at a time.

Four large packing cases of all kinds of used clothing, save hats, which is in good condition, have been collected hastily from women college students in the New England States, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware by the Student Committee of the National Y. W. C. A. to be sent over in response to Miss Clark's appeal. This clothing will be dyed, cleaned and made over in Switzerland.

In addition to the clothing collected from students in colleges nearest New York a case of uniforms, which have been turned in by Y. W. C. A. secretaries who did war work, and the official gray uniform ulsters is being sent. As uniforms are being turned in by war workers they will be claimed by the Student Committee, which will remove the insignia and prepare the uniforms so that they may be worn by these women who have been forced by world events to remain in Switzerland for several years.

Miss Eufaula Mahan who has been attending the High School here has returned to her home in Birmingham.

CELEBRATION TO BE IN CLANTON JULY 4

Reception to be Given to our Returned Soldier Boys.

To the Soldier Boys of Chilton Co:

The Mayor and Council, and the undersigned citizens of Clanton, extend to the soldier boys of Chilton County, an invitation to be the guests of Clanton on the Fourth of July, next, at the home basket dinner and celebration, in honor of and commemorating the return of the warriors of the County, from service for the country in the great world war. It is a privilege of Chilton County to act as the host of our soldier boys. The occasion will be made one of joyous home-coming for the soldiers; all former citizens of Clanton, now living elsewhere, are urged to return for the short space of one day and breathe the free air of happiness and rejoicing.

Every town and community in the county is called upon to take part in this welcome to our boys. Let all come—young and old,—and make the day one of joy and gladness.

The Ethiopian Hath not Changed His Color, Nor the Leopard his Spots.

It has ever been and will always be, one of the most outstanding features of the Roman Catholic Church in its efforts to harness up their church and religion with politics and government throughout the world, that Roman Catholics are for the Church first, and all things else be damned. Note the following extract from a sermon published in St. Louis, Mo., June 30, 1912, by Priest D. S. Phelan, editor of the Western Watchman, a Romanist paper of that city. Phelan said:

"And why is it that the Church is strong; why is it everybody is afraid of the Catholic Church, And the American people are more afraid of her than any people of the world. Why are they afraid of the Catholic Church, They know what the Catholic Church means. It means all the Catholics of the world; not of one country or two countries, but all the countries of the world. And it means more than that. it means that the Catholics of the world love the church more than anything else; that the Catholics of the world love their Church more than they love their own nation, more han hey do their own people, more than they do their own fortunes, more than they do their own selves.

"We of the Catholic Church are ready to go to death for the Church. Under God, she is the supreme object of our worship. Tell us that we think more of the Church than we do of the United States; OF COURSE WE DO. Tell us that we are Catholics first and Americans or Englishmen afterwards; OF COURSE WE ARE. Tell us in the conflict between the Church and the civil government we take the side of the Church; OF COURSE WE DO. Why if the government of the United States were at war with the Church, we would say to-morrow, TO HELL WITH THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES. And if the Church and all the governments of the world were at war, we would say, to hell with the governments of the world."

Comment on the above seems unnecessary. The man whom a thing like this will not stir to wrath is too cheap and too sorry to even live in America, let alone besmirch the honor of our country by claiming citizenship under protection of the eagle's wings.

In the great world conflict just ceased Catholics have been on the side of the Allies, but by their own pronouncements their support of the Allied cause has been a half-hearted support. They have been true to their custom of centuries past, as expressed in Phelan's sermon; for the Church first and for other things afterward, if those other things point to an opportunity to promote the schemes o fthe heirarchy.

Then, on the other hand, there were thousands of Catholics in the cause with Germany, but there too they always displayed the same attitude as stated above—for the Government all right, but for the Church first.

Catholics and Catholic propaganda are found throughout the world in all countries, and under all conditions. For the man who takes a hasty view of their manipulations, their program will seem conflicting and incomplete. He may reach a premature conclusion that the plans of Rome are disconcerted and out of joint, pulling against one another here and there. But the careful thinker, the man who studies Rome's program carefully, keeping in mind the sentiment related in Phelan's sermon and the fact that the "Ethiopian has not changed his Color, nor the Leopard his spots," will not be fooled by what greets him in this respect on first sight.

One who thinks on the subject, and follows carefully the history of Romanism throughout the past must know that all adherents of the papal faith are permanently endowed with that one supreme idea that the world must be made Catholic in religion, in politics, in government and in business. It will be found that in whatever circumstances or capacity the Catholics are placed they always look to that one supreme and ultimate conclusion, the authority and domination of the Catholics. Their program has always been to make the world Catholic in spite of everything else that may happen.

Now, let us go back to the war just passed, and the questions now arising in settlement of the problems coming out of the war, and see if we can detect any of the aims of the Catholics therein.

First we know that in the administration of the war policy of our government all power and preference was given to the Catholics in this country, to the purposeful exclusion of all other denominations. The entire religious and moral activities within our armies was dedicated to Catholic manipulation. There is no way to dodge or cover up the fact that Rome used the extremity of this country under war pressure to cinch her final and everlasting hold on America for Roman Catholic domination. Rome is to be everlastingly condemned for the designing of such a selfish and un-American scheme; and our war department and government authorities who permitted her to carry out those schemes are still more to be censured and condemned than are the designers of the infamous perpetrations.

Then too, at the world peace conference a delegate from the vatican was given a seat at the table to exercise a voice and take care of Roman Catholic interests in the re-making of the world, as the world-statesmen express it. Has any other church or denomination asked for or been given a seat and an official representative in the peace confenence?

But you may ask what of the German Catholics? You may say that the Catholics on the side of the Allies must necessarily be pulling against the Catholics in Germany, thereby getting their programs all crossed up. But, nay, not at all. That has all been fixed up just right. It has been done just the way Phelan said it would be done. Catholicism all over the world to-day, in America, at the peace conference, at Rome and in Germany are in solid unity toward settling the whole world scramble in the interest of one common purpose—the Catholic idea of the church first in preference to all governments. Just read this dispatch from Rome, dated May 16th:

"The entire German episcopate has addressed a petition to the Pope praying for his good offices to mitigate the conditions of peace, which, in their judgment, it is impossible to fulfil.

"Pope Benedict, with a view to co-operating in the speedy re-establishment of lasting and humanitarian peace throughout the world, has taken steps to communicate the petition to one of the most important delegates at the peace conference with object of having the conditions imposed upon Germany so modified as to make them acceptable."

In our opinion, the above dispatch supplies the missing link, the unknown quantity that has had the peace conference held up so long. But now the Catholics have got their plans fully completed to control the outcome, and we expect the peace business to move on for a while. This furnishes the basis for diplomatic accomplishment in the conference that will take care of Catholic interests on all sides of the question in all parts of the world, bringing out Phelan's assertion that "if the Church and all the governments of the world were at war, we should say to hell with all the governments of the world."

Who is the one of the most important delegates at the peace conference to whom the Pope is going to dispatch his petition with the object of having the conditions imposed on Germany so modified as to make them acceptable? Who was the delegate to the peace conference who went to the vatican and entered into secret conference with Pope Benedict before he dared to approach any subject of peace and take up matters of settling war conditions? Who was it that the Pope made a member of the Arcadian Society and gave the name "Dicearces Mericies?" We want you to stick a pin right here at these questions. We will bring you back to them in a few days and see if you can answer them for yourselves.

In commenting upon the sormon of Rev. Crumpton last Sunday, Rev. E. C. Maye of the Clanton Methodist Church said: "He put it right over the plate." And we rise to second the motion. It was a straight shot right over the plate, no curves, no drops, no ins. no ous.

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

S. M. Adams of Bibb County is a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama on the Peoples Party ticket.

The Peoples Party Primary last Saturday resulted in the nomination for re-election of O. M. Martin for the lower house of the General Assembly and of J. W. Moore for County Superintendent.

A writer from Bethel has the following to say: "Hurrah for Mr. J. N. D. He visited his best girl last Sunday and reports a pleasant time, and when he goes again it is not thought that he will return alone.

Rev. J. G. Lowery of the Clanton Baptist Church is attending the Southern Baptist Convention at Dallas, Texas.

There was a fine singing a Walnut Creek last Sunday, under direction of Riley Robinson, Henry Robinson and J. S. Jones.

Alex Shelton, colored, was arraigned on Tuesday before Judge Denson charged with the murder og Mr. James Harris. His trial was set for Tuesday, the 22nd. A special venire of 25 was drawn from which to select the jury. The judge appointed Messrs Nollen and Foshee as counsel for the defense.

Brother S. M. Adams was in town Monday attending court; he looks to be in excellent health, and is confident of the success of the reform cause.

Congress Should Repeal Arbitrary Powers of War Time.

People of this country have for the past several months felt the uselessness of having to remain under the now unnecessary laws and regulations that were the result of arbitrary powers granted to officials by congress during the war. There is a united call going up to congress to repeal these measures and to withdraw the war powers of officials who made these sundry regulations.

In accordance with this sentiment over the country Senator Watson of Indiana will introduce a bill in congress to take from the president the arbitrary powers that were given him in carrying out the administration war policies, and for the repeal of the esponiage law.

Since the signing of the amistice and the cessation of hostilities, the administration has continued the policy of handling certain affairs through force of their war privileges. Congress will seek to trim these executive powers and put the country back under popular government, with the enactment of legislation by the properly authorized representatives and agencies of the people, and not through the one man process that has brought such disaster as happened in the taking over of our telegraph and telephone systems by Mr. Burleson. The people of the United States will welcome this action of congress. We no longer need an esponiage law, nor any of the other similar war measures. They should have been repealed months ago.

A very great deal more than just a passing mention is due to be made of the masterful sermons delivered by Rev. Henry T. Crumpton at the high school commencement exercises last Sunday and Sunday night. Such profound yet simple and charming rendition of the gospel is not to be described in words. Rather are we inclined to dwell upon our mental reflections of the some in the silent recesses of thought in which after all is the only really true appreciation of the volume and magnitude and splendor of such a masterpiece expressed. No spoken words can convey to one's mind the proper conception of what was brought out by the speaker. If you did not hear the sermons you are lost to the full meaning of the great truths so forcibly applied in well-chosen words all aptly suited to the occasion.

We rise to compliment the Birmingham Age-Herald on the articles carried in its last Sunday edition regarding the Catholic crookedness in America, principal among the things referred to being Frank Willis Barnett's report of the Southern Baptist Convention and quotation of Dr. Gambrel's address. The Age- Herald is the only daily paper in Alabama that anything like approaches a state of decency and respect worthy of true honest American support. Those other sheets that are afraid to publish a word of anything because it might offend their Catholic friends ought to beegged out of America. We have no use for such papers. If they are afraid to oppose Romanism they are afraid to fight for the purest Americanism. And we don't need them in our line.

A LEGISLATOR FOR PRESIDENT

Discussing presidential possibilities a far western paper remarks that there has never been a president who was nominated and elected as a business man, and the comment is further made that statesmanship not business is the prime qualification. That is undoubtedly correct, not only as a matter of history but as a policy which should be pursued in the future. Those qualities which are commonly in mind when one refers to the "business man" are important but are not in themselves sufficient in one who is likely to serve satisfactorily as the Chief Executive of the natich. "Statesmanship" includes some of the qualifications of a business man. That is to say, a man might be a successful business man without being a statesman, but he could not be a successful statesman without having many of the qualifications of a business man.

While it is true that no man has ever been nominated and elected as president because he was classed as a "business man" there have been some nominated and elected who were not in fact and were not believed to be statesmen. They were men who possessed neither the qualifications necessary for successful management neither the qualifications necessary for successful management of business, nor experience in public affairs which would justify confidence in their directing public policies. They were chosen because they had become justly famous and popular through other lines of public service.

Probably the nearest we have come to nominating and electing a man president on the theory that he was a "business man" was in the election of William McKinley, and his selection was not because of personal experience in business but because in his legislative career he had come so frequently and closely into relation with the business world that he was thoroughly with its governmental interests and the effect of governmental policies upon American industry. McKinley was a peculiar business man's candidate. By his years of satisfactory service in the House of Representatives he had demonstrated a high order of statesmanship which included an understanding of American business, public and private. His administration was characterized by efficiency and economy. The policies of his administration tended to develop American industry. So far as government policies affected American business there was probably no other time in our history when the government and American enterprise were more thoroughly in harmony.

No man with open mind can serve long and diligently in Congress without becoming familiar with the problems which confront American business. He may be, it is true, so prejudiced by preconceived notions, or so bound by partisanship, or so limited by sectionalism, that he is unwilling to concede facts, although clearly demonstrated. Such men, however, are the exception and not the rule. There is no greater school of statesmanship than the American Congress, before which are submitted all great questions affecting every phase of American economic interest. Problems of internal improvement, of foreign trade regulation, inter-state commerce, encouragment of agriculture, advancement of the cause of labor, improvement of our banking system—these and a multitude of other questions are submitted for the deliberation of the legislative branch of the government, and before the members of that body conflicting views are discussed by men thoroughly conversant with the practical problems involved.

Congress is the school of statesmanship of America. From among men who have been trained there we may reasonably hope to be most successful in finding satisfactory candidates for nomination and election to the presidency.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

DR. GAMBREL CRITICISES RELIGIOUS POLICY OF WAR DEPARTMENT IN CAMPS

Baptists Will No Longer Remain Silent on Open Discrimination by our Government in Favor of Catholics. Dr. Gambrel Sounds Strong Voice on the Subject.

Atlanta, May 17.—The following open address of President Gambrel of the Southern Baptist Convention, faces fearlessly some things under which Baptists were restive in war conditions, but which they do not propose to be silent about under peace conditions.

They may be misunderstood by many and criticised by some Baptists but they represent the sentiment of the great body of the denomination in the South, and therefore, we print them in full.

"Brethren and sisters of the convention: We assemble today under solemn, but inspiring circumstances. A year ago we met with a dense war cloud over us and over the world. All minds were turned then to the very urgent task of caring for the things of that tragic hour. Baptists have always been patriotic. In the world's most trying hour it is pleasant to reflect that this convention and our people stood firmly for those principles and measures necessary for the world's deliverance from tyranny into a higher civilization. Baptists are the friends of liberty, both civil and religious the world over. Their inner principles make them so, and they can't help it unless they abandon their fundamental beliefs. Individualistic and democratic, both in religious and civil matters, overlords, either in religion or civil government, have to Baptists an ill favor. Our honored Brother Lloyd George, premier of England, sensed the soul of the titanic conflict when he said to ex-President coleman, of the Northern Baptist convention, that the great war was at the bottom, for Baptist principles. He meant for the common rights of men. Baptists did not originate these principles. They were taught them by that quiet man of Galilee, who was given to this dark world for a witness, a leader and a commander of the people, the light of man, the light of the world, and this blundering world's master statesman.

"The triumphs of the rights of humanity by the defeat of the central powers in the war, brings the world to dawn of a new era in civilization. The hoary autocracies, which, for many centuries, have oppressed the countless millions of the race, have fallen. Vast masses of mankind have been penetrated to a degree by liberal views and sentiments. The attentive ear can hear from every part of the world voices calling to us, 'Come over and help us.' This convention sits in the council today to devise ways and means to meet the solemn responsibilities of this challenging hour. We are called, in an unusual way, to be considerate, serious and prayerful. We need the wisdom that cometh from above. No human wisdom will suffice.

War Policy Scored.

"A year ago this convention, deeply interested for the success of the war, and not less interested for the souls of the soldiers who were to offer their lives to redeem the world from a scientific barbarism, delivered itself very guardedly on matters affecting the war. Many of us, in view of the religious war policies of the government, said less than we felt the extraordinary conditions fairly justified. The war is now over and some things ought to be said, in the spirit of Christian frankness, for the good of the country and in the interest of Christianity itself. Measuring my words and confining them within the limits of well-ascertained facts, the following statement is solemnly made. The religious war work policy framed in a spirit of utter disregard for the religious rights of a vast majority of the civilian population of our country and of the rights of a great majority of the soldiers in the army. It was framed in violation of the natural right of free Americans and in opposition to the constitution of the United States, the first amendment to which says, 'Congress shall frame no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.' Many Baptists have suffered fines, imprisonments, whippings and martyrdoms for religious freedom. This dearest franchise of a great patriotic religious communion, indeed, several communions was ruthlessly taken from us while we were serving our boys across the sea to fight and die for mankind.

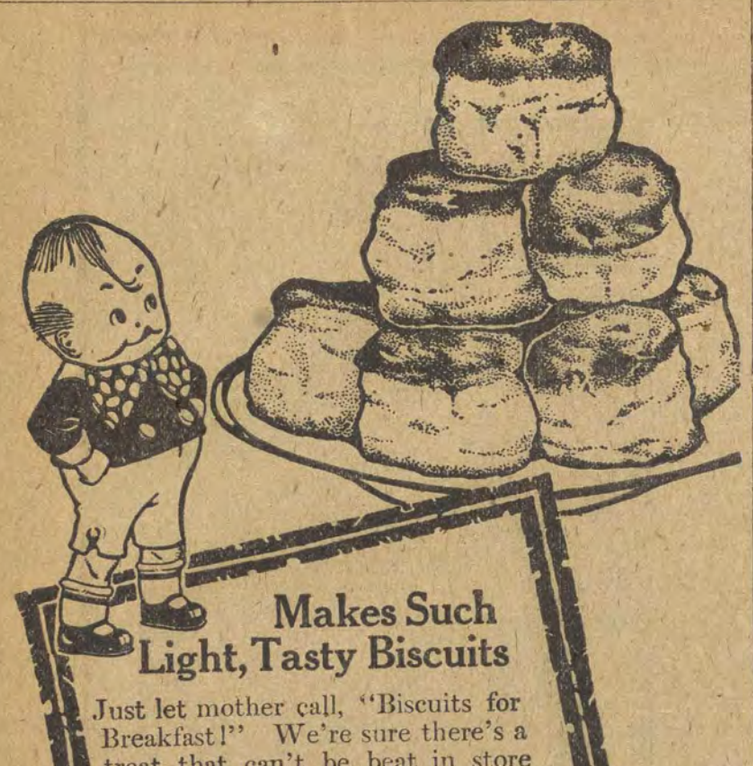
"If Congress can make no laws respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, who can? The War Department did. It did it with an open avowal of its wish and purpose, admirably for candor, but bad alike in principle and policy. The secretary in charge of that department avowed the policy of his department in these words: 'The whole desire of the department is in the interest of breaking down rather then emphasizing denominational distinctions."

"The deportment had no business with a desire one way or another. On this un-American, unconstitutional, whimsical notion, the religious war work was planned and carried out, except where Jews and Catholics became involved. Their rights were everywhere respected and their interests carefully conserved. All non-Catholic, Christian bodies were forbidden the camps, except while the camp pastors were allowed, and these were soon eliminated in pursuance of the general plan. The result was that in the most crucial hour of the world's history, the hour of the greatest evangelistic opportunity, the hour when the men in the camps most needed the strength of God in their hearts, the great evangelical bodies of America, which had made the moral fiber of the nation, were forbidden to minister to their people. At the same time the Catholic communion, essentially autocratic, was given place in the camps and the moral power of the government put behind it to boost its interests.

Couldn't secure Chance.

"A joint commission from this body and the from Northern Baptist vention and the Northern Baptist convention waited on the third assistant secretary of war in Washington in the interest of a larger opportunity for Baptists and other denominaions for serving in the camps. Baptists have never desired any special privileges. The immediate cause of the visit, the appeal and the protest, was the order removing camp pastors. We were received with courtesy, but were told that there was not slightest mention of changing the order. There was some softening of expressions later, but the door to opportunity was held closed and is closed yet to all Christian denominations except Catholics.

"It is known generally that the government created great munition centers into which it invited tens of thousands of people to work. In these centers though Catholics were, in many cases, a small part of the whole population, the government planned to build Catholic meeting houses, while Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians and others not allowed to build their own houses on the places. A miscalled 'Liberty' church was proposed for all non-Catholics. This is only an extension of the general plan to break down the non-Catholic denominations, while paramounting Catholicism.



"The plan was so expressed in the agreement of the department with the Young Men's Christian Association, according to which agreement that social entertaining organization was to encourage nothing denominational in the camps. Your speaker believes the Young Men's Christian Association ought to have a large place in the camps; but it is fair to the whole situation to say that it did not and could not represent the Baptists and other denominations. Its very genius forbade it. Few serious minded church members will believe any social organization capable of acting for churches in the deep solemn things of religion. And by its agreement with the department it did not represent the denominations. The plain fact is, the Baptists and other great non-Catholic communions were not allowed to serve their people in time of greatest need."

About Rheumatism.

People are learning that it is only a waste of time an money to take meicine internally for chronic and muscular rhumatism, and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.

HOSTESS HOUSE FAMILY REUNION

How It Happened to Entertain Only A. E. F. Mother Who Visited Army of Occupation.

BIG CORPORAL DUTIFUL SON.

No Knightly Courtiers Ever Acted With More Gallantry to Lady Fair Than Did He and His Doughboy Pals to This Little White Haired Woman Dressed Exquisitely in Black.

By GRACE GOULDER.
(With the American Y. W. C. A. Overseas.)

Coblenz, Germany, March 28 (By Mail.)

It happened right here in Coblenz. A big corporal came into the Y. W. C. A. Hostess House and asked for the director, Miss Ruth Woodsmall, who comes from Colorado Springs, Colo.

"Could my mother stay here?" he began at once, trying his best to cover his excitement.

"Your mother!" gasped Miss Woodsmall. "How did your mother ever get here?"

"Well, she isn't here yet, but if she comes will you keep her?"

"Of course I will, but—"

She didn't finish, for the boy had smashed his cap back on his head and was out of the door on a run.

The corporal's visit remained a mystery for two days. Then one evening just at dusk a little white haired woman dressed exquisitely in black appeared in the sitting room of the Hostess House, and the corporal was hovering behind her, trying to be beside her and back of her and in front of her all at once. He was carrying her coat—a big fur one. With them were three doughboys, pals of the corporal. They tried to keep in the background, but their eyes were glued on her face.

Everyone in the sitting room sat at attention. There are no English speaking men or women out of uniform in the Third Army area. Yet here was a woman in civilian clothes. Mothers are unheard of with the army. But this was a mother, everyone knew.

After awhile someone found out about this mother.

Had Been Interned During War.

She and her husband, who were born in Germany, but had been naturalized, lived in San Francisco. Before the war they left for Weisbaden, Germany, that their invalid daughter might have treatment at this famous health resort.

They brought their other children with them. One was Walter, a small boy, and the other was Ralph, now Corporal Stepp of the American Army.

When the war was declared they sent Ralph back to America, because he was of military age, and they did not want him to fight for the kaiser. Then America entered the war.

Mrs. Stepp—Mrs. Anna Stepp she is—told this part of the story:

"Until a month ago I hadn't heard from Ralph for two years and a half—even before America got in the war mail was held up. I didn't know whether he was in the army or not—but I was sure he was, because—well, because he is an American." Here she stopped a minute to smile up at him.

"After awhile we heard from some friends that he was in the army—and that he had come over here. That was all I ever knew. It's nearly five years since I have seen him!

"Of course it was awfully hard—I couldn't get word to him and he couldn't to me. My husband used to tell me it wouldn't help Ralph any for me to cry. I tried not to—before the rest of them anyway. My daughter got worse steadily—she is no better. We couldn't get the proper food for her after awhile. And she hated to see me worried about Ralph, so I used to try to keep up before them.

"Last January my husband came to Coblenz about his citizen papers. An American soldier in Ralph's company who was in the office heard his name and asked him if he was any relation to Ralph. He didn't tell him Ralph was in Coblenz, but went after Ralph. He didn't tell Ralph his father was here. When they met they couldn't believe their eyes.

"Ever since then I have been trying to see Ralph. He couldn't come to Weisbaden because it was out of the American area, and I couldn't get through until today—more than two months."

They asked her if her Ralph had changed much in all that time.

"Oh, yes—very much. But do you know, I think it is because all that long time when I didn't know where he was or how he was—I got in the habit of thinking of him as he was when he was a baby—I kept seeing him as a baby and remembering the way he felt when he was little. Isn't that queer? And now look at him!"

And the corporal tried not to see the adoration in her eyes.

"Five years is a long time to wait to see your boy," she murmured, and kept her eyes on him. Again she had forgotten the people around her.

The corporal cleared his throat. "This is why I asked you if you could keep my mother, Miss Woodsmall. I didn't want her to come unless she had a good place to stay. Ah, e-e-r—thanks awfully."

And that is the story of how the Hostess House happened to entertain the only known A. E. F. mother who has visited the Army of Occupation.

A note from Mrs. T. B. Teel of Stewart, Ala., tells The Union-Banner to change her paper to Livingston.

PROHIBITION TO BRING COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE

Hazel MacKaye Advises Using Buildings as Centers for Drama, Community Sings and Entertainments.

Why not turn the corner saloon into a community playhouse when the law effects the closing of these gathering places, asks Miss Hazel MacKaye, director of the Department of Pageantry and Drama of the National Young Women's Christian Association?

"I went over on the West Side of New York one night recently to attend a community drama meeting," Miss MacKaye says in explaining her theory, "and as I was riding along I noticed how many saloons there were—one on every corner and another in the middle of the block, it seemed, all just blazing with lights. Those lights ought not to go out with prohibition. They ought to shine for something worth while to all of the people, and what better than community drama and sings?"

Miss MacKaye feels that the war has given a great impetus to popular interest in drama and that through pageantry and drama a great deal in the way of Americanization can be effected.

Through the community center, if it be in a district populated largely of one foreign nationality, these people could present pageants of the life in their mother countries, translating them into English, so that Americans and also the younger English speaking members of their household could understand and appreciate their traditions. American art would be greatly enriched thus through the drama of all of the nations whose peoples have settled in this country. On the other hand American ideals, American history and American festivals, even laws such as child labor and minimum wage, could be interpreted to these people by means of pageantry.

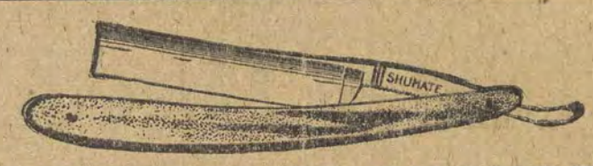
"People have been learning not only to work together, but to play together," Miss MacKaye says, "particularly since the war, when the people stood together in drives and large patriotic community entertainments. The opportunity to build up a great community organization is now at hand, and the time is ripe for it. Why not utilize the corner saloon?"

DEPARTMENT ADVISES ON PLUMBING AND CURTAINS

New Bureau Opens in Y. W. C. A. Overseas Office.

A new department of finance has been organized by the Y. W. C. A. for its work in France. Miss Constance Clark of Pasadena, Cal., is the executive. Miss Clark before her recent coming to France was director of the big Y. W. C. A. Hostess House at Camp Lewis, Washington.

All contracts, leases and rentals for new buildings will be handled by Miss Edith Austin of New York City, an experienced architect and builder, who will work through this newly created section.



Plans for remodeling and decorating rooms, clubs and hostess houses taken over by the Y. W. C. A. will be in the hands of Miss Mary Buchanan, an interior decorator, who comes originally from Scotland, but who has been working in France for the American Y. W. C. A. since the beginning of its war work there.

In addition, the department is compiling lists, suggestions and general shopping guides for all the buying of the Association in France, including all kinds of building equipment from cretonne curtains to plumbing supplies.

A cafeteria expert will have a place in the department to act as general advisor on restaurant and cafeteria projects of the Association throughout France.

In short, the department is to be more than finance alone. It is to be a kind of general advisory department and clearing house for all other departments in the French association—a department where dollars will be measured up against deeds and needs.

MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION FOR CLEAN UP DAY ON MAY 26

Mayor John W. Stanfield of the Town of Clanton, has issued a proclamation declaring Monday, May 27, officially as clean-up-day for the people of the town. Following is a copy of the official mandate:

"For the health and general welfare of the Town, I have set Monday, May 26, as general clean-up day. Please clean your premises thoroughly, collecting all garbage, tin cans, and other rubbish and put it in barrels, boxes or garbage cans, so that the garbage wagon can collect the same. Do not forget the day, next Monday, May 26, and clean up your premises ready for inspection by the health officer."

JOHN W. STANFIELD, Mayor.

Our mayor is to be applauded for his thoughtfulness in this important movement. There is nothing more needful in Clanton more than to have our alleys and back yards thoroughly cleaned up. We hope to see the mayor and other Town officials enforce the request of this proclamation to the exact letter. Inspection should be made by the health officer and places that are dirty and not properly cleaned up should be condemned and pressure brough to bear that will render them decent and in proper sanitary condition.

The Boy Scouts band of Clanton is making splendid progress in their practice. It is probable that the boys will be able to give a little demonstration for us at the Fourth of July celebration in Clanton.

NEVER HEARS ALARM CLOCK NOW SAYS MOBILE MAN

His Sleep is sound and Refreshing since taking Dreco, the Great Root and Herb Remedy.

I was terribly run down and in a low nervous state; could not sleep; had no appetite and could smell my own foul breath, declared Mr. Richard Salter of 207 St. Louis St, Mobile, Ala.

'My liver was sluggish and I often had giddy spells; bad taste in my mouth, coated tongue and spots were floating before my eyes. My kidneys were weak and I had dull, achng pains in my back. After each meal my stomach would begin to swell up with sour gas, and feel like it would burst. Seemed like I was full of fire sometimes.

I dreaded for night to come, because I could not sleep, but would roll and toss from one side of the bed to the other, and when morning came I would be more worn out and tired than when I went to bed the night before.

Dreco has stopped all that though. Exen the alarm clock fails to awaken me now, for I'm sleeping so sound. The constipation is entirely relieved; nervousness gone, and my liver is acting like a piece of well-oiled machinery. I can't say enough in praise of this great remedy, Dreco.

Dreco is made from herbal plants which act on the vital organs in a prompt and pleasing manner and restores their healthy action.

All progressive druggists throughout the country now sell Dreco, and it is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

EDUCATIONAL BILL OPPOSED BY PRESENT ADMINISTRATION

Selfish Motives of Leaders in Administration Blocks the Progressive Measure.

BILL HAS WIDE ENDORSEMENT

Washington, May 26.—Quite an interesting situation has arisen regarding the bills for national aid for education, which were introduced in the closing days of the last congress and will be reintroduced at the outset of the coming session, according to Representative Towner of Iowa, ranking Republican member of the House committee on education. "The educational associations of the United States have for many years been working for the creation of a department of education, with provision for national aid in co-operation with the states for the reduction of illiteracy, the Americanization of foreigners, equalizing educational opportunities, health and sanitary education, and the preparation of teachers. I introduced this bill in the House in the last congress.

"It is very rare indeed that any bill receives such general and enthusiastic support. Colleagues, universities, state, county and city superintendents and teachers, and all the educational associations prove and support the proposition. The National Educational Association appointed a commission to assist in drafting the bill. It received the unanimous endorsement of the American Federation of Labor and its representatives assisted in the revision of the bill. Federations of women's clubs, suffrage associations and social welfare organizations have given the bill approval and support.

Administration Against Bill.

"As the bill was not submitted as an administration measure, it was not approved and pressed for passage in the last congress. Secretary Lane who had an especial interest in two of the propositions contained in the bill, the reduction of illiteracy and the Americanization of foreigners, had administration measure providing only for those two subjects. The bill was strongly urged but failed of passage. It will be re-introduced and pressed in the next congress.

"The wisdom of taking up the larger measure, a piece of great constructive legislation, should be apparent to the majority. Republicans can hardly fail to approve a measure of this character which is so strongly and so generally endorsed."

Representative Towner did not discuss the attitude of the bureau of education, but it is well-known that Dr. Claxton, head of the bureau, and likewise Secretary Lane himself, under whose department is the bureau of education, are by no means anxious for a department of education. It would do away with a commissioner of education and take the bureau of education out from under the Interior Department.

REPORT OF THE SOLDIERS RECEPTION AT THORSBY

Thorsby, Ala. May 27 1919.

Mr. Editor:

I have been requsted to send in a few lines concerning the Soldiers Welcome reception Thorsby May 17. We have been given much notice by the several papers of the state, but they have all been more or less misleading. We would certainly like to have our home County paper given some what a correct report of the same.

Little better than two months ago a committee of Thorsby citizens was organized for the purpose of giving a Welcome reception for the returned Heroes of Chilton County. This committee wishes to thank first of all our Returned Soldiers, Sailors and Marines for accepting our invitation. We also wish to thank all the citizens of Thorsby and Vicinity for their generous assistance, without which, it would have been imposible to achieve wonderful success we had.

Following program was rendered:

Parade at 10:30 headed by the blue and the gray of 61 and the Thorsby Band, following the band came the Chilton County Representatives of the Navy, then the Thorsby Public School and the students of the Thorsby Institute and finally the the Returned Soldiers.

Parade started at the public school grounds and proceeded through the business portion of the town finally entering the Institute campus through a beautiful Welcome Arch, erected by Mr. G. Berlin, chairman of the decoration committee.

The parade was commanded by Capt. Hutchinson, former army recruiting officer of Birmingham (now a citizen of Thorsby). At the conclusion of the parade the following program was rendered:

Music ..... Thorsby Band
Devotional exercises, Rev. Davenport
Welcome address, Mayor Bosworth
Vocal Solo ..... Mr. Wm. Rogers
The Address of the Day, delivered by Rev. J. M. Graham.
Vocal Solo ..... Miss Agnes Leary

At the conclusion of the program a bountiful dinner was served the boys by the ladies. The afternoon was taken up by music, and various amusements including two ball games, both of which were won by the Thorsby nine.

As chairman of the general committee, I desire to thank all the members of the committee, most especially Mrs. Martha Goddard, chairman of the refreshment committee, Mrs. Robert Johnson, chairman of the finance committee, and Mrs. G. Berlin, chairman of the decoration committee, for their earnest work and splendid success. It can well be voted a triumphant success every one pleased with the arrangement, that being all the compensation that we as members of the committee could desire. Our boys are worthy of everything that we can do for them.

On May 23, the committee had what they thought a final meeting to settle bills and finish up their affairs in general. But on report of our splendid treasurer the committee found that there was some money left over. Realizing that this was public money and should be spent for a public purpose, a motion prevailed that the committee stand intact and consider themselves a flag committee and will not disorganize until we have a respectable flag for the Town of Thorsby. Your committee will be heard from later.

CHAS. A. PETERSON.

REPUBLICANS AT WORK ON RAILROAD PROGRAM

Senator Cummins has Nearly Completed Bill Covering the Situation.

Washington, May 24.—"I believe that every effort should be made and will be made to dispose of the railroad question." said Senator Cummins of Iowa, who will be the new chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee and who has just returned to Washington. "Much work has been done on the bill which I propose to introduce. I hope to complete it in a short time and to present it at the beginning of the session.

"The conditions in regard to the railroads are growing worse continually. They are worse than the public generally realizes or than anyone realizes who has not given the subject close attention. At the rate the roads are running behind, the deficit this year will be far greater than it was last. Then it was $226,000,000. The railroad administration I have no doubt, will makke another increase in the rates. You will recall that I predicted months ago rates would be raised still higher."

While fully realizing that the problem of dealing with the great transportation system of America is a vast one, Senator Cummins feels confident that it can be solved and that it will be solved by this congress. He sees a strong tendency toward an agreement of thought on certain basic principles and because of this tendency he is hopeful that before many more months have elapsed the country may be in a fair way to be lifted out of the slough of despond into which it has been sunk by the men responsible for the present condition of things.

Y. W. C. A. Provides Home For Actresses at Camp Dix, N. J.

Actresses who play in the Liberty Theater at Camp Dix, N. J., find a touch of home in the Players' House which the housing committee of the Young Women's Christian Association, of which Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is chairman, operates for them. Because of the distance from any town where they might stay, it was necessary to provide some sort of living accommodations for the actresses. The Y. W. C. A. built the house, supplying it with all conveniences such as sewing machines, washtubs and ironing boards. Camp Upton, L. I., has a similar house.

LETTERS BETWEEN JUDGE L.H. REYNOLDS AND STATE PRISON INSPECTOR, GLENN ANDREWS

Editor Union-Banner:

If you have space in your paper I wish you would publish the correspondence between Dr. Andrews, State Prison Inspector, and myself.

The Commissioners Court of this county is making a desperate struggle to finance the county; they are doing what they think is best for the tax payers, and yet they are being severely criticised. Some of it is honest criticism and some is for other purposes.

We have advertised some vacant lots which belong to the county, to be sold on June 3, 1919, and will pass on the sale of some lots previously sold on the same date. Some do not seem to think that the lots which were sold on March 3 brought their worth. If there is anyone that will give more and will come before the Commissioners Court Tuesday, June 3, and make a better offer I am sure the court will be glad to re-advertise the lots and offer the lots for sale again.

We shall be glad to have the assistance of any citizen in trying to get our county out of the awful financial condition it is in. Those that know so well how to finance the county ought to come before the Commissioners Court and give them the benefit of their information, for we need assistance and we are anxious to do the best we can for the county.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

Andrews' Letter to Judge Reynolds.

Dear Sir: March 7, 1919.

Section 31 of an act of the Legislature of 1911, page 356, sets out that it shall be unlawful to confine prisoners in any jail, prison, etc., unless a deputy, watchman or guard, whose duty it shall be to watch the prison or jail at night for the prevention of escapes and fire, and to aid in case of sickness among the prisoners, is provided. Section 30 of this act sets out that the expense incident to the construction, maintenance, sanitation, healthfulness and hygiene of each county jail, prison, etc., shall be paid out of the funds of the county in which such institution is located, if the institution be a county institution. A ruling of the Attorney General of date July 25, 1916, places the expense for the employment of the said deputy, watchman or guard upon the court of county commissioners in which the institution is located. See ruling, Biennial report of the Attorney General of Alabama, 1914-1916, pages 382-383. Section 31 of this Act makes it mandatory that the deputy, watchman of guard be supplied at each county jail where prisoners are confined and from the recent ruling of the Attorney General the responsibility for the payment of such deputy watchman or guard is clearly placed upon the court of county commissioners.

You will please at once see that the provisions above referred to are carried out and that a suitable guard is placed on duty at night at your county jail.

I am inclosing for your information herewith a copy of a letter sent to the sheriff of your county.

Kindly acknowledge receipt of this letter.

GLENN ANDREWS,
State Prison Inspector.

Reynolds' Letter to Dr. Andrews.

Dear Sir: May 8, 1919.

In reply to your letter of March 7, 1919, will state that I have been trying to assist the sheriff in getting a guard for our jail at night, but so far I have been unable to hire one.

Chilton County has no funds at the present to pay a guard with. We have contracted for all the money which we have on hand and have borrowed all we can on our next year's taxes to re-build our courthouse; and then the law has forced on us at this time, the compulsory dipping of cattle, which will take ten or fifteen thousand dollars, and we have no money to carry out this law.

Our jail is a two-story stone building; the prisoners are all kept up stairs, when we have any. Sometimes we have one or two, and some times we haven't any at all. The sheriff lives right at the jail. I do not think a prisoner has broken jail here in the last eight or ten years, and it seems useless to me for us to be forced to keep a night guard, especially after considering the financial condition of our county. However, I shall do my best to carry out your orders if you insist on us employing a night watchman.

The Commissioners Court of this county has to save every dollar that they possibly can, and then it seems that our county will go into bankruptcy in spite of everything we can do. I hoped the present legislature would do something to relieve the poor counties of the distressed financial condition which they are in, but it looks like the law-makers think all county officials are desperators with not sense enough to look after the poor and unfortunate prisoners.

This county is in debt beyond the constitutional limit and is not able to take advantage of the State nor Federal appropriations for the roads. The entire income of the county for public roads is about $13,000,00, and out of this we have to pay $10,000 interest; our general tax is about $25,000 and the Legislature provides by statute for about $20,000 of this; so you may see what the commissioners of this county have to work with.

Please write me by return mail what you would have me do in this matter and as I have stated above, I will endeavor to carry out your wishes.

Yours truly,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Dr. Andrews' Reply.

Montgomery, Ala., May 9, 1919.

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Probate Judge, Chilton County, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter of the 8th, inst., I will say that the law requires that a deputy, watchman or guard be kept on duty at night at all jails in the state where persons are confined. Of course, you will understand that I have no authority to set aside or abridge this provision in any respect. When there are no prisoners confined, of course, it would be useless to have such watchman.

It is my purpose to suggest an amendment to the law in regard to such watchman at the adjourned session of the Legislature whereby some discretion can be used in the appointment of this guard. However, under the law as it now stands, of course, it is necessary to provide the watchman.

Yours truly,
GLENN ANDREWS,
State Prison Inspector.

OFFICIALDOM AND THE PEOPLE

(From Norton (Kansan) Courier)

The different departments of the national administration are still wasteful, yet the people—the common people—are continuously urged to be saving.

FILIPINOS WANT TO EAT THEIR CAKE AND KEEP IT

Ask for Independence of U. S., but Want U. S. to Guarantee to Protect Them.

Washington, May 25.—Recently a commission of prominent Filipinos came to this country to urge that the islands be set free from the United States. Part of this commission is now in Washington and will be granted hearings before committees when congress assembles. Whether the administration is going to urge immediate independence for the Philipines has not yet been developed.

Members of the House Insular affairs committee who have gone into the subject deeply with the visiting Filipinos say, however, that the natives are not asking outright independence and nothing more. They want independence plus a guaranty for the future from Uncle Sam. Not even are they satisfied with a guaranty from the League of Nations. They want the United States to underwrite their independence so that no other power will venture to seize them.

While many of the Southern members of congress, as well as some others, would gladly cast the islands completely loose from the United States, there will be decided opposition both in the House and Senate to independence with a guaranty of it, on the ground it might in time embroil this nation in grave dispute of war. And congress will ponder a long time before it says the Philipines shall be turned adrift, to shift for themselves, a weak nation, and the possible prey of other powers.

LANSING SNUBBED BY WILSON AT PEACE PARLEYS

Not Treated as Premiers of Other Nations are Treated At Conference.

SECRETARY IS HUMILIATED

Forced to Play "Office Boy" to Col. House and Flunkey to President.

Washington, May 26.—The latest cabinet gossip going the rounds in Washington concerns Secretary of State Lansing.

Secretary Lansing, according to gentlemen who are in position to know the facts, is not pleased over the situation in which he finds himself in the Peace Conference. Stories coming from Paris that the Secretary may resign are not mere imaginings. They are a reflection of talk which can be heard in the inner circles of the American personnel at the peace conference.

It will be recalled that William J. Bryan is chief of the State Department, resigned from his office after he had found out that in fact he was a figurehead. When Secretary Lansing went to Paris, according to his friends, he went with the expectation that he would play a large part in the proceedings and that it would redound to his credit. As was entirely natural, Mr. Lansing thought it not improbable that as the Secretary of State of the United States he would fill a conspicious place in the public eye and would come back to America with the well-earned plaudits of his countrymen. In the daily chronicles of the doings at Paris, the Secretary quite naturally anticipated that the name of Robert Lansing would recur frequently and that it would rank alongside the names of the premiers of Great Britain and France and Italy.

To say that this has come to pass is merely setting forth in the mildest way possible the truth. President Wilson has practically monopolized the spotlight as the American representative. Next to him, the only one the President has permitted to come in public notice has been Col. House. Seldom has Secretary Lansing been mentioned. Even in the matter of giving out the news, Col. House has taken a higher place than has Secretary Lansing.

Then, too, the views Secretary Lansing has had as to certain phases of making terms have been thrust aside. The Secretary of State is thus put in a most difficult position. Whether he shall choose to remain in it or to extract himself from it by resignation remains to be seen. That he is for from happy may be inferred, but it does not rest on inference alone.

ANOTHER CABINET CRISIS IS BREWING IN WILSON CIRCLE

Repudiation of Secretary Redfield's Price fixing Policy Starts Row.

ADMINISTRATION EMBARASSED

Washington, May 24.—The smouldering controversy over steel and iron prices between Secretary of Commerce Redfield and the industrial board, on the one hand, and Director General Hines of the railroad administration, on the other, has flared up again.

Efforts of Mr. Redfield and the industrial board to force the director general to agree to steel prices as fixed in conference between government officials and steel men some weeks ago have failed. Mr. Hines has just announced that the railroad administration will ask at once for competitive bids for 200,000 tons of steel rails.

This means complete disregard of Secretary Redfield and the industrial board. Not only that but Mr. Hines has issued a statement throwing bricks at the industrial board, which is under Mr. Redfield. And Mr. Redfield in a statement indicates he has not retreated but is standing to his guns. Of inerest too, is the fact the navy is buying steel without reference to Mr. Redfield's organization. The days of the industrial board are, of course, numbered.

The White House has left Secretary Redfield to fight out his own troubles and tribulations. This implies that the president refuses to back up Mr. Redfield and trusts the judgment of Mr. Hines.

Admittedly, Secretary Redfield is thus left in a highly embarassing situation. Gossip that he will quit the cabinet or be forced out is rife. What is more, his situation is in some respects akin to that of Postmaster General Burneson in that certain elements close to the administration would like to pry him loose. It is said the president would like to replace Mr. Redfield with a functionary more useful to the party purposes of 1920. But all hints, intimations and the like to Mr. Redfield that a long vacation would be good for him after his arduous war work have been in vain. On the principle of self-determination, how can a cabinet official be rudely kicked out, Also, cabinet upheavels do not look well on the eve of a presidential campaign.

Thus much for the personal and political phases of the embroglio. But there are other important angles of it which more deeply concern the public. While the rumpus rages between Messrs Redfield and Hines, steel and iron prices remain unsettled and what this means to the building world, the manufacturers, the farmers and all other consumers of material need only be mentioned.

Without regard to where the prices of steel and iron ought to go, the fact remains that Secretary Redfield and the industrial board, asleep to the fact that the war is over, set out to fix prices for the public—not simply for the government but for the public. That fact stands out and cannot be overlooked. They had no authority from congress that remotely contemplated any such proceeding and congress will not grant them any such authority. The whole business, as many in congress have already said, is a sample of the disposition of government officials to reach out and assume authority which they do not have. Moreover, what about the observance by officials of the anti-trust laws? If congress gets to asking questions on this score, the embarassments of Mr. Redfield will still further be accentuated.

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

Reese has got things so hot down at his tent meeting that some of the elders and deacons even have to get out on the wood pile where they can get fresh air along with it.

One man very aptly remarked in our office Tuesday that Reese preached more gospel truth in his one sermon Monday night than has been preached in Clanton for the past twelve months.

What we want to say is that when all the hill side preachers in this great land of ours get on Rome's trail good and hot it will soon "make the cows tell in their milk."

Thomas J. Calvert, Republican, will represent Walker County in the lower body of the State Legislature when that body convenes in July, taking the place of Dr. O. Mansco, who died recently. Calvert defeated his Democratic opponent by over 500 votes.

Now and then we run across a preacher who is awake to the evils of the Romaan Catholic menace in this country, and it is gratifying to find them arousing themselves. The ministry, like all other human agencies, has its faults and its shortcomings, but it is not our purpose to set those things out here.

Chilton County is soon to have two large motor trucks to use in its public road work. The trucks have been given to the county by the Federal Government. Judge Reynolds went to Birmingham Tuesday to complete the arrangements for getting the trucks. This will give us a distinct advantage in road building and maintenance.

We said a few weeks ago that there would be opposition in congress to the Federal Measure proposed in the interest of better public schools in the United States. Our prediction has come true. And the opposition has arisen from officials of the administration, that is, members of Mr. Wilson's cabinet. Look for the "fine Italian hand" of Romanism in this opposition. It is there.

Say, you folks who allow your ten-year-old boy or girl drive your flivver up and down the public highways! Did you know there is a law of this state against a child under sixteen years of age driving an automobile on the public highways? Read what Sheriff Gore has got to say on the subject this week in The Union-Banner. Better wise yourself up a bit before you get pinched.

We are gratified at the unstinted praise rendered by Dr. Maye of the Clanton Methodist Church to the newspapers for their services in the Methodist Centenary drive just finished so successfully. Dr. May said: "I believe the power of the press in our favor has been one of the greatest and most vital forces in bringing the splendid success that we have attained throughout the country." We believe this is right and thank Dr. Maye for his expression.

People everywhere are complaining about the high cost of living. You hear them kicking in the North; you hear them grumbling in the South. And why shouldn't they complain? The cost of living is not only high but seems to be going higher. Meantime great quantities of food stuffs are being shipped out of the United States to Europe. The majority of people in this country are concerned about our own economic affairs more than they are about the League of Nations. They are concerned about the high cost of living, about railroad fares and freight rates, telephone and telegraph rates, wages employment and in short, about the things that come right home to everybody.

Miss Josephine Miller, National Woman Suffrage organizer, was in Clanton Tuesday representing Mrs. Solon Jacobs of Birmingham. Miss Miller expressed confidence that the bill to submit the suffrage amendment to the national constitution would pass in congress in a short while. If it does, it is the plan of suffrage workers to fight for ratification of the amendment in the next session of the Alabama Legislature in July. Alabama advocates of equal suffrage are enthusiastic in their efforts to make Alabama the first state to ratify the amendment through its legislature.

Credit for the first aeroplane flight across the Atlantic ocean goes to the United States Navy Seaplane NC-4, under command of Lieut. Albert Cushing Read. The flight has been completed from Rockaway Beach, Long Island to Lisbon, Portugal. The British flyer Hawker made a desperate effort to grab the honor from the United States but failure overtook him in mid-ocean. Naval officials are justly proud of Lieut. Read's accomplishment.

What would you think of one of the Sovereign States of this American Union, a southern state if you please, having a Roman Catholic Knight of Columbus occupy the office of State Superintendent of Education? Don't you think such a thing as that ought to open your eyes? All right, get them open right quick. Such a thing is an actual fact. We will tell you the whole story in the near future. It is going to be a revelation of an awful truth that will take the breath out of somebody.

A. Mitchell Palmer; the newely appointed attorney General of the U. S. has figured it out that the success of this Country in the war is due to the achievements of the Democratic party in the four years immediatily prior to the war. He of course had to give the credit to his partisan fellows-in-sin of the Democratic camp. But you notice he did not dare say itwas to the credit of the war administration. It was those of the pre-ceding administration that won the war, according to Palmer.

Of all the predicaments a fellow has ever been in there is none this quill-pusher has ever experienced that is quite equal to being cornered by one of these feminine suffragettes and lectured for an hour with that endless argument the women have cut and dried about why they ought to vote and the great things that are going to come to the world when the hobble skirt is put on the election poll. Did you ever have an attack of it? Well, if you ain't you can't fully sympathize with your friend Wyatt on this Tuesday afternoon.

We are disappointed to see a report of the Alabama Great Council of Red Men apeparing in the daily papers without mentioning the name of W. J. Armstrong of Clanton as one of the attendants. Armstrong is at the head of the list as a fraternal leader in this state. and especially does he stand high with the Red Men. He is a past Great Sachem of the order in Alabama, and we know it would not be just to him and to the order to say anything about the Great Council and not mention his presence as a member of the body. No branch of fraternal workers anywhere have got anybody they can trot out ahead of our own most estimable W. J., and they all know it as well as we do.

The laws of the state of Alabama which forbid children under sixteen driving autos on the public highways should go further and prohibit any woman from driving cars. The writer happens to know of an incident of recent occurrence which came to the nearest verge of resulting in a disastrous accident, all because a good lady of Clanton was driving a car in a most reckless and if you please, foolish manner. This lady is otherwise a very sensible and level-headed woman, but she should not drive automobiles if she cannot have any better judgment than she exhibited on this recent occasion. These reckless women automobile drivers are usually those who are the loudest in the demand of the right for women to vote.

Anyone who cares to examine into the history of the matter and into precedents will find that the power of the Senate to amend a treaty while ratifying it is not only unquestioned but that it has been frequently exercised. The Senate in 1890 ratified the African Slave Trade Convention and made certain reservations which it set forth. It did likewise in 1906 when it ratified the Algeceras Convention. The treaties went into effect and the United States was bound by them up to the points where it made reservations. In one case the other nations formally assented, and in the other assented by implication to the reservations. Nothing could be more absurd than to suppose that if the United States made reservations to protect its own sovereignty, as the senate has the full right to do, the peace treaty as a whole would be jeopardized.

Twenty-five Years Ago

What Happened in Chilton County as Recorded in THE BANNER of that date.

Alex Shelton, negro, was sentenced by Judge N. D. Denson, to be hanged on June 29th, 1894, for the murder of James Harris, which took place April 3, 1893.

The Grand Jury returned an indictment for murder against Dr. Matthews. His case continued and the defendant placed under a bond of $2,000.00. Messrs Sampey and Merritt are his securities.

We wish it were possible that every preacher in Chilton County could come and hear every sermon of the Reese-Rowland Revival in Clanton. But we suppose our country preachers feel like they must be at home between the plow handles trying to make them some bread to feed themselves and their families. And this brings to our minds the awful shamefulness that rests upon our churches for not providing for their preachers. Pastors of our churches should be so cared for by their people that they would not have to depend upon their muscular toil for bread. Then they could attend such important schools as this revival would be for them. The benefit that our preachers would get out of such a school would be untold.

All right now, you town gossips. You can get busy with your forked tongues. The teachers for the next session of the public school have been elected and it is your time to begin to spread your venemous condemnation of the school officials because they did not do it just exactly to suit you. We are sure you have some kick to make. This teacher you would say should not have stayed here because she has such a tacky way of fixing her hair; and that one should have been turned off because she has such a sour look on her face; another one should have been fired out of town because she boarded with a Methodist family last year or went to the Baptist Sunday School. And, of course, your friend up in the next town should have been elected because she wears her false teeth so gracefully and so strategically conceals her old maid attainments of years. These are about the arguments you will hear somebody advance if you cut your phone in on their private line.

We hopefully look for the work of the new congress to include investigations into the manner in which the departments of the government have conducted themselves, and especially into the affairs of the war department. There is undeniable evidences all over the country of a wide-spread public feeling that there has been a reckless reign of waste and incapacity on the part of many of the officials of this department. The pressure for investigation of this department is very great and it must be satisfied by the necessary investigation by proper authorities. For in a general way the main purpose of the present congress is to build for the country a great structure of legislation of an advanced and effective character. In doing this it cannot escape the task of probing into the affairs of various departments and setting forth the truth as to the charges of waste and bad management, and even worse things, which proceed from every direction. The people want to know the truth about these things and congress should give them the information they seek.

If we go back a few years we can find where President Wilson foretold his present efforts at domineering the other departments of the government. This will show wherein the President assumes to demand that the senate shall endorse the League of Nations without the crossing of a "t" or the dotting of an "i." We refer to certain expressions from the book of Mr. Wilson on Congressional Government relating to the president's power to force the Senate to do his will, as follows:

"His only power of compelling compliance on the part of the Senate lies in his initiative in negotiation, which affords him a chance to get the country into just such scrapes, so pledged in the view of the world to certain courses of action, that the Senate hesitates to bring about the appearance of dishonor which would follow its refusal to ratify the rash promises or to support the indiscreet threats of the Secretary of State."

In these days of many returning soldiers it is interesting to get their viewpoints on a number of things. One fact is especially noticeable. The great majority of them say that the armistice was signed too soon to give the Germans what was coming to them—that the Americans and Allies should have given the Germans a sound beating and marched to Berlin while they were about it. The understanding President Wilson had was that the armistice was signed on condition that his fourteen points were to be fulfilled. These summed up his "ideals" as he called them. The Germans also insist that the fourteen points must be followed. The Allies are rather indifferent to them, Clemanceau is rather openly poking fun at them. In his Boston speech President Wilson said that the American soldiers were fighting for the ideals he laid down in his fourteen points. He said the war was won by the inspiration of those ideals. Were the American soldiers fighting for the fourteen points? Or were they fighting to lick the everlasting tar out of the Huns and put them where they couldn't do any damage? The insolent attitude of the German delegates at the peace conference throws some light on this question.

To President Wilson should be assigned the task of answering the flood of German notes which are pouring into the peace conference. He has an unexcelled reputation as a note-writer.

As to whether Mr. Wilson will be a candidate for a third term we are beginning to wonder whether he will get home in time.

We have not yet heard whether or not the Pope has transmitted his appeal for mitigation of the peace terms to one of the most important delegates at the peace conference.

He was sitting in the front end of the boat and John Robinson was paddling the old canoe up to a willow overhanging the water from the bank. The trot-line was to be tied to the willow. By one of those curious movements peculiar to a boat, the front end dashed under the willow and out he went—head first. The last thing John saw of him was his heels. Now, if you want to know fuller details about it, we refer you to that veteran fisherman, Si Hayes. He can tell you how deep the water was, how far it was to the bank, and who the man was in the front of the boat.

Rev. W. P. Lowery of Thorsby was in Clanton the first of this week attending the Preachers and Deacons meeting Monday, and also the Reese-Rowland Revival.

Rev. E. B. Prickett of Verbena visited the Union-Banner last Monday. The editor felt gratified to have Mr. Prickett give us his hand in endorsement of our fight against the evils of Romanism in our country. The influence of the preachers in this great fight is a great force, one to be desired by those who are in the midst of such a great battle. We want the preachers with us.

"Nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash; these three; but the greatest of these is nitrogen." That is the way a prosperous farmer of Central Alabama expresses his opinion of the value of nitrogen as a fertilizer. While nitrogen is not always the most needed fertilizing element, yet the need of nitrogen in Alabama soils is almost universal. This fact is confirmed by the results of experiments conducted in various sections of Alabama, under the State's Local Experiment Law. The need for nitrogen emphasizes the fact that care in the use of the nitrate of soda recently purchased by farmers from the Government will result in large profits.

It has been found from results of Local Experiments, referred to above, that 100 pounds of nitrate of soda applied to cotton soon after the first squares appear was as effective and profitable as 200 pounds of cottonseed meal applied before planting. It was also found that as a fertilizer for corn a pound of nitrogen in nitrate of soda is worth somewhat more than a pound of nitrogen in cottonseed meal.

These profits, however, are realized only when care is taken to apply the nitrate at the right time. It is quite soluble, and is available for plants immediately after it dissolves in the soil moisture. For this reason it is best not to apply nitrate of soda at planting time, except in rather small amounts when it is desired to hasten early growth. However, there is a tendency in some sections to apply nitrate too late. When in doubt about the best time to apply, it is usually safer to select the earlier date. Cotton should receive nitrate when the plants are about six inches high; corn when about two or three feet high; fall sown oats in February or early March; spring sown oats a little later.

From 80 to 100 pounds of nitrate of soda to the acre should be the usual rate of application. It may be scattered broadcast over the surface of the ground, preferably just before cultivation on cultivated crops. It is highly important that the fertilizer be applied uniformly. When scattering nitrate over oats be careful to note that the leaves are dry, so that no particles will stick to them.

82 Years Old and As Good As a Youngster.

"Seven or eight years ago I was a very sick man. Doctors said catarrh trouble of the stomach and bowels, affecting the liver and heart. For more than a year I wanted to die, but could not. Upon the advice of a friend I tried Mayrs Wonderful Remedy, and although 82 years old I now feel as good as a youngster." It is simple harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

PRESIDENT FORCED TO DECIDE

Can No Longer Dodge Labor's Demand That Burleson Must Go.

Washington, May 24.—Unanimous endorsement has been given by organized labor in the District of Columbia through the Central Labor Union to the resolutions recently adopted by the Cleveland Federation of Labor which criticizes P.M. General Burleson for his attitude toward labor. The resolutions call on President Wilson to silence Mr. Burleson or remove him from office.

For a number of years, postal clerks have made complaints about the attitude of Postmaster General toward the employees of the Post office Deparment. These have been systematically disregarded by the administration.

The question now is whether, with the campaign of 1920 drawing nearer, complaints of labor will be given attention.

Everyone Should Contribute.

The state drive for the state soldiers' memorial which will begin June 27th in Alabama will be for popular subscriptions and the Alabama Memorial Commission has announced that one dollar from a person who can afford no more will be as much appreciated as one hundred dollars from the person who can give that amount.

"It is desired that every person in the state have a part in the erection of this state memorial." reads an announcement of the Commission. "It is desired to have it truly representative of the feelings of appreciation of all persons who make up this commonwealth. It is the desire of the commission to impress upon those who can afford substantial donations that they should make them in order that funds may be provided for those who cannot make contributions. In other words, we hope the state fund will be six dollars for every soldier, sailor and marine who entered the service from Alabama."

Memorials in 17 States.

Seventeen American states are following the lead of Alabama in the construction of buildings as memorials to their soldiers, sailors and marines. Information received by the Alabama Memorial Commission shows that the following states have already made plans for memorial buildings: Alabama, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Caroline, North Dakota, Nevada, New Jersey, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee. Those contemplating the construction of buildings are: Michigan, Minnesota, New Mexico, Rhode Island Utah.

MEMORIAL TO ALL STATE'S SOLDIERS

DRIVE FOR $500,000 WILL BEGIN JUNE 27TH AND CONTINUE UNTIL JULY 4TH—ALABAMA WILL HONOR BOYS.

COMMISSION ISSUES APPEAL

Records Show 80,000 Alabamians Answered Call—More Than 2,000 Sleep in France.

The Alabama Memorial Commission, through W. S. Stallings, state campaign director, has called upon all citizens of Alabama to join in the state drive for five hundred thousand dollars with which to erect a state memorial to Alabama's soldiers, sailors and marines. The drive will begin June 27th and will continue until July 4th, when it will end with celebrations in all counties Independence Day.

Workers have been named in all counties and are now perfecting the organizations and Director Stallings' appeal to all citizens to join in the campaign follows:

"Eighty thousand men of Alabama entered the nation's service. Thousands have returned after doing their duty. Tens of thousands will soon return, but more than two thousand will never return. Their bodies lie buried under the sod of France, a perpetual reminder that Alabama answered the call of civilization

"We honor those who went and returned. We revere the memory of those who gave everything, the most precious of God's blessings, life itself, that other people might not be placed in bondage by persons of alien lands. The time has come when Alabama must show the world what value it places on the services of those who did not return, on the work of those who did return and on those who did not go but were ready to go.

Must Not Fail Now.

"Citizens of Alabama have been called upon officially by the Legislature to subscribe a fund of five hundred thousand dollars with which to erect the 'Alabama Memorial,' commemorating the deeds of Alabama's representatives in the war. A great state-wide drive will be made beginning June 27th and continuing until July 4th. Failure has not been in the vocabulary of Alabama since the war began. It has never failed. It will not fail in this movement which is the only big thing we have attempted to do to show the soldiers who returned, the relatives of those who will not return and the world at large that we value the services of our representatives in the war.

"Quotas have been assigned to all counties on a basis as near scientific as could be found. Each county is asked to contribute for its own and no others. The basis is six dollars for each soldier, sailor and marine who entered the war from each county. The government worked out a plan whereby the burdens imposed on the various counties by the selective service law were as near equal as possible. This same plan was used by the Alabama Memorial Commission.

CONVINCNG EVIDENCE FOR THE SICK

How Chronic Sufferers are Being Restored to Health through the Associated Doctors System of Treatment.

Offer Services Free of Charge.

Word has just been received that the Associated Doctors, specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on Saturday, June 7th,

At the Hotel Wilson,

for one day only, to demonstrate their new system of treatment of chronic disease cases.

This will indeed be good news to those who find it convenient to visit the central laboratories in Birmingham, located at Suite 511-12 Lyric Theatre Building, where the organization has its southern headquarters. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone — in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on then on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—ABSOLUTELY FREE, medicine excepted. No cutting, no knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of ascertaining your exact condition, and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following:

TESTIMONY:

Square Cheatham, Bolling, Ala., writes: I had rhumatism for over two years, and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work, and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Ira Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala., writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed."

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: "I have been using your remedies prescribed near three weeks, and am feeling much better."

We hold certificates by examination and other necessary requirements to practice medicine and surgery in 17 states of the Union. We have demonstrated our skill to specialists in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Nashville, Atlanta and other medical centers this side of the Atlantic. Those who secure our service are assured of the skill that our many years of experience and special qualifications afford.

We treat with every assurance of success, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchial Trouble, by the new vaccine method; rhumatism, uric acid, gall stones, blood diseases, skin diseases, nervous diseases, throat trouble, liver, tomach and bowel trouble, bed wetting, tumors, kidney and bladder diseases, piles, fistula and all special nervous and chronic diseases of men and women, without loss of time or inconvenience to patients—and

WITHOUT KNIFE.

Married women should be accomponied by their husbands and children by their parents.

TACHERS RE-ELECTED FOR CLANTON GRAMMAR SCHOOL

The School board makes the pleasing announcement that all the teachers on the faculty of the Clanton Grammar School for the past year have been re-elected for the next session, and it is practically assured that they will return.

The list includes Prof. J. L. Johnson, Principal, Miss Edna Tate of Summerfield, Miss Icelo Williams of Duncanville, Miss Bessie Thomas of Clanton, and Miss Mary Timmerman of Pratville.

The Union-Banner voices the sentiment of our entire Citizenship in saying that we are glad to have this corps of teachers with us again for another session. No better Principal than Prof. Johnson could be secured anywhere. And the interest and cooperation of his splended assistants in the success of their work and the welfare of the pupils assures us that we have been greatly blessed to have them return to us again next year.

TALK about smokes, Prince Albert is geared to a joyhandout standard that just lavishes smokehappiness on every man game enough to make a bee line for a tidy red tin and a jimmy pipe—old or new!

Get it straight that what you've hankered for in pipe or cigarette makin's smokes you'll find aplenty in P. A. That's because P. A. has the quality!

You can't any more make Prince Albert bite your tongue or parch your throat than you can make a horse drink when he's off the water! Bite and parch are cut out by our exclusive patented process!

You just lay back like a regular fellow and puff to beat the cards and wonder why in samhill you didn't nail a section in the P. A. smokepasture longer than you care to remember back!

Buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold. Toppy red bags, tidy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tin humidors—and —that clever, practical pound crystal glass humidor with sponge moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such perfect condition.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

We wish to express our appreciation in the highest terms to the newspapers of our city for their valuable assistance and free space open at the desposal of our Church in the great Centenary drive.

We are happy to announce to the public and with our heart-felt gratitude to all who rendered their services, their prayers, their love, and their money in bringing the church to this most glorious victory. Clanton went over the top by subscribing our quota in full to the amount of $7,000.00.

I thank you for all your assistance.

On account of the services in progress at the tent, there will not be any services at the Methodist Church in Clanton next Sunday morning nor evening, June 1st.

E. C. MAYE, Pastor.

SUCCESSFUL TEACHERS

The following teachers have been awarded license as a result of the April examination in Chilton County:

Second Grade:—Mrs. Bessie Nix Hayes, Clanton.

Third Grade:—Estelle McCain, Thorsby; Orville Martin, Thorsby; Gertrude Smith, Thorsby; Dee L. Waites, Deatsvile.

LOST KNIFE.—A Pocket Knife was lost in H. F. Chandler's store last Saturday. Finder please return to Tom Littlejohn, at Chandler's.

Why Suffer?

Mrs. J. A. Cox, of Alderson, W. Va., writes: "My daughter . . . suffered terribly. She could not turn in bed . . . the doctors gave her up, and we brought her home to die. She had suffered so much at . . . time. Having heard of Cardui, we got it for her."

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"In a few days, she began to improve," Mrs. Cox continues, "and had no trouble at . . . Cardui cured her, and we sing its praises everywhere." We receive many thousands of similar letters every year, telling of the good Cardui has done for women who suffer from complaints so common to their sex. It should do you good, too. Try Cardui. E-77

PLEASANT GROVE, SHOULTS

On the Fourth Sunday in May Pleasant Grove Baptist Church at Shoults, held a special service, and ordained Brethren Moore, Oden and Latham to the office of deacons of the church. We are confident that with these men as the business managers of our church, Pleasant Grove will move forward.

Rev. F. W. C. Bice is our pastor. The church invited Rev. Connell and Rev. S. M. Adams to assist in the ordination of these brethren as deacons. Bro. Adams preached the ordination sermon. His subject was "The deacon, his Office and his qualifications." To say that Bro. Adams preached a strong sermon is putting it very mildly; for everyone who knows him at all knows that he is gifted in preaching and especially well fortified on matters of Baptist doctrine.

Mrs. G. D. Broadhead went down to Montgomery last Saturday to meet her husband as he was returning from the army.

Arkie Mahan went to Montgomery last Friday.

Newton Aldridge has accepted a position with the Western Union Telegraph Co., at Decatur. He left Clanton for that place Wednesday.

Ex-County Treasurer J. Bice, is living happy these days. All his five sons have returned from France. Mr. Bice is proud of his contribution of manpower in the war, and is also lucky that all his sons came back safe and unhurt.

MR. JOHN M. LUSK OF GADSDEN, ALABAMA WRITES A LETTER

States that he shows marked improvement since taking the new remedy, Dreco.. Suffered from Gastritis, Constipation and Nervous.

"This is the first remedy I have ever found that has done me any good," states Mr. John M. Lusk, the well known citizen of Gadsden, Ala., in a signed statement given for publication in this paper.

"I admit that when I began taking Dreco, I had no confidence in it, for I had already tried so many of them, but the improvement is so marked that I am convinced of its merits.

"I used to suffer from gas in my stomach and bowels after eating. I would be all bloated up and very uncomfortable. My bowels were habitually constipated; I was bilious and had to be taking medicine constantly. My appetite was poor and I become extremely nervous so that I could not sleep much.

"I am 68 years old and have lived in Gadsden for the past 30 years, and many of the people have known of my sufferings. I am glad to state that Dreco has made me feel like a different person, and I consider it the greatest medicine I ever saw, and recommend it to every one suffering as I did."

Dreco is a pure liquid combination of juices of many roots, herbs, barks and berries, which act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and it cleanses the blood. It increases the appetite, soothes the nerves, induces sound sleep and builds up the entire system. Pleasant to take and is good for men, women and children.

Dreco is now sold by all progressive druggists throughout the country and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

INCREASE PROFITS BY PREVENTING YOUR LOSS

If you go into your cotton fields in the midst of the growing season and find that from 10 to 50 per cent of your cotton is killed by the cotton wilt disease or ruined by the boll rot disease, it is then too late to obtain good disease resistant and disease free seed to plant. When you visit your fields about the time the first cultivation is needed and find that in most places you have secured only about two-thirds of a stand, then you will think how easy it would have been to select good seed for planting.

There are three general means by which the crop yields of the farm can be increased. First, by increasing the crop acreage; second, by using more green and artificial manures judiciously; third, by preventing the usual loss of a large percentage of the crops from diseases and the use of bad seed for planting.

It is easily seen that the third named means of increasing the crop yield of the farm is the most inexpensive and can be attended to at the very beginning with very little extra trouble. By planting good sound seed, a perfect stand is insured, other conditions being favorable. When a perfect stand of crops is secured, then the soil, fertilizer and labor are cooperating most effectively. Those farmers who selected their planting seed from the fields of last season's crops have an advantage over those who did not. When selecting seeds from the field, you get not only sound seed but seed from high yielding plants which have the power of transmitting that yield to the offspring. However, if you have not selected your planting seed from the field and cannot buy them from those who are making a specialty of growing high grade seeds, it would be well to pick sound seed for planting, and if possible make a germination test before planting.

All through the growing season, after a perfect stand has been secured, the crops are constantly harassed by various diseases and insect pests. By planting seeds of disease resistant varieties and disease free seed, the loss from some diseases can be prevented. Rotation of crops will eliminate the losses from diseases to a large extent. First of all, get started right with the right kind of planting seed and that matter will not give you any trouble, should any bad luck occur.

MICKIE SAYS

THE BEST WAY TO GROW CANTULOPES

Every one should grow a few hills of cantaloupes in his home garden, as there is no vegetable as delicious as a well ripened cantaloupe. Many people have ceased growing cantaloupes because of the worms that infest the fruits. You should not stop growing them on this account but, instead, get in the crop early, using the earliest maturing varieties and selecting the best soils so as to mature the crop before the appearance of the pests.

To grow an early crop a well drained, rich, sandy loam soil sloping to the south and southeast should be used. The ground should be thoroughly prepared by breaking up and pulverizing. Lay off the rows, five feet each way; place in the hills about three or four good shovels full of lot manure. Prepare a hill by digging the soil and manure together, forming a hill. Plant ten or a dozen seed in each hill as early as possible. In Southern Alabama March 20th. In Central Alabama about April 1st, and in North Alabama, April 10th if danger of frost is over before this time, one might risk a few seed.

It is a splendid practice to plant a few seed in each hill each week until danger of frost is over. If the first planting is killed the later planted seed will surely stand. If the first planting is not killed, the later plantings may be thinned out, leaving a stand of two or three plants to each hill. Plants should be carefully cultivated, keeping all weeds down so that the vines will not have to be disturbed after they begin to run on the ground

For early varieties I prefer the Extra Early Hackensack, the Emerald Gem and the Jenny Lind. The Rocky Ford is an excellent variety, though a later one.

There are not many insects to trouble cantaloupes. One of the worst pests is the cantaloupe worm which bores a hole in the young fruits, making them unfit for food and often causing them to rot before ripening. A careful examination should be made to note if any damage is being done by these insects and in case an infested fruit is found it should be destroyed.

There is no successful way of combating the worm as many sprays have been tried. If one sprays he will have to do it every day. The only sure way of growing cantaloupes is to do as suggested above, plant early so as to have them matured before the appearance of the worm.

Another good practice in growing cantaloupes is to practice rotation, never growing cantaloupes on the same soil year after year. If this cannot be done one should burn all the foliage, vines and old fruits after the main crop has matured. I followed the above and have been very successful in growing cantaloupes for the past three years.

Till Boll Weevil Catcher

WE SOLD SEVERAL OF THEM LAST SEASON, AND FARMERS REPORT SATISFACTORY RESULTS. HAVING SEEN MANY TESTIMONIALS FROM FARMERS IN DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE COTTON GROWING SECTION, WE ARE CONVINCED THAT IF THE MACHINE IS USED WHEN THE COTTON IS ABOUT SIX INCHES HIGH AND CONTINUE ITS USE ABOUT EVERY TEN DAYS UNTIL THE PLANT IS TOO LARGE TO PASS THROUGH THE MACHINE, YOU WILL MAKE AT LEAST THREE-FOURTHS OF A FULL YIELD OF COTTON, AT A COST OF $10.00 FOR THE MACHINE.

THE WINTER MONTHS ARE JUST PASSED AND THE PRESENT WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE FAVORABLE TO PRODUCE MILLIONS OF WEEVILS; SO ALL FARMERS SHOULD BEGIN EARLY DESTRUCTION OF THE WEEVIL. LESS THAN FIFTY POUNDS OF COTTON WILL PAY FOR THE MACHINE, WHICH IF USED AS DIRECTED WILL INSURE YOU A FAIR CROP.

"THE HEART OF THE WORLD"

Washington, May 26.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today, gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

President Wilson, in a recent Paris speech, done in English, is reported to have said: "The heart of the world is under very plain jackets. The heart of the world is at very simple firesides. The heart of the world is in very simple circumstances; and unless you know the pressure of life of the humbler classes, you know nothing of life whatever."

The heart of Mr. Wilson is under a frock-coat, and his brain is under a high silk hat. The heart of Mr. Wilson, for the past six months at least, has been at the firesides of royalty and in the beds of princes of the blood. The heart of Mr. Wilson has pulsed with joy at gold plate dinners and in enjoying a homage greater than that of kings. The "simple circumstances" of his first trip to France were followed by the presentation of a bill to congress of $5,000,000 to defray the expenses, and what the second trip will cost it not yet known, but the $1,000,000 said to have been expended in renovating the Hotel Crillon—the Paris White House—will be an item.

Mr. Wilson's boyhood days, so it is stated in his official biography, were spent in the South, "where he prepared for college with private tutors." He entered Davidson College at 18 years of age, and from 1874 to 1902, with the exception of two years unsuccessful practice of law in Atlanta, Ga., he idealized in the sequestered environs of exclusive universities—Princeton, Virginia, Johns Hopkins, Byrn Mawr, Wesleyan, and back to Princeton. In 1885 he married the daughter "of a distinguished family of Savannah, Ga.," who died in 1914. In 1915 he married a wealthy resident of Washington, who claims the more or less blue blood of Pocahontas. His chief recreation is golf; his chief diversion, note-writing. When did Mr. Wilson ever come into direct contact with "the heart of the world?"

Yet, he has been often classed by his flatterers with Honest Abe., the Illinois rail-splitter. The classification is inaccurate. Lincoln sprang from the loins of the people. While engaged in the hewing of wood and the drawing of water he educated himself. His language was couched in terms which every man understood, yet it was majestic in its flow. His whole life was an example of modesty and unostentation. Lincoln knew the heart of the people because Lincoln was of the core of that heart.

FEAR BICKERING WITH HUN IS PROVING A MISTAKE

Long Delay in Formulating Peace Has Made Enemy Arrogant.

WILL INDEMNITIES BE PAID?

Washington, June 4.—Will the long delays in formulating the peace treaty with Germany prove a costly fatal blunder? This question is being asked frankly by economists here, who want Germany to pay the price for her crimes not merely in terms written down on paper, but in actualities; not merely in phrases but in money and otherwise. Growing apprehension is felt here among men competent to judge that the persistency of the American envoys to Paris in not negotiating peace with the utmost speed and engaging in extended discussion over the proposed international league may result in a distinct loss for the allies and play into Germany's hands.

The point is raised that in the six months which have elapsed since the armistice was signed there has been a spiritual and moral collapse among the Germans and other peoples to whom the world must look to pay the penalty for the devastaion of whole sections.

One scientist declares that, during the quibbling at Paris, there has been a degeneration in the Central Powers until they are now 50 per cent below normal working capacity. Had there been a speedy peace, separate from the covenant of nations, Germany would have been forced to take up at once the work of doing whatever might be within her power to right the wrongs she had committed. During the deliberations over the international agreement for the future, the German has believed, and is now being encouraged to believe that eventual split among the allies would result in lighter peace terms. Had there been a peace at once, the same terms that now await signature could have exacted and Germany could have been on the way to repay the devastated countries their share of the indemnities, as this authority sees it.

FUTURE UP TO REPUBLICANS

If they Measure up to Job Nothing Can Defeat Them in 1920.

Washington, June 1.—"The country wants efficiency at Washington."

"The tide of sentiment everywhere is setting hard against the administration. "

"The country looks to the new Congress to enact needed legislation to put things on their feet. The Republicans have a great responsibility but nothing can stop them in 1920 of they 'make good.'"

These are sample expressions one can hear in many quarters about Washington today. They come from newspaper men who have been in various sections, from returning members of Congress and others.

REPUBLICANS TO EXPEDITE WORK ON BUDGET BILL

Will Not Waste Time Investigating Different Systems of Budgets.

COUNTRY INSISTS ON ECONOMY

Washington, June 1.—Signs are becoming more marked daily that a budget system bill will be passed in the extra session of Congress. The House Republican Steering Committee and Senate leaders have talked matters over and have determined to expedite budget legislation. This means that the appropriations committees will consider the different plans and will act favorably on the best proposition and the most practicable one.

There has been much talk about an investigation by a commission in order to arrive at a good workable budget system. While this plan has merit, it tends to delay enactment of a much needed law. For this reason, with the country pressing for inauguration of methods of economy, the feeling is steadily growing that a law ought to me worked out as quickly as feasible. Senator Kenyon, who has been one of the most active exponents of the idea of a budget system, said today he had concluded not to press his resolution for an investigation into the budget system, with a report on the best method of forming one. "The demand for immediate action os great,' said Sen. Kenyon. "The time for investigation is past and the time for action has arrived."

Many practical difficulties are presented in the path of the enactment of a workable budget system. Such a system means, of course, a systematic, co-ordinated scheme for dealing with all appropriations and expenditures for the government. It is easy to talk about the need for a budget system but not easy to perfect one. It would be idle to think of Congress giving up its power over the purse strings. Everybody who knows that it is not so much Congress as the department officials that are continuously pressing for more money. How to leave Congress its power and yet prevent logrolling for appropriations is not an easy task.

ECONOMY TO BE WATCHWORD

Washington, June 2.—"Economy will be the policy in making up the appropriation bills which come before the House appropriations committee," said Representative Good, new chairman of that committee.

"No department or agency of the government will be starved or deprived of money which it needs. But at the same time, officials will be required to do something more than merely make demands for appropriations. It will be up to them, when they present an estimate, to show that the money is needed and why it is needed. That, at least, is my view of the matter and I believe it will be the view of the majority of the committee."

Was it A Purposeful Misrepresentation,

Or an Honest Error?

A few days ago the Birmingham News, in accord with its policy to play up the great things that are being done by the Knights of Columbus, carried an announcement of an instance where these night-hawk, back-alley conspirators against our government and free institutions, had held a large meeting in Birmingham and initiated a big class into the order. The write-up stated that an expert degree class from the State of Mississippi was present to administer the ceremony, wherein those initiated, of course, took that dirty, lowdown, vile and treasonable oath, and swore their allegiance to its tenets by their signatures written in their own blood. Among these visitors, who were present The News stated the name of J. H. Culkin of Vicksburg, State Superintendent of Education of Mississippi. It was this statement that led us to mention the matter last week of a Souhern Sate having a Knight of Columbus for its Superintendent of Education.

We at once took the matter up with a friend, a prominent business man and citizen of our sister state, to ascertain if the statement of The News were true. This friend favors us with the following answer:

> "In reply to your inquiry in regard to J. H. Culkin being Superintendent of Education of this State, I am glad to say it was untrue. Mr. W. F. Bond is our Superintendent of Education, and I know nothing at all of J. H. Culkin."

Now, what is the matter? Was the article in The News deliberately falsifying in order to carry an impression to the outside world that this important position was held by a Roman Catholic? Was it a purposeful misrepresentation or an honest error? It would be far more creditable to the State of Mississippi or any other state, to say that it had no Superinendent of Education at all than to spread the news that such an office was held by a Catholic. It would be grave enough to make such a statement truthfully; but how much more serious and discreditable when it is not true! The people of Mississippi ought to demand damages of The News for degrading the fair name of that great State by the assertion that the State Superintendent of Education is a Catholic Knight of Columbus.

The Big Men Must Show

Where They Stand.

By the universal determination of a very considerable number of thinking citiens throughout this country, the time has come when the leaders of our government, the men who aspire to the high places, must be pronounced in their attitude toward certain alien forces in American institutions. People have determined that they must know how aspirants to political preferment regard the menace of Roman Catholic influence, the liquor evil and other kindred devices that are both unsound morally and evidently un-American .

In compliance with this demand of American patriots, we are pleased to note a certain paragraph in the official announcement of Hon. L. B. Musgrove, for the United States Senate from Alabama, in regard to Church and State, as follows:

> "As active and aggressive as the liquor interests ever were, is that element of society which would bring about in this country a union of church and state. With the enlightened countries of Europe turning from this sort of thing, efforts to establish it in the United Staes will be redoubled. The danger is none the less real because the campaign is being carried on by subtle and indirect methods, well calculated to deceive the unobservant. Every influence of this character must be met and sternly suppressed. The perpetuation of our free institutions depends, in a large measure, upon the alertness of our representatives, and only those who are conscious of the menace and whose Americanism is unquestioned, should be placed on guard."

In spite of politics, it is going to be necessary in the future for every candidate to come clean on this Roman Catholic idea of mixing up the church with the government, the schools and everything else. We do not endorse Mr. Musgrove's other ideas of politics, but on this one, we give the right hand of American fellowship. And we might add that we regard this plank the most far-reaching and important one in his platform.

And who'd a thought it was just a little old peanut?

We want to see the person who has been attending the Reese-Rowland tent meeting and has not got his skinning. Our opinion is that "there ain't no sich animul."

If President Wilson would add one more to his fourteen points, which would provide for him staying at Washington and attending to the business he was hired for, it would please the people of the United States very much.

We have heard it rumored that there was a dance in Clanton last Saturday night. We have been unable to obtain an account of it. If we can we will publish a full account of it next week. It would be interesting to know who was there and participated.

Here is a thought we want to leave with you. The people of Clanton should right now see to it that the City Public School building is made adequate and complete by the construction of the second story of the building. Think about this. We will have some more to say about this right away.

General Coxey is on deck again. He foresees another period of unemplolyment like that of the Cleveland administration and the first two years of the Wilson administration. Twenty-five years ago it will be remembered that General Coxey rode up to the Capitol at the head of a large army of hoboes. He has prepared a bill to go before Congress, that, he believes, will solve the whole problem like magic.

The letter of Rev. E. B. Prickett, in this week's paper, is a source of pleasure and comfort to the Editor of The Union-Banner. We wish we could get the open and unqualified endorsement of every preacher in the county in the fight against the evils of Romanism. It is the duty of the preachers, and they owe it to their people to keep them informed about this great impending evil.

Some of the Democrats in Congress are fair and square enough to admit the waste and extravagance of the administration during the war. For instance, Representative Welty of Ohio, a Democrat, seeing the Republicans all around him, preparing to get after Democratic extravagance and waste, in war expenditures, has decided to join them and has therefore introduced a resolution for a sweeping investigation of irregular and unlawfull expenditures during the war.

It looks now that the market for cotton is working to higher levels. Under present conditions it looks like mills could well afford to pay more for cotton than they are paying. Manufacturers look for goods to go higher this fall. Prices would do better if it were not for those who keep on trying to sell faster than the immediate demand can absorb. By waiting till the demand wants the stuff we can get what it is worth. We know that when a man does not need an article he will not pay what he would for it if he did really need it. The same is true of cotton.

It is amazing to see people get weak in the back when the pressure of duty begins to bear down upon them. As an instance of this we note the attitude of some whom we know to have been enlisted in the fight against Romanism, but as the fire gets hotter and the contest begins to draw closer, we see them begin to fudge and back off. We would remind our weak brethren that the focus will be reached before very long. The supreme test will be upon us. Ask some of the boys who went to the front in France what happens to the fellow whose feet won't stand the racket. Remember their answer when you turn to flee from the guns of Rome and leave the other fellow with the fight to make.

"I do not pretend to be a prophet. But though not a prophet, I see a very dark cloud on our horizon. And that dar kcloud is coming from Rome. It is filled with tears and blood. It will rise and increase, till its flanks will be torn by a flash of lightning followed by a fearful peal of thunder. Then a cyclone such as the world has never seen will pass over this country, spreading ruin and desolation from North to South. After it is all over, there will be long days of peace and prosperity, for Popery, with its Jesuits and merciless inquisitions, will have been forever swept away from our country. Neither I nor you, but our children, will see those things."—Abraham Lincoln.

"If ever the liberties of this country are destroyed, it will be by the Roman Catholic priests." — LAFAYETTE.

WAR RISK BUREAU MAY SHOW GROSS MIS - MANAGEMENT

Resignation of Director Lindsey and Staff May Expose Scandal.

EFFICIENT MEN FORCED OUT

Col. Lindsey Popular with Men in Ranks Because He Put System In Insurance Bureau.

Washington, June 1.—"This resolution promises to develop one of the most colossal messes of mismanagement in the whole history of our government."

This is the characterization placed by a veteran member of Congress upon the resolution of Representative Britten, of Illinois, for a thorough investigation of the War Risk Bureau of the Treasury Department, following the resignation of its director, Col. Henry D. Lindsey, after an exchange of bitter notes with Secretary of the Treasury Glass.

While many within the bureau say they have known for some time that there was discord between the Secretary and the director, the sudden resignation of Colonel Lindsey came as a surprise second only to the quitting of the cabinet by Secretary Bryan, Garrison and McAdoo. Not only does the director leave but he carries with him several assistants who are conceded to be among most expert persons in the country in their respective work.

There is a distinctive political angle to the resignation of Colonel Lindsey. Democrat all his llife, a strong supporter of the administration, decorated by General Pershing for efficiency at the headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces and wielding wide influence in political matters in Texas, Colonel Lindsey was looked upon as one of the strong men of Washington officialdom. But he had a settled idea as to how ends should be accomplished and when he found interference he would break all his plans he stepped aside after administering his severe rebuke to the head of the Treasury.

Popular with Men in Ranks.

A story is being told that shows unmistakably how strong Colonel Lindsey stands with the hundreds of thousands of soldiers At the recent conclave in St. Louis which resulted in the organization of the American Legion there was an active propaganda to have an enlisted man elected as leader. Not only did this have the strongest sort of support among the men in the ranks, but was encouraged by the officers who felt that such a choice would be the best possible indication of the Democracy of the association that includes in its membership the hundreds of thousands of men who went to the defense of the nation. When Lieut. Colonel Roosevelt declared emphatically and repeatedly that under no consideration would he accept the place, the delegates commenced to center on a man from the ranks.

When it became known, however, that the new head of the War Risk Insurance Bureau was present the news evoked such enthusiasm that Colonel Lindsey was nominated and later elected unanimously.

This was taken as a vote of confidence in the administration of the bureau. No section of the War Department bears a more intimate relationship with the millions of families of young Americans than does the war risk bureau. Nearly every soldier who holds insuranc has had some communication with the bureau and so utter was the failure of the whole organization for months that it aced as a direct discouragement to those who held and had hoped to hold, policies. The usual conduct of business affairs was so foreign to the handling of the division of the Treasury that a turn over finally came and Colonel Lindsey was named as director.

Brought Order out of Chaos.

From chaos, order commenced to appear; sensible answers came to sensible queries, a full explanation of the scheme of the insurance was spread broadcast for the guidance of the soldier and his family Policies were beginning to be paid after lapses of months and, after being driven almost to desparation by treatment in the past, the soldier commenced to discover that the war risk bureau was really a functioning unit of the government

To Col Lindsey and his assistants in the reorganization went the credit and the first opportunity of the men of the army to show their feeling was at St. Louis when they named him as their leader Then came his sudden retirement.

Whether Col. Lindsey will follow his resignation by withdrawing from the Democratic party is a matter his guidance was most needed. congress is set finding just why this man should be allowed to go when his services were showing results and his guidance wa mot needed.

FLOYD CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Union-Banner:

I have been reading with interest your editorial views of Romanism. I will say that they are not your views alone, but is the genuine undeniable truth. I am glad to know that we have a man at the head of our county paper who has the nerve and the backbone to step out into the public press and condemn the evils of the Roman Catholics. Though I do not see very much pointed endorsement from the people and especially from the preachers; I think it is time we are lining up and putting on the armor of God, that we may withstand the fiery darts of the wicked one, to stand against spiritual wickedness in high places. So, let all protestants join in this great fight and defend the principles that our forefathers bled and died for and that Christ designated we should have. When I stand on the beautiful plains of Religious Liberty and breathe the pure air of freedom, it makes my heart rejoice. But when I cast my eyes down, as it were, on the fragments of Catholicism—the dragon as he reaches out his claws to pull us down under the clutches of Rome, and not us alone but our children alone but the unborn generations to come; as I think of this it makes my heart ache. Sometimes I feel like joining with the Psalmist when he said: "Oh, that I had the wings of a dove and could fly away and be at rest."

There will be an all-day singing at Floyd the Fourth Sunday in this month. Everybody is invited to come and bring well filled baskets. The books to be used is the Crowns of Love.

Respectfully,
E. B. PRICKETT.

THE COMMON AVERAGE

No stronger evidence of the important fact that the Ford Motor car has become a veritable part of the life of the people, could be asked for than is given in the registration records of the various states which comprise our country.

For instance, in the month of January there were 11,450 cars of all makes registered in the State of Montana of which 5,790 were Ford Cars. This means one Ford Car for every other car, of every make and 130 over. This proportion is very evenly maintained in the other forty-seven states. There are more than 6,000,000 motor cars in operation in the United States, more than one-half of which are Fords.

Truly, Henry Ford has been a great factor of benefit to humanity as he has brought the most economical solution to the great problems of transportation, and by the fruits of his genius has linked town and country, community to community, and made the whole country a common meeting place for all the people.

MICKIE SAYS

FIVE BICE BROTHERS ARE BACK HOME FROM FRANCE

One of the unique facts about the war is that the five sons of Treasurer J. Bice, all went through the war in Europe and not one of them got a single wound, and are today back at home with their father, duly happy with him over the splendid luck they had. The following are the names of the boys: Sgt. Clarence E., a member of a band in the 82nd Division; Grover A., 83rd Division; Sgt. Stoughton M., a member of the Regimental Band, 167th Inf., Rainbow Division; Chester A., and Jay, of the Dixie Division. All the boys are honorably discharged from the service now. They were in Clanton Tuesday afternoon with their father greeting their many friends. They made a visit to the Union-Banner office, and we were glad to see them. While in town they had a picture made, and we hope to present it to our readers in the near future thru The Banner.

REPEAL ICE CREAM SODA TAX

Washington, May 28.—Repeal of the ten per cent tax on ice cream and other soft concoctions is provided in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Longworth of Ohio, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and in the Senate by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, a member of the Finance Committee, and it is likely that the Republican majority in both bodies will see that the tax is removed before the summer is over.

"This tax," said Longworth, "imposes an unnecessary and obnoxious burden upon the people in their enjoyment of a harmless drink. The majority in congress will easily find other means of getting sufficient revenue, especially by protection on imports, besides taking the extra penny or two from the young people of the country. And this, of course, also has reference to all of that section of the present law which has to do with taxation on ice cream and other sweet preparations. In addition to this imposition upon the public, the tax is bad because it is proving very difficult and unsatisfactory in its administration. It is pretty generally believed by the treasury experts that it costs more to collect it than it yields to the government."

"A WORD TO THE WISE."

It is not safe to buy land or to lend money and accept land as security without first investigating the title of the land. Often there are unpaid mortgages, judgments, taxes, or other liens affecting the title, which an abstract would set out. Therefore, when buying land or lending money thereon, it is important that an abstract of title be furnished. A few dollars spent for an abstract is cheaper than having a law suit later on.

There are two abstract companies at Clanton, either of which are in position to make accurate abstracts of title. The Clanton Abstract Company is owned by F. B. Collier and the Chilton County Abstract Company is owned by M. D. Foshee. Either Company will treat you right as to the price.

CONVINCNG EVIDENCE FOR THE SICK

How Chronic Sufferers are Being Restored to Health through the Associated Doctors System of Treatment.

Offer Services Free of Charge.

Word has just been received that the Associated Doctors, specialists, licensed by the State of Alabama, and who have met with such phenominal success throughout the entire Southeast, will be in Clanton on

Saturday, June 7th,
At the Hotel Wilson,

for one day only, to demonstrate their new system of treatment of chronic disease cases.

This will indeed be good news to those who find it convenient to visit the central laboratories in Birmingham, located at Suite 511-12 Lyric Theatre Building, where the organization has its southern headquarters. These regular, reputable physicians believe that the combined skill of several trained specialists in chronic disease cases can accomplish more than one doctor alone — in other words, in unity there is strength.

The offer to treat all who call on then on this visit absolutely free, is their original method of getting their system of treatment before the public quicker, and no one, rich or poor, white or colored, should neglect to take advantage of their very liberal offer—ABSOLUTELY FREE (medicine excepted. No cutting, no knife.

It makes no difference how many doctors you have consulted or how many patent medicines you have taken, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity of ascertaining your exact condition, and be honestly advised. No one should require further evidence of the skill of these specialists than the following:

TESTIMONY:

Square Cheatham, Bolling, Ala., writes: I had rhumatism for over two years, and walked with a stick. After taking the first dose of your medicine I threw away my stick. Your remedy has done the work, and I am now a well man, thanks to the Associated Doctors."

Ira Craig, Greenville, Ala., writes: "I am doing very well. My foot is healing, although I am compelled to walk on it."

J. L. Redding, Saginaw, Ala., writes "I am free from rhumatic pain since commencing your treatment."

Thomas Marshall, Chapman, Ala., writes: "I can truthfully say I am a new man. I feel I don't need the full eight weeks you prescribed. "

Mrs. Margaret W. Rogers, Georgiana, Ala., writes: " I have been using your remedies prescribed near three weeks, and am feeling much better."

We hold certificates by examination and other necessary requirements to practice medicine and surgery in 17 states of the Union. We have demonstrated our skill to specialists in New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Nashville, Atlanta and other medical centers this side of the Atlantic. Those who secure our service are assured of the skill that our many years of experience and special qualifications afford.

We treat with every assurance of success, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchial Trouble, by the new vaccine method; rhumatism, uric acid, gall stones, blood diseases, skin diseases, nervous diseases, throat trouble, liver, tomach and bowel trouble, bed wetting, tumors, kidney and bladder diseases, piles, fistula and all special nervous and chronic diseases of men and women, without loss of time or inconvenience to patients—and

WITHOUT KNIFE.

Married women should be accomponied by their husbands and children by their parents.

Remember the hotel, day and date, —one day only.

CHILTON COUNTY GROWS FINE WATER MELONS

Mr. J. R. Short of Pletcher, Ala., carried a car-load of melons to Birmingham, about August 20th, 1918, and was said to be the best car of melons sold on the Birmingham market last season. The car contained 1,000 melons, weighed 30,000 pounds and averaged 30 pounds each. They were of the Watson variety and of fine quality. Mr. Short sold the car to R. K. Thompson for $300.00, net. Mr. Johnson pays the railroad company $30.00 freight, and 90 cents war tax. Mr. Short Stated that he grew the 1,000 melons on 2½ acres of land. We hope Mr. Short will grow some more fine melons this year.

This record made by Mr. Short shows what can be done with water melons right here at home, in Chillton County. Why not try it yourself.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch went to Dothan last week, where Mrs. Upchurch underwent an operation for the removal of tonsils.

WEST CHILTON

Rain, mud and slush. Gardens fine. Wheat crops very poor; oats good.

Mr. Lon Brown has moved his family to his mill north-east of Randolph.

On the 3rd Sunday in June there will be an all-day singing at Waldrup School House. Prof. M. V. Lawley is expected, also Messrs Martin, Jackson and others. The old books will be used; bring dinner.

Messrs Goodritch, Richardson and others of Birmingham, colporters for religious books were canvassing here last week.

Mr. Brown has purchased a motor truck for hauling lumber, H. S. Watkins of Thorsby, driver.

Your correspondent attended the singing last Sunday at Union Grove. The day was inclement but a large crowd was present, the music was directed by the President, Mr. Conway; and Messrs Gaither, Martin, Jones, Jackson, and son. The good people provided a rich and bountiful dinner; they entertained their visitors quite royally. A collection was secured to help build the music hall in Birmingham. The noted among the visitors were W. H. Shaw of Birmingham, our popular Ex-Sheriff, H. A. Harris and his highly esteemed Chief Deputy, W. H. Gillespie, and T. J. Jackson of South Georgia.

They say Uncle Joe Smith, Sr. looks mighty spry when he dons the uniform of the boys from overseas; he is a Confederate veteran and carries the empty sleeve.

Mr. Sam Dawson of Pate's Chapel was a recent visitor here.

Prof. M. C. Crumpton of Childersburg sent his father a nice lot of fresh fish recently. L. G. Posey has presented his daughter, Miss Alice, with a nice Parlor Organ.

We have not consulted our weather man, Mr. Bearden, as to when the rain will quit.

CARROLL - MITCHELL

On last Monday afternoon, at the Baptist Parsonage in Clanton, Mr. Elzie Carroll was united in sacred matrimony to Miss Nancy Mitchell, Rev. J. F. Gable officiating.

Mr. Carroll is the son of N. G. Carroll of South Clanton, and has just recently returned from France. The groom is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Mitchell.

OAK GROVE

There will be an all day singing here on the Fourth of July, in the late books—Crowns of Love. There will also be a big picnic and basket dinner.

Everybody come with song books and full baskets. All singers are especially invited. Cold drinks and ice cream will be sold for the benefit of the school. Don't miss it but be present. J.B. NORTHCUTT.

SINGING AT MAPLE SPRINGS

There will be an all-day singing at Maple Springs the Third Sunday in June. Everybody is invited to come and bring books and dinner. "Crowns of Love" books will be used.

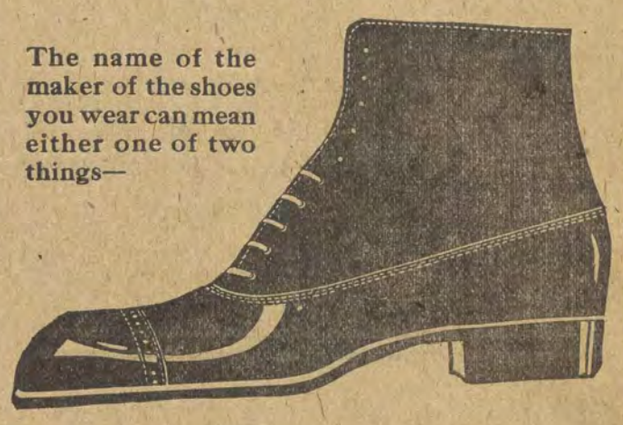
COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.



Gonzales, Tex.— Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days ...I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go...I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle...I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. E 78

CONGRESS REGAINS INDEPENDENCE OF THE WHITE HOUSE DICTATORSHIP AND ACTS ON ITS OWN INITIATIVE

Atmosphere at Washington is Entirely Different From That Which Has Marked Natian's Capitol Since March, 1913---Legislative Branch of Government Resumes its Normal Functions.

Washington, May 30.—"This congress is taking the business before it seriously. I have been impressed in talking with members that they feel a sense of responsibility and are determined to try to do the things the country needs to have done and that it wants to see done. You can fee it in the air. It is a very different situation from that of last session."

This was the statement today of Representative Royal C. Johnson of South Dakota, in commenting on the outlook for important legislative action in the extra session of the new Congress. It is closely akin to other comment which one may hear at both ends of the Capitol in discussion of Congressional prospects.

One need not look far, in fact, to discern that there is a radical difference in the conditions which obtain at the capitol now and those which prevailed last winter. The initiative for the passage of needed laws can now be found at the Capitoll. For some sessions back, as everybody knows, it has not been at the capitol but at the White House. The legislative program in the years between 1913 and 1919 has been made up in the executive departments and at the White House.

The House and Senate membership of the Democratic side broadly speaking, and with certain exceptions, took the orders of the White House. Many an important measure was drafted, not at the Capitol but at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue. If at times, vital changes in proposed laws were forced, it was as a rule, against administration protest and by the votes of the membership lest amenable to the executive.

In the session last winter, with the president in Europe and his attention diverted from domestic questions, the Democratic membership of the House and Senate lost interest in things and drifted about hopelessly. Needed legislation for the reconstruction period received no proper notice. The situation then was such that certain important appropriation bills were not even brought up expect in a perfunctory way in the Senate appropriations committee.

A Real Congress in its Own Name.

Now, there is a chance which seems to presage that Congress is in process of restoration to a body that actually initiates and enacts laws. The House and Senate begin to look like real legislative agencies. They present symptoms of being able to function on their own account and naturally; to proceed in the fashion that is contemplated in the Constitution which provides for a Congress to enact laws a judiciary to interpret laws and an executive to enforce the laws.

For the obvious reason that the administration is Democratic and the Congress is Republican, the new congress is not going to take orders from the executive. The legislative program has been shaped in House and Senate is the program of the Republican membership. It was made up before the message of the president was delivered and it is far more comprehensive than the recommendations in the message. The House program, for instance, incudes the passage of a law for a budget system, something much in the public mind just now. It was not even referred to by the president.

Whether one thinks the congress ought to be the congress in fact or believes it ought to take orders from the chief executive, he cannot deny there is a very real change in things. If he does not make for healthier and more independent conditions, for better and more carefully wrought out legislation, it will, to say the least, be a great disappointment to those who still adhere to the faith that the founders of the republic knew what they were about when they sought to make a sharp separation of the powers of the legislative and executive branches.

There are those, of course, who insist that the president ought to be the head and front of the government in the making of laws and their execution. Some are of the faith of the new Senator from Georgia, William J. Harris, who, according to the story much told of him, when he was running for the senatorship told his constituents that if elected he would go to the White House every morning to find what the president wanted. Mr. Harris has not yet begun to keep his morning vigils in the White House dooryard but presumably will when Mr. Wilson returns from Europe.

Even Democrats Grew Resentfull.

Seriously, however, it must be said in fairness that for many months back there has been growing among many Democrats of the Senate and House a depening feelilng of resentment of and opposition to dictation of legislative procedure by the presidential office. Not many were independent enough openly to revolt. But there is no doubt whataver that a large percentage of the Democratic members are glad to be relieved from a situation that has become intolerable except to that element that lacked the force or brains of leadership within itself and had to look to another source for guidance.

Possibly, too, the president feels relieved that he no longer has an obsequious congress on his hands. At least, some of his spokesmen say he will no longer attempt to drive congress and will allow the leladers of that body to take the reins. In any event, there can be little doubt that the new order of things will make for the development of more brains, courage and independence in the House and Senate, and will mean that proposed laws will be given much more real and painstaking consideration. Nothing could be imagined more inimical to the best interests of the American people than a "rubber stamp" congress, willing to pass a bill on orders from outside the capitol, without crossing a "t" or dotting an "i."

To eb a Congress of Deeds.

The new congress is faced by exceptional difficulties. The reconstruction period call for much legislation which must be new in the biggest and broadest sense. It must be abreast of the quickend thoubht of the times, not simply new in the sense of being different from what has preceded it. None but a fool would deny that the path of the House and Senate is going to be a hard one to traverse. It would be difficult enough at best and it will be made more difficult by all of the many partisan obstacles which will be thrown in it. Nevertheless, there is reason to believe that by the time the extra session is over, or even well under way, it will be made plain that this is going to be a congress of real achievement. The quick action of the House on the resolution for a woman suffrage amendment is one sign of it. The preparations being made for the passage of the railroad measure in the extra session are another sign. The activity of big committees in the House, such as appropriations, is another. Within a week or two, beyond a doubt, there will be such a grinding of the wheels of legislation, in the committees of the House and Senate, and on the floor of both houses, as has not been heard about the Capitol for years.

CONTINUOUS CONGRESS UNTIL LATE IN 1920 IS PREDICTIONS

Washington, May 30.—The impression prevails here that the present session of congress will last all summer and fall and reach up to the opening of the regular sesion in December.

Senator Callder, of New York, predicted congress would sit continuously up to the sumemr of 1920. He pointed out that problems of enormous magnitude had to be solved, including those relating to railroads, merchant marine, military policy, immigration, tariff, revenues and other matters.

Rev. J. O. Williams, who has been a Chaplain in the U. S. Army in France during the war, was in Clanton Wednesday. Before entering the service Rev. Williams was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Sylacauga. He is a Clanton man of whom we are proud.

MEXICO AGAIN THREATENS

Nations of Europe Look to United States to Make Neighbors Behave.

Washington, May 30.—Members of the foreign relations committee of the Senate are showing lively interest in Mexican developments on the eve of the reconvening of congress.

Recently Villa has been unusually active in northern Mexico, committing depredations on native annd foreign property. Now comes the official announcement by the Italian government of the affront to Rear Admiral Count Max Lovatelli, of the royal Italian nevy, who was ylaced under arrest in Mexico while on an inspection trip of oil lands, and when his identity was known to the authorities. While on the tour the secretary to the Count was attacked near Tampico and robbed of valuables and clothing. Admiral Lovatelli was ordered to apepar before a Mexican tribunal but this he refused to do.

The activity of Villa, together with the humiliation of the Italian afficer, particularly at the time when the Fiume discussion is serious, tends to force the Mexican problelm into the position where it may become one of the big questions before the congress which already is burdened with titanic tasks in trying to get the country to its normal basis.

While it is pretty generally overlooked, it is a factt hat during the whole of the European war, thousands of American troops have been held on the border to defent against invasion of the Mexican bands and, as one officer recently expressed it, the soldiers in Texas are about as anxious to get relief as the men who are being held on the Rhine.

Cut this out and Take it with You.

A man often forgets the exact name of the article he wishes to purchase, and as a last resort takes something else instead. That is alwys disappointing and unsatisfactory The safe way is to cut this out and take it with you so as to make sure of getting Chamberlain's Tablets. You wil find nothing quite so satisfactory for constipationa nd indigestion.

NO OPERATION FOR THIS GIRL

Mother Sayst hat Dreco kept her out of the Hospital... Had Pains in her Stomach all time.

"My daughter had such pains and misery in her stomach and bowels we thought she would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but since taking two boles of Dreco, she is feeling well again, and never gives a hught to an operation any more," stated Mrs. John Bohn of 540 Summerville Road, Phoenix City, Ala.

"She was very nervous and weal and not able to sit up part of the time. Constipation troubles her a great deal and she frequenly had headaches; gas in her stomach, pains in her back and limbs and indigestion. Dreco did her so much good that I have begun taking it myself, and already I can tell the difference in my feelingsh. No doubt this is a great medicine and everyone should know about it."

The good old time root and herb medicines are the best any one can take. Nothing strong or harmful in them, but they act quick and sure.

Dreco is made from the juices of many different herbal plants which act on the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and the blood. It increases the appetite; induces sound sleep; quiets the nerves and builds up the system in general. It is pleasant to ake and good for every member of the family.

Dreco is now sold by all god druggists throughout the country, and is highly recommended in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co.

DEMOCRATIC HEADS PLAY POLITICS WITH THE LEAGUE

Chairman Cummings' Statement does not Square with President's Words.

POLICY NOT WELL RECEIVED

Attempt to make Party Issue Out of League of Nations not Supported.

Washington, June 6.—Before his last departure for France in a speech, President Wilson said: "No party has a right to appreciate this issue:"

He was alluding to the proposed league of nations. Just how to reconcile this with the action of the Democratic National Committee at Chicago in calling on the Senate to ratify the league of nations and the peace treaty and with the statement of the chairman of the committee, Homer S. Cummings, that the Democrats will welcome the league of nations question as a political issue in the campaign next year, is causing a good many people to find themselves puzzled.

They are unable to make the high language of the President square with the language of Mr. Cummings, who as is well known, makes no move without getting the White House O.K.

Adding also to the interest in the matter are continued intimations going out from the inner circles of the administration and echoed and re-echoed by its spokesmen that the President will run for a third term if the league of nations plan is not ratified by the Senate.

However, those who have been following the developments with respect to the league of nations most closely are not particularly mystified.

It is well known that that large element of the Democrats in congress and in the Democratic organization which is completely under the thumb of the administration and does always what it is told to do has long been seeking to make the disposition of international affairs in this critical time the football of politics. That the more independent Democrats in Congress and through the country are unwilling to do this is also well understood.

The fact that when the Democratic national committee met here some time ago it decided to set out on a plan to enlist as many Republicans in the support of the league, getting them to head clubs in favor of it, and otherwise be active for it, and that the suggestion for doing this came from the highest administration sources has been little dwelt on here but is well known. Now, with the Democratic National Committee avowing what amounts to its purpose to make the league a party issue, it does not need a diagram to perceive that the scheme has been to use many well-intentioned men and women who supposed they had no party motives as cat's paws for the Democratic political machinery.

The pronouncement of Mr. Cummings looking to making a Democratic party issue our of the league however, has not been well received by a number of the Democratic senators who subscribe to that doctrine which Senator Lodge has repeatedly set forth: "Politics stops at the water's edge." Some of the strongest and ablest of the Democratic senators hold that the effort of the National Committee to play politics with the league is not wise and that it will redound to the disadvantage of the Democratic party. In fact, certain of the Democratic leaders in congress raise the question whether Mr. Cummings has not made as big a blunder as the remarkable letter of the president to the country before the last election urging the voters to elect a Democraic Congress in order to sustain his policies. Mr. Cummings, it should be added, has always been credited with having a great share in that amazing piece of political finesse which proved a boomerang.

BAKER AND COX WAIT ON WILSON'S DECISION TO RUN

Both Ohioans Ready to Step to the Front as Candidates for the Presidency.

COX HAS THE INSIDE TRACK

Persistent Rumors of a Third Term Make Gumshoe Work of Prospects Difficult.

Washington, June 7.—Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who aspires to the presidency and whose friends have been setting out to run him for that high office on the strength of his war record, is revealing a political capacity quite equal to his military capacity.

Arriving on the scarred political battlefields of Ohio late, Mr. Baker finds that Governor James M. Cox has passed that way before him.

It is said, among the wise men of politics, that Governor Cox, not relying entirely on moral force to gather support, has been busy seeing his Demicratic brethren in recent months and getting promises of votes. The result is that the governor has the inside track in the matter of prospect for delegates. If the primaries were to be held there tomorrow, Governor Cox, it is said, would win the delegation. Of course, such a thing would put Mr. Baker out of the running.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio is another aspirant for the Democratic nomination. The Senator, however, is not expected to jump into the race with Governor Cox and Mr. Baker both active candidates.

Of course, neither of the Ohio aspirants will attempt to run if President Wilson seeks another nomination,as his intimates are now broadly hinting that he will. They are in the painful situation of not knowing what the President is going to do but the persistent stories coming out in administration newspapers that the President may find it necessary to run in order to force the United States to take up with the covenant for a league of nations has made things very uncomfortable for them.

One solution of it may be that the President will run again and Governor Cox or Mr. Baker be put on the ticket as canidate for vice president. This, it is true, would necessitate the turning down of vice President Marshall of Indiana, for the vice Presidency. How ever, it is well understood in Wahington that Mr. Marshall has never had the confidence or likeing of the White House because of the fact he has shown a disposition to have independent viws of thing and voice these views without getting any body's O. K. for them.

C. REESE MULLINS, Agt.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHT TRIUMPHANT.

Washington, June 7.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

On the night of March 4th, a few hours before the President was to leave on his return trip to Paris, our ex-President stood on the same platform with Mr. Wilson and addressed a New York audience in advocacy of the covenant of the league of nations. Nothing was said at that meeting about the need for any revision of that document; in fact the whole tenor of the speeches by both the president and Mr. Taft was that the covenant should and must be adopted without change. In carrying out that thought the president even indulged in threats that he would so weave the covenant into the treaty that the Senate would have no recourse but to adopt it.

"But soon there was published to the world the round robin that 39 Republican senators had signed just before the adjournment of the congress. That declaration so clearly spelled defeat for the league that its friends hastened to qualify their endorsement of it by suggesting that certain amendments might well be made. Three days after he had walked on t o the New York stage arm in arm with the president, Mr. Taft published a statement which amounted to an apology for his uncompromizing attitude in support of the league, and hastened to assure the country that amendments to the covenant were not only advisable but absolutely necessary.

"It should be borne in mind," Mr. Taft hastened to explain, "that the present covenant is merely a report from a committee of the conference. * * * Undoubtedly, the covenant needs revision. It is not systematically arranged, its meaning has to be dug out and the language is ponderous and in diplomatic patois." As to boycotts and furnishings of an international military force Mr. Taft said "This part of the covenant might be clarified." "The covenant should also be made more definite," he continued, "as to when its obligations may be terminated. It should be made more definite by a larger reservation of the Monroe Doctrine. There are other ambiguous prases."

"The belated objections of Mr. Taft were well taken, and if the country were in any real danger of having the league foisted upon it the changes he suggested should be incorporated in it. But the ex-President's comments are quoted to show the vacillation that characterizes the utterances of all the league advocates. They are for a league at any price, run to the support of the scheme that seems to have the ascendency at the moment, with best promise of success.

No recourse is had to argument by Mr. Taft and others who conduct themselves in that way. Like the street vendor of a patent medicine who invites purchases on the strength of his mere statement that the concoction will cure, Mr. Taft asks the country to accept the league on his unsupported, and, in fact, disproved, assertion that it will bring universal peace. The marvel is that the league ever received the support that it once had; but that is accounted for largely by the former high standing of the men who were behind it. Mr. Taft, for instance, did not hesitate to lend the prestige of his position as our only ex-president to the league propaganda, and that possibly was sufficient, in the entire absence of supporting argument to win to the cause those who are not in the habit of relying on independent thought and drawing their own conclusions.

But the bubble has burst. Taken at first by surprise in the sudden and overwhelming propaganda campaign that flooded the country, the inherent Yankee trait of independence of thought and action has emerged triumphant, marking the complete defeat of those who would induce us to surrender our birthright of liberty for the pottage of assisting in the permanent policing of Europe, Asia, and the world.

Mr. Wilser Cured of Indigestion.

"Some time in 1909 when I had an attack of indigestion and everything loked gloomy to me, I received a free sample of Chamberlain's Tablets through mail. I gave them a trial and they were such a help to me that I bought a package,a nd I can truly say that I have not had a similar attack since." writes Wm. B. Wisler, Douglasville, Pa.

ONE PHASE OF WAR WASTE

War Material Sold Back to Manufacturers at Fraction of Cost.

Washington, June 7.—"An instance of how money is wasted," said Representative W. R. Green of the House Ways and Means Committee, "is shown by the Housing Bureau which calmly announces that it does not expect to get any more dormitories here than is sufficient to pay the employees who are looking after the buildings.

"The aircraft situation also needs more investigating. Congress ought to know why a certain airplane company can buy back from the government planes that cost many thousand dollars for a few hundred dollars without anyone else having a chance to bid and why buildings are being wrecked at one camp and new ones being erected at another close by. These are only instances of a long line of extravagance which has prevailed and which never will be stopped until full publicity is given."

WHY HE IS DETAINED

A remarkably striking cartoon entitled "Why He is Detained," by McCay, appeared in the New York American, Wm. Randolph Hearst's leading newspaper, on the editorial page, in the issue of Wednesday, June 4th.

The picture represents President Wilson seated at a table with King George, who is filling the President's glass out of a bottle labeled, "Royal Condescension," and asking, "Do you like it? to which the President is quoted in answering, "It's great; I can't get enough of it." Standing between them with her hand on another bottle is a maiden labeled "The French Republic," who holds aloof other bottles labeled, "French Flattery." "European Attention," etc. Tugging at the President's sleeve but unable to divert his attention from the feast, is a child labeled "American Interests," who is appealing to him with, "Father, dear Father, come home with me now."

It is a most significant depiction of the President's protracted sojourn abroad, and is rendered all the more remarkably by the fact that it is exploited in a newspaper that uniformly supports the Democratic ticket in a national campaign.

PERVERSIONS OF TRUTH

One outstanding feature impresses the mind of every man who reads the President's Memorial Address—the frequent misstatement of fact—in which respect it differs little from his numerous other addresses during the past four years. From opening ing declaration that "these men who lie here are men of unique breed," his remarks were replete with false assumptions or erroneous assertions, all contrived to bolster up the falling fortunes of his league of nations scheme.

The men who died in France were not unique. They were of no different breed from that of men who fought to the last gasp behind the battered doors of the Alamo, nor different from the breed of men who fought at San Juan Hill, or in the pestilential swamps of the Phillipines.

And it is a false assumption that they went to France to fight for humanity. If that had been their impelling purpose they would have gone in 1915 to rebuke the rape of Belgium, to stay the devastation of France, to avenge the murdered innocents aboard the Lusitania. Self-deception avails us naught. We entered this war after receiving every insult one nation can heap upon another. We entered it after Belgium, France, England and Russia stood for nearly three years between us and the ruthless hordes of the hellish Huns. We entered the conflict only when it became apparent that Prussian militarism was about to win and that we must help or fight the enemy later and alone.

Wilson knows this. The record proves it. The declaration of war corroberates it. But the fact does not detract in the least from the heroism, the courage, the skill and the sacrifice of the men who rallied to the colors and redeemed American honor from the disgrace in which it had been dragged by a pacifist administration. The man who fought at Chateau-Thierry in the summer of 1918 would have fought as valiently in the summer of 1915, following the sinking of the Lusitania, if they had been given the training, the arms and the opportunity. If America did not perform her part in the war as promptly and effectively as she should, no word of criticism can be directed against the rank and file of the warriors who later won the admiration of the world and th e gratiutde of all succeeding generations by their various deeds.

It is perversion of the truth to say that those men were consciously or unconsciously fighting for a league of nations. It is perversion of the truth to say that they were fighting to prevent future wars, except so far as defeat of the wrong-doer in that war may discourage international outlawry for all future time. They were fighting to end this war and end it on the side of right. What steps should be taken to prevent future wars is a question to which they have given no thought that has found expression. No man can honestly claim to express the thought or the feeling of the American Expeditionary Forces upon the league of nations, or any other scheme for future world adjustment.

Thus much and this only has been demonstrated by the record of Americans in this conflict—America produces a breed of men who put the honor of their country and the peace and safety of their homes above even life itself, and when a foreign foe assails our rights, they stand ready to wage defensive or offensive war, let the cost be what it may. If a league of nations held out reasonable hope of lessening war without sacrificing liberty, doubtless they would espouse its cause. But there is no likelihood that they will choose the humiliating and menacing terms of the league covenant, with its unknown entangling alliances and sacrifice of American independence.

TWO NEGROES CUT EACH OTHER BRUTALLY.

About noon last Saturday Wade's Ice plant was turned into a butcher shop when two negroes, George Headley and Frank Ressau drew their knives and locked up into a personal carving match. The result of the encounter was one of the nastiest sce-Ressau was working they entered into Clanton.

Frank's throat was cut badly and his body shows several other ugly stabs and slashes. As he went up the street to a doctor's office spots of blood from the cut on his throat spotted the side-walk all along his path. George's hand was cut badly and his body was cut and stabbed in many places.

The trouble between the negroes seems to be that George has taken Frank's wife away from him. They have been in some fights about the matter before. Headley came from Birmingham Saturday morning and when he went to the ice plant where Ressan was working they entered into their bloody combat without any preliminary ceremony.

Sheriff Gore and Marshall Gore were both gone to dinner when the fight took place but they were soon on the scene, and as soon as the doctors had patched up the mutilated negroes they were both put in jail. They are getting along very nicely, and it is not expected that the wounds will result fatally.

Two negroes in a dispute concerning a job at the Vida Lumber Mill at Lomax, engaged in a one-sided shooting scrape on Monday afternoon. The principals in the affair were Jim Holman and Oscar Deramus. Holman was not hurt; but he shot Deramus in the arm with a forty-four pistol.

Deputy Sheriff Culp went to the scene of the shooting and took charge of Holman and placed him in jail.

People Have Confidence in Republican Legislation at Washington.

We are not committed to the idea that all politics and political parties are counterfeit and have come to naught in their service of the interests of our country. True enough there are instances in the past wherein it can be cited that both the old parties have been guilty of sin of one sort and another. We would not attempt to even absolve all parties from digression and wash their parments white as snow.

Then, too, it is true that the reconstruction period following the unsettled conditions visited upon us by the war just ended has created vast new tasks that fall within the province of political parties for solution. The people of the country have by their ballot given the task of meeting these new conditions to the Republican party. We believe that they would have awarded the contract to the Democrats if they had believed that they (the Democrats) would do the job the best. The country had seen the management of affairs by the Democrats during the war, and simply were not so impressed with their stewardship to trust them further in the more important task of reconstruction.

Now, the Republicans have been awarded the job and the people will hold them to a strict accountability for the way in which they use their power. The landslide which turned the majority in the House to the Republicans and at the same time wrested control of the Senate from Mr. Wilson's party was nothing more nor less than the conviction of the citizens of the country that the Republican party was versatile enough to properly cope with the requirements of the new conditions. The people have made it plain that the Republican party should have the undoing of much of the "rubber-stamp" stuff that the Democrats have been doing as war measures.

Republicans are confident that the party will be true to its trust and measure up to its responsibility. They are confident that their representatives will do everything in their power to make possible a period of wise amity and cooperation between the two co-ordinate branches of the government engaged in settling the serious questions which are to present themselves for solution. They feel sure that the conduct of their representatives will be free from partisanship which was so sectional arbitrary and autocratic on the part of the Democratic party in Congress during the period of the war. The Representatives and Senators composing the Congress are capable and fully intent to be exactly and completely what they are very properly supposed to be—the legislative body of our government, and not dependent upon the vacillating and dreaming idealistic mind of the White House for a policy.

The Republican party chastened, re-united and harmonious, has been returned to power in this country. It has been charged with a great trust. It has been given a golden opportunity by a confident and trusting people. It now behooves the party leaders and the various agencies and representatives of the party to demonstrate conclusively that the trust reposed in them is not misplaced and that the wisdom of their section on the part of the people is established beyond the peradventure of a doubt.

People Want to Know About Wilson's Visit to the Pope.

Hugh Roberts, the Age-Herald correspondent at Washington, says the Alabama delegation at Washington has been flooded with letters from people in Alabama, desiring to know if President Wilson did receive a forty-thousand dollar present from the Pope when he visited Rome a few months ago.

It seems from the Age-Herald that these Congressmen are having considerable difficulty in answering all these inquiries. There is no use for them to lose their nerves about this little ripple that is arising on their heretofore peaceful incumbency at the capitol. This is just a small matter to that which is coming. And the people are not going to fool about a quibbling answer very long. They want the straight honest goods about this secret stuff going on between Rome and Washington.

People down here in Alabama are waking up right along. They have a right to demand an answer to their questions about Wilson going to Rome. We did not elect Wilson to stay in Europe and hold secret confabs with Pope Benedict in the "holy room" at the vatican. Such stuff on the part of our American executive is not right and the people have a right to protest. The little small-bore politician or Congressman who feels so horny as to try bucking against the people in this matter is going to get his stinger pulled out right quick.

Many of the anti-Woman Suffragists in the Democratic party are scared out of their boots by the idea that the adoption of this new idea will put the Democratic party out of business in the future. We say if it will do that, let her come forthwith and immediatery. Anything that will stay the hand of this modern Democratic politics will be a blessing to America.

Rome Has Captured us; Now What Will She Do With Us?

We suppose that the Catholics figure that they have now got this country in their power completely; and they are going to have a great meeting of the high authorities of the Church in Washington right away to decide what to do with it. The Birmingham News, that great paper which is always anxious and particular to publish things for the exploitation of Roman doings, tells about that great meeting in its Friday issue. The dispatch from Washington published in the News says as follows:

"The general purpose of the conference as stated by Cardinal Gibbons, will be to organize committees to study and work for the welfare of the Church and country, particularly along social and educational lines. It will discuss social and educational problems involved in legislation under consideration by Congress and will formulate a uniform Catholic policy."

American, free-born, liberty-loving citizens, we remind you again of the fact that Rome has declared war on American institutions and has declared that America shall be made Catholic. Rome, the mother of Harlots, the enemy of truth, science and progress, the personified spirit of the devil, the Pope of Roman Heirarchy has given his orders that America shall be made Catholic. He has declared that we, the advocates of free speech, free press, free schools, the open Bible, must be subjugated to his dictates and governed by his minions.

Think of it. The above is the program which these minions of Benedict are to meet and work out in our national capital. By their shrewd and delusive schemes they have been seeking the end of their infamous plan for the last few years. We know that they have succeeded well. We can see evidences of their success that rise as veritable mountains before our dazed vision, and rolling forth in its course, crushes the life out of the waning and limp form of American ideals.

The death grip has been placed on us friends. The great octapus of the Tiber has us in the power of his awful tentacles. Now he and his minions are to council together and discuss what shall be done to us.

Oh, that Americans could awake today and realize that we face the awful condition of the mouse in the paw of the lion. We realie that we are to be devoured and wonder what the method shall be.

We think it would be better for the United States if the League of Nations covenant were lost in the political wilderness, along with its chief exponent, Woodrow Wilson.

President Wilson is holding a gun in the breast of the Senate and demanding as the price of peace that there shall be on the part of the Senate, immediate, unquestioning acceptance of his personally contrived scheme of world reorganiation. But the gun is not loaded and the Senate knows it is not.

Our county commissioners did not make this dipping law; neither did they waste all the county's money building highways that were not built. Then what is the use of cussing them? The fact that the money was wasted by Deason's administration, and that the dipping law was forced on us by our Democratic ping law was forced on us by our Democraic neighbors in the legislature, and the burning of the court-house by some low-down scoundrel who ought to be in hell, has made a very hard road for our commissioners to travel in financing the county. Why don't you help them instead of "cuss' them then?

Musgrove seems to be profoundly American and anti-Catholic on the one hand, for he says he stands for separation of church and state in he administration of the affairs of our government. But then on the other hand, in the same breath he blories in the fact that he stands squarely behind Wilson in the League of Nations proposition. We do not see how one can possess the purest Americanism and advocate the height of abstract internationalism that is so vaguely and loosely defined in Wilson's League of Nations project. We are glad to see our Representatives at Washington standing for Americanism at Washington. And we also want to see them declare that same Americanism in Europe or any other place in the world.

It is a funny thing that people are ever ready to censure and seldom willing to help. A man came into our office the other day and said he was looking for somebody to help him "cuss" the Commissioners Court because they had not paid him for dipping cows. We assured him that he could very easily find the fellow he was looking for. The country is full of folks who are raising all manner of sand about this that and the other thing which they imagine the county commissioners ought to do. Why don't they get the right idea that our officers are not tyrants and despots, but honest men doing the best they can for us, and lend a helping hand rather than "cuss" them, as the fellow expressed it?

We are especially anxious to see some of the Alabama dailies get into that part of the platforms of Musgrove and Rainey which says those men are in favor of keping the Catholics out of politics. These dailies in Alabama are afraid to say anything against the plans and purposes of the Catholic politicians, even if they were inclined to be against them. But to make bad matters worse, some of the daily papers, we are convinced, are not at all inclined to take up the cudgel for Americanism against Romanism for the simple fact that they are acually in sympathy and secretly allied with the latter. Anyway, they have got to meet the question and we are anxious to see what kind of an out they make of it. We can see them now sounding about picking out what they hope to be an easy place to fall.

CIRCUIT COURT WILL CONVENE AT CLANTON ON JULY 21, 1919

The next term of the Circuit Court of Chilton County will convene on July 21st. This will be the jury term and the grand jury will sit to consider alleged violations of the laws.

Records of the court officials of the county indicate that the coming session of the court will be the busiest one for some time. There is a large docket waiting, in addition to what the grand jury may return.

There are some three or four murder cases to be tried, among them the case of Perry Glass who is to be retried again for the killing of Jim Campbell.

Work of finishing up the new courthouse is being pushed with all haste. And Contractor Dobson entertains plans that will have the new building ready for the July court. The windows and inside finishing work is now being completed very hastily.

A SODA WATER YARN

We have heard all sorts of soda fountain yarns come down the line ever since the time when Jim Parrish, then a one-gallus overall youth, came into Upchurch's and told Calvin Wilson to give him a "general mixtry." But Emmett Blankenship, the soda jerker of recent pluto prominence, tells about the best one we have heard in recent days. It goes like this:

An old man with those goat whiskers and iron-rimmed specks entered the drug store a while back, approached the soda fount, and stooping over the counter, inquired "What have you got cold to drink here?"

Emmett very politely (though we imagine with a smile in the corner of his eye) informed the old fellow that he could give him anything from pluto on down the line to just plain red soda water—except corn licker.

"Well," said the old man, "I been hearin' 'em talk about this 'set-up drink; 'spose you give me one of 'em."

HIS WIFE WAS AN INVALID FOR YEARS, HE SAYS.

Almost at times.

Now declares that the new root and herb remedy Dreco has given relief.

"My wife has prastically been an invalid for thirty years," are the words of that well known and highly respected citizen Mr. W. J. Feyason of 635 Locust Street, Gadsden, Ala.

"she kept going down hill all the time, loosing strength and she became weak, pale and very nervous and excitable. She lost her appetite and what food she did eat didn't seem to nurish her nor give any srength. It often fermented and caused her stomach to fill up with gas. Her bowels were very constipated and she was forced to take some kind of medicine most every night for them. Her breath became foul and she hardly known what a good nights rest was like. Dizzy speels often struck her and she would almost go blind from them.

"I've spent lots of money buying medicine for her and fordoctor bills but nothing ever gave more temporary relief. I've always put a lot of faith in the old time root and herb medicine, so when I read about Dreco, I went right away and got her a bottle. It seemed to go right to the bottom of her troubles and now she is like a different person,both in looks and feelings. Her color has returned, eyes cleared up, and I've never seen any one gain strenght so fast. she gets around now like she used to when a young woman. her appetite is huge and whats more, the food agrees with her, never has gas and hasn't had a dizzy spell since she started on Dreco. We shurely recommend Dreco."

All good druggist now sell Dreco and it is highly recommended in Clanton, by Upchurch Drug Co.
